"Outright Lies"

Fitzsimmons Denies Teamster Breakup

DETROIT (AP)—Frank Fitzsimmons, acting president of the Teamsters Union, has angrily challenged reports that there has been a change in the 1,800,000 - member union's power structure.

Fitzsimmons, in an interview Saturday, called the reports "outright lies" and "a deliberate attempt to deprive the union—complete lies."

He said the union is still operating under the policies established by James R. Hoffa. Teamsters Union boss convicted of jury tampering and sentenced to eight years in prison.

The comments were Fitzsimmons' first remarks about reports that a secret meeting in Chicago had led to a shift that decentralized control of the union.

Fitzsimmons, while acting as president, technically remains a general vice-president and Hoffa, who is making legal moves in hopes of winning a new trial, remains head of the union.

Hoffa handpicked Fitzsimmons, his long-time friend, to handle the union in his absence.

It had been reported that the union's executive board adopted a resolution in Chicago shifting control to local leaders scattered across the U.S.

Robert Holmes, president of Local 337 in Detroit and Harold Gibbons of St. Louis, both vice-presidents, also denied that there was any change in the union's chain of command.

Hoffa in Handcuffs At Court Hearing

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — James R. Hoffa, diminutive but powerful labor leader who spent three months here in 1964 on trial for jury tampering, returned in handcuffs Saturday for his fourth attempt to win a new trial. His court hearing will begin Tuesday.

Hoffa, 54, was booked at Hamilton County jail after he and three federal marshals came here by automobile from the U.S. penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa.

Defence lawyers, led by Morris Shenker, converged upon the jail shortly after his arrival and immediately went into conference with Hoffa.

Also in the jail are his three co-defendants, Ewing King and Thomas Ewing Parks of Nashville, Tenn., and Larry Campbell, Parks' nephew and a Detroit Teamsters Union official.

In the new trial motion, Hoffa and his co-defendants charge that the government used electronic eavesdropping and wiretapping before and during his trial. The government has denied the charge.

RCAF Flies Calgary Girl To Hospital

Chelley Lynn Stanway, one of three children of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Stanway of Calgary, has bone cancer that spread to her rib cage and vertebrae. It was detected when her leg was fractured in a toboggan accident last January.

The Saskatchewan, Alberta and federal governments and many individuals in Canada helped line up the trip. The Stanways have received about $3,000 in donations for expenses and a hospital bed.

Humane Society Inspector Now Resident of Napanee

NAPANEE — The regional inspector for the Ontario Humane Society is now a Napanee resident. His work takes him to Frontenac, Lennox and Addington, Prince Edward and Hastings counties and Napanee is the central point.

Mr. Hugh Morgan has had extensive experience with humane work. He served for seven years in British Columbia, three in Oakville, and spent a year in North Bay inspecting the bush camps.

There has been a gratifying increase in interest in the Lennox and Addington County Humane Society and its work. The year 1966 was the most successful year in its history. The previous year the Society had cared for 35 dogs and 18 cats, lost or abandoned by their owners. Last year dogs in the care of the Society numbered 108 and cats 55. Most of these found new homes.

Speaking at the annual meeting of the local Humane Society, T. I. Hughes, general manager of the provincial organization, stated that it was the best record for the year reported by any society in the province.

The credit goes to Mr. and Mrs. Chester Wemp of R. R. 1, Napanee, who care for the animals on their farm. They love animals and will keep them as much as six months until they place them. They do this for little or nothing, only a small flat fee for each, whether they keep the animal for two days or six months.

Rawdon

RAWDON — A car belonging to Kenneth Weaver, Mount Pleasant, was removed from his garage early Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Lake have purchased the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Sine in the Wellman's community. Mr. Sine will take up residence on the Frankford Rd. at Sidney.

Mr. and Mrs. Dean Baker, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. William McAdam.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wrightman and Cathy spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. William Elliott, Georgetown.

Mrs. E. Wedman and daughter Mrs A. Nieuwenhuis of Holland are holidaying with the farmer's daughters, Mrs. Andy Visser, Carmel and Mrs. Nick de Haas, River Valley. Mrs E. Visser accompanied them and will spend the three weeks with Mr. and Mrs. A. Visser and family.

Town Council Will Hold Special Meet

NAPANEE—A special meeting of the town council is being held Monday evening. The chief business will be to give approval for the sale of debentures for the sewer and water improvements at the east end of the town, extending from the service station on Highway 401, and extending to the corner of Dundas and Adelphi streets within the town. These were completed last summer.

It is expected that these facilities will be used also, in time, by two new housing developments east of the Camden Road. Both have been laid out. The Barrett development is on land owned by Tom and Harold Barrett, and will eventually contain 86 homes. Creighton Crescent is owned by Mrs. C. B. Creighton, with room for 27 homes. This is a desirable residential area, and those lots which will have the Napanee River as the southern boundary are especially good ones.

There are few building lots within the town itself, and expansion has been going on rapidly in neighboring townships, principally Richmond and North Fredericksburgh. Both sewer and water facilities are available to Richmond residents in the neighborhood of the hospital, and last year provision was made to supply North Fredericksburgh homes with water.

Both the new undeveloped housing developments are within the town itself.

HAS 106TH BIRTHDAY

CALGARY (CP)—Mrs. William Galbraith, in good health except for a leg injury that has kept her in bed three years, celebrated her 106th birthday in hospital Saturday. A native of Cardigan, P.E.I., she has a relative in Prince Edward Island approaching her 108th birthday.

Nearly Three Million Visit Expo

MONTREAL (CP)—Total attendance at Expo 67 soared near the 3,000,000 mark Sunday night but much of the talk among top officials at the crowded fairgrounds still concerned an allegation made by a former Quebec justice minister.

Today, officials were to obtain no official record of the allegation by Claude Wagner that four companies were acting as underworld fronts at the Expo site.

During the weekend, the allegation as it affected one of the companies was denied by Expo's deputy commissioner-general, Robert Shaw.

The company he singled out for clearance is Fleur de Lys Vending Services Inc., which he said is the only one of the four having a concession contract with the corporation running Expo.

An official police investigation of what Mr. Shaw called the "damaging" allegation was requested by Expo. Meantime denials of Mr. Wagner's statement came from representatives of all four companies.

Mr. Shaw termed the Fleur de Lys firm "clean as a whistle" and said of the former Liberal justice minister, "Mr. Wagner made big headlines."

Sunday 336,712 visitors milled through the Expo turnstiles which brought total attendance at the fair since it formally opened April 27 to 2,943,662.

The weekend trailed off into wind and rain Sunday night, with mostly cloudy weather and temperatures of between 40 and 53 degrees predicted for today.

Today's events on the spectacular St. Lawrence River site include expressions of homage to the Red Cross and, on the administrative level, discussion of how extra low-price feeding facilities can be provided for the unexpectedly large crowds.

Mr. Wagner said a committee of the Quebec legislature Friday night that Fleur de Lys Vending Machines has the concession for all automated facilities at Expo and is connected with a firm, Frendale, "chief of Montreal bookies."

Mr. Shaw said the firm "has no connection whatsoever" with Mr. Frankel. Its principals in fact were "established and reputable businessmen in the community."

Among the other firms which Mr. Wagner called concessionaires at Expo and linked with the underworld was New System Towels Supply.

Mr. Shaw said this firm is owned entirely by two men "established and respected in the business community."

Mr. Wagner said all meat concessions at Expo are controlled by a William Obront, "a well known Mafia figure."

Mr. Shaw, in saying a firm he called Obront is not among Expo concessionaires, added that Obront has "bid on warehouse space owned by the corporation but no leases have yet been signed and will not be until the current questions are answered."

Also bidding on warehouse space was Margie's Flower Shop, which Mr. Wagner also linked with the underworld.

"Neither Margie's nor anybody else has an exclusive right to supply flowers to the Expo site," said the deputy commissioner - general.

Mr. Shaw, questioned by reporters, said it might be that individual pavilions could have concessionaires on a separate bases from the corporation, which administers the site as a whole.

The Expo official said that in making "careful" checks of firms bidding for positions as concessionaires with the Expo corporation, the corporation had rejected some companies as having bad reputations.

"We are asking the police to investigate Mr. Wagner's Friday night suggestion. There has been what I consider a suggestion of wrong-doing."

The deputy commissioner-general was "sure that Mr. Wagner would not attempt to further his own political career at the expense of anything as important as Expo."

But Mr. Wagner should know that "the poorest way to start and pursue a police investigation is through a public statement."

U.S., Russian Pavilions Are Contrasts in Style

MONTREAL (CP) — Officials responsible for the United States pavilion at Expo 67 say that about 50,000 visitors are flocking through their doors - shaped showhouse every day.

The Soviet pavilion, across a nearby channel, is said by its administrators to be receiving about 70,000 visitors daily.

There are no figures immediately available from Expo officials on attendance at the pavilions making up the big fair.

For some visitors this has caused a letdown, pavilion sources say, but for most it generates relief.

Among Canadians especially there is "an almost universal sense of relief that we haven't shoved massive doses of industrial might down their throats," said the chief of the U.S. pavilion's public relations department in a Sunday night interview.

Exhibits include modern U.S. art, displays described as "great moments in American films," and color films about children's games and how they reflect "the universality of experience."

There's also a big exhibition illustrating U.S. plans for reaching the moon.

A Day on the Enchanted Isles

By DICK PAYNE
Staff Reporter

MONTREAL — Oh, my aching feet!

Their message is clear.

The best thing about Expo is Metro.

Whisks you from down-town Montreal to the enchanted isles in minutes.

Which is more than you can say when you get there.

Then you suddenly find toute le monde ahead of you. Most of the world is French. "Where-re-aliers" are having a ball! It can present some problems. When you transfer at the first subway station after leaving Expo, don't follow the crowd. It is going east. You, and's trickle, a mere three or four hundred, want to go west. Shove.

The show may well be one of the few you have given all day. Crowd behavior is wonderful and much of the credit for this can go to Expo officials, probably in the lower echelons. It appears as if they improvise — brilliantly.

Most popular feature of Expo is the mini-rail, the 50-cent monorail ride which winds you around the islands — if you can ever get on it. Line-ups lengthened into unmanagable distances. At least one mini-rail station, stout ropes quickly appeared and wound the crowd back and forth like a serpent, packing it in and also guarding against jostling. Come to think of it, that rope was bright yellow, easily noticed, so perhaps it was all planned. But it comes down fast when the need for it dwindles.

Coming out of Metro, the Russian building is to the south. If it is a weekend, don't even try. Though its exterior escalator gulps people at the rate of 5,000 an hour, you could spend most of your times in queues if you are not selective. Skip it and the U.S. globe, to the northeast.

Spot the British flag high on a pavilion and head for it. Nearby is an Expo express station. It travels almost at Metro speeds and, for that reason, people are not riding it for fun, as they are the mini-rail. No tickets — no waiting. From the station near the British pavilion it will whisk you east one station, to Le Ronde, the amusement area, and back again, past the British pavilion through a couple of stations to the western entrance.

Back at the stations where you boarded it, Expo Express debouches you into a ren re of attractions. There's the tiny Tobago and Trinidad pavilion, with calypso concerts and the most enticing rows of rums.

Some think the West German pavilion the best show in the place. But don't take anybody's opinion. If there is one thing Expo proves, it is that tastes differ.

The pavilion styles differ, too. There is little monotony. In most of the pavilions the most impressive sections are on the top floor. In the Australian pavilion there are only a few paintings, a montage or two—and dozens of beautiful, deep, heavily upholstered arm chairs. Ahhhh! You sink back and relax. In a couple of moments a soft voice says: "Good day. So nice to have you with us." It then proceeds to carry on a conversation with a man in your other ear. Or the greeting may be "Bon jour". It seems to depend on what colored seat you plunk your sagging posterior. Some chairs are silent. But we doubt that is by design.

The Scandinavians have a smart gimmick, too. First they shock you by providing a moving, level ramp, instead of the escalators used elsewhere. Then they deposit you, glory be, in a restaurant and bar, instead of a showcase. Prices are steep, but no worse than in a smart lounge downtown. Except for beer. A buck a pint quenches the thirst of most fairgoers. But not if you are Danish, Swedish, Norwegian, Finnish or even Icelandic. It's heaven to get back to a brew which is an old friend. Sot don't miss the second level where the exhibits are.

You might practise your French in the Senegal pavilion, in African Place. There is a well-like structure with quotations from Sengalese, in both French and English. A light shines on first one, then another of the quotations. A voice — (recorded of course, nobody could stand repeating the message for the 11½ hours of the daily show) — repeats the words on which the light shines, sometimes in English, sometimes in French, at a speed at which you can match the sound with the words.

Mechanization is needed elsewhere in the pavilion. Expo passports are a bugaboo. Every body wants them stamped. A Sengalese lowers and raises his right hand in weary monotony. The same sight can be seen in many other pavilions. But at the Korean pavilion one discovers one doesn't have to wait for the line to move if one isn't interested in passport visas. There is a machine to one side of the door which the visitor uses himself.

And that's about all. We are back near the entrance to Metro. Oh, of course, there are scores of little things which fatrigue the memory. Like the wonderful tile floors in the Moroccan and Algerian pavilions, the teak and other glass-bard woods in the Burmese building, the glitter of Thailand's golden palace, the Mexicans serenading the crowd, perhaps to draw attention to the fact that there is a Mexican pavilion behind the two or three workmen slowly tiffing on a nonsense — a replica of an Aztec temple, maybe?

And one thing else — no selling in the pavilions. There are dozens and dozens of little shops where one can buy almost anything — except Russian cigarettes, they are gone long before your own empty packet sets you searching for a refill. But no commercialism is the pavilions.

Ever since Volkswagen invented economy in 1949, people have been making regular trips to the bank in the familiar VW Sedan.

So we built a racy Sedan with all the saving graces of the VW Sedan: The VW Fastback.

It goes about 32 miles on a gallon of regular gas. 35,000 miles on a set of tires. And forever without water or antifreeze. (The air-cooled engine doesn't use them.)

The family resemblance doesn't end there. The Fastback has the Beetle's extraordinary traction to go in snow and mud. (You save on tow trucks.) The same kind of replaceable fenders. (You save on repairs.) The same 4-coats-deep paint job. (You save on paint jobs.)

What the Fastback has that the VW Sedan doesn't is more room inside, a second trunk in back over the engine, front wheel disc brakes, a stronger engine plus rakish good looks that look decidedly Un-Volkswagen.

So much so, in fact, that you may forget your Fastback is a Volkswagen. Until you refer to your Bank Book.

Rembrandt Purchased By Gallery

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Gallery of Canada has bought The Tribute Money, an early painting by the Dutch master Rembrandt, for $364,000.

The purchase was announced last week by Jean Sutherland Boggs, the gallery's director, who said the 16½-inch by 12¾-inch wooden panel painting would go on public display today.

Dr. Boggs said she believes Canadians will be "very pleased" with the purchase, arranged through Marlborough of London, which for many years was in the Sir Otto Beit collection.

The painting, which depicts Jesus with a coin explaining that tribute must not only be paid to the state but to God, was described by Dr. Boggs as "in remarkable condition, especially for a panel picture."

She said also the painting was a bargain and that it was appropriate it should be bought with taxpayers' money because of its context.

Amalgamation A Long Term Goal

Elimination of U.S.-Controlled Unions Proposed by CUPE

OTTAWA (CP)—A long-term goal of amalgamating more than 100 existing Canadian unions into 10 national industrial unions has been proposed to the Canadian Labor Congress by one of its major affiliates.

The idea, advanced by the Canadian Union of Public Employees, could mean the elimination of U.S.-controlled international unions which now dominate the Canadian labor scene.

CUPE makes the proposal in a 25,000-word brief to the CLC's commission on constitution and structure. The commission has been meeting privately with unions across the country and CUPE is the first to make public its views.

Other suggestions in the brief include:

—Renewed efforts for a merger of the CLC and the Confederation of National Trade Unions into one central labor body.

—Reduction of the CLC's full-time executive to two members from four, eliminating two executive vice-presidents.

—Changes in the executive council to ensure all major segments in organized labor of adequate representation.

—A major overhaul of the biennial convention program, scrapping speeches and ceremonies to allow more time for general debate on current labor problems.

—Appointment of a woman to direct organization of women workers.

CUPE, which now has about 110,000 members among provincial and municipal employees, warns that the labor movement must drop its resistance to change.

"We accuse the employers, the old-line parties and the establishment of hardening of the arteries, but we above all suffer from this ourselves," the brief says.

CUPE argues that no union can operate effectively in Canada with fewer than 25,000 members. There are many existing unions with fewer than 1,000 members and all but a handful are below the 25,000 mark.

Its brief says the creation of 10 industrial unions "on a Canadian basis" would put each of them in the range between 25,000 and 300,000 members.

Each of the 10 would have a specific field of operation—building trades, transport, public employees and the like.

The brief pays tribute to the work done by American unions in Canada but contends that in matters of jurisdiction, structure and political freedom "some Canadian sections of international unions are seriously curtailed by international constitutions."

CLC Says Strikes Part and Parcel of Industrial Scene

OTTAWA (CP) — Strikes should not be considered as a social catastrophe but rather as part and parcel of the industrial scene, the Canadian Labor Congress said today in a brief to the Rand inquiry into labor disputes.

Arguing that labor law is already weighted on the side of management, the 1,350,000-member congress said outlawing strikes would not solve anything.

"Industrial peace at all costs is not a desirable goal," the CLC said in its presentation to Ivan C. Rand, former judge of the Supreme Court of Canada, sitting as a one-man Ontario royal commission.

"The possibility of strikes must be accepted as a calculated risk wherever workers are free to form trade unions, to engage in collective bargaining and engage in strike action."

The 7,000-word brief said Canadian workers and their unions feel that labor laws have been biased in favor of employers.

By and large, the employee was left in a dominant position with fewer restrictions placed upon him. Unions still were regarded by most employers as a necessary evil, to be eliminated at the first opportunity.

The CLC said compulsory arbitration in Australia has been unable to prevent strikes. When workers were sufficiently aroused they would strike no matter what the law said.

The brief said the remedy to the situation is not the prohibition of strikes but in new attitudes by both sides.

"These include encouragement for labor and management to develop better collective bargaining and dispute settlement procedures by themselves through voluntary agreement, more skilled conciliation services on the part of government, and a greater obligation on the part of the so-called essential industries to deal in good faith with their employees."

OTTAWA (CP)—A Canadian-led scientific team drifted toward the North Pole today in an attempt to drop a radio beacon to the ocean floor in the vicinity of the Pole.

The seven-man team, including three Americans, was landed on Arctic ice within 20 miles of the Pole Saturday in what officials here called superb flight navigation by pilot Don Braun of Yellowknife, N.W.T.

The officials said they believed no Canadian team had ever been so close to the Pole on the ice-cap surface.

Main purpose of the expedition is to make gravity measurements relating to study of the earth's surface. Other experiments include tests of the radio beacon aimed at finding out whether the devices would be useful for Arctic navigation.

The expedition, led by Dr. J. R. (Hans) Weber, a Dominion Observatory geophysicist from Ottawa, was flown 430 miles from Alert on the northern tip of Ellesmere Island.

The team's role and direction of drift to the Pole is being calculated by data fed via radio and telephone hookup to a computer at Control Data Corp. in Minneapolis.

It was not known how long the team would stay in the Arctic.

Other members of the expedition are Axel Gieger, a native of Germany and member of the astronomical section of the Geodetic Survey of Canada; Neil Anderson of Ottawa, attached to the same commercial shelf project; Robert Iverson of the U.S. Army map service in Washington, and Lief Lundgaard, a native of Norway and an Arctic veteran who has been working with the continental shelf project.

OFF THE RECORD — By Ed Reed

"That foolproof, push-button car top isn't."

LBJ Held

Late last November, Lewandowski went to Hanoi and spent 10 days talking with diplomats and North Vietnamese officials. When he returned to Saigon about Dec. 1, he met secretly with U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge.

Lewandowski told Lodge he believed North Vietnam was prepared to open serious negotiations with the United States. He did not interpose the condition that the U.S. would have to call off unconditionally the bombing of the North.

The Polish diplomat gave Lodge a 10-point statement of topics and principles for the proposed talks.

Lewandowski said the North Vietnamese also were willing to talk about these points.

The 10 points covered such topics as halting hostilities, independence of South Vietnam, the principle of self-determination, withdrawal forces when that independence was assured and the role of elections in determining the government in the South.

President Johnson decided that with some clarification the 10-point statement could serve as a basis for talks and was instructed in clarification.

In Warsaw, U.S. Ambassador John A. Gronouski met with Polish Foreign Minister Adam Rapacki and found Rapacki objected to any clarification on account of the 17th parallel because it could wreck the whole action.

As far as can be determined from available records, Premier President Johnson sometime earlier approved air strikes against the Red River Valley rail and truck centres as targets.

Before any North Vietnamese representative departed for the meeting, U.S. planes carried out the Dec. 13-14 raids on the outskirts of Hanoi, destroying what fell in the city proper.

North Vilnius granted a protest — which always up angry demonstrations in many countries — that the raids were deliberately bombed the civilian population of Hanoi. U.S. denials did little to quiet the worldwide uproar.

It later became known in Washington that one of the two planes had jettisoned their bombs over the city when they were attacked by MIG fighters. It is stated that, no civilian bombing ever was deliberate.

Shortly after the Dec. 13-14 incident, Rapacki was reported to have told the U.S. that North Vietnam had made clear it no longer was interested in the planned talks because of the bombing of Hanoi.

At that point President Johnson had two choices: to escalate as far as further attacks on Hanoi were concerned. Assuming he still hoped the Rapacki talks could work he decided to get it active again if possible. He also decided to avoid fanning further world-wide indignation.

The U.S. sent word to Rapacki through Canada, Ottawa official sources said, that it would not bomb inside the circle of 10 nautical miles around the city of Hanoi and that this should get the talks back on the right track. These sources said Rapacki went back to Hanoi, but Hanoi said no.

Johnson decided to make the Hanoi no-bomb ring something more than short term effort to revive the Polish plan. He sent word to North Vietnam through various channels that the U.S. not only was interested in opening peace talks but also was interested in practical steps to scale down the war.

No responsive action was asked of the North Vietnamese. U.S. officials say North Vietnam never picked up the offer.

Repeated Removal of Benign Cysts From Breasts Is Not Always Necessary

Dear Dr. Molner: Since 1960 I have had surgery five times for cysts in the breast. It has been labelled chronic cystic mastitis. Ten cysts of all sizes have been removed. Now I have more.

Since this continued surgery is draining me in many ways, I am seriously considering going to a specialist in a larger city who checks and drains cysts every three months. I feel this is safe because all the previous ones have been benign. I am 49 and feel good except for this. — Mrs. R. I.

Cyst formation is the commonest disorder of the breast. It occurs in about one woman in 20.

The term mastitis is commonly used but for the most part it is not truly accurate, since usually there is no inflammation. Cystic disease of wise she goes to the doctor to have it checked.

Mammography (a form of X-ray of the breast) can be helpful in diagnosis, but the final proof is removal of the cyst or microscopic examination. This is the wisest and safest thing to do.

It may, in some cases, also provide comfort. Since the breasts undergo cyclic changes in response to the ebb and flow of the female hormone the breast would be a more precise description. But let's not argue over it.

The breast is an organ which secretes. Any such structure is prone to cyst formation. Only the individual glands, in this case the milk glands, can become clogged, or encysted.

These lumps — these swollen glands — usually produce no symptoms. The woman suddenly discovers a lump in the breast and, knowing that an unexplained lump is a possible sign of cancer, if she is level, there may be pain and tenderness in the region of a cyst at times. Or there may not.

It is also true that some (not all) women have a tendency to form cysts easily and repeatedly. When one is removed, another may form near the same place.

Because of scarring and the inconvenience of repeated surgery, there is considerable reason behind the idea of not trying to remove them all. If they become painful, aspiration, or drainage, may relieve the pressure as well as give an opportunity for testing to guard against any possibility of malignancy.

There is this, also, to look forward to: The problem of cysts usually is at its height in the age bracket of the 30's and forties and subsides after menopause.

It is possible to have only a single cyst, but sometimes there may be several although in 98 per cent of the cases, they will be limited to one breast.

But there is, obviously, no point in trying to remove them all if others occur. Every lump in the breast should be investigated, but not every one necessarily needs to be removed.

Dear Dr. Molner: In an operation what does "D. and C." stand for? In what other ailments is this used besides removal of a tumor of the stomach? — Mrs. G. M.

It stands for "dilation and curettage," or dilation and scraping. It is often used as an investigative or diagnostic measure, can be necessary after an incomplete abortion, can sometimes put an end to unexplained bleeding if there is some abnormality of the lower surface of the uterus; it's a very useful procedure for many purposes.

Note to Mrs. H. K.: Addison's disease is insufficient functioning of the adrenal glands. Yes, it is dangerous, but it is not infectious.

Budapest Losing Old Hotel

VIENNA (Reuters) — One of the most romantic hotels of old Europe, the Duna in Budapest, where the faucets leaked and the elevator seldom worked but where gypsy music played and the waiters were proud of the Danube, is being torn down.

In its place will arise a 12-storey Duna Intercontinental, with 400,000 dpo of American money and accommodation for 600 guests.

The man behind the loan is Budapest-born Cyrus Eaton, U.S. millionaire industrialist, frequent visitor to Budapest in recent years.

The new hotel has a modern T-shaped design conceived by Hungarian architect Fiszt and a team of Budapest architects.

The Duna, a piece of 19th century Austrian baroque architecture, was until 80 years ago the palace of Baron Levi. Then it was bought by Count Erdody, with a decor of gilded ships.

The Duna's restaurant menu listed 34 dishes in four languages. The dance floor in the first-floor bar had a bevy of pretty girls, some of whom are known to be employed by the ministry of the interior.

The hotel closed soon as plumbing and the elevator was one of the first installed in Budapest, at the turn of the century. But the Duna was one of the first hotels to have a swimming pool, the staff of 200, most of them "old faithfuls," was multi-lingual. Marta, the 60-pluskilogram operator, worked at the Duna for 50 years.

New Units May Save One in Six

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Heart experts say special cardiac care units planned for thousands of hospitals across the United States are expected to save a sixth of the persons now lost to heart failure each year.

Specialists discussed the plan at a course sponsored by the American College of Cardiology. Physicians and claimed additional thousands could be rescued by "extra hearts," under development.

About 600,000 persons die of heart failure each year in the U.S.

The physicians said two distinct approaches are under research and development.

One method is the "heart assist": so implanted device to see his patients free of the strain of pumping the blood.

Doctors hope to be able in time to have the device in place for several months at a time.

The second approach requires no surgery.

Dr. David H. Watkins, director of surgery to Denver General Hospital, describes a cuff-like pulsating device which can be attached to the patient's circulatory system.

The pump works in synchronization with the heart and adjusts to pressure and electrical changes in the atmosphere.

The specialists said it can increase by 500 per cent the blood flow through weakened hearts.

Its chief use would be to save emergency cases who have only minutes to live unless some aid is given.

Colorado 'River Doc' Retires

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP) — After 17 years, Dr. Carl Knox doesn't have to travel 300 miles up and down the Colorado River to see his patients.

Knox, 78, had tended to the medical needs of the several hundred Indians and other who live and work in camps along the river, which divides California and Arizona.

Most of his patients were so poor they often could not afford to pay the $1 or $2 he charged for house calls, settling their accounts instead with pies and fruit.

For Knox, the years since he began his river practice in 1950 had been his happiest. "I think being on the river provided me with the greatest satisfaction," he said as he recalled 56 years of medical practice.

"I just got fed up with the rush of the city, so I farmed myself out to the boondocks."

Strictly Personal

Life Can Be A Series of "Ifs"

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Are You Telling the Truth to Yourself —

When you say that if you had happened to take a different crossroad at some earlier time in your life, things would have been much better?

When you complain that favoritism, office-politics, or log-rolling have held you back and have given the less meritorious preferment over you?

When you claim that if only your husband or wife would change some habit, you would be able to get along really well?

When you insist that you "know myself," and therefore have no need to delve more deeply into the personal source of problems that plague you?

When you shrug that you've been "too honest" for your own good, and that others have done better than you simply by cutting corners and closing their eyes to sharp practices?

When you suggest that your children not into trouble because of "bad company" and malicious influences that you were powerless to control?

When you call yourself an "innocent bystander" to some flagrant injustice perpetrated in your presence and about which you decided not to protest or interfere?

When you maintain that people are "too selfish," and thus imply that you would become less so if only the world would let you?

When you blame one, or both, of your parents for conditioning you in such a way that your defects and failures have become their responsibility rather than your challenge to change or overcome?

When you cling to the "Devil theory" of human affairs — that one particular group of people is the source of society, is to blame for most of our woes, and that if this group were liquidated, all would be well and we could be prosperous, peaceful, and happy?

When you cherish "bold individualism" in your economic life but practice shocksure conformity in your social, intellectual and emotional life?

When you believe that "everybody is entitled to his opinion" but simultaneously hold that some opinions are too "dangerous" to be permitted free expression?

When you come out strongly in favor of "rights," but somehow they always happen to be the rights of people like yourself, and not the rights of people in other life-situations?

When you call yourself "a victim of circumstances," even though the circumstances have been largely contrived by your past actions?

When you complain that your self-esteem is low, and then attribute it to a general "misunderstood," and fail to reflect on the possibility that they may be misunderstood largely by others than yourself?

Expo Roads Named After Great

MONTREAL (CP)—Pick a "great man" — any great mind—but his name has to start with X.

Xerxes? Xenocrates? Xavier Cugat?

Well, now you know why Expo's boomerang committee stuck Xenophon Avenue on the penultimate street sign of the island Expo world.

The committee has been chopping names for the Montreal exhibition for more than a year and has displayed a definite flair for the job.

Gone are Rue Jake Jake Saloon, for instance, or the five bandshells — Largo, Allegro, Scherzo, Adagio and Presto.

"I sat down with an encyclopedia and tried to fit the alphabet to the great names of civilization. We decided the great minds had to be dead and we didn't want any military or controversial figures." Expo has already designated its north-south streets by the numbers 1 to 72. Mr. Letourneur said his committee were to name the 26 east-west roads, which all became avenues.

TWO ARE CANADIANS

Two Canadians were awarded street signs at once —Sir John A. Macdonald and Sir George Etienne Cartier. "It's Confederation year, we had to have them."

To get those Canadians in, we threw out a lot of very distinguished names. Cartier originally had a lot of competition. Confucius, Cervantes, Chopin, Cezanne ..."

Danish storyteller Hans Christian Andersen has his on the loop around which roads visitors in to the fantasy world of the fair.

But whether English author Emily Bronte has much in common with the "power reflier," trailer-camp stop and Cite du Havre public safety station that line her borders, Mr. Letourneur doesn't know.

As the only woman qualifying among the "great minds" though, she set hardly afford to be fussy. Besides the committee threw out Bach, Balzac, Brahms and Beethoven to get in that concession to female sensibilities.

CAN'T GET LOST

They start with Anderson Avenue on the north side of the river, cut across the two central islands to the south shore and the Jacques Cartier Auto Park.

"A person hitting Vanier or Young Avenue knows he's pretty well near the end of things," Mr. deLorimier explains. "But if he's at Haig, marshjoffe or Ibsen Avenue he's still in the middle."

Some of the streets were clearly public — chosen as much to spread honors around among the countries as to indicate their stature.

Then there's Pavlov Avenue: "Pavlov was a psychologist who had one great quality. That is, he was Russian. We had dropped another Russian giant, Dostoyevsky, for Dante, so we had to compromise."

SINGLE AMERICAN

The Russians also have Tolstoi Avenue but there's only one bow to American greatness — Einstein Avenue, running along the north shore of St. Helen's Island.

But little Portugal made up for having the only Pope to name the committee could think of beginning with Q— the explorer Quebec.

There wasn't much competition for Wagner, Ovid, Yeats or Ulysses either.

And before forgetting one of the best food-signs of all:

"Meet you on Freud Avenue!"

URGE HOSPITAL REFUNDS

TORONTO (CP) — A resolution passed Saturday at the annual conference of the Ontario Federation of Printing Trade Unions urged persons paying for nursing care in hospitals or private hospital accommodation should get a refund from the company if they are placed in a public ward. The resolution said the refund should be the difference in cost between a semi-private room and public ward.

Former CIA Official Claims He Created Subsidy Plan

NEW YORK (AP) — Thomas W. Braden, a newspaper publisher and former Central Intelligence Agency official, says he created the CIA program subsidizing student, labor and cultural groups abroad—including $50,000 of CIA money sent by the United Auto Workers Union to combat communism.

Braden told the Los Angeles Times Sunday, in connection with an article he has written for the May 20 issue of the Saturday Evening Post, that he personally gave the money to Walter Reuther to influence West German labor unions.

Reuther replied that on one occasion the UAW had "agreed reluctantly" to use the funds for "to intensify their educational and organizational programs."

Subsequently, Reuther said, the UAW agreed never to "transmit government funds regardless of the urgency."

In Washington, a spokesman said the CIA would not comment on Braden's article.

"We had no part in it, nor any prior knowledge of the author's intent to write it. We deeply regret that he did write it."

Braden, who headed the CIA's division of international organizations from 1951 to 1954, said the program was successful in infiltrating every field where international Communist fronts operated.

He wrote that the "vast and secret" operation was killed by "small - minded and resentful men."

"It's my opinion, then and now, it was essential," he wrote.

"Was it 'immoral,' 'wrong,' 'disgraceful,'? Only in the sense that war itself is immoral, wrong and disgraceful. For the cold war was and is a war fought with ideas instead of bombs."

CIA agents were planted, Braden wrote, in such groups as the European Congress for Cultural Freedom, the International Association of Democratic lawyers, the World Peace Council, the Women's International Democratic Organization, the International Union of Students, the World Federation of Democratic Youth, the International Confederation of Journalists and the World Federation of Trade Unions.

Reuther, in a statement from Detroit, said Braden asked Victor Reuther, Walter's brother, then serving as European representative of the CIO, to become a CIA agent.

Walter Reuther said UAW convention delegates voted in 1962 to help the European labor movement by putting the interest accruing from their strike fund into the Free World Labor Movement.

Braden also wrote that another recipient of CIA funds was the magazine Encounter.

Stephen Spender, British poet and author, said Sunday he had resigned as contributing editor of Encounter.

Spender said he had heard rumors for several years that the magazine, a British - American undertaking monthly, was being supported by CIA funds, "but I was never able to confirm anything until a month ago."

Garrison Says Warren Given 'Fake Photograph'

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—District Attorney Jim Garrison has accused the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency of giving the Warren commission a "fake photograph" of Lee Harvey Oswald, the man the commission said killed President Kennedy.

Garrison's charge Saturday came after the CIA pointed Friday to Warren commission testimony in which officials of the agency denied reports published here that Oswald may have been acting as an undercover agent for the secret U.S. espionage organization.

Garrison is conducting an investigation of what he says was a plot conceived to kill President Kennedy.

Garrison Saturday challenged the CIA to produce what he indicated was an important photo of Oswald which he said had been "suppressed for more than three years."

He said Oswald and the Cuban with whom he was photographed in Mexico a few days before Kennedy's assassination were "seen frequently together in New Orleans and Dallas in November of 1963."

"It is perfectly obvious," Garrison said, "that the reason the

MPs Face Much Work

OTTAWA (CP)—Parliament's longest session was delivered into history Monday and another launched with a high-piled plate of new legislation, immediately criticized as old hat by the opposition.

Senators and MPs gathered twice in the Senate chamber, first to see out the 259-day session just past, and later to see the centennial session in.

The session - opening throne speech, a 5,500-word document, forecast a variety of government legislation. Much of it was familiar from earlier disclosures. It was read by Governor-General Michener.

The list included bills on consumer affairs, corporations, housing, divorce, capital punishment, water resources, television, the Criminal Code, immigration, unemployment insurance, coal mines, indians, and a handful of other topics.

Also promised were studies into the constitution; satellite television; agriculture; relationships of industry, labor and government; safety standards; dissemination of scientific and technological information; and urban development.

The government wrote both a throne speech proroguing the first session of the 27th Parliament since Confederation and the speech opening its second session.

The first duty fell to Mr. Justice Gerald Fauteux of the Supreme Court of Canada acting as a deputy to Mr. Michener, as royal assent was given to bills passed in the dying days of the old session.

Mr. Michener, arriving at Parliament Hill by limousine instead of open carriage due to the Ottawa rain, wore a stately silver and black uniform for his first throne speech since his appointment last month.

In alternating English and French, he traced the government's intentions in dealing with the thorny question of changing a constitutional structure in which "advantages and disadvantages . . . are deeply intertwined."

The government will study carefully the best way to proceed, then place the problem of constitutional development before Parliament, the speech said.

It foresaw, as expected, a department of corporate and consumer affairs, with a special organization to assist the consumer and protect the small investor.

The department will probably administer other new legislation requiring fuller disclosure of information by federally-incorporated companies.

The government will submit bills for reform of the divorce laws and to abolish capital punishment. The speech hinted at Commons votes free of party lines on both questions.

A sweeping revision of the Criminal Code was also foreseen. Officials said it would include repeal of the ban on dis-

Department of corporate and consumer affairs to be established.

Abolition of capital punishment proposed.

Complete revision of immigration legislation urged.

Long-term loans to agricultural and fisheries associations and corporations to be authorized.

Special study of urban development to be undertaken.

Amendment of the Unemployment Insurance Act to be proposed.

Gradual closing of uneconomic coal mines in Nova Scotia to go forward but new jobs to be created.

It Was A Long Speech

The speech from the throne at Monday's opening of the new parliamentary session was the longest in many years. Here Netherlands' ambassador A. H. J. Lovink, dean of the diplomatic corps, because of the foreshortening effect of the telephoto lens, appears to be resting his head on the shoulder of Mrs. Pearson, wife of the prime minister. Buffalo Mafia Suspects Freed

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Three police agencies broke up a wedding-ding dinner Monday night and arrested 36 men, including six identified as U.S. government hearings as connected with the Cosa Nostra crime syndicate, but a city court judge today dismissed the charges against them — of consorting with known criminals.

One man was arrested again several minutes after the court action in a corridor outside the courtroom on a charge of assaulting a photographer.

Judge James B. Kane Jr. granted a defence motion for dismissal of charges. The defence argued that the information, drawn for their arrests, failed to state an intent to provoke a breach of peace.

While Buffalo police said the dinner appeared to be entirely social, to honor Joseph Todoro, 43, because he is scheduled to be married soon, the FBI said in Washington that the gathering honored Todaro's elevation into the Cosa Nostra in this area. Todoro owns a restaurant near here.

Buffalo police also said they doubt crime organization was planned at the meeting, because so many persons were present.

The man charged after the incident with the photographer is Matthew Billiteri, 45, of Buffalo, a laborer. He was accused of assault.

Another 50 at the gathering—including those best known to police — were in a downstairs dining hall and slipped into a nearby liquor storeroom, locking the door behind them, police said.

They were not discovered until early today.

Investigators said some of the more prominent figures included:

Frederico G. Randaccio, 59, of Buffalo, reputed "underboss" to Stefano Magaddino, of nearby Lewiston. Magaddino has been identified at U.S. Senate crime hearings as a Cosa Nostra chieftain in western New York and the Ohio Valley. He was not there.

James V. LaDuca, 55, of Lewiston, Magaddino's son-in-law and, police said, his representative at the gathering.

Joseph DiCarlo, 56, of Buffalo, who police said recently returned here from the Youngstown, Ohio, area.

Pasquale Matarelli, 56, of Buffalo, described as associated with Magaddino and DiCarlo.

Daniel G. Sansanese, 32, of Buffalo, reputed gambling lord.

Joseph Fino, 52, and Nicholas Fino, 43, brothers from suburban West Seneca. Joseph was identified in 1962 as a section leader in the Buffalo Cosa Nostra. Nicholas has had at least 18 court appearances on gambling charges, police said, and drew a one - year sentence for possession of bookmaking records last year.

Roy Carlisi, 38, of Buffalo, who has been associated with various business ventures in the Buffalo area, police said.

Published reports claim Magaddino has extended operations to Toronto, but three Ontario

THE TEMPERATURES

Synopsis: A large low pressure system extending eastward from Lake Ontario along the St. Lawrence River valley and southward along the Atlantic seaboard of the northeastern United States is causing widespread damp, chilly weather on Eastern Canada. Temperatures however, are expected to move up slightly in many southern Ontario localities. Fair weather should prevail around the lower lakes Wednesday although a new low emerging from Montana threatens extreme southwestern sections of the province late in the day. Cool showery weather with variable cloudiness will continue above the upper lakes.

Peking, Shanghai Riots Reported

PEKING (Reuters) — Fighting has broken out among cultural revolution organizations in China's two biggest cities Peking and Shanghai on official newspaper here reported today.

A number of persons were injured and industrial production has been hampered in both cities the Peking Daily official organ of the recently-formed Peking Municipal Revolutionary Committee disclosed.

The paper said the clashes in the cities—which have a total population of more than 17,000,000—resulted from a now counter attack by supporters of "the bourgeois reactionary line."

The population of the two cities have been warned that fighting will be regarded as open resistance to Communist Chairman Mao Tse-tung and will not be tolerated the paper said.

The paper carried both a report and an editorial from a Shanghai newspaper on the fighting there and a commentary by the Peking Daily editor.

In Tokyo, it was reported that more than 200 backers of Mao Tse-tung have been killed and some 2,000 hurt in week-long clashes in China's Szechwan and Hunan provinces.

Lots of Claimants

Proof of Soul Can Win Share Of $200,000

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A California woman told a Superior Court judge Monday that only persons who had communicated with the legally dead James Kidd should be allowed to share in his $200,000 estate.

The court began probating the will of the Miami, Ariz., miner who disappeared in 1950, leaving an unusual will.

Superior Court Judge Robert Myers ruled that his court has jurisdiction to decide where the money should go and he set June 14 to start hearing presentations from 74 claimants.

Kidd's will leaves the estate to the person or persons who can prove the existence of a bonus soul that leaves the body at death.

Nora Higgins of Brunsomb, Calif., told Myers she had talked with Kidd recently and he told her: "I have built a mousetrap."

Mrs. Higgins explained that Kidd told her the court should disqualify any claimants with written proof and consider only those able to communicate with him now.

Several claimants and their lawyers attended Monday's hearing.

Charles Crabore, a Phoenix lawyer representing the Religious Research Foundation of America, Inc., indicated he would attempt to have the case assigned to another judge. He challenged several decisions by the judge.

Myers assigned each of the claimants a number which will be used for their time of trial and for marking exhibits. He said there would be no way to tell exactly when the various numbers might be reached, and each would have to be in court when his number is called.

No deadline was set for filing claims to the estate.

Originally there were only eight claimants, but that number skyrocketed as news of the estate spread. Churches and ministers are included among the claimants, as are colleges and universities. And there are other individuals who, like Mrs. Higgins, claim they have talked with Kidd.

Kidd was legally declared dead in 1958, eight years after his disappearance. No trace of him was ever found.

MiG Base Out of Action

SAIGON (AP) — Five U.S. air attacks in two weeks have put the Hoa Lac MiG air base 20 miles west of Hanoi out of action, the U.S. command announced today.

A spokesman said there was no evidence of MiG activity on the field when nine flights of U.S. Air Force F-105 Thunderchief jets from Thailand plastered the field Monday for the fifth time since April 24.

U.S. planes flew 121 missions over North Vietnam Monday, and one Thunderchief was shot down, the spokesman said. The pilot is missing.

Probe Delayed When Shulman Retains Lawyer

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Morton Shulman today was granted an indefinite adjournment in the Parker royal commission hearings on the grounds that he has hired a lawyer and the lawyer needs time to prepare his case.

Permission for the adjournment came after a severe tongue-lashing from Mr. Justice William D. Parker, who is heading the inquiry into allegations by Shulman, former chief coroner of Metropolitan Toronto of government suppression and interference in inquests.

Mr. Justice Parker criticized Dr. Shulman for not obeying the rules set down at the outset of the commission hearings and told the doctor:

News Briefs

OTTAWA (CP) — A Canadian-led scientific expedition dropped a navigation device, to the floor of the Arctic ocean near the North Pole Monday and officials of the Dominion Observatory said experiments are proceeding satisfactorily. The seven-man team was able to drop the sonar capsule through a hole in an ice floe on which it is camped for a week and then chart the movement of the floe by homing-in on the device.

Common Market Opposed

Socialist Rebel Joins Forces With Tradition-loving Tory

EDWARD HEATH

LONDON (CP)—A hot - eyed socialist rebel and a tradition-loving Tory right-winger were parliamentary allies today in an apparently futile bid to block Prime Minister Wilson's road to Europe. But Tory opposition leader Edward Heath is an ardent Common Market backer.

The odd alliance of the far left and the far right indicated the sweep rather than the numerical strength of opposition to the Labor government's plan to apply for membership in the European Common Market.

Tory back-bencher R. H. Turton, "father" of the Commons which he first entered in 1929, and Labor's Michael Foot, leading left-winger, both declared their intention of voting against the government and the leadership of their parties.

"Above all, we must not be whipped into the Common Market—and I certainly do not propose to be," said Foot.

"It would create disloyalty to other Commonwealth countries and would place an unendurable burden on the British people."

Foot served notice that Wilson and Foreign Minister George Brown—"Don Quixote and Sancho Panza," as he called them—would not have an easy run to Europe. Even if the terms Wilson wanted were agreed by the present six market members, said Foot, nobody could deny that the Commonwealth would be damaged.

Merchants Plea Overrules Traffic Experts
Upper Bridge Street Pattern to Change

Despite a recommendation by traffic experts that the present temporary traffic movement system in the vicinity of the upper bridge be retained, city council has decreed a return to the original pattern when the new College Street bridge goes into use.

Last summer when construction started on the College Street bridge, a traffic pattern in the upper bridge, and Moira Street areas was changed to expedite traffic movement.

At the time there was objection from merchants in the area who claimed they were losing business and at least one city councillor termed the new traffic pattern a "snakes and ladders" game.

Yesterday a delegation of merchants in the Moira and Harriet Street areas claimed they were still losing business as a result of the one way street system. Alderman Dr. J. Russell Scott said he had originally opposed the "snakes and ladders" traffic pattern and he was opposed to it being left there.

However, a report from city engineer Wilbur Purcell showed that the temporary system had proven efficient in moving traffic and it was his recommendation and that of traffic consultants that the system remain.

Other councillors argued that at the time the present system was introduced there was never any suggestion that it be permanent.

Mr. Purcell said the decision was left with him and if the present system was to remain, he recommended purchase of the Pinnacle and Station Street corner to improve visibility.

Ald. Don Williams suggested a temporary return to the original traffic pattern. In this way, he said an opportunity would be given to determine if business in the area improved.

The city engineer said the new College Street Bridge would be ready for opening later this week.

Lawn Bowling In Australia Subject of Talk

Canada, a relative fledgling in the art of the ancient game of lawn bowling, finished sixth in the overall standings in the first international tournament in Australia last fall.

Sixteen nations competed and Canada won a very creditable fifth performance in the triples championship and a bronze medal in the fours.

Scots-born John Henderson, a Montreal banker and captain of the Canadian squad, described the event in an address to Belleville Rotarians yesterday.

"Bowling is not only for the old . . . young and old can enjoy it," said Mr. Henderson. "Average age of the 80 players in the world tournament was 45, and the outstanding player, an Englishman who has bowled since the age of 18, was 93."

The Canadian team, he said, "won a reputation for its use of tactics — knocking the jack out of the rink to force another "end."

Mr. Henderson said this strategy earned some criticism among the English team and was the subject of an article in a South African bowling magazine. It evidently impressed the South Africans, however, for the article suggested that perhaps coaching methods in the republic were wrong.

Lawn bowling of a kind was played in Egypt 2,500 years ago. The modern game dates from its popularity in England going back some 600 years. There is a club in Southampton which was established in 1299 and is still in existence.

What A Way to Go!

Some people travel to Belleville Rotary by car, some by taxi — maybe even bus. When Bill Pinkie parked his conveyance outside club meeting in Hotel Quinte yesterday, this is what it looked like — the newest mobile crane in Canada, with a 90-foot boom. Bill was fined by Rotarians for advertising — the money going to the club's crippled children fund.

Inco Sales Down From '66

TORONTO (CP)—Sales of International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. in the first quarter of 1967 were more than $22,000,000 below those of the corresponding period last year, the company reported today.

The firm said in a report Monday that sales in January-March period were $154,355,000, compared with $186,883,000 in 1966.

High School Cut Sought

Council Gets First Look at Budget

The Bay of Quinte District High School Board has been asked by city council to pare a capital cost item of $60,000 from its 1967 budget.

A budget of $2,723,493 has been submitted by the board to its member municipalities, including an item of $60,000 for the construction of an addition to the board's administration office on College Street.

The year's high school board budget figure is received by $1,786,793 through legislative grants, ($1,686,000) and other revenue, leaving $936,700 to be raised by the member municipalities

The city's share of the above local cost amounts to $815,888, requiring a school rate increase of 2.1 mills. Last year's mills for residential properties, of the $60,000 capital cost item is deleted the city rate would be reduced to 1.8 mills.

The city of Belleville pays just over 64 per cent of the total school board local levy.

James Clarke, chairman of the board's finance committee told council that the proposed addition to the board administration building was required to provide accommodation for additional administrative staff.

During the past year a building supervisor and clerical help have been added while commencing this summer there will be an assistant to the schools' administrator, also requiring clerical help.

City councillors posed the question of whether the proposed amalgamation of the Stirling-Rawdon High School District and the Centre Hastings High School District to the Bay of Quinte High School District, would mean even more office space for administration.

The suggestion was that the addition to the administration building be delayed until the school district amalgamation proposed was settled.

Mr. Clarke said that if the addition to the administration building was not proceeded with this year, the board still had a commitment of about $20,000 in architects fees and for the provision of temporary partitions in the board room.

He said the board would

Ambulance operators in the city of Belleville are to receive a municipal subsidy amounting to 50 cents per capita, or approximately $16,000 per year.

City council yesterday approved payment of the subsidy following a report by Alderman Dr. J. Russell Scott, chairman of a special committee named some weeks ago to consider the request for a subsidy by City Ambulance, one of the two ambulance operators in the city.

Payment of the subsidy will be on a monthly basis commencing as of May 1.

If more than one ambulance service qualifies for the subsidy, payment will be made on a percentage basis according to the number of calls answered.

Alderman Scott reported that investigations by his committee revealed that many municipalities in Ontario paid subsidies to ambulance operators. The subsidy ranged from 30 cents to 70 cents per capita but 50 cents per capita was the general figure.

The province of Ontario pays 50 per cent of the subsidy approved by the municipality.

MORE

Under the agreement with the city subsidized ambulance services would have rates set at $15. per call for one patient and $7.50 for each additional patient carried in the same vehicle. The ambulance "stand-by" charge would be $10. per hour.

Also under the agreement ambulance service would be provided for all city indigent and welfare cases.

The request for municipal subsidy by City Ambulance was made to council following an announcement earlier this year that all ambulance vehicles would have to meet certain equipment standards.

Alderman Douglas Boyle wanted to know if anything could be done about the frequent sounding of sirens by ambulances.

He said that checks had shown that 75 per cent of the time sirens were not necessary.

Alderman Scott replied there was nothing in the regulations to prevent sirens being sounded. He said it was a policing problem.

Truck Overturns

A truck owned by National Grocery Ltd. of Belleville and driven by John Morris, caught on a soft shoulder and overturned about ten o'clock this morning on the Foxboro-Frankford road.

The five-ton van was loaded with groceries and a six man crew worked about two hours to clear the load to a second truck. Only minor damage were incurred in the vehicle and no injuries were reported.

Council Adopts New Policy For Local Improvement Raving

After several weeks of discussions and objections on the part of ratepayers to high costs of street repairing, city council has agreed on a new local improvement policy.

The policy adopted by council is that 40 per cent of the cost of local improvement projects be paid for out of the general levy.

The proposed reconstruction of Sidney Street with its relatively high costs had brought objection from property owners, who claimed it was unfair that they should be required to pay local improvement charges for the road when its use would be mainly for transient traffic.

Council agreed under the circumstances that a percentage of the local improvement costs should be paid for under the general rate but until yesterday had not decided what the percentage should be.

In setting the new policy for paved roads, council noted that in a mobile city property owners no longer can be said to be the major users of roads in front of their properties and therefore should not be required to pay a lion share of the costs.

The new policy of 40 per cent of local improvement paved roads being paid out of the general rate does not effect the general levy quite as much as it might seem.

The reason for this is that department of highway grants are available on the general levy share.

In adopting the new local improvement payment policy for paved roads, council gave the go-ahead for re-construction of Sidney Street.

The new road, 36 feet in width, running from Dundas Street to Catherine Street, will cost an estimated $221,300, with subsidies bringing the cost down to $180,700.

Monument May Be Moved

The monument to Sir Mackenzie Bowell situated in the corner of the Belleville Arrowsmith lawn is due for a repair job but it was decided to that a new location might be found for the memorial.

Yesterday at city council, Mayor J. R. Ellis named Alderman Jack Allan as head of a special committee to look into the possibility of having the monument moved. A more fitting location in one of the city's parks was suggested.

The monument to Sir Mackenzie Bowell, the only Belleville man to hold the office of Governor General of Canada, was erected about 18 years ago during the term of Alderman Allan as Mayor.

URGE TV COVERAGE

OTTAWA (CP)— A proposal for a study of television coverage of Commons committee meetings was made Monday by the Commons agriculture committee. The report said proper controls and guidelines should be set before such a step is taken.

Kneisel Leaves to Become College Administrator

Belleville Industrial commissioner Ernst Kneisel will become the first administrator of Loyalist campus in the new College of Applied Arts and Technology.

Confirmation of his new post is expected Friday when the college's board of governors meets in Madoc.

His resignation as the city's first industrial commissioner was announced today and will be effective June 1.

The move is no abrupt departure. Mr. Kneisel has been serving as interim college administrator since last November with the approval of city council.

Rev. H. J. Maloney, chairman of the college's board of governors, said the appointment would be approved Friday night.

"Mr. Kneisel has been helping us a great deal in the preliminary stages", added Father Maloney. "He's a natural for the office of administrator, in my view, and I think the other board members will agree".

Mr. Kneisel, a graduate in economics, also looks forward to a return to academic contacts.

"I'm sorry to leave the commission, in a sense", he admitted this morning. "But this post at the college is more my line of work".

He enters his new office when that is all the college has to physically show at the moment.

Temporary quarters at Centennial Secondary School will serve the college's first classes in September while work begins on college construction.

However, the governors as yet have not anchored a campus site.

Mr. Kneisel has been working out of space provided at Centennial since he was loaned the college by the city.

There was stated reason for the move at the time, since the industrial commission believed a close working relationship with the college was of local significance.

"The college represents an industry in itself," pointed out Mr. Kneisel. "It also is a great new attraction for industry in this area."

Industrial promotion has been practicality a round-the-clock environment for Mr. Kneisel for the past three years. His work broke new ground for Belleville and likely sets the pattern for his predecessors.

His original appointment dates back to February 1964 when city council named a slate of six local businessmen to act as directors of a new industrial commission.

One of the first goals was acquisition of sufficient industry to provide a tax equal to the commission's $19,000 budget.

This demanded $500,000 in new industrial assessment.

"At this time — almost three years later — we're in sight of this goal," commission vice - chairman Frank Murray said today.

The assessment boost centres on a brand-new acquisition — the U.S.-based Superior Electric — acquired early this year and the commission's first real vindication of its efforts.

"There also will be another plant which we feel sure we can announce after June 1," said Mr. Murray.

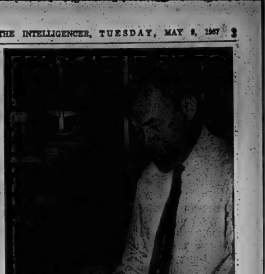
The commission successfully launched a speculative building project which was later occupied by the local Automatic Signals.

"We're not attempting to encourage construction of another speculative building," said the vice-chairman.

Considered of equal importance was the commission's job of aiding existing industry with expansion problems — considered almost equal to new prospects in its greater assessment and employment potential.

"The loss of an industrial firm is to be avoided at all costs. Accordingly, the commission has created many opportunities to foster the growth and ease the path of those firms which are already located here," said Mr. Murray. "After all they have a history of many years paying taxes and rates and we feel they have every right to our services."

Expansion of commission activities is signified by the employment record of Mr. Kneisel himself.



For the first two years he worked part time, remunerated on a daily basis.

Finally, last year his appointment was made full time and approved by city council.

The expensive attitude to all activity-touching on industrial growth led to the commission's contact with the helping project.

"Encouragement of such an institution is part of the commission's role," said Mr. Murray. "And we were only glad to help smooth things along for Mr. Kneisel's time available to the college governors.

"He's performed an outstanding task in building the role of the commission. The fact we're losing him to the college in a way softens the blow of his resignation," commented the vice-chair-man.

Ready to Move

School Board Gets Approval For New School

TRENTON — The Murray Township area school board yesterday received final approval of plans for the proposed new 10-roomed area school, to be built along the new development road.

Council will be formally presented with this decision on May 23, and will then contact the Ontario Municipal Board for approval of the issuance of debentures for the $330,000 cost.

Meanwhile, Murray Township Council is now awaiting approval of the by-law to do with its drainage borrowing from the OMB.

Under this bylaw, the farmer may borrow money to drain his farm and repay it over a ten-year period. For each $100 borrowed, the farmer would pay $12.23 each year.

Council would have the final say in how much money the individual farmer could borrow for these.

Some of the drainage work will be done this summer, once the by-law is approved, township clerk Angus Gunter stated today.

Council members are still surveying the six level crossings in the township with a view to rulin th estet s nwfgbcer to ruling the extent of which each one will be improved this year. As the cost will be shared by the council, the Department of Highways and the railways involved in some cases, representatives of the three bodies are visiting the crossings which would be so affected. Also in some cases, a consulting engineer is drawing up plans for a comprehensive reconstruction of the crossing.

Downtown Parking Provision Eased for Store Rebuilding

In a move aimed at encouraging reconstruction in downtown burned out areas, city council yesterday voted to eliminate the present parking provision requirement.

It also voted to reduce the present minimum requirement for building height from 35 feet to 25 feet.

Alderman Jack Deacon said that the present requirement of providing parking spaces commensurate with the reconstruction of burned buildings in the downtown area.

Also he said 35 foot high buildings were no longer necessary as result of there being no more demand for third floor apartment accommodation over stores.

Council went along with Alderman Deacon's argument, but before the changes are official the covering bylaws will have to be amended.

Council referred to the planning board a request from Amodeo's Food Market on North Front Street for amendment of a zoning bylaw to allow the provision of a parking lot.

The intention is to expand the present parking lot to the west of the store along Valley Crescent.

Council also approved the tender of Eaten Construction Ltd., for the construction of the 1967 East Belleville road improvement program. The amount of the tender was $45,963.

The report of the city engineer for the construction of sanitary sewers, complete with private drain connections on Harris Street, at an estimated cost of $30,700, was approved.

Approval was also given for construction of sanitary sewers in the North Park Street area. Cost of the work to provide service for all of North Park Street, together with the north half of Ingersol Crescent, north Park Gardens and part of Bell Boulevard, will be an estimated $89,000.

Alderman David Suggests Moira River Water Be Used

The possibility of the city obtaining its water supply from the upper reaches of the Moira River, was suggested in city council yesterday by Alderman Enos David.

Alderman David said he realized that investigations were underway to determine the practicality of bringing water from Lake Ontario, but before any decisions were made he felt the Moira River should be considered.

"Piping water from Lake Ontario would be extremely expensive," he said, noting that the city might save money by looking to the river.

He suggested that Graham Bell, chairman of the Moira River Conservation Authority write advisory committee be invited to council to talk on the matter.

Mayor J. R. Ellis said he would be happy to invite Mr. Bell to talk to council, but doubted if there was sufficient water in the Moira to provide for city requirements.

"We are talking in terms of from 13 to 15 millions of gallons of water a day during the summer months," he said.

Alderman David felt, however, that if the present flood could be stored there would be sufficient water in the river to take care of the city needs.

Picton Kiwanians Hear Speaking Contest

PICTON (STAFF) — Members of Picton Kiwanis Club Monday night were given a new look at the "younger generation" in action. The club sponsored a public speaking contest for grade 13 students of Prince Edward Collegiate Institute and five chosen contestants held the audience spellbound while they embraced such topics as Modern Youth, Canada and the Centennial Year, Atomic Power, Propaganda, and our modern society.

According to spokesman Kiwanian Dr. Gerald Bradley, this was one of the finest single programs the club has put forth in a long time and "the club as a whole," he said, has benefited from what the student speakers have had to say. The type of excellence demonstrated by the delivery and also the subjects chosen by the students do much to restore our faith in the youth of today. We should also, he said, be proud of our school system in providing such excellent training for our youth. It behooves the students as well to feed proud of their accomplishments here tonight, for many hours of preparation and study have certainly gone into this work. We should all benefit and be proud, Dr. Bradley continued, for here are five of our leading citizens of tomorrow, and I like to feel that in perhaps one, or in some minute way we have helped inspire them to this end, and have helped them to serve the people of our country.

Two Kiwanis judges tackled the difficult task of assessing the speakers and took some time to come up with the winners.

In fifth place and winner of $50 prize money was Roger Wight who memorialized with his "Canada and Its Centennial Year". Following in order were Cathy Rose, second; Leslie Judd, third; Pamela Thompson, fourth; and Michael Adams fifth. All of the students received cash awards and members of the visiting Belleville Club were given an invitation for the contestants to deliver their addresses to Belleville Kiwanians next week. At the close of the contest Kiwanis President Bill Strachan congratulated the speakers and expressed the appreciation of the club for a most enlightening evening.

Mafia Suspects Freed

police officials insisted Monday that the Mafia, the powerful underworld society and its Cosa Nostra factional leaders, is not a factor in crime in Ontario.

Police said several of those arrested, including LaDuca and Ouzisi, were among 45 men picked up by state police in a raid Nov. 14, 1957, in the Apalachin, N.Y., home of the late Joseph Barbara during an alleged "crime convention."

Monday, Inspector William Pilkington, head of the Metropolitan Toronto police morality squad, said the Mafia is not active in the city.

"I'm sure some drugs have come into Metro from New York and some from Buffalo," he said. "But there is little evidence of drugs, whether imported into Canada, going out of Metro into the U.S. or Europe."

Marijuana sold in Toronto, he said, did not originate from an organized syndicate.

Deputy Chief Bernard Simmonds of the Metro police said the Mafia has tried a number of times to get a foothold but police have crushed their efforts.

Assistant Commissioner Howard Graham, head of the criminal investigation branch of the Ontario Provincial Police, also said the Mafia is not a factor in Ontario crime and there is no evidence of Mafia infiltration.

The New York Times, in an article on the activities in Canada of the Mafia underworld network, says the highway route between Montreal and New York is one of North America's principal narcotics traffic routes.

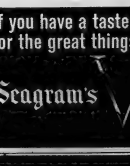
Want Change In Child Welfare Act



The Ontario Mayors and Reeves Association wants a change in the child welfare act to relieve municipalities of the cost when a born is responsible for the cost of maintenance.

Mayor Ellis said this is unfair suggesting that the municipality in which the parents reside should be responsible for payment.

The mayor said a resolution requesting the change would be before the Mayor—and Reeve Association convention later this week.

Cause for Concern

Dr. Morton Shulman's allegations of government interference in the conduct of Coroner's Courts in Ontario are just one disquieting feature of the overall administrative scene in Canada today.

Another is the Steven Truscott case which has come under fire from Professor Keith Simpson, the eminent British pathologist who was called in by the Ontario government when the case was brought before the Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court investigation of the case resulted from publication of the book, The Trial of Steven Truscott, by author Isabel LeBourdais. The author claimed there had been a miscarriage of justice and that every witness, clue and fact that did not support Truscott's guilt "was overlooked or ignored from the hour the body of Lynne Harper was found."

Truscott, aged 14 at the time, was convicted of the rape slaying of the Harper girl seven years ago.

Professor Simpson is quoted as saying: "As the Supreme Court review showed, the facts were available but the book did not provide them. I maintain the book was inaccurate.

"I never before heard of so much publicity given to this kind of book. It was a disgraceful kind of publicity which allowed a growing storm to reach such a size that it forced the hand of the Canadian government, most improperly, I believe."

The pathologist's comments are significant when viewed against the morbid preoccupation with the aftermath of crime that is such a feature of the North American scene. Truman Capote's book, In Cold Blood, is another case in point. This work deals with the murder of a Kansas farm family of four by two thugs.

Similarly, over the years there have been any number of detailed analyses of murders and of the individuals who perpetrated them in the news media and magazines. Men who have committed murders, whether they have gone to the gallows or electric chair or merely languish in prison, have become objects of sympathy and legend, while as often as not their victims and the families left to mourn them are totally ignored.

This is the kind of mentality which Professor Simpson deplores, not to mention the allegations of miscarriage of justice which subsequently may be found to exist. This has been the case in the Truscott affair following the Supreme Court ruling that the youth had had a fair trial.

As for Dr. Shulman's allegations, they are numerous enough as to be give strong grounds for public concern. A royal commission is currently investigating the suggestions of government interference and suppression of evidence. A full accounting by the commission in its findings clearly will be in the public interest.

Mafia and Expo

As we predicted would happen, there is evidence that the underworld is taking advantage of Expo 67 to further its own inglorious ends.

That is the advice of former Quebec Justice Minister Claude Wagner, as reported the other day. The Liberal member for Verdun should know what he is talking about, for he built up a reputation as a crime-busting judge in Montreal before entering politics in 1964.

As justice minister from 1964 to 1966 Mr. Wagner took the separatists at their word and mounted tight security precautions for the visit of the Queen to Quebec.

With regard to Expo, Mr. Wagner puts the finger on a number of underworld figures who are purchasing companies in Expo. They have key concessions which he claims are really "a screen for other activities" of members of the Mafia.

He says the concession for all automated facilities at Expo is run by an individual described as "chief of the Montreal bookies." All meat concessions are in the hands of a man Mr. Wagner says is "a notorious member of the Mafia." Another hotel and catering company is "a screen for underworld figures," and lastly, according to Mr. Wagner, a firm with the concession to sell flowers was involved in a $300,000 bankruptcy under the name of a firm whose assets "disappeared."

That Quebec authorities are taking Mr. Wagner's charges seriously is indicated by the fact that Justice Minister Bertrand reacted by saying police would act on the charges if they are found to be true. Strange, though, that these firms should have managed to get this far without their suspected affiliations being detected.

This seems to be as good a time as any for Quebec authorities to weed out the entire Mafia-orientated system of organized crime in Montreal, and in the province at large. Expo looks like a good place to start.

Mitchell Sharp Says Taxpayer Will Pay Still More

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Parliament's back on the legislative road today, headed for the Budget, and the signs are not encouraging.

With tax rates already viciously high, the signs read, incredibly, "increases ahead."

Budgets, supposedly, are secret — or were, until that oddest of Finance Ministers, Walter Gordon, now President of the Privy Council, set the new federal financial fashion of dropping "hints" of what's to come in taxes.

Now that even odder Finance Minister, the orange - headed Mitchell William Sharp, has gone far beyond Gordonalling technique of the "hint."

He has come right out in public, in a little-noted speech, and said flatly that taxes are going up.

Even more oddly, for a politician with the supreme ambition — that of party leadership — he has bluntly told the taxpayers that they had better like it.

For higher taxes, he astoundingly philosophizes, are good for the country and beneficial to the taxpayers.

The national tax bill—the full federal - provincial - municipal account — last year took 22 cents of every dollar of Canadian income.

That is the Finance Minister's own figure.

And 22 cents out of every dollar of national income amounted to a total tax take of just short of 19 billion — that is billion — dollars.

Over the next three years, he warns, there will have to be a three-point increase.

The extra an additional cent each year will be taken out of the income dollar until by 1970 the three levels of government will be taking more than one-third of everything you and everybody else, working together, manages to turn out in what Mitchell Sharp and his federal money-men call the Gross National Product.

Governments and politicians being what they are, that increase of one percent a year in taxes likely will turn out to be an under-estimate.

The Finance Minister spilled the bad Budget news in a motherly - reported speech the other day to the Canadian Tax Foundation.

This is the organization that has been making a dead set on what it charges has been waste and extravagance and consequent over-taxing at all levels of government.

The Foundation has been warning that governments must get on the spending brakes before they tax Canada and Canadians into the international poorhouse.

Possibly irritated that any group of taxpayers should dare to question, publicly, the financial wisdom of the circle of former civil servants largely comprising the Federal Cabinet, Sharp, in effect, told them off.

Told them, in a sense, that if they thought they were being squeezed by taxes, the collector now — just wait, the worst was yet to come.

Sharp, smugly, he demolished the stihl the Federal Government has been using all these years, that while Canadians may think they are over-taxed, they should live in some other countries and discover what high taxation really means.

For he reeled off some tax percentages.

Such as the United States taking only 27 cents of every dollar — five cents less than Canada — in taxes.

In Australia, only 26 cents — Japan, 23 cents — and in hard-pressed, back - to - the - Stanfield-wall Britain, but 31 cents.

The oddest thing about this speech by this strangest of Finance Ministers is that Mitchell Sharp should have made it at all.

For isn't he one of the leading confidants of Prime Minister Lester Pearson, with the political message it seems to hold on the next election campaign?

And isn't the politician who imposes the taxes, by all accepted tradition, the most unpopular member of any government and the least likely to succeed to supreme power?

So, has Mitchell Sharp, in his pay - up - and - like - it speech to taxpayers, been reading himself out of the running?

A Look at Government

Niagara Falls Review

We agree that an updated system of county government can make a worthwhile contribution to local government, but we feel that no decision will be reached at the lower level because too many personalities are involved.

Probably the only solution is for the Department of Municipal Affairs to bring in legislation to enforce some form of government more in keeping with modern times, rather than that under which we presently carry on — the Baldwin Act. The Act was approved in 1849 and certainly since that time the vast changes which have taken place have made it completely out of step in many of its facets.

Changing Values

Letter to the Editor

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

When we were young we said to our parents: "There is no place to go. There isn't anything to do. Why isn't there a place for us kids?"

Generally our parents said, "Kids are goats, why don't you go out and eat grass?" But, if we pressed the subject they agreed. All parents did. Some even said, "Somebody ought to do something about it." But nobody did. They knew they were safe.

And then we all grew up — maladjusted and warped by this traumatic experience. What could be expected when we had to spend our Sundays with our families, our early evenings on the street corners of some of the finest streets in Canada, our late evenings in bed, and our money on chocolate bars.

Is it any wonder that we grew up to use the same answers on our children? But a change had come. The "square-the-rod" psychologists had created a generation of children who were accustomed to getting everything they wanted. Suddenly they demanded the vote, the right to be heard — even when they disagreed. All parents did. Some even said, "Somebody ought to do something about it." But nobody did. They knew they were safe.

With such power and wealth available was it not inevitable that someone would recognize the opportunity to make money out of the situation? So there is where we now stand. Without passing judgment at this time we can not help but wonder whether progress is necessary improvement.

A Permissive Society

Orillia Packet and Times

It may be significant that against the background of the much-publicized decadence of "swinging London", the epitome of today's permissive society, a British revulsion of feeling is finding a voice in a remarkable new book by a noted novelist.

Pamela Hansford Johnson, in her new book, "On Iniquity," has pointed out that the ghastly Moors Murders which so horrified the world, are the logical product of our present and permissive society.

Certainly the wretched stock clerk and his tyrant mistress, who tortured and killed children in the most bestial manner to add the spice of sadism to their sexual exchanges, are symptomatic of a sick society which prizes individual sensation above all else, and justifies any excess which brings instant gratification. A society which worships violence, hero-ism and bestiality in literature, films television, and newspapers and tolerates the everyday display of a vast range of pornography, must inevitably reflect the stunted values and warped standards of this perverted culture in the behavior of its individual members. We are all the captives of our culture.

Our society today suffers from the tyranny of a libertarian establishment; the permissive of accepted soci..l behavior has swung from puritan restraint to a permissiveness far less than a generation. It is the rights, rather than the responsibilities, of man which society stresses today, and it is this permissive tolerance of almost any aberration and excess, coupled with a truly shocking acceptance of violence, which we are combining the very foundations of western civilization.

Love, the most divine of human emotions, is being replaced by a cold pragmatism which will permit men and women to use mere instruments for self-gratification.

In the libertarian urge to set free the mind of man, it has been overlooked that society itself is an artificial device, contrived for man's security, and requiring the exercise of artificial restraints and individual responsibilities for the common good. It is the duty of law to ensure that such restraints and responsibilities are not neglected if our civilization is not to swiftly vanish, and be replaced by a society with sturdier foundations.

Manitoba's Tax Hurts

Montreal Star

There's one thing about those westerners. When they do things they do them up brown. Take Manitoba, hitherto without a sales tax. There's no business of fooling around with a 2 per cent or 3 per cent impost to break the ice. It's 5 per cent right off the bat, and the legislature has approved the so-called palatess way of raising an extra $33,000,000 yearly. Give Manitobans another five years and maybe they'll show they're as progressive as Alberta with 0 per cent! Now only Alberta remains to discover what it has been missing, and even those lowly oil royalties probably won't keep the tax collector content much longer.

How to Get on in the World

Windsor Star

One factor which has distinguished society on this continent from that in older parts of the world has been its flexibility. Since pioneer days there has been relatively easy for those with incisitive to move up in status, economic level and responsibility. This indeed has been an element in the rapid progress of this country. There has been scope for enterprise.

It isn't so in most parts of the world. One is most apt to stay in whatever class to which one is born. We note a survey made in France, for instance, that 74 per cent of sons follow in the same trade as their fathers. Allegiance is more opportunity for sons of well - to - do fathers to change vocations or professions than those of poorer means. One influence on this is that the upper classes can afford to give their children an education fitting them for a career of their choice.

Society in other countries, unless comes a revolution, tends to be stratified. This isn't a bad thing unless there is some social or economic aspect. It is a deterrent to initiative, as only one who is well connected can break through into the upper ranks.

But this continent the trend seems in the direction of stratification. Surveys in the United States disclose it is becoming increasingly more difficult for a young man from a modest home to reach the top echelon of executive positions in the world of finance and commerce. These spots all too often are reserved for sons or in-laws of the people already at the top. If this be so it is a waste of some of our best brains into the hierarchy of businesses and finance which become sluggish and — and this would have a retarding effect.

"Drug Formulary"

By KEN KELLY

Rarely are their motives questioned. So a few eyebrows were raised last week when a doctor suggested publicly that the Commons drug prices inquiry acted with fear and favor.

Dr. J. M. LeClair, professor of medicine at the University of Sherbrooke, said at a press conference here that the committee rejected the idea of a national drug formulary because of drug-industry lobbying and fear of economic dislocation in the industry.

Medical care insurance programs which have drug benefits for persons insured have formularies of those drugs for which benefits will be paid.

Dr. LeClair linked his criticism to the prospect of a Canadian medical care insurance program with drug benefits. He also expressed concern to the Canadian Society of Chemotherapy that too many drugs are being used on too many patients without adequate knowledge of the harmful effects they may produce.

Idea Has Setback In Committee Probe

He maintains that a great many of the 20,000 drugs now on the market are only minor variations of the same thing and that a formulary of 500 to 1,000 drugs could be established.

But Dr. Harry Harley, Liberal MP for Hastco who headed the committee that drafted the report submitted to the Commons last week, disagreed with Dr. LeClair's reasoning.

Dr Harley said he agrees in principle with the formulary idea but in the present state of medical practice it would be impractical.

"Medical practitioners like to prescribe the drugs with which they are familiar and I don't think that at this time they are ready to swing to a national formulary."

While many hospitals have formularies and many doctors use the formulary drugs in hospital where they wouldn't do so in outside practice, many other doctors insist on using non-formulary drugs in the hospital and are allowed to do so by the hospital authorities.

Dr. Harley said he hopes the committee recommendations that a free, monthly information bulletin from the federal food and drug directorate be established will make the formulary idea gradually more acceptable to the medical profession.

Bank of BC to Elect President Today

VANCOUVER (CP) — Newly-appointed directors of the Bank of British Columbia meet today to elect a temporary president and vice-president of Canada's newest chartered bank.

Elmer M. Gunderson, former Social Credit finance minister seen by many observers as the most likely candidate for the job, announced at a shareholders' meeting Monday he would not seek the post.

Mr. Gunderson, described in the past as a "bagman for the Social Credit party" by Opposition Leader Robert Strachan, was, however, named as one of the bank's first permanent directors.

The former finance minister came under sharp attack late last year for his administration with Social Credit fund-raising activities as well as his efforts on behalf of the Bank of B.C.

In addition, Mr. Gunderson is executive director of the provincially-owned B.C. Hydro and Power Authority, vice-president of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway and a director of the B.C. Ferry Authority.

Another appointment expected to raise critical comments from opposition circles was that of Russell J. Bennett, the 39-year-old son of Premier W. A. C. Bennett. The younger Mr. Bennett runs his father's chain of hardware stores in the Okanagan Valley.

The remainder 12 directors named at a meeting of founder-shareholders of the new bank, businessmen, most of them from the Vancouver area.

A board of directors of from 14 to 25 members was approved by shareholders.

The shareholders also authorized the directors to hold the bank's first annual meeting on Jan. 30, 1969, the closest convenient date after the Oct. 31, 1968, fiscal year end that will be observed by the nine other Canadian chartered banks.

The bank received its charter from Parliament last December and has the blessing of Premier Bennett's government.

At Monday's meeting, it was announced that shareholders had subscribed a total of $2,670,425, of which more than $2,000,000 had been paid. Mr. Gunderson said 106,817 shares have been issued, most of them in 1,000-share blocks to the 134 founder-shareholders.

The bank now plans to raise its full capital and will offer 825 shares to the public in June. Whatever amount is raised, the federal government will authorize a capitalization of double that amount to provide for future expansion.

When the capital has been raised and the capitalization approved, the bank will be granted its certificate and the Bank of B.C. will go into business, probably in the fall.

Solids Pipeline Study Backed By $500,000

EDMONTON (CP) — Federal and provincial governments and 17 companies have decided to undertake a $500,000 economic and technical feasibility study of a solids pipeline.

Two groups headed by J. G. Bruce of Calgary—the Solids Pipeline Research and Development Association and the Solids Pipeline Economic Study Association—made the decision at a recommendation ready by March 1, 1968.

If the report is favorable, another $4,500,000 to $5,000,000 will be needed to create a viable pipeline, Mr. Bruce said.

The federal government is paying 5 per cent of the cost of the research project with the balance shared by the Alberta government and the companies.

A 2,500-foot pilot pipeline will be constructed here to carry "cascade trains" made up of solid material about 100 feet long. The pipe, four inches in diameter, would carry capsules and "paste" slugs — powders mixed with liquids to make a solid paste.

Dr. George F. Round of the Alberta Research Council said it was hoped "a substantial body of data to confirm laboratory findings" will be available by the end of the year.

"We have to find out if it is feasible on a commercial scale."

The Alberta Research Council has been experimenting for about 16 years with solids pipelining and has an international reputation in the field.

The first full-scale capsule pipeline was tested by the council two years ago when a 24-pound capsule was moved through a 20-inch crude oil line of the Interprovincial Pipe Line Co. between Edmonton and Hardisty, Alta. The capsule moved through the line with the regular flow of oil and completed the 109-mile journey in 58 hours.

A research council official termed the test "only significant" but said solids pipeline transport is still a long way from commercial application.

It is the commercial moving of such solids as coal, sulphur, potash and even wheat that, scientists are looking for now.

Mr. Bruce said the essential requirement for shipping goods by pipeline is that they are bulk commodities, have large tonnages and are capable of being carried by capsule.

Development of such a line would be of value in all countries, but would have special benefits for Canada.

"Canada has wide expanses to be covered, with under-population and vast markets close at hand," Mr. Bruce said. "There is a transportation problem and any method that can ease this should not be overlooked."

WHAT IS YOUR A.Q.?

(Adoption Quotient)

Would You Qualify As An Adopting Parent?

IN ORDER TO ADOPT:

FALSE. Children's Aid Societies do encourage young childless couples to explore fully their inability to have a family of their own. This is because they feel most couples would prefer to have a natural child. Couples who have sought expert medical advice are usually much more ready to proceed with adoption. However married couples with natural children who wish to complete their families by adoption need be in good health only.

—They must be under the age of 40.

FALSE. Most Children's Aid Societies expect couples who wish to adopt infants to be of the natural child rearing age. Couples over the age of 40 are considered on the basis of their age in relation to the age of the child available for placement.

—Couples must own their own home and have a separate bedroom for each child.

FALSE. There are no specific requirements in this area except that reasonable accommodation be provided.

—They must have a better than average income.

FALSE. Children's Aid Societies ask only that a couple provide a reasonable measure of security with some stability in work record. They are expected to provide assurance that they are able to live within their income and accept the added responsibility of another member of the family.

—Both partners must be of the same religious faith.

FALSE. When there is a mixed marriage there must be a prior decision as to the religious faith in which the child will be raised.

For further information about adoption, contact your local Children's Aid Society by writing Box 188, Belleville or Telephone 962-9704 for an appointment.

Son's Reading Block Harmed His Personality

Dear Doris: I was most interested to read in your column today that there are accumulating information re perceptually handicapped children.

My son's school problems began at grade one and by grade six he was becoming withdrawn and having the occasional violent temper outbreak. No one here had any idea what was wrong except my social dilemma (separation).

Secondary school was more of a satisfaction to him. He had an excellent guidance director who received the "perceptual" difficulty as a bona-fide handicap (the public school people didn't). He has now graduated and is taking special technical training.

He is quiet; not as social as I would like — although he has had dates and a special girl for over two years now.

Personality does suffer here and you must provide compensating factors early. Of course, the half-family situation is a negative quantity, too. The only really worthwhile compensation I could give Bill (besides letting him know he was not a dumb kid as he had been called) was a very good camp in the summer.

For years I borrowed money from a finance company (not recommended if you have any other source available) for expensive fees and paid them back all winter. The counsellors at such a camp are intelligent and mature enough to know how to handle all kinds of children. I owe one young man (a psychology student) a great debt of gratitude for Bill's development. The life is rugged in Canada's Northland and that's good, too.

I'm enclosing 15 cents for your booklet and will forward it to someone who has a p e r c e p t u a l l y handicapped boy. Sorry for this long screwed but your column really hit my senses today.

Thank you on behalf of many parents. — Irene.

Dear Irene: So you fought a hard battle and won. If your letter encourages a single parent to take another look at his boy or girl who is struggling unreasonably with reading, it will have done a big job.

Dear Doris: my husband insists on me going back to work. We have a seven-month old baby girl and I don't think any baby-sitter can take the place of a mother.

Our finances are fairly good. I worked before we had our little girl to help pay for our home and furniture and I think my husband should consider this. I know he is thinking of the future.

I wouldn't mind going back in another year, but of course I will lose my job. — Balking.

Dear Balking: How times have changed! Used to be that beg on her knees for the chance to get out of the house and back to that familiar typewriter. This is the Astocrat says "Work!"

Either vocation — all decisions for that matter — should come of discussion; else what is a marriage for? Any small baby needs its mother more than anyone else in the world. Preferably for the first five years of its life.

A man may think that all a small baby does is sleep anyway. How wrong he is! Ask any child psychologist. Babies react to cuddling, love, talking to; and they all without it.

Give up that other job. This one needs your best efforts.

Dear Doris: I must say thank you for the trouble you went to to get me the information on this Samba card game. I've sent my thanks to your "expert", I will try this run of eleven cards. It sounds like fun. — Four Women.

Dear Four: Perhaps we've started a trend in Canasta playing. You are welcome.

Doris cannot begin to answer all your questions in the column. To make sure of your reply, remember to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Cream Sugar Cookies

Shirley said, "I told you so!" when a letter came from a reader asking for "creamed hard-cooked eggs as good as her mother made" and the sour cream sugar cookies. You see I mentioned these among other "remembered" dishes in the March 7 column but did not include the recipes. At the time, Shirley said, "You'll be sorry."

I'm not sorry — just glad I'm read.

2 1-3 cups sifted all purpose flour
½ tsp. baking soda
1 tsp. baking powder
1-2 tsp. salt
½ cup butter plus 1 tbsp. shortening
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1-2 cup sour cream
½ tsp. vanilla
¾ to ¾ cup plumped and dried raisins.

Sift sifted flour 3 times with soda, baking powder and salt. Cream butter and shortening until smooth; stir in flavoring. Then add sugar, cream i n g well. Beat in egg until fluffy, then stir in flour mixture and the cream alternately in 2 or 3 portions, mixing until just smooth after each. Add raisins. Chill dough. Roll out on a lightly floured pastry cloth or board about 3-16" thick. Cut out with 2½ or 3" cutter. Place on greased cookie sheet sprinkle sparingly and neatly with sugar and bake 13 to 15 min. at 375 deg. Fahr. Remove from pan to cake rack immediately. About 4 dozen.

CREAMED HARD - COOKED EGGS ON TOAST OR RICE

3 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
6 tbsps. butter or margarine

Golden Fried Chicken; Mashed Squash; Green Beans with Nutmeg Butter; Banana Bread (see Mon.); Cranberry Jelly Salad with Golden Dressing; Deep Apple Pie; Chadda r Cheese; Coffee.

rine
½ cup finely chopped green onions
¼ cup flour
1 to 2 tsps. curry powder (optional)
1½ tsps. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper (preferably white)
3 cups hot milk

Gently saute onion in butter until wilted but not brown. Remove from heat and stir in flour, curry powder (if used) salt and pepper. Return to heat and stir until bubbling then stir in milk until thick. Add sliced hard-cooked eggs and stir gently to heat through. This seems to be at its best served over hot, fluffy, boiled rice, but I love it on toast, too. Makes a handy emergency supper for latecomers.

Well Raised Children Behave at Funeral

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Get out the wet noodle. You've goofed again. You said very young children should not be taken to funerals and then you printed a letter from a woman who was upset because her husband's funeral was marred by roughneck kids running up and down the aisles in the chapel, filling over the baskets of flowers and fighting at the foot of the casket.

ANN LANDERS

Some children should not be taken to a skunk rassle much less than a funeral, but this is because their parents never taught them how to behave. We took our children, 3, 4 and 5 years of age, to my mother's funeral, and there wasn't a peep out of any of them. Our kids can be depended on to behave well at all times because that's the way we raised them. — A PROUD PAPA.

DEAR PROUD: Congratulations, pa. You do have a point. And now, we shall hear from a funeral director who lives in Bay City, Michigan.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read with interest a recent letter about young children being brought to funerals. Perhaps you would like to know the general feeling of funeral home employees.

We do not like to have children under eight years of age come to the funeral home. Invariably they cause a disturbance at a time when peace and quiet are of the utmost importance. Very young children do not understand what is going on. It is natural for them to be inquisitive, but their shouting of questions and climbing on the caskets in the selection room are very hard on the bereaved.

We ask parents to discipline their children until we are blue in the face, but it goes in one ear and out the other. I hope the millions of people who read your column will take note of this and learn from it. You would earn the grateful thanks of every funeral director in the country. — W.M.H.

DEAR W.M.H.! Here's the letter and I hope it helps. And it is nice for me to get a smile from the members of your profession, for a change. Ever since I put the knock on going into bock for expensive funerals, I've been the stepchild of the industry. So hello again.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I were invited to his sister's home for dinner several days ago. About half an hour before we were to leave, she telephoned and asked if we would stop by the drug store and pick up a bottle of soda. Of course I said O.K.

Two weeks have passed. We have seen my sister-in-law and her husband twice since that night and not one word has been mentioned about the bottle of soda. She hasn't even returned the empty bottle so I can get my nickel rebate.

I wrote you about this last week but I didn't ask you to print the letter. I'm asking now that you do so because I would like your advice on what to say to my petty sister-in-law. — BURNING.

DEAR BURN: You have spent 16c on stamps, not to mention the time it took to write about a bottle of soda that couldn't have cost more than 25c in the first place. If you've nothing more serious to write to Ann Landers about, get on your knees and thank the good Lord for a charmed existence!

Brought Dog Along to Prove Point

WATERLOO, Que. (CP) — Betsy Merry, a Grade 9 student from Eastman, Que., taking part in a public speaking contest at Waterloo High School, wanted to be sure her audience knew what the subject looked like.

So she brought along her year-old Great Dane Ricky and stationed him at the front of the classroom as she expounded on the virtues of the big dog.

Ricky, who weighs 160 pounds and stretches to a height of seven feet when standing on his hind legs, was described as a fine pet and an animal that was good with children.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "I never expect Jim to help feed and change the baby. He's so clumsy with such a tiny baby. I think he's afraid he might drop little Jimmie."

Young fathers are no more likely to drop a tiny baby than are mothers. Men soon become adept at baby care, especially if they help right from the first day the baby comes home.

Caring for a helpless baby arouses a special feeling of closeness and tenderness in fathers, as well as in mothers. Both father and child will benefit from this close association.

Catholic Church Criticized For Treatment of Women

TORONTO (CP) — Cecilia Wallace, who describes herself as "a plain ordinary secretary", is willing to challenge the highest officials of the Roman Catholic Church to gain for women parishioners equal rights with men.

Miss Wallace is organizer of the Canadian section of St. Joan's International Alliance, a Roman Catholic women's group which recently released a report severely criticizing the church for its treatment of women.

The report was based on the results of a questionnaire asking members to comment on whether women are sitting on committees for schools, parishes and dioceses and whether Roman Catholic women feel they have real freedom in choosing a state of life.

In an interview Miss Wallace said she expects more criticism or the report from conservative Roman Catholics at the parish level than from the hierarchy.

She says that since she began her outspoken criticism of church laws, archbishops she haven't always agreed with her, but "they don't deny my right to say what I think."

Miss Wallace works at the centre for ecumenical studies at St. Michael's College, University of Toronto. She has made herself a student of theological texts, which, she says, enables her to keep a finger on the pulse of current trends for reform in the church.

She founded the Canadian St. Joan's last September because she was "appalled" at the effect of some theological teachings on women in the church. She says Roman Catholic women are timid and reluctant to criticize or get involved in controversy.

Miss Wallace says she lost interest in the Catholic Women's League because the organization is interested mainly in social action and resists the movement for equality for women. The CWL's withdrawal of support from the royal commission on the status of women has disappointed her.

St. Joan's Alliance was formed in London as a suffragette group in 1911, but during the last decade has shifted its emphasis from decrande for state reform to changes within the church. The international membership is about 2,000.

Miss Wallace says she hopes Canadian membership will remain small. "We want thinking women, professional, non-conformist types."

She says the alliance's criticism of the church is not heretical. It was to change some canon laws—church regulations —which she says have grown up since Vatican II. Interpretation of basic church teachings. She cites as an example the recommendation that women must wear hats in church.

Miss Wallace says a paper will be submitted to a lay congress at the Vatican next fall asking that the priesthood be opened to women as a way of ending discrimination.

Corsage for First W. I. President

Past presidents of Quinte Women's Institute during the past 60 years are grouped around the 1967 president, Mrs. J. Parrott, who pins corsage on first Quinte W.I. president Mrs. J. Garbutt at the recent celebration to mark this organization's 60th anniversary.

Quinte W. I. Marks 60th Anniversary

The Quinte Women's Institute's first president Mrs. J. Garbutt was in attendance when the Institute recently celebrated its 60th anniversary.

In marching the event about 70 members along with husbands and guests enjoyed a turkey dinner served by the Shannonville U.C.W. in the church hall a Shannonville.

President of the Institute, Mrs. J. Parrott was in charge and extended a cordial welcome to all. A number of toasts were made including one to the members proposed by Mr. Arnold Mitchell and responded to by Mrs. Noble Brown.

Mrs. H. Shearer, area president and Mrs. J. McLaren district president brought greetings from their respective groups.

Most of the members were dressed in centennial costumes and the hall was decorated in Institute colors which gave it a most colorful effect, and an event long to be remembered.

Main part of the program dealt with events during the past 60 years and the various accomplishments of the W.I. At this time Mrs. Harry Harrison was a guest was in charge, conducted a game entitled "Do You Remember?" She asked a number of members questions pertaining to the Institute down through the years.

At this time Mrs. Garbutt who was president in 1907 spoke briefly and dealt in particular with a special project during 1933 when the Institute undertook the cleaning up of the Shannonville cemetery. A minstrel show was put on to raise funds for this project.

Others who reminisced on highlights which occurred during those active years were: Mrs. Harry Grills who spoke on the group's 40th anniversary held at her home; Mrs. Brown related on being a charter member and others who spoke briefly were Mrs. C. Mitchell, Mrs. D. Atkins, Mrs. K. Vivian, Mrs. F. Bedell, Mrs. E. Wood and Mrs. R. Atkins.

Mrs. Parrott expressed appreciation to guest Mrs. Harrison and presented her with a small gift on behalf of the Institute.

Argyll Chapter I.O.D.E. Plans Various Events

The regular monthly meeting of the Argyll Chapter I.O.D.E. was held in the Officers' Mess in the Armouries with the regent, Mrs. K. D. H. Willcocks, in the chair.

In the absence of the secretary, Mrs. Milroy read the minutes of the March meeting. No meeting was held in April as the members spent that evening painting the Centennial float to be used in decorating the Armouries for the ball. Mrs. Kolokuk gave the treasurer's report.

A number of thank you notes were received among which were a number from the debutantes presented at the ball. A number of the members devoted considerable time in preparing the girls for this event. Mrs. R. Allin, who trained the girls for their dance, was presented with a bouquet of flowers at their dress rehearsal as a token of their appreciation. Members of the Officers' Mess also thanked the Chapter for their interest in having two leather chairs covered and for the assistance given at the ball.

Several reports were given by convenors. After some discussion it was decided to divide the $100 scholarship among the four high schools giving $25 to each school.

Mrs. Refausse, services at home and abroad convener, is anxious to get all sewing and knitting in so she can get a shipment away.

Mrs. C. Bristol, convener of world affairs, read a most interesting Centennial article on the history of Ontario, bringing many events to the attention of members.

The Argyll Chapter is hostess to the district dinner and a tentative date was set for October 19th with further information to be given at a later date.

Some excerpts were read by the Regent from National News. One of interest was the naming of a new Chapter in Quebec as Centennial Rose.

The national convention is being held in Ottawa in June. Their program covers a visit to Expo and the Upper Canada Village.

The June meeting will be a potluck supper in the Armouries.

Mrs. A. Duffy introduced Mrs. J. Parrott to the Chapter who gave a conducted tour through the west. These beautiful slides were taken on a 1966 trip taken by Mr. and Mrs. Parrott and Col. and Mrs. Duffy.

Girls in Bikinis Kick Off Fashion Show at Expo

MONTREAL (CP)—The temperature was in the low 40s and the breeze was stiff but models strolled down the outdoor run-way in bikinis Thursday to kick off a weekly series of fashion shows at the Canadian pavilion bandshell at Expo 67.

As the show opened, theme dancers in bright red leotard skirts sounded a bugle call and 12 high-stepping models dressed in red coats marched down the runway.

From the opening sequence to the flag-waving, balloon-popping finale, the fast-paced show combined fashion and entertainment.

As the models presented the various outfits, dancers performed on stage. A routine entitled Fairweather Friends brought out a dazzle of bright yellow raincoats and suits while the dancers personified the clouds and rain.

The Progressive Conservatives showed a new approach to days and patterns and brought up-to-date the trench coat, the coat-dress and the bathrobe coat.

The Show Jobs brought color and she as wild Canadian furs ranging from wild minks to lynx were paraded.

A collection of gay, young clothes in vivid colors and bold combinations comprised the Young Liberals' sequence, highlighted by a mucky-striped tent with matching bloomers, a ruffled culotte dress in bright pink and the pantsuit in yellow.

Quebec Hydro's 'Rotating Strike' Moves North

MONTREAL (CP). — About 500 Hydro-Quebec employees in the Abitibi region of northwestern Quebec and the Saguenay area around Lake St. John went on a 24-hour strike today in support of contract demands.

Power services were being maintained as members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees continued a series of "rotating" strikes begun Monday on Montreal Island by about 3,000 employees of the provincially - owned utility. The Montreal workers were back on their jobs today.

Pickets appeared before the Hydro - Quebec offices in the two regions concerned. There are about 100 employees involved in the Saguenay area and another 400 work in the Abitibi region.

Some 8,100 Hydro employees work in eight regions in the province. The principal cities affected today are Chicoutimi in the Saguenay region and Rouyn and Cadillac in the Abitibi area.

A union spokesman said Monday the purpose of the system of staggered strikes in one section of the province after another is to decrease services in such a way as to demonstrate displeasure with Hydro's most recent contract offer.

Both company and union officials have said essential services will be maintained during the strikes and that there will be no cut in power.

The union has announced that each local strike will last 24 hours.

The decision to strike followed weekend meetings at 28 centres in the province in which employees voted by almost 97 per cent in favor of rejecting the company's latest offer.

About 4,500 of the workers are trade employees making an average of about $2.50 an hour. The union is seeking an increase of $1.11 an hour in a two-year contract—85 cents the first year and 46 cents the second. The company has offered those employees an average increase of 61 cents an hour in a two-year contract, plus a flat sum of $275 to cover the period from last Dec. 31, when the contract expired, until now.

The 400 skilled Hydro technicians now earn an average of $122.50 a week and are demanding an increase of $13 for the first year, and $6.50 for the second year.

The 3,000 Hydro office workers now earn an average of about $91 a week. They seek an increase of about 23 per cent or $23 a week in a two-year contract. The company offered a flat $175 in back pay as well as increases of about $6.85 in the first year and $3 in the second.

The eight Hydro regions are: St. Lawrence, covering Montreal Island; Laurentide, St. Johns, Matapedia, Saguenay, Abitibi, Trois-Rivieres and St. Maurice Valley.

Students Ignore Grey-list Warning

OTTAWA (CP)— The Ottawa Public School Board has hired 112 new teachers from the Ottawa Teachers' College despite warnings to students from two Ontario teachers' associations that the school board may be grey-listed, it was learned Monday.

The Federation of Women Teachers' Associations of Ontario and the Ontario Public School Men Teachers' Federation sent letters to the province's 37,000 elementary school teachers and 8,500 students at teachers' Colleges warning of a stalemate in salary talks between the Ottawa board and its teaching staff.

The grey-listing would involve advising all teachers and prospective teachers that to accept a position with the Ottawa board would result in a loss of all benefits and protection of the teachers' federations.

Glenafton Holsteins Bring $3,300 Average

ALLISTON, Ont. (CP)— Two Canadian auction sale records were established Monday as the Holstein herd of the Glenafton Farms, Alliston, went under the auctioneering hammer of Senator Harry Hayes.

A total of $250,475 was realized on the sale of 83 head for a Canadian record dispersal sale average of $3,300. The six-year-old cow North Lends Clinton Girl sold for the world record price for a dairy cow of $42,000. She was bought by Angelo Agro of Agro Bros., Hamilton, Ont.

Previous world record price for a dairy cow was $42,000, paid for another cow bred at Glenafton Farms a year ago, by Russell Rowntree, Woodbridge, Ont., and Robert Lowe, Maple, Ont., for Glenafton Nellie Bonheur Maud, bought at the Oak Ridges reduction sale.

The Glenafton herd was not sold in its entirety as 142 of the animals were offered in pairs. The successful bidder took his choice of the pair and the other remained at Glenafton to form the nucleus of a continuing herd.

Queens Of Seas To Retire

LONDON (CP)— The Queen Elizabeth and the Queen Mary, sovereigns of leviathan - scale ocean travel, will be withdrawn from Atlantic service within 18 months and possibly scrapped.

Cunard Steam-ship Company announced Monday the big liners will end three decades of illustrious but increasingly costly service as scrap metal unless a worthwhile alternative idea emerges.

The Clyde-built Queens, swift and luxurious wonders of the world when they were launched in the 1930s, are being retired ahead of schedule chiefly because of losses amounting to more than $2,000,000 each year.

Cunard Chairman Sir Basil Smallpeice told a press conference.

The 81,237 - ton Mary, completed in 1936 to carry 2,000 passengers and a crew of 1,000, was originally scheduled to retire as Cunard's new $90,000,000 liner known tentatively as the Q4 comes into service in 1969.

The 82,998 - ton Elizabeth, which served first as a troopship on completion in 1940, was expected to continue work alongside the Q4 on cruises and the transatlantic run for perhaps another decade.

Now the three - funnel Mary will be retired at the end of the current May - October summer service between New York and Southampton. The twin - stack Elizabeth will make her last voyage a year later.

OSD Vocational Centre Has Enviable Record As Aid to Handicapped

By Harry Mulhall
Staff Reporter

It's not too often that world-wide example is set by a local institution to the point its advice is of universal interest.

Yet, that's precisely the case in Belleville — more specifically at the vocational training centre of the Ontario School for the Deaf.

While a project of the provincial government, the school has been established so long, it's an integral part of the Belleville scene

Yet, most Bellevillians are unaware of the reputation it rightly it gives its chosen home-community in some respects.

Consider: It ranks among the top four centres of its kind anywhere in North America.

It emphasizes teaching methods which while involving those deprived of one or other basic human sense, rivals the success rate of any normal vocational school.

It takes some different approaches in education that stimulate individual achievement.

It draws the visiting interest of educators from the Far East, Australia, even the United States.

Particularly, if the tour is directed by someone like J. W. Hodgson, teacher of drafting and a veteran OSD teacher with all the institution's statistics, personalities and projects at his fingertips.

In all, 24 trades are taught OSD youths, ranging from common floor repairs to the intricacies of car-body repair work to the fine details of printing.

The courses are designed to give experience and training in depth.

"Our object is to train our boys to such a degree they are able to go out into employment as soon as they leave here," says Mr. Hodgson.

"These students are going to have to compete against graduates from secondary schools - and the only way we can do this is to give something as close as possible to secondary education. If possible, we even take them further."

There is good reason behind the seemingly lofty sound of the ideal.

Emphasizes Mr. Hodgson: "After all, in business it's necessary to produce. If our pupils can go ahead and produce, this is what the employer is concern-about."

They begin when they are about 13 years old — embarking on a seven - year course.

After three years in preliminary courses involving basic metal and work classes — the fundamentals of craftsmanship — they begin moving through the senior courses.

In all, nine fully - equipped shop areas are given over to the senior classes as they move toward qualified craftsmanship.

But, in the meantime, the emphasis repeatedly is on practical work — to a degree perhaps unequalled on a local scale.

"It's in the practical application of the trades courses that we're strong, perhaps over other centres," says Mr. Hodgson.

Practical application means what's made has to work.

And it also means its the most practical for the taxpayer — since this is a government institution.

For instance, the carpentry-construction class recently constructed a 14 x 24 - foot garage in its workshop not only for practice, it now is scheduled for installation at a school residence.

The centre's fine-woodworking class turns out meticulously fitted cupboards and such-like which can be used on the premises.

Meantime, next-door at the furniture-upholstering courses they are building basic household utilities — again for practical purposes.

Particularly does this apply to chesterfields and easy chairs designed for OSD residence - living.

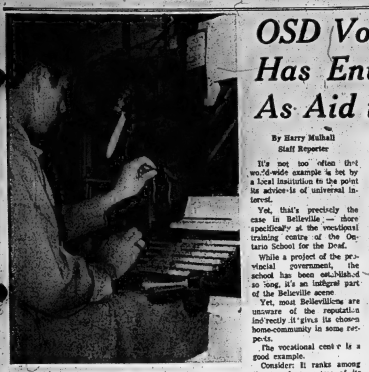
"Those always come in handy for the residences," explains Mr. Hodgson. "There's a number of reasons. They're for students. And we can build them more ruggedly — and more, cheaply — than we can buy them since we know what we want for our requirements."

However, the practical side also has its personal application.

On many of their workshop projects, students may tool an article of personal possession on school time, paying just for the materials. The rest is par with their course.

It may only be a footstool — or like some of the last -year students in the automotive shops — their own cars, purchased by their parents.

Through the year these students are allowed to practice their professionalism on the automobiles — stripping down to the chassis, repairing them right up to the rear door handle.



At the end of the year, having learned much in practice and paid for materials, the cars — and experience — are theirs, for keeps.

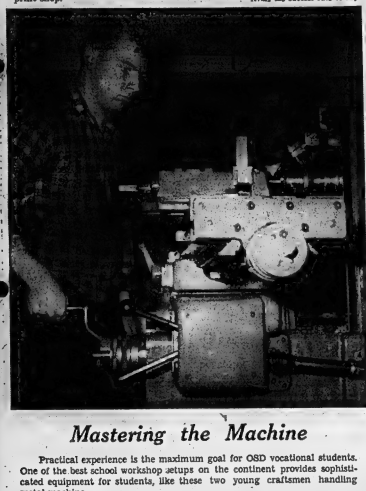
The centre is a drawing point for world-wide visitors through the year. Continually, requests for advice pour from similar institutions outside Canada, reveals Mr. Hodgson.



"We're among the four biggest in North America in terms of the number of trades being taught — and how far we progress our pupils before they graduate" says Mr. Hodgson.

"Because of the size of our project and the program it operates we're drawing interest from all over the world."

Mastering the Machine

At Work--but at Ease

OSD furniture shop turns out succession of fine items for school use, like this armchair being tested for comfort by instructor N. W. Foster. Students Ronald Thompson and Robert Schultz indicate pleasure at teacher's approval.

McFarland Co. Lower of Two Tenders

TRENTON — Tenders were opened Monday afternoon for the reconstruction and widening of Front Street from Elgin Street to roughly the area of the new bridge, and for Ford Street in the vicinity of the new liquor store.

Two tenders were submitted: Lightfoot Construction, $128,-413.35; McFarland Construction Co., $123,623.35. Councillor C. V. Graham, chairman of the public works' committee and Councillor Paul Tripp were the only two members of the committee at the tender opening. The prices will now be submitted to council as a whole, and if one is accepted, will then go to the Ontario Municipal Board for approval.

Council earlier this year allocated (roughly) $117,000 for work on the two streets, approximately $33,000 of which would be recoverable through government grants.

CHILD CUT

Two-year-old Robert Clark of 36 Elizabeth Street was treated in Trenton hospital late Monday afternoon for a cut to his forehead after a car driven by his mother, Mrs. Sharon Clark, had been involved in a rear-end collision with a car driven by Phillip Wesolero of 193 Shuter Street in the Dominion Store parking lot.

Belleville Brightens Expo Scene

Multi-purpose message board at Expo for public convenience was built and serviced by Stewart Warner. It facilitates everything from announcements to reporting lost children.

Electronic Board at Expo Installed by Belleville Firm

MONTREAL (Special) — Easy communication between Expo and its public is being done through a completely computerized electronic system that was unveiled recently.

The system, described as "sophisticated," consists of five doublesided, electronic, information display boards, and one single display board which are strategically located throughout Expo's 1,000 acres. They are 40 feet wide by 20 feet high and are raised 10 feet above the ground.

Each face serves a specific area and it is estimated a message run four times during an average day will be seen by about 200,000 people.

The boards cover scheduled entertainment events, available seats, weather, traffic, news, lost children and emergency notices. They are intended to guide, inform and help the thousands of daily Expo visitors.

All board information is displayed in both languages and can even be made multilingual. They light up at 10 a.m. daily and continue without interruption for 12 hours, seven days a week, throughout the entire period of the fair.

The characters flashed on the board are legible at distances to 800 feet or over.

The system can process and transmit 200,000 messages from its storage control room. The boards are built on spaceframe structural steel frame work. The message area is designed to give a "floating above" illusion.

Engineering and electronic designs were done in Chicago by the electronic division of the Stewart-Warner Corporation. Manufacturing and installation were done by Stewart - Warner Corp. of Canada Ltd. The Belleville plant will also look after the maintenance of the big electronic board during Expo.

The boards give not only a single face, but can accommodate any combination of different messages flashed on them simultaneously.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

"When, oh when, my naked-skulled chickadee," quoth a mini-skirted dowager of my acquaintance, "are those lovely boys who dress in the near nude, going to toss their torsos around in Memorial Arena for the benefit of us gals who have been watching them for close to a half-century?"

Likewise she is one of that loyal band who used to pack the Market Square housegow to 2,000 capacity in the days when the Masked Marvel, John Katan, White Eagle, Leo "The Lion" Hennigg and others of that ilk left 'em gasping — and laughing — in the pews.

She should have been around when Promoter Jack Curley with champion Jim London as his bellwether was playing to packed houses in the larger American cities until the sameness irritated the gentry of the press and they said "we are getting tired of this hippodrawing, can't we have some honest wrestling, please."

Curley blew his top. "Honest wrestling", You wanna see honest wrestling. All right, you asked for it. Now you'll see college style antics in the professional ring."

The scribes shricked but to no avail. Curley announced a match of "honest wrestling" between a couple of gorilla-like parties Ed Strangler Lewis and Jack Sherry in Madison Square Garden.

"Rassle, college style, to suit these press apes," were his instructions," even if you have to stay all night."

It started. Lewis clutched Sherry to his bosom like a clase-out in a Presley movie and for forty-five minutes they held the pose. They began to perspire and soon little pools of sweat began to splash their shoes. They swayed around the ring until some wag yelled, "Oh, go on, let him kiss you just once, What havya gotta lose?"

Then, the story goes, they decided to go to the mat together. The crowd cheered but it soon developed they had not gone there to wrestle, but to snuggle. Arms around each other's necks they lay there for thirty-six minutes moving around occasionally to rest a cramped muscle.

The crowd yawned. A lot went out to wet the whistle. The scribes who brought it on themselves were forced to stay.

Curley was in his glory. He strutted around the ringside with a big grin on his face saying, "So you wanted college wrestling, eh. Good ole college wrestling. Well, you've got it and I hope you boys have not told your wives and sweethearts that you would be home early because you will not. It is now the turn of the guy who has been on the bottom for the last half hour, is he on top for an equal length of time."

With that Curley is said to have fallen asleep. So had the majority of the pewsters. In desperation the press gang sent a delegation to the boss man yelling so they could be heard over the snores of the audience to tell him "we have had enough and would never be harsh with him again if he would just be merciful."

Eventually the wrestlers changed position and the Greek, drowsy in the arms of his Morpheus oppressel, merely grunted and settled down for the third siesta.

Then it appears that Sleep decided to become the fourth man in the ring. Both wrestlers succumbed and went to bye-bye in each others arms. The scribes put on their hats and tip-toed out.

Not Too Satisfactory

Plan 8-Man Binge For World Title

NEW YORK (CP)—An eight-man battle for the vacant world heavyweight boxing championship has been announced, but it's not an out-and-dried as appears on the surface.

First announced in Frankfurt, Germany, by the backers of European champion Karl Middenberger, the plan was confirmed in Toronto by Irv Ungerman, manager of Canadian champion George Chuvalo, and in New York by promoter Mike Maletz of the sponsoring Sports Action, Inc.

But at least two of the fighters named — Floyd Patterson and Joe Frazier — have delayed their acceptance of the idea, for various reasons.

Patterson, drawn to fight Oscar Bonavena of Argentina, has a bout July 9 in Los Angeles against Jerry Quarry and the former champion's adviser, Al Bolan, says no decision will be made regarding the tournament until that fight is concluded.

Frazier, 1964 Olympic champion who has been drawn against Chuvalo, is boasted about the tournament because it has no official sanction, as Jack Bruce Wright, an attorney who is secretary of the corporation backing Frazier, said Monday: "We'd feel better about it if it was run by the World Boxing Association.

"Secondly, the guaranteed purse for the first-round elimination is $50,000, which we do not consider satisfactory.

Unterman said in Toronto Monday he hopes to set the Chuvalo-Frazier fight either at Expo 67 in Montreal or in the Astrodome in Houston about Sept. 2.

The other pairings in the tournament would match MIDdenberger against Thad Spencer former WBA champion Ernie Terrell against young Jimmy Ellis, a former sparring partner for Cassius Clay.

Clay recently was stripped of his championship by the WBA when he refused to accept induction into the U.S. Army when called upon to do so at Houston.

Frazier's backers said they would meet Wednesday to make a definite decision about the fight, but Ungerman is all set to go.

He sees Chuvalo's match with Frazier as potentially the toughest of the lot even though his boy has lost decisions to Clay, Terrell, Patterson and Bonavena in the last two years.

"We must give Frazier his due because he is unbeaten, but George's chances are good," Ungerman said.

Frazier, of Philadelphia, is unbeaten in more than 20 professional fights.

The semi-finalists in the tournament would be guaranteed $75,000 and the finalists $150,000 under contracts sent out today, Ungerman said.

Ungerman said also that the group controlling the Astrodome is under-writing all seven bouts of the tournament.

CNE Sports Get Grant Of $42,000

Needs The Money

Clay Indicted; Plans To Fight

TORONTO (CP)—A Canadian centennial commission sports grant of $42,000 was announced by the Canadian National Exhibition Monday night, to help finance the CNE's athletic program this year.

At the dinner where the money was handed over by State Secretary Judy LaMarsh, Chairman William Allen of Metropolitan Toronto, who acted as chairman of the CNE sports executive, announced the CNE would match the centennial grant.

A CNE press release said the grant will enable the staging of several events, including a Little League baseball tournament that will match regional winners from across Canada.

HOUSTON (AP) — Under indictment as a draft dodger, stripped by domestic boxing groups of his world heavyweight title, a laughing, confident Cassius Clay today plans bouts abroad to finance his court fight against selective service.

Although no contract for a foreign match has been signed, Clay is known to be considering at least three, all against old opponents.

He may fight Canadian champion George Chuvalo in Montreal before Expo 67 is over, former champion Floyd Patterson in Tokyo within the next two months or European champion Karl Middenberger in Stockholm before the summer is out.

Clay was indicted Monday by a federal grand Jury in Houston, the adopted hometown where he was called as a draftee April 28, but refused to take the oath, explaining that he is Muslim minister Muhammad Ali and, as such, exempt from military duty.

The government asked U.S. District Judge Ben C. Connally to order Clay to surrender his passport, but one of Clay's lawyers, Hayden Covington of New York, argued that this would be taking the fighter's livelihood away.

Covington told Connally in a brief hearing on bond terms that the influential New York State Athletic Commission, the World Boxing Association and other state boxing commissions have taken away Clay's right to fight.

The lawyer said these actions would be fought separately, but that Clay badly needs overseas work as a boxer to pay his legal bills.

Houston Sells Farrell

The Astros also sold catcher Bill Heath to Detroit Tigers' Toledo farm club of the International League.

Farrell was Houston's winningest pitcher with 53 victories and 64 losses in five years. He had a 1-0 record so far this season.

Chuvalo Frazier Unsigned

TORONTO (CP) — Contracts have not yet been signed between George Chuvalo of Toronto and Joe Frazier — one of four proposed elimination bouts to decide a successor to the world boxing championship formerly held by Cassius Clay.

Eight contenders for the crown were named Monday by Wolfgang Mueller, manager of West Germany's Karl Middenberger. Mueller said in Frankfurt he had been informed of the elimination bouts by Robert Arum, an official of Main Bout Inc.

Meanwhile, Chuvalo's manager, Irv Ungerman, said Monday that the contracts for the Chuvalo-Frazier fight have not been signed.

"I have the unsigned contract in front of me," Ungerman said.

"If Frazier confirms he will sign, the fight will take place on or about Sept. 2 in the Astrodome at Houston or at Expo 67 in Montreal if the right conditions are offered."

Flooded Road Gives Rally Muddy Jolt

NORTH BAY (CP)—Competitors had more trouble Monday with a 25-foot stretch of water on a Northern Ontario backroad than they did in the previous 3,000 miles travelled in the Centennial 4000 rally.

The water, down to two feet deep in parts, caused hundreds of points to be assessed against rallyists and the elimination of others from the 4,500-mile event which ends Expo Wednesday.

Drivers moving along a one-row winding road in Espanola, Ont., about 50 miles west of Sudbury, were confronted with the water and had to drive through it.

The first six cars managed to get through without problems, but then the trouble began. Mike Hunter and Mike Alexander of Vancouver in an Alfa Romeo became stuck in the middle of the water and blocked the road.

Keith Ronald of Guelph and John Medwell of Toronto, however, decided to try to get through in their Citroen and also bogged down.

Immediately, cars following became mired in the muddy water.

The Alfa Romeo was eventually pushed from the quagmire by other crews, but water damage caused the car to drop out of the rally.

Efforts to move the Citroen failed and it also dropped out.

A Sunbeam Imp, driven by Rosemary Smith of Dublin, became stuck and she blocked the road again, a tow truck removed her car, but she lost in excess of 300 points and slipped from contention as the rally's over-all winner.

The same fate befell Jean Claude Ogier of France in his Citroen who lost 330 points at the water hole and slipped well down the list from fifth place.

Paul MacLennan of Toronto and John Wilson of Waterloo, Ont., in their Lotus Cortina dropped 20 points, 10 times as many as they had dropped in the previous 3,000 miles. However, they still hold first place with a one-point margin over Roger Clarke of London, England, a team mate who has lost 25 points.

Clarke and his navigator, Jim Peters of Toronto, sailed through the water without problem, one of about six cars that managed that feat.

John Scholz and Paul Manson of Toronto in a Datsun slipped from second to third place after taking a 35-point penalty in the water, they now have lost 45 points.

Scott Harvey of Dearborn, Mich., and Mike Kerry of Toronto moved into fourth place from fifth with 55 points after going without penalty. Their powerful Barracuda took the water easily.

Marcel Raiaville of Quebec City and Robin Edwards of Montreal were in the only Citroen which did not have difficulty with the water hole. They went through Monday's 809-mile run from Fort William without losing a point. They moved into fifth place from seventh.

John Smith of Kingston and John Gatto of Ottawa dropped out of the rally when they had car trouble. They were in fourth place with 28 points when they left Fort William and held first place in the private entry class.

These place was taken in the private section by Herb Fetzner of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and Rim Callon of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., in an Austin Copper with 94 points.

Miss Smith continues to hold first place in the Coup des Dames which she won last year. Diana Carter-Pobiwin of Toronto and Barbara Jean Jack of Burlington, Ont., in a factory-sponsored Rambler America, are second in the class with 714 points after losing 80 Monday.

Chris Dougal and Ernie Mowsy of Nelson, B.C., fell out of the rally when patches to the clutch in their Chevelle did not hold up.

This was the last team left in the press section of the event and would have been assured of $1,000 had they been able to hold out for two more days.

Departmental Softball League

The Departmental Softball League gave the go-ahead to draft a six-team schedule last night but there is still some doubt just which six teams will be "in" for the coming season.

Definite starters are City Police, The Intelligencer and Electric Motor Sales but the rest of the clubs are crying for help.

The Fire Department will be in but due to a shortage of players and shift work, must have the use of six firemen's area in order to be sure of fielding a team. The league ruled at a meeting last night, however, that all regular firemen players at a game must be used with the sons inserted only to fill out a lineup.

Both Public Works and City Hall also said they could not field teams without assistance and some consideration was given last night to combining the two clubs.

Public Utilities have dropped out from last year and it was reported that only two of their players wish to play this year. They will likely be placed with one of the short-staffed teams.

Loblaws has been contacted but if they cannot field a full squad, it is hoped to secure enough players from that company to fill out the City Hall and Public Works lineups, thus maintaining a six-team league.

If the six teams are in at next Monday's entry deadline meeting, a league schedule will be approved. All games will be played at Prince Charles School on Yeomans Street, with starting time 6:30. The league plays seven inning games, with five constituting a game, and if the clubs are tied at the end of regulation play each team gets a point in the standing.

All entries must have the $25 entry fee in to the league at next Monday's meeting, at the Public Works building, at 7:00 p.m.

New Role

Pinch-Hit Maris Beats Pirates In 10th

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Inserted into St. Louis Cardinals lineup as a pinch-hitter in the ninth inning Monday night, Maris rapped a run - scoring double with two out in the 10th inning, climaxing a three-run rally and a 6-5 victory over Pittsburgh Pirates.

It was one of the biggest of the 17 hits Maris has had this season, his first in the National League after 10 years in the American.

"This is like starting kindergarten all over again," the 32-year-old slugger said, thinking of everything he would have to learn about the new league after New York Yankees traded him to St. Louis.

And as long as he was starting over again Maris decided he'd like to do things differently.

"Maybe I'll destroy that home-run image" said the man who experienced very little trouble after hitting 61 homers in 1961. "All I want are base hits."

In other NL games San Francisco Giants whipped Chicago Cubs 9-2 and Los Angeles Dodgers topped Houston Astros 4-2.

Juan Marichal pitched a four-hitter for his fourth straight victory after three consecutive defeats at the start of the season.

The San Francisco ace received support from Willie Mays who hit a homer and Tom Haller, who drove in three runs with two doubles and a single.

Ron Fairly was the big man for Los Angeles, knocking in three runs with a double and a pair of singles. He also, curiously, was thrown out at the plate twice trying to score.

Eagles See Wrap-Up Tonight

DRUMMONDVILLE, Que. (CP)—Remainders Claude Cyr of Drummondville Eagles and Bobby Taylor of Calgary Spurs, opponents in the Allan Cup finals, could wind up as teammates next season in the National Hockey League.

Both have signed for tryouts with Philadelphia Flyers, one of six new clubs that will join the expanded NHL for the 1967-68 season.

The Eagles and Spurs meet tonight in the fourth and what could be the last game in the best-of-seven final series.

Drummondville leads the series 3-0 and could capture the Allan Cup, symbolic of senior hockey supremacy in Canada, with a victory in the game which starts at 8:30 p.m.

Eagles won the first game 4-0 last Wednesday, shaded the Spurs 3-2 Friday night and walloped the western representatives 8-4 Saturday night. Should the Spurs lose tonight, they will leave for home Wednesday.

Dave Butts may replace Taylor in the Calgary nets. Taylor started Sunday night but was replaced by Butts after the Eagles run up a 5-0 lead in the first period.

Neither club held a practice session Monday.

The Spurs visited Expo 67, the world's fair in Montreal. General manager Ron Buttin, centre Ken Cairns and left winger Scott Watson did not make the trip.

Buttin said there was nothing for the club to do in Drummondville so the trip to the fair was planned.

The players have spent most of their time between games sitting around their hotel lobby because of the difficulty in communicating with most of the people here who speak French.

Carmel Peewees Enter EOBA

They are calling it their Centennial Project and the people of South Hastings are pretty excited about it.

The Carmel South Hastings peewee all-stars, that is.

Jerry Masterson is coaching the team and points out that while the uniform bear Carmel on the back "We are really a South Hastings district All-Star team and we hope other players are welcome to try out for the club."

This is the first time that a SHBL minor team has entered an Eastern Ontario Baseball Association on a full time basis.

The Carmel team will be competing in a mixed classification grouping. Other teams are from Belleville, Newcastle, Welcome, Kendal and Frankford. The Belleville club in this grouping is the "A" Lions Club. Belleville's Holy Rosary "Maple A" club is playing in a group with Oshawa, Peterborough, Whitby, Bowmanville, Oshawa and Port Hope.

Carmel's grouping will play a ten-game schedule, five home and five away. Home grades and practices are all at the Harmony Public School where new equipment and work has given the diamond there a "new look," according to Masterson.

"We are holding workouts every Tuesday and Thursday nights and play our first game in Belleville on Sunday, May 28," Masterson says.

Beats Twins 7-4

Nats' Rookie Sparks Six-Run Salvo

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Young Tim Cullen, who left a legend in Saskatchewan with two mighty swings, has left his marks on Minnesota with one feeble flick of the wrist.

Cullen, Washington's rookie second baseman, delivered the key hit—a bloop double into short left field—during a six-run seventh inning salvo that gave the Senators a 7-4 victory over Minnesota Twins Monday night.

"I'd have to say that's my biggest hit in the majors," added Cullen, who blasted two grand-slam homers in one inning five years ago while playing semi-pro ball in Saskatoon.

"It was a good pitch, just ball high and tight. I was looking for it, but I didn't get around on it. I think I've got lazy hands."

Lazy hands or not, Cullen has stroked eight hits in 18 at-bats for a .444 mark while shaving second base with Bernie Allen.

Washington trailed the Twins 2-1 when Frank Howard's single triggered the seventh inning uprising.

California expressed a 2-1 tie in the seventh inning when Jim Fregosi, Jimmie Hall and Bobby Knoop hammered singles off Yankee reliever Hal Reniff.

Hall's first-inning homer off starter Fred Talbot and a two-run single by Tom Satriano in the fourth gave the Angels a 2-1 edge, but New York rallied for six in the fifth when Charlie Smith doubled and scored on a single by John Kennedy.

Talbot homered off California starter Nick Wilhite in the third.

Down Mexico Way

New Twists For Amateurs

TEHRAN, Iran (CP) — Athletes competing in the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City might have to swear they do not plan to turn professional within a year after the games and will have to undergo medical tests to prove their sex.

Sources said the International Olympic Committee decided Monday that athletes who sign the pledge that they will not turn professional within a year of the Games and then violate it could lose any medals they win. No final ruling on the matter was announced, however.

The new Olympic oath form will "make it impossible for athletes to refuse to submit to medical checks," one secretary of general J. W. Westerhoff said.

The would avoid disagreements like the ones that arose in the European championship at Budapest last summer where several Russian women refused to compete and others protested the examinations. Such examinations will make it possible to determine the sex of all the competitors.

The Olympic Committee said doctors will also be on the alert to prevent the use of dope or stimulants by any of the athletes. Those include, according to committee definition, alcohol, pep pills, cocaine, vasodilators, coramine, morphine, heroin, photedrine, methedrin and anabolic steroids, which increases the size of muscles.

In fact, the athletes will have to sign another oath pledging that they will not use the drugs and that will permit medical checks to confirm that they have not used them.

Storms' Car In 40th Rally Position

Norman Storms and Gordon Smith, Belleville's lone entry in the Centennial 4,000 Rally were in 40th position in the several scores at 9:36 a.m. today.

It is believed they rate a much higher position in their class.

Mrs. Norman Storms who received word from Montreal headquarters of the Rally early today, stated the boys left North Bay this morning and will be in Kingston tomorrow evening all going well.

"They will pause in Toronto" she said, "and run a ten-lap test at the Mosport raceway." They expect to arrive there at 10 p.m. today.

Mrs. Storms talked with her husband yesterday. "They were in high spirits" she said, "and their main objective is to finish the long grind. As of now, with my fingers crossed, it looks like they will do it."

Their 1967 Volkswagen, once a wreck given up for dead and brought to life by Storms and his secondary school "surgeon," has stood up nobly under the strain of the Rally.

"The only mechanical trouble encountered thus far" Mrs. Storms said, "has been a broken speedometer cable."

Football Stock Exchange

Two Larks For An Argo

MONTREAL (CP)— Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference have obtained linebacker Ezzy Czopyt from the Toronto Argonauts in exchange for defensive halfback Ed Learn and linebacker Jim Andreoli, the club announced Monday.

"We felt we had to obtain a Canadian who could play first team defence in order to balance our import ratio to enable us to insert another Canadian on offense," said Alouettes head coach Kay Dalton in a statement.

"We have evaluated Ezzyer's abilities and he is the best Canadian linebacker in the league. Ed Learn and Jim Andreoli are fine football players, but to obtain a player of Ezzyer's calibre you have to give up something good in return.

"We also felt there was a good chance Learn would not return to Montreal as he has expressed a firm desire to play for a team located close to his home in Welland, Ont."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bob Foster, young light heavyweight packing a championship fight-flavored Eddie Cotton twice before knocking out the 40-year-old Seattle veteran in 1:38 of the third round of their scheduled 12-rounder Monday night.

Tiger and Torres, however, have said the winner of their fight will meet Roger Rouse.

NS Parties Get Set for May Election

HALIFAX (CP) — The Progressive Conservative and Liberal parties announced their platforms Monday night with three weeks of campaigning left before Nova Scotians elect a new government May 30.

Both platforms stressed policies relating to education, housing, medical aid, agricultural, industrial development, transportation, fishing and tourism.

The Conservatives, in office for 11 years, promised a "wide-ranging program to assist in the re-organization and rejuvenation" of the province's rural economy.

The Liberals, who held four seats in the last 43-seat legislature, promised "a program of action."

The Conservatives held 39 seats in the last house. Three seats were added by redistribution this year, bringing the number at stake to 42.

The Conservatives offered to appoint a provincial youth director, the Liberals an ombudsman. Both promised to support the federal medical care program and a Halifax harbor scheme to allow the port to handle super cargo ships.

The Conservatives also would establish a housing incentive program.

The Liberals said they would allow a three-year tax holiday on newly-built first homes and introduce a financing scheme for National Housing Act loans.

No Precautions Taken

Bubonic Plague Goes Undetected By Doctors in Texas Hospital

WASHINGTON (CP - AP)—A U.S. public health service official confirmed today that a Vietnam war veteran had spent 10 days in a Texas hospital without any special precautionary measures before doctors found he was suffering from bubonic plague.

The victim, a 22-year-old serviceman on leave, recovered and there was no apparent spread of the disease, Dr. David J. Sencer said in a telephone interview from Atlanta, Ga. He is head of the national communicable diseases centre there.

Before doctors at Veterans Hospital in Dallas diagnosed the case, the youth had not been under any special quarantine or precautionary care, Sencer said.

Army officials announced the bubonic plague case—the first imported into the United States in 42 years—last Nov. 15, but did not mention then that the illness had not been diagnosed for more than two weeks.

Sencer revealed that delay in testimony before a congressional committee. The testimony was released Monday.

After discussing five cases of plague that originated in the U.S. last year, the doctor said: "The sixth case is frightening. A furloughed serviceman from Vietnam, whose plague is epidemic, was admitted to a hospital in a western state—Texas, as a matter of fact, sir—and remained for 16 days before the disease was suspected.

"Slightly altered circumstances could have lead to pneumonic plague — a true catastrophe, for pneumonic plague can spread into an epidemic with person-to-person transmission."

In the interview, Sencer said: "There was an element of luck. If the plague had progressed into pneumonic plague and gotten into his bloodstream with an infection of the lung, the chances of epidemic would have been great — because he'd be coughing up plague."

The army said the youth had been assigned to a group treating not one but two old-fashioned buildings in South Vietnam. Fleas from infected rats apparently transmitted the disease.

Indian Leader Triumphs In Election of President

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Zakir Hussin, a mild - mannered scholar, today was chosen as India's first Moslem president in an electoral landslide.

The candidate of the ruling Congress party, Hussin received 471,244 votes giving him an easy victory over the main opposition candidate, former chief justice Koka Subba Rao, who received 363,971 votes.

The election of the 70-year-old Hussin, who has been vice-president under President Servapalli Radakrishnan, was a victory for Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and her government.

Husain was elected by the Electoral College, made up of members of the central Parliament and state legislatures.

In the balloting, each vote was given a different weight according to population in the voter's constituency. Thus, while only about 4,000 MPs and state legislators voted, the vote total went over 700,000.

Protection Requested From Union Officials

OTTAWA (CP) — A 26-year-old carpenter told the Rand inquiry on labor disputes Monday that there should be laws to protect union members against union officials.

Gerald O'Neill told the inquiry that unions are more bent on protecting "the organization" than protecting the workers "they claim an emphatic duty to represent."

Union members should be able to take executive bodies of the labor relations board for a neutral hearing on alleged violations of the union constitution, he said.

The master carpenter said the constitution of the International Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners is "violated daily" by officials of Ottawa Local 92, to which he belongs.

The inquiry was told by a labor spokesman that Ontario law should allow strikers to seal off plants with picket lines.

Donald MacDonald, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Labor Congress, said this was one of the ways a strike could be made effective.

Threat of Collapse Seen In Kennedy Round Talks

GENEVA (Reuters) — The United States and the European Common Market today failed to compromise their battle over access to each other's markets in an overnight meeting here, raising the threat of collapse for the Kennedy Round trade talks.

A top-level steering committee met again here today in a last-ditch effort to save the tariff negotiations involving more than 50 countries, after a blistered U.S. - European meeting ended in continued deadlock over grains and chemicals.

The market nations refuse to offer more than a one-fifth cut in their own chemical tariffs before the U.S. agrees to end its system of high duties on some chemicals.

The U.S., meanwhile, wants access for its wheat in Western Europe and wants the market to play a bigger part in a proposed food-aid program for the under-developed world.

The Associated Press quoted an authoritative source as saying the U.S. delegation threatened today to walk out of the negotiations if no progress is made "within the next 24 hours." The source said the U.S. chief delegate William Roth, President Johnson's special representative, made the threat in "a bellicose speech" during negotiations on grains.

Negotiators have set a May 15 deadline for a final agreement in the four-year-old talks, originally aimed at slashing tariffs on both industrial and agricultural products by 50 per cent.

The American and Common Market delegates met again today, this time in wider talks which included the other two parties comprising the "big four" in the negotiations—Britain and Japan.

Also at the steering committee meeting were Canada, Australia, the Scandinavian countries, Austria and Switzerland.

Eric Wyndham White, director - general of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, said he feels hopes are dim for beating the deadline "if we don't reach agreement by tonight."

White, who presided at the overnight meeting, gave the no-progress report this morning.

Accord among the "big four"

was essential for the GATT-sponsored talks to have any chance of achieving their goal of the biggest trade liberalization the world had known.

The statements could result in an emergency conference by foreign ministers of many of the 53 participating nations.

The key figures in the negotiations are William Roth, President Johnson's special representative, and Jean Rey of Belgium, who represents the European Market members—France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg.

Hoffa Behind Bars

Teamsters' Union president James R. Hoffa leans on the window sill of his cell with hands folded Monday morning as he watches the passing scene in Chattanooga. Hoffa is being held in the Hamilton County Jail awaiting a hearing on his fourth motion for a new jury tampering trial.
(AP Photo)

Hoffa, serving an eight-year sentence, was returned from prison for the hearing before U.S. District Judge Frank W. Wilson, who handed down his sentence in 1964.

This hearing, expected to be lengthy, is on the Teamsters union president's fourth new-trial motion, but it is his first return to court here since his conviction three years ago.

The earlier three motions were turned down without a hearing, although one of them —accusing the jury which convicted him of misconduct—still is on appeal before the U.S. 6th Circuit Court of Appeals.

The current new-trial motion, filed Feb. 23, charges the government of resorting to wire-tapping and electronic eavesdropping to convict Hoffa and his co-defendants of tampering with the jury which heard his 1962 conspiracy trial at Nashville, Tenn. That trial ended in a dead, locked jury.

The government has denied the charges, but said at a pre-trial conference April 21 that there would be a basis for a new trial if proven true.

Among the witnesses for Hoffa is Benjamin David Nichols of Heiskell, Tenn., an electronics expert who said he installed wire-tapping devices in Hoffa's quarters under the direction of Walter Sheridan, special assistant to then-U.S. Attorney - General Robert F. Kennedy.

Hoffa began serving his eight-year sentence March 7 at the federal penitentiary in Lewisburg, Pa., while his three co-defendants, Thomas Ewing Parks and Ewing King of Nashville and Larry Campbell of Detroit, began three-year terms in Texas and Minnesota.

Eskimo Display Shown at Library

DESERONTO — The cases in the Deseronto Public Library now display articles of Eskimo manufacture on loan from the Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development. This is the last week that people will have an opportunity to examine this handicraft as it must be returned at the end of the week.

The display is a small one, but is sufficiently large to illustrate the ingenuity of the Eskimos in utilizing the materials at hand. At the same time it shows their skill as craftsmen, while giving an insight into their way of life and the articles in everyday use.

The duffle slippers are beautifully embroidered, and call to mind the Eskimo when at home. Perhaps he sometimes waltzed on the cleverly made sealskin mat, a design showing ducks made of a lighter shade of skin, deftly sewn into where the darker shade had been cut away. The needles with which the work was done might have been kept in the wicker sewing basket, with the soapstone lamp on the lid. The children would be playing with one of the three dolls, each in Eskimo dress, or with either of the stuffed toy animals, the seal or the polar bear. Or perhaps they were handling the Ookpik.

The out-door life is also illustrated, the sealskin mitts, duffle-lined showing how warmly he must dress; the dog whip to remind one of his mode of travel on land; and the small, two-foot wooden kayak to picture him travelling by water.

Everything has been made by hand, and all work beautifully done.

Special Church Service in Charge of UCW

NAPANEE — Most of the service in Trinity United church on Sunday morning was in the hands of the United Church Women for the Thank-offering service.

The speaker was Mr. W. H. H. Norman, who, with her husband, Dr. Norman, is on furlough from missionary work in Japan. In introducing her, Mrs. D. F. Aylsworth pointed out that Mrs. Norman is the daughter of the Right Reverend Richard Roberts, fourth moderator of the United Church. All members of Dr. Norman's family are familiar with Japanese life. His parents were missionaries in Japan before World War II, and the Japanese language is almost as familiar to many member of the family as is English. His brother has written books on Japan, which are consulted by scholars.

With such a background, what Mrs. Norman had to say about Japan and the situation of the Christian Church, there, had the ring of authority. She herself has become familiar with work of the church through assisting her husband, who is a minister there. Christianity is not spreading spectacularly, but it is growing steadily, Mrs. Norman told the congregation.

Mrs. Percy Asselstine read the scripture lesson. A choir sang two anthems. Ushers were Mrs. W. J. C. Clark, Mrs. H. C. Empey, Mrs. Edward Hooper, Mrs. G. Perry, Mrs. James Plumley, and Mrs. B. H. Woolmaker.

Belgian Royalty Visits World's Fair

MONTREAL (CP)—Prince Albert and Princess Paola of Belgium came to Expo 67 today to represent their country at its national day, a day planned as one of gaiety with Belgian jugglers and dancers wrokfor their way through the fair's streets.

The young Belgian couple arrived here Monday night after their official welcome at Ottawa.

After the Belgian flag is raised in Place des Nations today and the royal couple leave for a formal luncheon as guests of Pierre Dupuy, the fair's commissioner-general, the jugglers and dancers take over.

The Belgians have brought out, as their contribution to the fair's entertainment, a group of 12 musicians and 20 "allies"—dancers, singers and jugglers. They wear colored costumes and huge ostrich-feathered headgear. Visitors can watch them and drink Belgian beer sold in the Place for mobile canteens.

The weather forecast for today indicated it would be only a little warmer than Monday when officials buckled to the rain and a morning temperature of 39 to pay homage to the Red Cross on its special day.

The bleak weather, however, had little effect on the huge crowds. By 11 p.m. Monday night 120,949 had passed through the gates although computers before the fair opened 12 days ago had predicted a crowd of 23,333 for Monday.

With a total of 3,134,887 visitors since the April 28 opening, 1,000,000 more than predicted, officials indicated Monday they were raising the sights of their computers.

Michael Dibben, head of press, radio and TV division, told a press conference the fair is gearing for a daily attendance of 400,000 during the first week of July.

The fair site Monday night was full of children and teenagers and officials said they were keeping the video in La Ronde amusement area going but blast despite the cold.

In a press conference, the premier called for the resignation of former justice minister Claude Wagner who alleged in the legislature Friday night that members of the underworld had infiltrated Expo.

Mr. Johnson criticized the Liberal member for Verdun for making his charges without seeking out Expo authorities, the police or the provincial justice department.

Expo authorities said only one of the four companies mentioned by Mr. Wagner as having underworld connections had any business with Expo, and that company was run by reputable men.

Mr. Johnson also criticized the cultural agreement signed at Ottawa Monday between Canada and Belgium.

The premier said the agreement is an example of the lack of co-operation between federal and provincial responsibility, and if and when ratified by the Belgian government, could not be implemented without consent of the provinces.

Spring Thaw Draws Bigger Crowds as Time Marches On

By HARRY MULHALL

Spring Thaw was a little harsh this year — and a little harder to take.

The perennial Toronto-born review, however, drew bigger crowds than ever as it so-perated last night in Belleville for another year.

So great was the demand here that its sponsors — the city branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association — this year presented it for two consecutive performances in one night at Centennial Secondary School.

The need for two shows was impelled by the growing clamor from requests to the Thaw's annual attraction.

This year, being Centennial Year, perhaps more than ever was expected of the production.

Yet, the breath of Spring threw did not blow as warmly last night in Belleville.

There was the gaiety, the vigor, the professional clan of a talented cast. There was the hearty response from the audience at curtain call.

STILL viewed from its first (8 p.m.) performance, something was missing from what has become something of an institutionalized annual event— for Belleville.

The fault — at that first viewing at least — seemed to lie in the script material.

In the past that material supplied the artists with a consistent style that threw topical or pungent satire and well-timed, outrageous, burlesque with a common overthrow of neat witticisms.

Those ingredients were still there last night, but too often what had gone out of the script was the tongue-in-cheek presentation which has been the revue's hall - mark in other years.

Worse, the script-creators seemed too often to have caught the Confederation fever setting on a barocrous device, well-known about the 1867s: the pun.

(For most-easily available period idiosity with uses of the pun by knobbers, Victorians, see Gilbert-Sullivan collected librettos at any library.)

Used sparingly, the pun may have its points. Chained to frequent recurrences of bawder humor, the points lose their sharpness.

However artistry will triumph. Phil Kives — and supporting running dialogue — aside, the Thaw was in as good form as ever.

Its choreography certainly was the most - cleverly devised of any Thaw yet seen here. Its music was tuneful, thrilling, pungent, exocatholic as always — as situations demanded.

Music again was the focus of audience appreciation in Calixa Lavallee's "O Canada" and Leonard Cohen's "Suzanne" and "Bird On The Wire."

Choreography by Jeanne Robinson, Jeanne Lapointe and Jeanne Lapointe was a delight to the eye.

Promises Called 'Leftovers'

"A potpourri of warmed-up leftovers," said NDP leader Douglas.

"A rehash and mishmash of all the promises and expectations uttered by this government for four years," said Conservative Leader Diefenbaker.

Both commented on the length of the speech, which took Governor-General Michener 42 minutes to read.

"You don't have to read it," said Mr. Diefenbaker at a press conference later. "You measure it."

The new ones included a department of consumer affairs; a "food bloc" — loans to agricultural and fishing co-operatives, a Crown corporation to run Nova Scotia coal mines and a task force to study agriculture —"as if agriculture wasn't in enough difficulty now."

Mr. Diefenbaker said the speech failed utterly to offer anything to "lift up Canadians, to inspire them to national goals" in Centennial Year.

ARCHITECTS AND ARCHITECTURE

Building Canada

Examples of the various historical trends and periods in Canadian architecture from Pioneer backgrounds to the twentieth century have been selected for discussion by the author. Numerous illustrations are included. The first edition of this book was entitled "Looking at Architecture in Canada," Images of American living; four centuries of Architecture and Furniture as cultural expression is another title by this author.

Ville Revell, Alander, ed.

This interesting book about the works of the Finnish architect Villo Revell has many splendid full-page illustrations of the buildings he has designed and descriptions of these projects. Revell designed the Toronto City Hall but died in 1964 before its completion.

Record Houses of 1966 Architectural Record.

Photographs, drawings and plans of modern houses are included in this volume — house range from the moderately priced to the very expensive.

Architecture Realisation
Through Planning—Anthony.

"This book contains largely of text materials essential to a thorough appreciation and understanding of the subject at the secondary school and post-secondary school levels." Chapters are included on planning, construction; perspective structural steel shapes and handbooks, plumbing, heating and Building Materials — Handsyde.

The author, a practising architect, claims that the chief object of this book is to provide information on new building materials in a form accessible to architects and builders.

The Dynamic World of Rockminster Fuller — Marks.

The man who developed the Geodesic dome is the subject of this book. Mr. Fuller is the man who designed the United States building at Expo '67.

Men of Modern Architecture — Forsee.

In these biographies an attempt has been made to give glimpses of the men behind the buildings, and the influence they have exerted.

Builders In The Sun — Smith.

Modern architecture forms the theme of Builders In The Sun. Profiles of the five leading architects of the day are given and the book is lavishly illustrated with buildings of their designs.

Doctor Has Several Ways of Telling Breast Cyst From Cancerous Growth

Let's continue our discussion, begun yesterday, of cysts of the breast, with the questions raised in this letter.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have five or six cysts in one breast and one in the other. The doctor, instead of removing them, advised me to come back for another check up in six months.

Do you think this is wise? How can he be sure it isn't cancer? I have severe pains in one breast before my period. — S. C.

As we pointed out yesterday, there is a marked tendency for cysts to form in one breast rather than in both. Likewise, the change in hormone level in the menstrual cycle can cause tenderness at certain times.

However, if the discomfort is not too severe, leaving the cysts instead of removing them may be the way to be the better course. This, obviously, must depend on individual circumstances. Extremely large or painful cysts might well be removed; those which are tolerable can remain.

How can one be sure about malignancy?

When two or more cysts appear, that is a strong indication that they are cysts, not cancer. Cancer begins as a single lump.

Likewise, cysts have other characteristics. They are moveable under the skin, whereas cancer usually attaches itself rather firmly to the underlying tissues. Cysts under pressure may appear suddenly, and change size in some phase of the menstrual cycle. They may be tender to touch, and cancer in the early stages is painless. Finally, with a cyst there is no puckering of the skin, a characteristic which is common as cancer progresses.

Thus, even short of removal of a cyst for study under the microscope, the physician has a history of clues to help in deciding whether to be hopeful or to entertain sterner suspicion.

Do cysts become cancerous? Opinion is divided on this. Some think that there may be a somewhat increased risk of cancer in a woman with chronic cystic disease. Others, however, on the basis of a large number of women studied over a period of many years, dispute this and say that there is no greater chance of cancer just because cysts develop.

I would say that the strongest evidence is that cysts do not have any particular effect on the prevalence of cancer. Watch the cysts; do not take any lump for granted; remove cysts when the potential relief overbalances the disadvantages of surgery.

Can cysts be prevented? In some instances hormone treatment suppresses cyst formation. In other cases, large doses of Vitamin B complex appear to have a favorable effect on female hormone activity and may be helpful. But each case has to be judged on its individual merits.

Cysts are a nuisance, but at least they are not dangerous in the sense that a single lump in the breast, instead of being a cyst, may be cancer.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been advised not to become pregnant for a year or more, but my periods are so irregular that I cannot depend on the rhythm method, and I've been told that I have a condition which makes me ineligible for pills. I want to conform to my doctor's wishes, but he gave me no suggestions as to how. — Mrs. C. L.

You should have asked him. He probably assumed that you already knew and hence did not ask him. Go back and ask him what he suggests.

Note to F. E. M.: Yes, successful plastic surgery has been done for years to reduce breasts which are painfully large.

Ban on Birth Control to Be Repealed

OTTAWA (CP)—A sweeping revision of the Criminal Code will be introduced in Parliament at an early date the government forecast Monday in the throne speech.

The code has remained largely unchanged for decades and most of its sections have been attacked as outdated and unduly harsh.

The proposals will include repeal of the laws standing bar on the dissemination of birth-control information and devices; a free vote on the abolition of capital punishment and changes in the abortion sections. Abolition of corporal punishment also is expected.

The throne speech added that

Marchand Rebukes Johnson

MONTREAL (CP) — Manpower Minister Jean Marchand said Monday that remarks made by Premier Daniel Johnson on the role of the federal government in the signing of international treaties with French - language nations were "futile and provocative and will change nothing."

Mr. Johnson said Sunday that the federal government "should not withhold from international agreements bearing on Quebec's resources, education or culture without prior consultation with his government.

Mr. Marchand said "the Union Nationale does not have a divine right to represent all French-Canadians at all times" and that the federal Liberals "have as many electoral supporters in Quebec as the Union Nationale."

There are 28 airports within 100 miles of Montreal, site of Expo 67.

Two Speeches Both Stress Need to Speed House's Work

OTTAWA (CP)—In two throne speeches Monday, the government stressed the need for changing the procedures of Parliament to ensure speedier processing of business.

"You have recognized that the rules and methods of parliamentary government must be revised," Governor-General Michener read in the afternoon speech inaugurating the centennial session.

Earlier in the day, Mr. Justice Gerald Fauteux read the throne speech to open the first session of the 27th Parliament after a record 250 sitting days when days longer than the 8-hour day session that featured the great flag debate.

The throne speech said the session had been productive. But it added:

"My government is conscious, however, that the need for legislative change and reform in this country is greater today, and more constantly demanding, than at any period in our history."

The session tried out provisional rules designed to speed up business. It ended in the middle process of business.

These included running the House through a normal two-hour supper break before night sittings and a time-limit rule dictating that at midnight the government if on all-party committee was unable to set a date on a measure under debate.

Sitting through the supper break was achieved to in the early months of the session but fell. But in later months there usually was agreement in the Commons to break for an hour at the Monsters, Tuesdays, and Thursdays when night sittings are held.

No Mention Made Of Scholarship Plan

OTTAWA (CP) — What happened to the 10,000 annual university scholarships promised by the Liberals in 1962, 1963, 1965 and 1966?

Jan. 18, 1966, student "A program of Canada scholarships and bursaries for students unable to get scholarships will be submitted for your approval."

That is the last of the questions left up in the air after the government unveiled its 1967 legislative program Monday.

The throne speech made no reference to university financing or to assistance for students, although the throne speech read in 1965, 1963 and 1962 also promised the scholarships.

—Income supports for inshore fishermen in years of catch failure, similar to the crop insurance plan.

—Recapitalization of the mercantile fleet, which alone has prevented the railway from turning a profit in recent years.

The speech said legislation will be brought in this session to provide the broadcasting authority with "new powers to regulate and use of broadcasting privileges and responsibilities."

The government has been under pressure to set up rules for use of broadcasting, particularly TV, in education. One bill before the House is to set classroom TV instruction this fall.

The government plans to set up the physical transmission facilities and, because education falls under provincial jurisdiction, turn over the responsibility for programs to the provincial governments.

Broadcasting Problems to Be Studied

OTTAWA (CP)—The centennial session of Parliament will tackle the problems of educational television and revision of broadcasting legislation.

Notice of the move was given Monday in the speech from the throne. It promised a study on relaying TV and radio signals via orbiting satellites.

The government has already produced a white paper outlining plans for new National Broadcasting legislation.

A key one is to give the Board of Broadcast Governors firmer control over industry with wider powers to enforce regulations.

The speech described the revision as a measure for "better regulation and use of broadcasting privileges and responsibilities."

Additional Canadian TV Shows Planned This Fall By CBC

TORONTO (CP)—CBC television will place more emphasis on Canadian-content entertainment and information in its 1967-68 season.

In a statement Monday, the network said most of the last season's regular shows will return along with new Canadian features including popular film, drama and ballet, opera and musical variety, public affairs and documentary features.

Among the highlights of the new schedule:

—Expo — a long Tuesday night dramas in color, featuring Canadian actors such as Robert Christie in Hamlet, Kate Reid in a play about Confederation and Frances Hyland in a story of pioneer adventures in Upper Canada; John Vernon as the coroner in Wojeck and Gordon Pinsent as Quentin Durgens MP.

TORONTO (CP)—A screening program for foreign medical students who intend to immigrate to Canada was suggested Monday by Dr. R. K. Thompson, president of the Ontario Medical Association.

Speaking at the opening of the association's annual convention, he said examination results of the Medical Council of Canada showed a "great disparity between the performance of foreign graduates from countries other than Great Britain and the United States, despite the fact that most of them have spent at least one year in a Canadian hospital."

"It seems clear that there is an urgent need for procedures which would allow the selection of foreign trained medical personnel to come to Canada for further training, and under certain circumstances to be permitted to write the qualifying examinations in Canada."

Dr. Thompson said the influx of medical immigrants has spared Canada from a serious shortage of medical manpower, but fewer could be expected in the future because of changes in conditions in countries where the doctors had trained.

He blamed the federal government for not facing up to the need to increase the number of trained doctors in Canada. The government had chosen instead to place the "production of medical manpower and paramedical services for Canada second to medical services insurance."

The amount of money spent by the government on building medical schools, Dr. Thompson said, is "a mere pittance of what is needed for Canada."

In a later session, the OMA approved a resolution urging a ban on all forms of cigarette advertising.

The resolution said the link between cigarette smoking and lung cancer, coronary artery disease, bronchitis and emphysema "has been established beyond a reasonable doubt."

Dr. J. P. Hanneman, chairman of the committee which prepared the report on smoking, said the committee is aware that a ban on advertising will not solve the problem.

However, he said, the OMA plans to conduct a study next fall on the effect that continuous information on the dangers of smoking has on one Ontario town. The town has not yet been named.

Legislature Unanimous In Backing Tax Relief

TORONTO (CP)— The legislature unanimously approved in principle Monday a government bill that would allow municipalities to grant tax deferments to elderly homeowners of up to $250 a year.

However, Liberal and New Democratic Party speakers both criticized clauses calling for liens to be placed on properties qualifying for the deferments.

NDP Leader Donald MacDonald said many elderly people are desperately in need of tax deferments would not seek them, "because they don't want to accumulate liens on their property."

Opposition Leader Robert Nixon opened debate on the bill and said elderly homeowners have already paid their share of education taxes and should be relieved of the burden once and for all. He termed the bill "regressive."

Both parties suggested the government should change the tax deferment into a form of homeowner grant.

Under the bill, any municipality will be able to grant deferments to homeowners over 65 years of age by passing bylaws. The province will compensate the municipalities for the lost revenue but hold liens subject to payment when the property is sold or the owner dies.

In other developments:

—A provision in the amendments to the Municipal Act would permit counties to claim compensation for large assessment losses resulting from annexations or amalgamations. Under the bill, the municipal board is authorized to require that compensating grants be made when the change in boundaries would deprive the county of at least 15 per cent of assessments over a five-year period.

—Final approval was given to a bill providing for new provincial controls over industrial and municipal waste disposal. The legislation is included in amendments to the Public Health Act allowing the province to regulate waste disposal sites, methods and facilities.

—Health Minister Dymond told the legislature that a Port Maitland fertilizer firm paid $95,729 last year to farmers for cattle that had to be destroyed because of air pollution from its plant. The payments by Electric Reduction Co., were the result of binding arbitration between the company and farmers.

—Dr. Dymond said that in the 1965-66 fiscal year the health department spent $1,840,000 on drugs for Ontario hospitals. Of this amount $620,000 was bought under generic names on a tender basis at an estimated saving of 25 percent.

—Reform Minister Allan Grossman agreed with Elmer Sopha (L—Sudbury) that Indian women jailed in Northern Ontario for drunkenness are the victims of "dreadful discrimination."

Police to Gather At Niagara Falls

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) —No criminal who wants to remain at large will be found in or near Niagara Falls this week.

An estimated 3,000 police officers from Canada, the United States, Europe and Africa are expected to participate in the first World Congress of Police Officers which opened Monday with 1,200 registrations from seven different countries.

The congress was organized by the Niagara Falls Police Association as a centennial project under the leadership of Deputy Chief Donald Herron.

In addition to educational lectures and seminars, closed to the public because of the confidential nature of police work against crime, the training police will participate in a full program of activities from fashion shows to shooting on the pistol range.

The congress will open to the public displays of some of the latest techniques in law enforcement.

On Saturday, the annual tug-of-war between police officers from Niagara Falls, N.Y., and Niagara Falls, Ont., will be held on the Rainbow Bridge.

Healing Substance...
Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

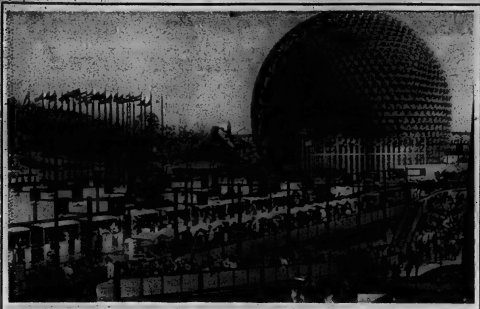
A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and soreness in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.



The was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H relieves and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Miniskirt New English Banner

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

LONDON — Stopping off here briefly, en route to Italy, one is inclined to inquire about the Common Market, the balance of payments, or the fate of the Wilson government.

But one does not. Rather, if one is a red-blooded American male of good health and normal vision, one simply stares in rude fascination at that delightful and ubiquitous phenomenon, the miniskirt.

The moment one steps off the ramp at the London Airport, it assails the eye, commands the attention, and disturbs the imagination. And the miniskirt, of course, is only the latest in a series of social revolutions that have utterly reversed the image of the English people in the eyes of the rest of Europe, and the world.

The English have long been notorious — especially among other Europeans — as a stuffy, priggish and hypocritical kind of people, honest and decent enough in their own way, but hopelessly inhibited and about as chic as a herd of water buffalo.

The mere thought of an Englishman shedding his sartorial and social reserve and vibrating with amorous intentions has been enough to send the average Frenchman or Italian into irrepressible gales of laughter, mingled with sobs of sympathy for that shaggy and repressed creature.

"But nowadays, the sandal is on the other foot, mon vieux. London has turned into the swinging capital of the world: Longish hair and Mod clothes are pandemic on young men from Brussels to Boston; Beatle - type music dominates Paris and Rome as much as America; and the miniskirt merely proclaims Victoria's cold, censorious eye.

Cyril Connolly once remarked that inside every fat man there is a thin man screaming to be let out. Likewise, one might say, inside every prig there is a bit of a libertine, and inside every lady a bit — or more — of a coquette. The Latins have long exploded this fact.

Now the English seem simply to have tired of their self-imprisonment, have burst their bonds, and resemble a gang of jolly inmates who have escaped across the moors to gather at some mad Druid festival. Not all of them, by any means — but enough to transform the sights and sounds of London.

The miniskirt, of course, is only the latest and most obvious sign of this revolution in mode, manners, mores, and (no doubt) morals; and I doubt that it implies any flagrant looseness on the part of English women. They are merely catching up with the rest of Europe — and, as we know, when you try to catch up, you have to run twice as fast to start with.

Owner Of Pool Blamed

TORONTO (CP)—A coroner's jury Monday found Dr. Lloyd Davey and his wife negligent in the drowning of a six-year-old boy in their backyard swimming pool.

The boy's body was found in the pool in suburban North York April 3, after he had been reported missing.

The jury said the doctor did not keep his pool locked as required by a North York bylaw. They recommended pools be drained in winter and that the chain-fencing around them be increased in height to six from four feet.

Martin Denies Truce Team Spies For U.S.

OTTAWA (CP)—The government stiffly denied Tuesday a journalist's claim that Canadians on the International Control Commission in Vietnam spy for the U.S.

In a three-sentence statement on the report by Gerald Clark, associate editor of the Montreal Star, External Affairs Minister Martin said Canadians "are not engaged in any clandestine or spying activities."

Mr. Clark, who spent two months in Southeast Asia, wrote the Canadians are "functioning as spies when they are supposed to be serving as international civil servants." Meanwhile Mr. Martin talks of a peacekeeping role for the commission.

His critical front-page Star story said the Canadians "are betraying their trust" by passing on first-hand observations of North Vietnam to U.S. intelligence. Effectiveness of U.S. bombing attacks and other items of military significance are handed over.

Members of the tri - partite commission have access to both North and South Vietnam. Their role was originally truce supervision following France's forced military withdrawal from Vietnam in 1954.

The Martin statement added that Canada, like the other two commission members — Poland and India—conducts a quasi-diplomatic task in the war.

That involves observation of local conditions and discussions with local authorities in both the North and the South in the course of normal commission activities.

Tim Raife, a CBC Ottawa correspondent who spent six months in Vietnam last year, said in broadcasts following the Star story it was no secret the Canadians co-operated with the Americans in Vietnam.

He recalled the head of the Canadian military mission on the commission took photographs and made tape recordings of a U.S. raid on oil dumps near Hanoi last June. They were passed to the Americans.

Copies of Canadian despatches from the North Vietnamese capital en route to Canada are given to the American embassy in Saigon.

But Mr. Raife said there is not much the Canadians can tell the U.S. of a strictly military nature about North Vietnam.

In Hanoi, Canadians are not allowed outside the city, although they can move fairly freely within.

Mr. Raife said that more than once Canadians told him they regarded their role as American spokesmen on the commission. They left no doubt their sympathies lay with the American cause.

Bertrand Russell's Tribunal Finds U. S. Guilty, as Expected

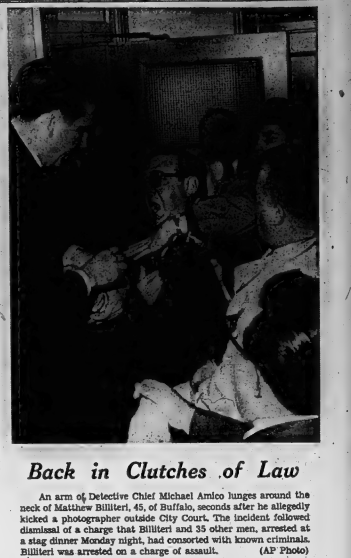
STOCKHOLM (Reuters)—The United States today was found guilty of committing war crimes in Vietnam on two counts by British philosopher Bertrand Russell's "war crimes tribunal."

The tribunal said that the United States was proved to have committed aggression in violation of international law and it also was guilty of bombing North Vietnam.

The tribunal's findings were based on the 1928 Kellogg-Briand pact under which the U.S. and France renounced war as a means of settling international disputes.

The judgment also invoked the United Nations Charter, the Nuremberg war crimes statutes and the 1954 Geneva agreements on Vietnam.

The judgment was a foregone conclusion. Even before it was issued an authoritative source said that the tribunal was ready to find the United States guilty on the two counts.



The source said that the judgment was based on decisions reached at a late conference of tribunal members Tuesday night.

As expected, the judgment came in the form of a concluding statement on the tribunal's hearings and did not prescribe a sentence.

A sentence was expected to be handed down when the tribunal reassess hearings here next October. The pattern for the sentence will follow the one established at the Nuremberg trials of Nazi leaders after the Second World War.

The jury — as its executive president, Jean-Paul Sartre, has called the tribunal — was deadlocked Tuesday night on the actual wording of the final statement, the source added.

The split appeared to be between members who wanted outright condemnation of the United States and other members who wanted a milder, British historian Isaac Deutscher, Yugoslav historian Vladimir Dedijer and American pacifist Dave Ellinger — who took a more moderate line.

Back in Clutches of Law

An arm of Detective Chief Michael Amico lunges around the neck of Matthew Billiteri, 45, of Buffalo, seconds after he allegedly kicked a photographer outside City Court. The incident followed dismissal of a charge that Billiteri and 35 other men, arrested at a stag dinner Monday night, had consorted with known criminals. Billiteri was arrested on a charge of assault. Power Plant Inside of Hanoi One of Targets of Bombers

SAIGON (CP) — A powerful strike force from three U.S. aircraft carriers today bombed a MiG airfield just outside the North Vietnamese port of Haiphong and two of the city's thermal power plants, including one inside the city limits.

One navy Skyhawk jet was shot down by North Vietnamese gunners, the 338th American combat plane reported lost over the North. The pilot is missing.

The two power plants had been hit before April 20, but the raid on the Kien An airfield 5½ miles southwest of Haiphong was the first against that MiG base.

Fields at Hoa Lac and Kep, 20 and 37 miles respectively from Hanoi, have been bombed continually in the last two weeks.

A U.S. spokesman said the noontime raids had good weather and the pilots reported their bombs on target. However, there was no immediate assessment of bomb damage.

The war heated up in South Vietnam, too, as U.S. marines and North Vietnamese troops clashed again Tuesday in a blazing five-hour battle in wild hills in the extreme north of the country.

A U.S. military spokesman said 34 marines were killed and 19 wounded as the North Vietnamese engaged patrolling Americans, then vanished into the hills near mines northwest of the remote Khe Sanh marine base, near the demilitarized zone. He said the marines killed 31 Communists.

The battle brought to 784 the total of North Vietnamese troops killed in the Khe Sanh area since they fighting began there April 24, the spokesman added. At least 180 Americans have been killed and 769 wounded.

Sunday Deadline For Tariff Accord

BRUSSELS (AP) — Working under pressure of a Sunday deadline, cabinet ministers of the European Common Market assembled in Brussels today to discuss unresolved issues in the Kennedy Round tariff negotiations with the United States.

The tariff talks in Geneva recessed until Friday after William Roth, President Johnson's special representative, and Jean Rey of Belgium, the chief Common Market negotiator, failed to agree on a system for lowering U.S. tariffs on chemicals and on a worldwide grain agreement.

Roth and Rey did agree, however, on Sunday as the deadline for completion of the Geneva negotiations after Roth was reported to have threatened to walk out if progress was not made in 24 hours.

British Vessel Not Hit

HONG KONG (AP)—A British merchant marine officer said today American planes did not strafe the British freighter Dartford in Haiphong April 26 as claimed by the North Vietnamese.

The North Vietnamese news agency had charged that U.S. planes strafed the Dartford and wounded six Chinese crew members during an attack on the Haiphong cement plant.

"If the Dartford was hit, it was hit by North Vietnamese to spare firing at the American planes," said Barney Giles, second mate of the British freighter Ardrossmore, which arrived in Hong Kong Tuesday from Haiphong.

"We were berthed only two ships away from the Dartford at the time and had a clear view of what happened," Giles said.

Britain Will Fire Aden Commissioner

LONDON (AP) — The British government is going to fire its high commissioner in Aden, Sir Richard Turnbull, and appoint Sir Humphrey Trevelyan, former ambassador to Peking, Moscow, and Cairo, to replace him, high official sources reported today.

Turnbull, who has been high commissioner for the last 2½ years, now is in London and was reported to have urged Foreign Secretary George Brown to guarantee British protection to a coalition government in South Arabia that would include Arab nationalists.

This would require reversing the government's plan to withdraw all but a handful of British troops after Aden and South Arabia became independent in 1968.

Diplomatic sources said Brown and Turnbull had heated exchanges on the matter. The foreign secretary was reported to have taken the position that a United Nations presence would be the best guarantee against attempts by supporters of Egyptian President Nasser to take over the area.

Turnbull also has been accused of failing to help a UN mission which went to Aden last month, charged with trying to arrange for peaceful transition of the territory to independence. The mission returned to New York in a huff, charging that British officials would not cooperate with it.

Prime Minister Wilson discussed the situation in South Arabia today with Saudi Arabian King Feisal, who began a state visit to Britain Tuesday.

Feisal, locked in a struggle with Nasser for power in the Arab world, has made no secret of his desire for the British to crush nationalists in South Arabia who, with Nasser's backing, are trying to overthrow the British-backed federal regime. He also wants the British to protect the territory after it becomes independent next year.

No Action Planned

OTTAWA (CP)— Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons Tuesday the government plans no action "at this time" in the case of Steven Truscott, whose murder conviction has been upheld by the Supreme Court of Canada.

Replying to Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre), Mr. Pearson said he had discussed the case with Justice Minister Trudeau and Solicitor-General Pennell and it is "our intention to take no action at this time."

Former Greek Premier's Son Charged As Traitor

ATHENS (AP)—Andreas Papandreou was charged today with conspiring to commit high treason in the alleged Aspida plot to overthrow the Greek monarchy and make Greece a neutral, socialist state.

The charge was filed by the Athens investigating magistrate, Socrates Socratidis, after he questioned the 47-year-old son of former premier George Papandreou at the hotel outside Athens where he had been confined since the military coup April 21. The maximum penalty for treason is death.

Lung Cancer Threatens U.S. Uranium Miners

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leo J. Gehrig, acting U.S. surgeon-general, said Tuesday that 339 U.S. uranium miners exposed to radiation in their jobs may die of lung cancer during the next 20 years.

"Little can be done to prevent deaths among those who have received an excessive radiation dose," Gehrig told the joint committee on atomic energy.

Gehrig said public health service studies show increasing lung cancer rates among miners with the highest level of radiation exposure. But he said studies of radiation effect were complicated because 74 per cent of the miners smoke cigarettes.

Gehrig said some 10,000 U.S. miners worked in underground uranium mines prior to Jan. 1, 1967.

Fearing Blood Transfusion, Girl, 15, Flees Hospital

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police launched a widespread search early today for a 15-year-old girl who fled from a hospital Tuesday night after refusing blood transfusions for religious reasons.

Miriam Myllymieni of Penticton, a Jehovah's witness, was in St. Paul's Hospital as a ward of the British Columbia Children's Aid Society pending the outcome of a lengthy legal battle over her rights to refuse a transfusion.

Miriam's mother, Dorothy Myllymieni, who also objects to her daughter receiving transfusions, brought an action in B.C. family court challenging custody of the Children's Aid Society.

The girl's blood count was reported low and her condition serious in bulletins issued by police. She is suffering from a kidney disorder and was due to receive a transfusion Tuesday night or early today.

Miriam has said she would rather die than submit to a transfusion.

"I do not think the situation is as desperate as some people are making it out to be," said Tony Pantages, the girl's lawyer. "This is a serious religious problem with the girl. I don't know what other provocations there were."

Mr. Pantages indicated he talked to the girl after she left the hospital amid visiting hour crowds.

TORONTO (CP) — Norman Hambley, a 40-year-old Sarnia policeman, won $3,424 in the Ontario Court of Appeal Tuesday for injuries he received when a pursued car smashed into his parked cruiser at a roadblock Feb. 8, 1963. The court reversed an Ontario Supreme Court decision denying the policeman compensation because he was voluntarily assuming risk of injury when he used his car to form a roadblock.

Religion and Mental Health

Trinity United Church
Reelin
(Last in a Series)

Religion at best, and mental health, are in many respects synonymous. Both point to the well-being of the total person. The Judaic-Christian religions in particular have always been interested in what we today call mental health; what religion calls the wholeness of the person.

Through the ages there have been wise men of religion whose comforting touch and understanding words have invited mental health, although they might not have interpreted their labors in this way. Religion can and does help to produce and enhance mental health.

In spite of the above, however, we must in honesty confess that religion has not always led to mental health. The great American philosopher, William James, pointed out that religion itself may become warped or, as he said, "unhealthy."

Whenever religion is synonymous with superstition and cultured show, whenever religion tells God rather than listens to God, whenever religion coats sickness and gimmickry with piety, or promises simple solutions to complex problems, religion can open the door to disillusionment, shattered faiths, broken hearts, confused minds — to mental breakdown, rather than mental health.

But when religion means love, when religion encourages honest confrontation of difficulties with hope, when religion teaches the dignity of every person, when religion invites a basic optimism for life, when religion reaches out rather than staring in, when religion affirms a God who says "I'm for you!", when religion forgives and is forgiven — when religion, in short, is true religion, then mental health is bound to be one of its richest blessings.

Always Apply Safety Principles In Plants Advice Given Meeting

"You must exert your energies to see that all employees are kept free from accidents and injuries". Those were the words of J. A. Fletcher, General Industrial Safety Manager for Massey - Ferguson Ltd., when he spoke to members of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association at Tops Motor Hotel last evening.

The guest speaker told members that the employee must be convinced that he is working sensibly when new programs come into effect. "It is not enough to post a sign on the bulletin board, the employee must become personally involved if the changes are to be successful", Mr. Fletcher said.

Mr. Fletcher said the purpose to exchange ideas. "In this way a to exchange ideas. "In this way a better job of accident prevention can be successful when we return home".

He told members that the success or failure of the meeting is entirely dependent on what the members would do when they return to their individual plants. "Success can only be achieved when you apply safety principles in your day to day business", he said.

Mr. Fletcher pointed at members and asked if their safety programs were acceptable to the employees. "An average worker doesn't care about company policy," he said, "he must be sold on the idea that a safety program can be to his benefit."

WORKERS MUST PARTICIPATE

The speaker told members that they must let employees participate in safety plans and policy so that he the worker, will understand his personal involvement and what a successful program can mean for him. "The answer to the problem is the foreman or safety officer who will explain changes to workers and let them participate," he said.

Mr. Fletcher explained that workers in factories were a most important asset and that time lost through careless safety measures could be costly to the business enterprise.

"More than 10,000 Canadians will die as a result of accidents this year and it is now time to do something concerning the safety measures in your plant or operation," he said.

Prior to adjournment, chairman, Howard Graham of Northern Electric Ltd. thanked H. Corby Ltd. for their co-operation in the day long seminar. The members toured the Corbyville plant yesterday afternoon.

Elected chairman for the coming year was Ronald Moon of Corby's. He thanked members for the honor and closed the meeting with the hope that all members would be on hand for the fall meeting.

TRENTON — "A policeman doing his duty represents society and anyone opposing him opposes society," Magistrate R. C. Jackson told Dennis Tripp, charged with obstructing police officer, in Trenton court Tuesday.

Constable Mark Holden told the court Dennis Tripp had tried to pull him away from Tripp's brother Larry as the officer and Constable Norman Mallory attempted to shove the protesting youth into a cruiser.

Tripp was reported to have said: "You're not taking my brother to Jail."

On the stand, Tripp couldn't recall saying anything to the officer and said he grasped Constable Holden's arm in an attempt to "Get his attention and find out why my brother was being banged around."

Life Saver

Rescue Units' Role Told

"The Search and Rescue Organization saved 847 lives in the three-year period from 1954 to 1956," RCAF Sqdn. Ldr. G. R. Stockwell told the Belleville Kiwanis Club at their luncheon meeting yesterday.

Sqdn. Ldr. Stockwell briefly outlined the history of the Search and Rescue Organization. In 1947 a rescue unit was linked with the Air Force. The unit was responsible for all flying incidents.

In 1951 the unit was given the responsibility for marine Rescue as well as accidents in the air.

At present, the Search and Rescue Organization searches for missing people in boats and aircraft, fishermen, and in States *mergy flights for specific emergencies.

The rescue unit offers assistance during landslides, forest fires and other natural disasters, offers air coverage for special flights by royalty and dignitaries, and receives reports of Unidentified Flying Objects.

The Search and Rescue Organization is divided into four areas, the Atlantic Area, the Eastern Area, the Western Area, and the Pacific Area. There is a Rescue Co-ordination Centre and a Rescue Unit in each area.

"There are at least four skirmish in each unit. Still we are able to get any aircraft in the military if we need it."

There is direct co-ordination between the rescue unit and the Coast Guard and the United States and Canada often work together on a rescue mission.

Sqdn. Ldr. Stockwell suggested that the Search and Rescue Organization could work more effectively if anyone flying in an aircraft or travelling by boat would let someone know where he was going, when he arrived, and when he deviated from his course.

We anticipate a busy year," Sqdn. Ldr. Stockwell said.

New Admissions Policy For Queen's University

Queen's University has announced that it will confirm admissions for students of high academic standing by the end of May.

In the past, the university granted only provisional admissions before the results of the departmental examinations were known.

The new admissions policy, announced today by Principal Dr. J. A. Corry, will apply to students seeking to enter the first, undergraduate year in the faculty of arts and science, the faculty of applied science, the School of Physical and Health Education, and the School of Business.

Dr. Corry said the university is making the change because of the student who is completing senior matriculation in one year, has a very good academic record - "generally above 70 per cent", and whose ability is confirmed by the confidential report from his school principal.

Queen's will continue to give provisional admittance to the students "in accordance with past practice," Dr. Corry said.

Students admitted under the early confirmed admissions policy will be required to complete their secondary school studies and to write the examinations in those subjects which they are offering for admissions. Any commitments will not be prejudiced, however, by the results of these examinations," Dr. Corry commented.

He said the new policy should lessen the tremendous work load which confronts the office, the registrar's office staff during July and August, as well as giving an early assurance to the good student.

Firecracker Bylaw to Be Enforced Says Fire Chief

Its getting near firecracker time again.

And in the interests of safety, Fire Chief Ted Poste asks that there be strict observance of the city's bylaw governing the sale and use of firecrackers.

For instance it's illegal to sell firecrackers of any kind to a minor. This does not apply to parents supplying firecrackers for their own children or those under their supervision.

The bylaw also makes it illegal for lighted fireworks to be thrown from a moving vehicle or discharged on a public street or in any area with high fire hazard.

The fire chief stresses this is particularly important as in two instances in as many years serious fires in the downtown area through indiscriminate use of firecrackers have been narrowly averted.

A penalty of up to $300 for each offence is provided for persons convicted of a breach of the city bylaw.

Fallout Protection Survey Being Carried Out by EMO

The Federal and Provincial Emergency Measures Organizations are carrying out a survey to determine fallout protection available in all buildings in Canada, except private homes. The portion falling within the Quinte Area will commence 15th May 57.

The Department of Public Works of Canada has trained special crews to conduct the survey. These crews will be measuring the physical dimensions and the materials used in the construction of each building. They will also record shelter factors such as ventilation, water, electric power and space above and below ground.

It is not the intention to designate buildings as shelters or to consider building alterations to bring the building up to acceptable shelter standards. There will be no interference with building occupants and a minimum of questions will be asked.

All survey staff have been provided with identification cards which will be shown to owners upon request, Honorable A. A. Wishart, Provincial Minister in charge of Emergency Measures for Ontario, has solicited the co-operation of all citizens for this survey. The survey results will eventually be made available to Provincial and Local Emergency Measures Organizations.

Your kind co-operation in making it possible for us to carry out this survey is greatly appreciated. If you require more information, please phone the Emergency Measures Organization, Quinte Area, 163 Dundas St. E., Belleville — Telephone No. 962-9455.

Home Inspection Plan Will Start on Monday

Commencing next Monday, May 13, the Belleville Fire Department will resume the home inspection program which was started last year.

Fire Chief Ted Post said that resumption of the home inspection program would commence simultaneously on the East and West Hill sections of the city. On the East Hill inspection crews will start in the area east of Farley Ave. to the Hay Bay and south to the Bay from Bridge Street.

On the West Hill the starting area will be from Catherine Street north to Moira Street.

"Owners may either refuse permission or welcome the inspection crew," the chief said, "but it is to the benefit of the home owners to co-operate."

Inspectors will look in the basement, garage and back yards, having an eye particularly for faulty wiring or rubbish which might create a fire hazard.

"We were happy with the reception we received last year and are looking for the same co-operation this year," he said.

Last year's inspection program was cut off short because of holidays and inclement weather but brief as it was it paid off.

Not only did the inspections turn up a few fire hazards, but the program had the psychological effect of encouraging others to clean up their premises.

In any event the result was fewer home fires in the city.

Forum Players Debut

The curtain doesn't rise this week on the ventures of Belleville's newest theatre group.

In fact, the front curtain becomes a static backdrop to an evening of four one-act plays with which Forum Players makes its first bow at St. Thomas' parish hall.

The players are presenting their program of pocket productions — in theatre-in-the-round style — as a result of hi-levels extending from the proscenium of the hall's stage.

The group was formed a couple of months ago with funds from St. Thomas' church education fund and has spent about $100 on initial construction and production costs.

The selection for its initial presentation comprises two vignettes by Tennessee Williams — The Lady of Larkspur Lotion, and This Property is Condemned; George Kaufman's The Watch, and Purgatory, by W. B. Yeats.

The players, now in the final stages of rehearsal, run Friday and Saturday nights.

Won't Withhold Care to Needy Reaction of Local MD Association

District doctors don't foresee themselves refusing service to patients in need in the event of any professional reaction against medicare enforcement.

At the same time, the Ontario Medical Association in drafting a strike plan is merely "contemplating possibilities" for any future political negotiations over medicare, Dr. John Hartt, president of the Belleville General Hospital medical association said today.

The doctor's comments came in the wake of yesterday's OMA announcement it quality or quantity of medical was preparing a strike plan to meet any future contingency — not an immediate crisis.

For Story See Page 25

An OMA council session in Toronto was warned the federal government, if it introduced medicare, would invariably be forced to control the program's costs.

"I think generally speaking, that the local profession would be in favor of any reasonable regulations to service," Dr. Hartt said today.

"But I think these services in the minimum would penalize patients. If they maximize them too much they would certainly penalize the profession," he added.

The OMA action sought to guarantee any future negotiations would be "sensible and reasonable."

"I think most of us feel these regulations and negotiations won't be sensible or reasonable if political expediency entered the picture," said Dr. Hartt.

"Frankly, none of the doctors in the local profession I've talked to, can reasonably imagine themselves withholding services to patients in need."

Apple Blossom Festival Week For Ameliasburg Announced

AMELIASBURG — Council law authorizing a levy of one-last night proclaimed the week quarter of one mill on the township farm assessment for the of May 15 to 22 official Apple Farmer's Federation as provided for by the Ontario Municipal Board regulations. Council Blossom Festival Week for the township. In making the announcement Reeve George Cunningham urged residents to undertake a special effort to clean up and paint up for the occasion.

The Festival is being held at Harold Bonter's farm on the Redoersville road on Sunday, May 21, with a program of interest starting with an interdenominational church service outdoors commencing at 11.00 a.m. Among the distinguished visitors expected to attend is the Minister of Agriculture the Hon. William A. Stewart and his wife.

On Friday night preceding the main event the Central committee is holding a ball at Kente area public school. On Saturday entries in the apple pie baking contest will be judged at Albery church.

Council also decided to take action on complaints registered by Elwa James and Norm Kincaid. The former asked for a clean-up of the south side of the narrow road between Bryant's sideroad and Ostderdock's hill. Mrs. Kincaid reported flooding from run-off water affecting her side of the narrow road.

Township clerk William Nightingale was instructed to prepare a bylaw calling for restrictions on the sale of fireworks. Hereafter merchants will be breaking the law excepting during the week of May 24.

Council accepted a tender submitted by Alton Hadley of Belleville ($12,621) in competition, for supplying a new tractor equipped with front loader and back hoe according to government specifications.

Local 334 of the Ontario Farmer's Union sent a delegation to council last night with a request for council to authorize a grant or a loan on behalf. A council spokesman pointed out he understood the Union had no bylaw in his constitution to legally request a grant and in respect so a levy the township solicitor would have to investigate and advise before council ruled on the case.

Later council adopted the second and third reading of a by-law covering assessment. At the time council emphasized the Federation would be responsible for the collection of the levy and farmers would not be penalized for non-payment.

Council is giving consideration to rezoning Peche Point and the former Cecil Blakely property, Lots 107, 108 and 109 in the Third concession. The Ontario Municipal Board will be asked to approve a bylaw seeking the change of the two locations from agriculture to summer cottage development and trailer camp. Sub-divisions are planned by both parties requesting variation of the land use authority.

Had Client For Purchase Says Lawyer

PICTON (Staff)) — Picton lawyer, William Lane, a member of Prince Edward District High School Board, said at Monday night's school board meeting that he had written a letter to Picton Town Council advising he had a client interested in buying the Picton Armouries prior to it's recent sale to Standard Trust Company. The matter came up while some members of the school board were debating the purchase of some electronic equipment for the school which had not been budgeted for this year. Mr. Lane said the letter was sent on the town, or at least it should have been, long before the announcement of the sale. He indicated the Armouries sale was not handled properly and should have been done by public tender.

"there is any give and take" in the dispute.

And, he added, after that if a hard decision is taken on give-taking, the hospital becomes more will be contacted "before implementation."

Napanee Quarrel Points Up Problem Nurses Have in Disputes: Official

NAPANEE — The Registered Nurses Association of Ontario still is walking reaction to its warning of grev - listing against the Lennox and Addington County General Hospital here.

L. B. Sharpe, head of the RNAO's management - personnel department, said in Toronto today he expects to make contact with hospital administration officials in the next few days.

Saturday, the association threatened to place the hospital on its grey list unless the board of governors rejoins the three nurses involved in a controversy over administration procedures.

Mr. Sharpe intimated the step is taken reluctantly by the RNAO.

"We don't like to grey list a hospital, "he said.

At the same time, it pointed up an Ontario - wide dilemma caused by the fact nurses in mainly rural areas have representation inside the province's hospitals.

Generally, if nurses wish to air grievances they are without an official group spokesmen and the situation often brings personal problems.

"There's a deplorable lack of mechanism for handling problems of this kind — and the situation at Napanee demonstrates that dramatically," said Mr. Sharpe.

Nurses should be able to represent their position through some "collecting unit", he said, "without fear of personal repercussions."

The Nurses Association of Belleville General Hospital — formed after a three - month vacancy there last Fall - resembles the mechanism needed elsewhere, said Mr. Sharpe.

However, the Belleville group was still in the "formative" stage, he emphasized.

What the RNAO is endeavoring to organize is a representative body that would include head nurses and supervisors, Hospital administrations, however, list these as management personnel.

Mr. Sharpe said the RNAO will discuss the Napanee situation again this week with hospital officials to see if

New Visual Aid Equipment Is Endorsed

PICTON (Staff) — Members of the Collegiate School Board voted unanimously in favor of new visual aid equipment but split on whether they should actually buy it. A lengthy debate arose when the matter was introduced by Clare McFaul, Hillier's representative on the board and chairman of the property committee.

Mr. McFaul read a report from the Ampex Company, a firm specializing in electronic equipment, outlining a program to bring the school's audio-visual equipment up to date. The report also offered a package deal to the board in the form of one new video tape recorder, a new playback machine and two new cameras, with a total price of $5,719. A vote was finally taken on how many thought the equipment was necessary and it carried unanimously. With some questioning the price and whether the board could afford the deal a motion was finally passed that the administrator write the firm asking for a revised price on a smaller package without the cameras along with any possible trade-in and also investigate any grants available toward the purchase of such equipment.

Most Teaching Positions In Schools Now Filled

School board authorities in the Belleville area reported today that most teaching positions for the 1967-68 year have been filled although several vacancies exist in specialized fields.

The superintendent of the Bay of Quinte School Board, E. Arnold Orr, said that increased enrollment in the school system will necessitate the hiring of 12 extra teachers. "At the present time we have filled most vacancies although we are looking for six specialists," he said.

Carl J. Casey of the Belleville Separate School Board still has four staff vacancies. He claims the situation has improved over previous years and many applicants available for the 14 positions which were available on the 63 teacher staff.

The situation is much the same in the Belleville Public Schools where Inspector Jack M. Cousins says the number of graduates from teachers college, from the local area, is a lot better than in previous years. The public school board needs six teachers and two or three specialists, at the present time.

Enrollment in Belleville schools is expected to increase next year with the Bay of Quinte School Board expecting the number of pupils to reach 4,000. The Belleville Public School Board expect enrollment to jump from 3,250 to 3,400 while the separate school board is also expecting a minor increase.

Most of the specialized teachers are required in the fields of French ,art, mathematics, commercial and nursing.

Would Aid Children

It is sad to see the South Vietnamese government turn down Canada's offer of a children's rehabilitation centre and insisting on a military hospital instead.

It is particularly galling considering that this country's offer came in response to the Canadian public's reaction to a Toronto magazine article describing in word and picture the grim injuries suffered by Vietnamese children as innocent victims of the fighting there.

Granted there is an overall need for more medical facilities and that the fighting man has perhaps more claim than anyone. But surely the plight of the little children, some of them hideously scarred, demands a special effort on the part of everyone.

Some Vietnamese children have been flown to the west for medical treatment, under the auspices of a private Swiss organization. But as far as we know Canada's offer of an on-the-spot rehabilitation centre for the youngsters is the first of its kind.

Word of the Saigon's government's refusal of the offer was given by Donald S. Macdonald, parliamentary secretary to External Affairs Minister Martin, to two Scarborough women after they had presented him with a petition signed by 4,000 persons asking more Canadian aid for Vietnamese children.

Mr. Macdonald told them Ottawa is still prepared to establish the centre in Saigon, but on a civilian basis only. This is understandable in view of Canada's policy of non-involvement in the war in Vietnam.

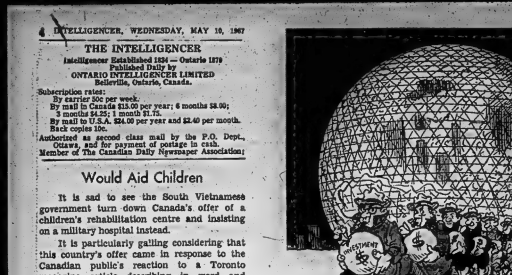
Call of the Sea

The oceans of the world have always been regions of elemental challenge — knowing periods of calm as well as fury and violence — and as such have brought both tranquility and terror to those who sail upon them.

Today there is as much drama upon the seven seas as ever there was. Maritime fishermen, for example, still brave treacherous variations of climate and coastal hazards to reap the harvest of the depths, although almost every year some brave crew off the eastern seaboard of this continent makes its last voyage.

And if trawling is one of the most potentially dangerous occupations of the ocean-going fraternity, because of the relative frailty of their craft in the face of storms and hurricane conditions, it still draws men to its ranks. Included among them are men like Bruce Moore, the westerner who took a fishing vessel out to sea from a Nova Scotia port, and while his action ran foul of the law, there was a daring about it that caused the admiration of other seamen and public alike.

But could it be such adventurousness is lacking today? How many of our young people express a desire to go to sea, to find their calling, their inner being, and perhaps the meaning of life, by going down to the sea in ships?



A British skipper, Captain Alan Cookson, master of the Manchester Progress, newest and most automated of Manchester Liners' 14-vessel fleet, says despite automated engine rooms and other innovations, (requiring a crew of only 27) it doesn't lead to unemployment "because men don't want to go to sea anymore."

Captain Cookson does not say why, but it does make one wonder. The sea of course has its disadvantages. You may see very little but that too can pall after the umpteenth call at this or that port. Separation from home and family, the difficulty, too, of adjusting to life on shore when home leave does come around, boredom and loneliness, uncertainty with regard to obtaining steady employment . . . these are all factors that may discourage anyone contemplating a career in the merchant navy.

Yet the drama of the sea remains. The other day the two great Cunard Line vessels, the Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth passed each other in New York. They made a brave sight as ever, but they are to be withdrawn from service within 18 months, and possibly scrapped. The vessels have been fighting a losing battle with transatlantic air traffic and Cunard is pinning its hopes of solvency on its smaller cruise vessels and a new 520,000,000 vessel, known tentatively as the Q4.

What other message does the sea have for us these days? One in particular dominates our thoughts — the saga of Sir Francis Chichester, who rounded the Azores while homeward bound from his epic world voyage around Cape Horn.

The whole vivid panorama of the oceans and their significance in men's lives, as means of communication and sources of food and energy come into focus as this lone voyager heads for England. And when the Queen confers the accolade of knighthood on him she will use the sword given to Sir Francis Drake more than 300 years ago.

First-quarter Corporate Results Down

Lower Profits Taken as Sign That Prices Will Increase

TORONTO (CP)—The flow of first-quarter corporate results now being made public indicates that last year's trend to lower profits is continuing, probably at a faster pace.

It is being taken as a sign that more price increases are in store in the second half of this year.

A check of more than 30 major corporations which have issued quarterly figures during the last two weeks shows their total net profits have declined this year to $208,500,000 compared with $219,600,000 in the similar period a year ago.

Bell's first-quarter earnings were up about $3,000,000 compared with 1966, Shell's $1,700,000, Pacific Petroleum's $1,100,000 and Sherritt Gordon's $1,000,000.

Both Shell and Sherritt Gordon, however, have warned their shareholders that their rates of increased earnings may not continue through the rest of this year.

In all, half the corporations showed smaller earnings in the first quarter of this year than in the similar 1966 period. Biggest drops were absorbed by the CPR and International Nickel of Canada, each off about $6,000,000.

In last year's first quarter, slightly fewer than 30 per cent of the corporations reported an earnings decline compared with 1965.

Although the number of corporations which have reported first-quarter earnings so far is too small to justify detailed analysis, they represent all important sectors of the economy and their trend to lower profits accentuates a pattern established in 1966.

In all of last year, 36 per cent of 150 major corporations with earnings of $1,000,000 or more reported smaller profits than in the previous 12 months.

In 1965, only 16 per cent of those corporations said their earnings had fallen compared with the previous year.

Another factor complicating first-quarter comparisons is that some corporations have changed their reporting procedures during the last three years, but financial analysts say there is no doubt a sharply increased number of companies are telling of a squeeze on their profits.

Almost all those with lower profits put much of the blame on increased labor costs, either directly through settlement they have signed with their workers, or indirectly because of settlements their suppliers have made and are passing on in higher prices.

Several, however, have also remarked on softer market conditions as a factor.

Higher prices are generally expected to come in key secondary manufacturing industries.

Already most appliance makers have talked openly of meeting price increases and it is generally expected the price of 1968-model cars will be higher when they are introduced this fall.

Labor Costs Blamed for Lower Profits

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Corporation profits are declining and labor is to blame, says the president of the Investment Dealers Association of Canada.

W. Thomas Brown of Vancouver said in an interview Tuesday labor costs are rising without corresponding increases in labor efficiency.

"If labor takes too much, there can be no return on capital investment," he said, reporting that 1966 corporation profits in Canada were down from 1965. Figures for the U.S. in the first quarter of this year showed the trend continued.

Toronto Stock Exchange Fines Brokerage Firm

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Stock Exchange Tuesday fined the member firm of Flood, Wiitstock and Co. $15,000 and withdrew its approval of F. W. Wiitstock and R. C. Wiitstock as general partners of the brokerage company.

The exchange ordered that the exchange seat held in the name of F. W. Wiitstock be transferred into the name of the chairman of the exchange in trust for the beneficial owners of the Montreal and Toronto company.

T. C. Flood of Montreal, a partner in the firm, announced Monday that the company had dissolved its partnership and stopped operation on the Toronto, Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges. The company was formed in 1962.

A statement from the Toronto exchange said charges were laid against F. W. Wiitstock, member for the firm, on May 5. The fine was imposed after a hearing Tuesday.

The board found that the two Wiitstocks in 1962 on TSE board of governors, by filing statements which did not disclose their personal liabilities, required to be shown on audit returns.

It also found that they breached an undertaking they

Gregory Wouldn't Quit British Mortgage Post When Advised to Resign

TORONTO (CP)— Wilfrid P. Gregory, president of British Mortgage and Trust Co., refused to resign although he was advised to do so July 22, 1963, by the royal commission investigating the financial collapse that year of Atlantic Acceptance Corp. was told Tuesday.

Harold R. Lawson, named caretaker president of British Mortgage after it ran into financial difficulties because of its involvement with Atlantic Acceptance, said the company directors had lost confidence in Mr. Gregory.

The president's resignation was made a condition of the merger of British Mortgage with Victoria and Grey Trust Co. later that year, he said.

Mr. Lawson said he became aware of British Mortgage's difficulties only after the collapse of Atlantic in June, 1965, when Mr. Gregory told him he was concerned by publicity that was causing a gradual withdrawal of deposits.

British Mortgage, a week after the Atlantic collapse, was not insolvent but could not afford the withdrawals, he said.

He later told Mr. Gregory he should resign because he was doing the company no good.

"I even advised him to get out of town for the time being," he said.

British Mortgage directors were not aware that the company had invested more than $11,000,000 in Atlantic Acceptance affiliates, he told the commission. When Atlantic failed, British Mortgage lost its shareholders' equity.

Fishermen Have Way With Names

NEW BEDFORD, Mass. (AP) Mention Hedgehrow in the average person and he'll think you're making disparaging remarks about some girl's lack of a pretty face.

But to New Bedford fishermen, Hedgefence Shoal is a fishing ground in Nantucket Sound and fish that name because, someone says, the underwater terrain there looks like a hedgefence.

That's not the only intriguing name for fishing grounds.

All are localities for which the men who go down to the sea in small ships head when they go sport.

Whence the odd names? No one really knows but the fishermen are a direct lot and use descriptive words fitting the occasion when telling of their favorite spots.

Or they name shoals after people . . . like Peterson's Hole, Georges Banks, biggest fishing spot in the area, or Roger's Hole. Just who these men were is lost in antiquity but they are immortalized by having fishing grounds named for them.

Another group which illustrates the seagoing man's naming abilities is that of boat which are not fishing grounds identified as Hen and Chickens, Bishop and Clerks, and Sow and Pigs.

These fascinatingly graphic names were picked, most waterfront experts agree, because each consist of one large shoal with a cluster of smaller ones nearby.

Sex Trap Devised For Moths

OTTAWA (CP)—A diabolical sex trap for moths is being developed by agriculture department scientists at Summerland, B.C.

Attractive female codling moths, held captive in the trap, lure the male of the species to his death, an agriculture department bulletin reports.

The male enters the trap bot on the scent of the female's perfume, which he can smell from a considerable distance, scientists say.

Once inside, he languishes helplessly on a sticky coating without ever reaching the girl moth.

The only hitch for the moth-trappers is that they must maintain colonies of young codling moths to provide the decoy females.

They are currently trying to identify her perfume, so they can make it synthetically and do away with the live bait.

Thomson Buys Three Dailies In U.S. Market

TORONTO (CP) — Kenneth Thomson, president and chairman of Thomson Newspapers Ltd., Tuesday told the company's annual meeting that business in the first quarter of 1967 is ahead of the corresponding period of 1966.

Mr. Thomson said the company has bought three more small daily newspapers in the United States this year, bringing to 26 the number of dailies owned there.

Half of a $65,000,000 promissory note issue being sold in the United States will be used to acquire new papers in the United States while the rest will help pay off bank debts, Mr. Thomson told 20 shareholders.

The money "will help us to buy several additional newspapers if they become available — and I'm sure they will," Mr. Thomson said.

"Even if we were not to buy more, these three new dailies pay and the others will make this a good year in comparison with 1966. We are very confident of the future."

The company now owns 48 dailies and 12 weeklies in Canada and the United States and managers, under contract, papers in Ontario and Saskatchewan.

Ann Landers

First Wife Is Still Treated One of Family

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband's first wife was from a prominent New England family. She was also very beautiful. Her main trouble was a weakness for men. She slept with just about every fellow on campus. The ones she missed, she caught up with after her marriage.

When her husband learned how busy she was he got a divorce. But his mother, who was very proud to have this woman for a daughter-in-law, continues to treat her as if she were still in the family.

ANN LANDERS

I do not mind that they have lunch together three times a week but I don't like her having their wedding pictures (now 10 years old) all over the house. Our children are at the question asking stage and they keep inquiring, "Who is the lady with daddy?"

Both my husband and I have asked her to remove the pictures, but they remain on the piano, on the mantle and on the vestibule wall. What can we tell the children? — M. BARRIST.

* * *

DEAR M.: Tell the children the truth — that the lady was daddy's first wife. Of course, it is untimed and thoughtless of your mother-in-law to behave this way, but obviously she intends to continue, for reasons of her own, and my advice is to say no more about it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We have three good children. Whenever one of our kids gets an honor or does well in something, my husband says, "My son was high-point man on the soccer team this year," or "My daughter was elected vice president of her class."

When we are waiting for the boy to return the family car and he is 20 minutes late, my husband screams, "Where in the world is your son!" "Why doesn't that kid have a sense of responsibility?"

Last night our daughter was talking on the telephone and she let the bathtub overflow. We discovered it when the living room ceiling began to drip. My husband blew his top and shouted, "What's the matter with your daughter anyway? She hasn't the brains of a two-year-old."

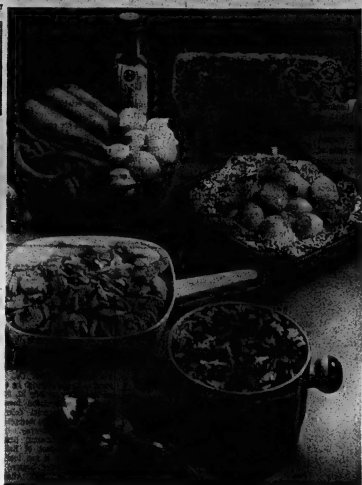
I am sick and tired of listening to my husband brag about his children when they perform well, and complain about my children when they do poorly. How can I cure him of this? — MRS. IRRITATED.

* * *

DEAR MRS.: I wish I could suggest a cure but, alas, there is none. Your husband (and thousands of others) will continue to claim the kids when they do him proud, and give them to his wife when they disappoint him. Accept this as a figure of speech because it is just that — and nothing more.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a woman 29 years old who wants to be married more than anything in the world. Yet I am just about to break my fourth engagement. There must be something radically wrong with me and I don't know what it is.



My three former fiances are all married and seem to be getting along beautifully. Whenever I see them with their lovely families, I say to myself, "You fool, that could have been you!"

Can you help me overcome this frightening problem? — MONA.

* * *

DEAR MONA: No, because I don't know what the problem is. I can only guess. Do you really want to be married or are you just afraid of being single? Have you created a dream husband which no flesh-and-blood male can equal?

— You need to talk about this with someone who can help you unmask your fears. And the sooner the better.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Root Vegetable Dish

The results I am passing carrot and onion cookery is because when I examined the produce counters carrots were packaged in three different ways and there were five different types of onions — both covering a big expanse of counter and all good buys for my money. I hope they are plentiful and low — priced in your area for both vegetables have good possibilities if you will explore them.

CARROTS AMANDINE
(Serves 4)

NOTE: The way this starts off it may sound as if you are frying raw carrots. You are not. You are steaming them.

3 cups (packed) carrot slices, ¼" thick
2 tbsps. butter
1 tbsp. flour
½ cup milk
¼ tsp. sugar
½ tsp. salt
Dash Angostura Bitters
½ cup (approximately) slivered blanched almonds

Slice carrots evenly ¼" thick by hand or on Feemster shredder. In medium-sized frying pan melt 2 tbsps. of butter and add carrots and stir. Reduce heat as low as possible, cover tightly and steam 30 to 35 min. stirring once at halftime. In a small saucepan melt remaining 1 tbsp. butter, stir in flour and when blended stir in milk until thick. Mix in sugar, salt and Angostura Bitters. Pour over cooked carrots, gently mix, and heat through, covered, for another 5 min., over very low heat. Turn into preheated vegetable dish and sprinkle slivered almonds over top.

BAKED ONIONS - PACKAGE DEAL (Easy) (serves 8)

Twelve 2" diameter white onions
4 tbsps. butter
1 tsp. salt
Shake of Angostura Bitters
Peel onions under running water (to keep back tears). Line a shallow pan with a large sheet of foil. Place onions on foil. Top each with some of the butter, sprinkle with salt and Angostura. Fold foil over and seal carefully. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 15 min. Transfer onions to preheated serving dish and pour any butter remaining in foil over.

Reader Gives Answer To Jimmie the Bachelor

Dear Doris: In answer to Jimmie the Bachelor's cry of "Canadian girls are frigid," may I say that, as a formerly frigid Canadian girl, he is partly right. But he is also so wrong!

It is an old argument. Most girls on the other side of the pond are actually trained to please a man, and by no means entirely in a sexual manner. We, however, are thrown into the world not knowing how to sew a button on or to boil water.

What does he mean by frigid? Usually it's a lover, an accusation, trying to tell a good girl that she's a terribly queer duck for not jumping into bed right away. Nevertheless I regard the term employed by a mature young man who was gently courting a girl; not trying to seduce her.

The man that I married is warm, gentle and very loving. No one could ever say I am frigid now, least of all my husband, who says he could never have found a more loving person. But I could never have been this way with a man before I was married. To be relaxed you cannot be on your guard all the time, as you have to be with most of today's men. — Happily Married.

Dear Happily: Congratulations! And thank you for sharing such good thinking with us.

Well, Jimmie the Bachelor, how about that?

Dear Readers: We've had a shower of requests for odds and ends of remembered and not-so-well-remembered poetry, and we have found a few. Here's hoping you who love researching verse can give us some clues to others.

Do any of these intriguing quotes or titles ring a bell?

1. "The Gentlemen of Yes."
Contains these lines:

It said to the sun, 'I don't like you at all.
Drip, drip, drip! . . ."

2. A Blind Child's Prayer.
3. The Wild Colonial Boy.
(Well over 100 years old.)
4. Foreman Young Munroe.
(Also very old.)
5. Mrs. O'Leary's Cow.
6. Dishpan Hands.
7. Being a Girl is a Great Adventure.

Dear Doris: My first five children were very close and I had very little room, so I had to have order, but I never moved anything out of reach. If they touched them, I said no and took them away about twice.

A lady lived in part of the house, plus a little boy. She tired every door shut, turned everything around, and yet she had only one minute's peace. To have her come into your home was pure misery. If your children are taught at home the meaning of no, they know what you mean when you go places where everything isn't out of sight.

I used to keep her little boy along with our five real ones, for she couldn't take him any place and he was just as good as ours when he was here without her. He knew he couldn't touch things and he loved to come in our pert. — DORIS CLARK.

I have noticed so often how many teen-agers write you and say, "They wished their parents would make them mind." Why? Because they know what they are taught, they are loved, and that you care how they grow up. — Mimmy of Eight.

Dear Mmmmy: Love, praise some reasonable controls: are not these the principles that produce healthy personalities? Thank you for giving us your ideas.

Don't just muddle along. Do something about what's troubling you. A letter to Doris can put you on the way to more Successful Living.

Centennial Tea Held By St. John's Church

POINT ANNE — St. John's Friendship group held a centennial tea and dessert in the parish hall, Wednesday. The hall was decorated with red, white and blue streamers. The bright red maple leaves, centennial emblem and the new Canadian flag added to the gaily decorated booths made a festive atmosphere to greet the visitors. Church member was in costume for the occasion.

Mrs. Frank Norwood was in charge of the admissions and tickets. Mrs. Hoodenson and Miss Margaret Germaine convened the fish pond. Mrs. Esmond Ellis and Mrs. Peter Green were in charge of the bargain table. Mrs. John Green, Mrs. Charles Hart, and Miss Nancy Hart convened the sale of handmade articles. Mrs. William Fournier and Mrs. Basil McCandrick sold the home-baking.

A table of antiques was on display and many items, lent for the occasion by various persons, drew much attention.

Mrs. Murray Green, Mrs. Jean Sowden, Mrs. Margaret Preston and Mrs. M. Akey served the tea table guests. Mrs. Henderson, Mrs. James Hunter and Mrs. Nellie Broach poured at the platers.

The tea tables were reached by way of an arch decorated in red, white and blue with maple leaf motifs. The tables were centred with gay old-fashioned dolls dressed for the occasion in centennial costumes.

Two silver services graced the tea table and two former members of the church groups presided. Those pouring were: Mrs. Charleston, Mrs. Worley Reid, Mrs. Dan MacDonald, Mrs. Lee Bradshaw, Mrs. Ivan Bailey, Mrs. Bellwood, Mrs. Frank Insley, Mrs. Kenneth Stafford, Mrs. Stanley Lafferman and Mrs. Earl Hickey.

Mrs. Hickey attended St. John's when it was first built in Belleville and her memories of the early church and it contemporaries are vivid. Mrs. Charles Hart has been working on a history of the church and the book was also on display.

A euchre was held in the evening with 12 tables in play. Winners were: Mrs. Gordon Chisholm, Mrs. Peter Green Sr., Mrs. Mary Hunter, Arthur Genereux, V. R. Watts and Frank MacDonald. Mr. Watts won the lone hand prize.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

A portable radio, phonograph or television set in the bathroom is a potential menace to your child's life. A short circuit can break and let the radio fall into the bathtub or a child can absent-mindedly lean out of the tub to change a record. The result could be immediate electrocution.

Water increases the body's ability to conduct electricity — and a dripping child just out of the tub could meet death simply by bumping into a plugged-in radio or television set.

Make a rigid rule that no electrical appliances be taken into the bathroom by children of the family. Bathers can relax to the music from a transistor radio or turn the volume up so they can hear the sound from an adjoining room—providing parents can stand the din.

Mr., Mrs. H. Faulkner Mark 50 Wedded Years

RIVER VALLEY — Stirling Legion Hall was decorated with golden bells and lettering in honor of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Faulkner, Lower St., who celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Saturday.

The family provided a buffet supper for 65 people and at 7 p.m. the couple were at home to friends and neighbors. The sons took turns welcoming the guests and were also in charge of the guest book.

The tea table was covered with a lace cloth and centred with a golden floral decoration. Those who poured were Mrs. George Wrightman, Mrs. Will Johnson, Mrs. R. Arnott, Mrs. Harry Orr, Mrs. Gordon Orr and Mrs. Arthur Orr. The daughters-in-law and several grandchildren assisted with serving the guests.

The long gift table was centred with a tiered anniversary cake decorated in white and gold. Gifts included a dozen red roses from the Stirling Branch of the Canadian Legion and a framed scroll from the Province of Ontario.

A group of young men from Peterborough provided orchestra music for dancing after 9 p.m. and several women from Stockdale conducted a humorous mock wedding.

Annie May Orr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Orr, Stockdale, and Hubbard William Faulkner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Edwin Faulkner, Holloway, were married in Stockdale Methodist parsonage by Rev. Richard M. Paterson May 2, 1917. Their attendants were the bride's twin sister, Mrs. Will Johnston and her husband of Stockdale.

The Faulkners farmed for many years in the Holloway area and have lived in Stirling since 1946.

Mr. Faulkner served overseas in the Second World War and is a member of Stirling Legion. Five sons are also ex-servicemen. The couple has 10 children, 28 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. One son, Earl of Creston, B.C., was unable to be in attendance and one daughter, Helen, is dead. Members of the family present were six sons: Lorne of Godfrey, Roscoe of Kingston, Allen and Jim of Peterborough and Blake and Maurice of Stirling; three daughters: Mrs. Reg. (Barbara) Hartwell of Peterborough, Mrs. Ron (Joan) McDonnell of Milton and Mrs. Robert (Shirley) Nesbitt of Brampton.

During the evening Mr. and Mrs. Blake Faulkner were pleasantly surprised on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary with a gift of silver from their brothers and sisters. Blake Faulkner and Blanche (Peggy) Christian were married in Reigate, England, May 4, 1942 and Mrs. Faulkner came to Canada with her two children, Helen and Annie, in 1946.

Present Red Cross Pins

Red Cross Pins Presented To Home Nursing Graduates

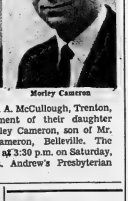
Red Cross pins and achievement cards were presented to eight women who graduated from this year's class of the home Nursing Course, at a ceremony held at Education Hall, Belleville General Hospital, Tuesday evening.

The executive of the Red Cross Society was present and received the graduates who were dressed in snow white uniforms and traditional veils.

Mrs. S. C. Else Reg. N. conducted the course which consisted of intensive study and practical work for two hours each week for 18 weeks.

During the course specific aspects were covered and a number of lectures were given. Mrs. R. Fletcher Reg. N. chairman of the Red Cross Home Nursing Division had spoken to the group outlining the role of the Red Cross volunteer. Col. Angus Duffy, chairman of the Emergency Measures Organization spoke to the class outlining the work of this organization and the role the volunteer nurse might have to play in times of disaster in the community. Mr. William James of the St. John Ambulance Corps gave each student lectures and each student learned to do artificial respiration on the Resuscitane doll under his capable instruction.

In March, films on the interests of nurses were shown which were obtained from the Red Cross Society in Toronto. Mrs. Jean Hyatt, director of Hastings County Health unit gave a lecture on communicable diseases.



On completion of the course under Mrs. Else's direction the class had learned how to handle sterile equipment, to do dressings, compresses and other nursing procedures. They also learned how to measure and give insulin and how to do certain procedures to check on the progress of a diabetic patient. Instruction was also given on how to cope with certain responsibilities that might be assumed in times of emergency in a national or community disaster.

Those who graduated from the course were: Mrs. J. Fuhrer, Marysville; Mrs. J. Sweet, Mrs. G. G. Maidment, Mrs. Kenneth Daley, Mrs. W. LaRue, Mrs. J. C. Bunnell, Mrs. Reta Carbery and Miss Sonia Tomlinson, all of Belleville.

Shopping Mothers to Get Break

NEW YORK (AP)—New York mothers who want to go shopping will soon be able to check their youngsters in much the same way they park their cars or check their coats.

A new facility, called the Check-a-Child Playground, will be opened by the parks department in June to enable mothers to shop in the area knowing their children are well taken care of.

The facility will operate much like any other checkroom, with parks department employees taking care of the children.

The cost will be 25 cents for the first three hours and $1 an hour for each additional hour or part thereof. The playground will be in Union Square Park, near 14th Street.

Any youngsters not claimed by the end of the day will be taken to a police station.

Woman, 81, Teacher, Fired For Helping to Form CCF

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) Gertrude Knapp, who campaigned for votes for women before 1917 and who was fired from her teaching job for helping organize the CCF in the 1930s, feels now she might have accomplished more if she had been less timid.

"I was too easily daunted, too timid. I didn't have much courage."

Too shy to campaign from a speaker's platform, she preferred to talk to small groups and individuals.

Mrs. Knapp, now 81, is resigning as secretary of the New Democratic Party in Welland riding and has been presented with a scroll in recognition of her service.

She remains an NDP supporter and is also an active backer of the Voice of Women, the world federalist movement, the Canadian Peace Research Institute and the St. Catharines branch of the United Nations Association.

"I was interested in the CCF from the day it started," she says. "It was during the Depression and something needed to be changed. It was more a matter of economics then."

Of her firing by the Thorold school board more than 30 years ago she says: "Looking back on it now, perhaps I was a little cautious.

But if she has mellowed in some respects, she is outspoken in her views about war. "There's no such thing as a just war. . . . War is an absurdity.

"Communism walks hand in hand with poverty. It's folly to check it by means of war."

Status of Women In PEI to Improve

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Three women's groups have formed a committee to explore avenues for improving the status of women in Prince Edward Island.

The committee was set up at a meeting sponsored by the Charlottetown Business and Professional Women's Club. The club said two other local organizations — Zonta International and the Federation of University Women—are providing two members each.

One matter to be considered by the committee will be whether to hold a seminar in the fall on the status of women.

A recommendation from the meeting early in May was that the organizations present seek enforcement of legislation to guarantee equal pay for equal work.

Gladys MacMillan, a local officer with the federal government's Manpower Centre, said that with few exceptions women in Prince Edward Island are not protected by minimum wage laws that cover men. The exceptions are waitresses and laundry workers in the Summerside and Charlottetown areas.

Miss MacMillan, who took part in a panel discussion, said the prevailing wage for female sales clerks, for example, is $30 to $45.

J. J. Revell, head of the commerce department at St. Dunstan's University and chairman of the P.E.I. labor relations board, told the meeting:

"Women's groups must be more involved. You must be come knowledgeable . . . assist public opinion . . . complain."

Another speaker, Mrs. J. Lawson, said a minimum marriage age should be established in P.E.I. At present only the father's permission is required.

Mrs. Lawson said setting the minimum at 16 in P.E.I. and several other provinces would enable Canada to sign the United Nations charter on this subject.

Judge to Keep Open Mind Re Women's Rights

FREDERICTON (CP)—Doris Ogilvie plans to treat her new work as a member of the royal commission on the status of women in the same way she treats her duties as a deputy judge of Fredericton magistrate's court—she will try to wipe any preconceived ideas on the subject from her mind.

Mrs. Ogilvie is a wife and a mother who recently graduated in law from the University of New Brunswick after returning to college. She is also a member of Canada's large female labor force as deputy judge of the magistrate's court, where she handles family court and juvenile cases.

She says that because of all her varied roles in society, she will have to be particularly careful to keep an open mind on the subject of the status of women.

"It's like being in court. One trains oneself to forget everything pertaining to the case except the evidence that comes up before one."

The far-reaching implications of the commission study make it a project of challenge and excitement to Mrs. Ogilvie.

"From the time the commission was first announced, before I knew I was to be a member of it, I was terribly pleased that the government had taken action in this field.

"It required recognition of the fact that there has been a great change, gradually, in the status of women, and a realization of just how much substance there will be for the group to look into.

"I was particularly interested in certain areas, of course, because for the past few years I've been involved with family court and with juveniles. Both are all tied up with the home, of course, and thus with the status of women."

Mrs. Ogilvie says she believes that one of the most important questions the commission may be able to answer is whether or not there is any relationship between the greater number of women working, and the number of children who get into trouble.

She says that moralizing on whether or not women's place is in the home—as was done at great length in the past—is irrelevant in view of the situation today.

"The fact remains that women aren't staying in the home. It's a clear trend. There now are more married women than single women working in Canada. The importance of the commission will be to study and report on the effect of all this—and to make recommendations, if necessary, on what the government can do to ensure that they get a fair break."

Mrs. Ogilvie, whose husband, Dr. Robert Ogilvie, is a Fredericton dentist and city alderman, was born in Halifax and educated there. She received a bachelor of secretarial science at Mount St. Vincent University before she married and had her four daughters, Mary, now 17, Anne, 15, Jane, 14, and Susan, 13.

In 1960 she decided to return to university and get her law degree.

"I was fortunate in having the university so close to our home, and especially fortunate to that my husband—and my children too, but particularly my husband, were entirely in favor of my returning to school. They co-operated in every way they could and gave me all the encouragement I needed. I think that was the decisive factor in my case."

Church Groups

On Tuesday, May 3rd women of St. Columba Presbyterian Church and St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church embarked on a "Know Your Church" bus tour.

Travelling to the new church offices at Don Mills, Ontario the women were taken on a tour of the building. Meeting some of the people with whom one had correspondence made the work of the church come alive.

While visiting the Department of Missions the group was introduced to Rev. Murray Garvin, now home on furlough from Formosa. Rev. Garvin has been engaged in evangelism and Christian education in the Tsyut tribe. He has begun a camping program for mountain young people and has prepared a beautiful site for camping in that area.

Dwart College was the next stop where a refreshing cup of tea or coffee awaited the visitors. Here Miss Ada Adams, Dean, spoke of the many uses the college is put to year 'round. Here young women are trained to give leadership in Christian education, social work and many aspects of church life in Canada and overseas.

A tour of this building delighted the eye with the beautiful color schemes of the individual rooms, the lovely dining room and lounge. Woods from the various mission fields have been used in the furnishings of the chapel, which produce a most interesting effect.

Travelling to Clarkson, the next stop was at a beautiful old home. On the lawn there was an old Irish name, "Armagh" meaning high places. For many years this has been a home for unmarried mothers run by the Presbyterian Church in Canada. Greeted by Mrs. M. Herrig, director, all were given an insight into the work, care and love which is given to every resident.

Shining eyes and contentment were seen as carrels were opened of maternity tops and babies clothes. The women had been busy for the past month preparing these gifts for the home which were much appreciated.

Divorce Issue Is Most Explosive One in Italy

ROME (Reuters) — Divorce, birth control and sex education have become big issues in Roman Catholic Italy.

Things are changing in this Catholic country, though a militant is still enough to make young men turn their heads and grandmothers shake theirs in disgust.

In general, there is less reticence these days about arguing moral and social issues in public.

Left - wing members of the Communist Republics, actively supported by thousands of others forced to live in illegal unions with illegitimate children, are clamoring for changes in the law banning divorce.

Demands for legalization of divorce started a fierce church-state dispute, in which Pope Paul has described divorce as "a sign of moral decadence" and a violation of Italy's 1929 concordat with the Vatican.

Health ministry experts, after long study, recommended that a ban on birth control publicity be lifted and sex education be given in schools.

The sale of contraceptives in Italy is prohibited, although the "pill" can be bought under other names, such as hormone preparations.

The divorce issue, however, is the most explosive—and the hardest for politicians to handle.

An estimated 5,000,000 Italian men, women and children are members of families which have no legal status because at least one of the parents is unable to divorce a former partner.

A recent national opinion poll showed that 30 per cent of Italians today would support divorce, an increase of six per cent compared with figures obtained 12 months ago.

Opponents of divorce have dropped to 56 from 71 per cent, and there are many more "don't knows."

Two bills to introduce limited divorce are before the Italian parliament. The first would permit divorce after long legal separation, where one party had spent five years in a mental institution or had been sentenced to five years' imprisonment for sex or vice crimes.

This bill passed its first hurdle when a parliamentary committee ruled it constitutional. It could reach the floor of the House within the next year.

An alternative bill would permit divorce after five years of legal separation.

Both bills would permit divorce where one party was a foreigner and had already obtained a divorce abroad.

The health ministry report calling for a relaxation of regulations on birth control was submitted to a special government commission studying the case for and against changing the law.

In support of their case, the experts said that more than 800,000 secret abortions take place in Italy each year, with the loss of hundreds of mothers' lives.

VON Work Since 1898 Outlined

OTTAWA (CP)—The director-in-chief of the Victorian Order of Nurses for Canada Friday compared the order's 1898 beginning with its booming record of national service in 1967.

Jean Leask was speaking at the order's 69th annual meeting's final luncheon.

In 1898, the order's first full year of service, it treated 873 patients and recorded some 8,000 visits in Ottawa, Montreal, Toronto, Halifax, Baddeck, N.S. and New Richmond, Que.

Expenditures in Ottawa, Montreal, Toronto and Halifax totalled $19,498 that year. In 1966 the combined expenditure in those cities was just under $1,900,000.

Miss Leask said the order served about 115,000 patients in 1966 and made some 1,200,000 visits. The number of patients dropped by 670 from 1965 but total visits climbed by some 51,000.

At year's end there were 100 local branches.

Self-assessment Necessary for One Upon Re-entry Into Business World

TORONTO (CP)—If you are a married woman who is considering re-entry into the business world and the prospect makes you nervous, a step-by-step approach might help. The first, and perhaps most difficult step, is honest self-assessment.

Lois-Rose Betcherman, director of the women's bureau of the Ontario department of labor, says this involves two factors. One is whether you really can make realistic arrangements for the care of your children at noon, after school, during holidays or illness. The other, more nebulous but equally important, is the matter of your own psychological readiness.

"For a woman who has been out of the market, this is a real factor. I think women who say they want to work part time really want to start slowly, to get their feet wet.

"You must have a real commitment to work, be prepared to do a full day's work. It's sometimes called a career mentality.

"Once you have come to grips with these questions, you can take a straightforward approach. Find out what you want to do and what you are fitted to do."

Mrs. Betcherman's bureau has started a career counselling service as a pilot project to help women answer these questions. It will not be a job placement service but will try to provide orientation for people who don't know where to begin.

"Generally, you should determine your job interest and marketable skills and decide on a career goal," she said. In both. One of the big problems we find is that women tend to define ourselves. They don't seem to zero in and channel energies and efforts. The diversification of housewifery compounds this. Women really don't know what type of work they want, as a man knows what his trade is."

In some cases training takes 15 or 20 years ago is obsolete or may no longer be interesting to the woman who took it. Ideally, you might build on what you have in refresher courses, but you may not want to.

Mrs. Betcherman says you can get advice and counselling in varying degrees at Canada Manpower centres, vocational guidance testing centres and through guidance literature.

She says you should take your time because a mistake can be serious. Don't downgrade your skills and accept and fail back on clerical skills unless they are what really interest you.

"If you make the decision wisely you can realize your potential."

The next step, or a coinciding step, is to try to get a realistic picture of the job market in your area. Know your own locality and mail your choice to the local market.

"How do you get this information? Newspapers are a good indication, and not just ads. The business and news sections will tell you, for instance, who is expanding."

Again—Canada Manpower and other agencies may be able to help.

"You should also be aware of the going rates of pay, particularly before you get involved in training. Know whether the results are worth the trouble. The newspaper ads will tell you."

Mrs. Betcherman says maturity is not a problem in most markets.

You may want to take a course or courses before you actually look for a job to bridge the gap between the job you want and your ability to do it right now.

Don't limit your search for the right courses to a few channels. Colleges, trade schools, technical institutes, Ontario's new city colleges and private courses may all be able to help. If you are uncertain about the value of private courses, your chamber of commerce or board of trade may be able to give you information on their validity.

"Training has to come after the occupational choice has been made. We get letters from people who take courses indiscriminately and then find out they don't add up to a job.

"When you have found out all these things and trained, then it comes time to apply. You can go, of course, to the Canada Manpower centre, private placement agencies that specialize in different types of placement, and the personnel offices of business, industry and government.

"When it comes time to make application, be very businesslike, informative and concise. And I think the biggest piece of advice I can give is, when it comes to the interview, smile."

There are women's bureaus similar to the Ontario bureau in British Columbia, Alberta, and Saskatchewan.

King Faisal in Britain

King Faisal of Saudi Arabia waves as he sits beside Queen Elizabeth in open carriage as they pass the House of Commons in London. It was the start of the 62-year-old monarch's state visit to Britain. (AP Photo)

Strictly Personal

Foreigners Coolly Greeted By Immigration Officials

LONDON — A few days ago, a Swedish girl student was stripped and medically examined by the British immigration authorities as she entered England. She complained to the Swedish embassy, which promptly made an official protest to the British government.

It is characteristic of Britain's austere approach to visitors that you come upon a sign in the immigration office: "Department of Aliens, Firearms, and Dangerous Drugs." It is no bureaucratic accident that aliens are classified with firearms and dangerous drugs.

Following the Swedish incident — the girl was examined, it turned out, on the suspicion that she was pregnant — the "Guardian" remarked in a leading editorial that, in the eyes of officials, "people coming from abroad are to be treated with suspicion. What do they want here? What do they intend to do? Ought they to be kept out? They are Aliens and alien is one of its adjectival senses means repugnant."

The immigration laws in America have recently been reformed — not without a struggle — but England's immigration laws are long out of date. Its Aliens Act dates from 1919, and immigration officials are practically a law unto themselves.

Indeed, the whole international system of Customs needs drastic revising, in the interests of speed, fairness and comfort. Luggage should not have to be torn apart, and many of the formalities of leaving and entering grounds could be shortened or abolished entirely. If one can fly from New York to London in six hours — two with the impending supersonic planes — it shouldn't take one hour to get through Customs.

Actually, most European countries today are easier about the whole process than either England or America, where the authorities look upon themselves as the ultimate guardians of the nation's welfare, where the British Customs are more royalist than the Queen, and the American Customs more vigilant than J. Edgar Hoover.

Even though the Prime Minister set up a committee to examine the British immigration laws a year-and-a-half ago, nothing has yet been heard from it. Moreover, medical certificates testifying to general good health will now be required for aliens coming to work in Britain — the result of many "au pair" girls arriving as domestics in the early stages of pregnancy.

Foreigners get a warm welcome in England once they make it past the legal barriers — but that first impression of suspicion and coolness takes many years to eradicate than most tourists have.

Motorbike Policemen Ill Garbed

TORONTO (CP) — A motorcycle-riding doctor says motorcycle-riding policemen are not adequately garbed.

When given the most powerful machines that are built, when they are called upon to operate under all kinds of conditions, when they drive under adverse conditions of speed and traffic not faced by the average rider, they are not equipped to meet crime," said Dr. F. W. Irwin of Cornwall, a member of the council of the Ontario Medical Association and himself an amateur racing motorcyclist.

Even black-jacket motorbike riders are usually better equipped than policemen, he said in an interview.

Decision by May 15 On Pipeline: Simonett

TORONTO (CP)—J. R. Simonett, minister of energy and resources, said Tuesday that if the government takes a stand on a route for a second natural gas pipeline it will be announced before May 15.

He was replying in the legislature to NDP Leader Donald MacDonald who asked April 24 what the government would do if the U.S. federal power commission does not approve a bid by Trans - Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. to run the line into Ontario through the Northern United States.

Connell Explains Centre's Quintupled Cost

TORONTO (CP) — Public Works Minister Ray Connell outlined to the legislature Tuesday how the cost of Ontario's major centennial project climbed from an initial estimate of $5,000,000 in 1964 to a current prediction of $28,000,000.

Replying to questions from Opposition Leader Robert Nixon, Mr. Connell said the initial estimate for the Centennial Centre of Science and Technology was made Aug. 31, 1964, "before we had any idea of just what was to be built."

At the time, he said, the government envisaged a building with 100,000 square feet of floor space.

Two weeks later the chairman of Ontario's centennial committee decided the project should be expanded to 200,000 square feet and revised the cost estimate to $7,800,000. Landscaping and servicing fees were expected to push the price to $10,500,000 before including the cost of exhibits.

Mr. Connell said that by the end of 1964 architect Raymond Moriyama had produced a scale model of the centre on the basis of requirements given him by the centennial committee which at that point called for 350,000 square feet of floor space.

On April 23, 1965, Premier John Roberts had announced approval of the preliminary plans and the site of Metropolitan Toronto's Don Valley. He estimated the over-all cost at $14,000,000 including $3,000,000 for exhibits.

Mr. Connell said more complete working drawings indicated Aug. 11, 1965, that the project would cost about $18,800,000. The centre was still projected at 350,000 square feet.

However, another revision of the plans produced a "probable tender" figure from the works department of $20,700,000 the day before the contract for construction of the centre's first three buildings was let. The buildings were to have a total of 418,000 square feet.

The contract awarded to Pigott Construction Ltd. was for $21,700,000. Mr. Connell said, but exhibits and servicing would make the total price $28,000,000.

A&P

What is A Mother?

To her family, she's special.
She's understanding,
a banquet chef, a short order cook,
a fountain of love, a chauffeur, warmth and security.
She's clean socks, starched dresses
a mender of hurts.
She's scrubbed ears,
a tender nurse, a maid, a queen.

She deserves a day of honour and tribute.
She deserves the love of those she loves.

Yes, she's very, very special.

This Sunday, you'll tell your mother
how much you care.
We'd like to tell all mothers, "We Care, too."

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: When does the Bluenose ferry resume service this summer between Bar Harbor, Maine and Yarmouth, N.S. and are reservations necessary?

ANSWER: The Bluenose resumes service on June 17. She can accommodate 600 passengers and 150 cars and leaves Bar Harbor at 8 a.m. and Yarmouth at 4.30 p.m. The Bluenose has day cabins, two lounges, a cafeteria and bar. Fare during the peak season, July and August, is $7.20 for adults one way and $31.10 for cars. Reservations should be made well ahead of time. This cuts several hundred miles off the trip to Nova Scotia.

Question: What spots of interest should we look for in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia? What is the average motel rate?

ANSWER: If you are going by the U.S. coastal route you may like to stop off at Campobello Island, N.B., the summer home of the late President Roosevelt for many years. His cottage (34 rooms) may be visited from late May to Sept. 15, daily 9 to 5, free.

This island has excellent beaches and fine fishing and can be reached by car.

Another island that is near and can be reached by free ferry from St. Andrew's, N.B. is Deer Island. It is the centre of New Brunswick's herring industry. It has one of the largest lobster pounds.

Saint John, N.B., has the Reversing Falls Rapids at the mouth of the St. John River. This is a favorite tourist attraction and should be seen at both high and low tides to be appreciated. Time tables are available at the Maritime Auto Association or tourist offices.

Fundy National Park consists of 80 square miles of wooded hills and valleys overlooking Bay of Fundy between Moncton and Saint John, N.B., on highway 114. It has scenic cliffs rising from the bay. It has good swimming, a golf course, bowling and tennis and excellent speckled and rainbow trout fishing. Concerts, plays and movies are presented during the summer. There are camping facilities.

Magnetic Hill, seven miles north of Moncton, N.B. offers an unusual experience. A car seems to be pulled uphill by a magnetic force when in reality you are going down.

Peggy's Cove, southwest of Halifax, N.S. is a picturesque fishing village very popular with artists and photographers. Near there is Lunenburg, one of the greatest fishing ports on the continent. Lunenburg Sea produces operates a modern plant where visitors can follow the fish from trawler to packaging and freezing. Free tours July to Sept. from 9 to 4 daily. This is the home of the famous Bluenose fishing schooner.

Cape Breton Island: The Cabot Trail affords a scenic, winding 75 mile drive along the edge of the mountain with the sea below. Many believe this is the most beautiful drive in Canada.

Baddeck, on Cape Breton Island, is the former home of Alexander Graham Bell and also the beginning of the Cabot Trail. The first airplane flight in the British Commonwealth was conducted in Baddeck by Bell on February 23, 1909 with the Silver Dart. The Alexander Graham Bell Museum on the edge of town displays models of Bell's inventions, open daily 8 to 8, June 15 to Sept. 15.

DR. MORTON SHULMAN

Justice Rebukes Shulman

TORONTO (CP)—The royal commission investigating Dr. Morton Shulman's charges charges against provincial government officials adjourned Tuesday for a period not to exceed two weeks after Dr. Shulman said he needed a lawyer to present his case.

Dr. Shulman opened Tuesday's brief, stormy session—the first since Friday—with the announcement he had hired Toronto lawyer Walter Williston and wanted an adjournment to May 26 so Mr. Williston could prepare his evidence.

Mr. Justice William D. Parker replied with a rebuke of Dr. Shulman's tactics since the commission began hearing evidence May 3.

He said Dr. Shulman, through comments to the press, has lodged serious charges against various individuals who have not yet had a chance to reply before the commission.

Dr. Shulman said Mr. Williston would be tied up with another case until after May 22, but added he would try to retain another lawyer in the hope the hearing could proceed Thursday.

Later however Dr. Shulman said that Mr. Williston will be able to represent him when the hearings resume.

Dr. Shulman was instructed to get in touch with commission counsel Charles Dubin when he has obtained a lawyer, then a date to resume the hearing would be set.

The commission hearing was ordered by Premier John Robarts after Dr. Shulman was fired as Metropolitan Toronto chief coroner early last month for claiming provincial government officials were involved in interference and suppression of evidence in inquests.

Dr. Shulman's statement on his lawyer, released earlier to the press, said he had hired Mr. Williston because "I have not been allowed to present my case."

After about 20 hours of testimony last week, about a fifth of the brief had been presented.

With adjournments and the ever-expanding number of issues before Mr. Justice Parker, there is every indication the hearing will be a drawn-out affair.

Double Standard

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — A double standard in South African tea drinking has been disclosed in the Johannesburg press.

Editor Dirk Richard of Dagbreek said it insults the homeland of a visiting delegate from a black country to refuse to have a social cup of tea with him.

"A white man's refusal to have tea with a South African nonwhite is different, he held; this upholds the country's policies of race segregation.

The Star called this absurd. It commented: "South Africa is trying to improve its external relations and so must treat visiting notables with respect. But at home there can be no letup—and no tea."

The Star asserted Richard's argument should be treated with sympathy, however. It said the government party is having an agonizing reappraisal of South Africa's situation in the world.

Dagbreek supports the government while The Star opposes it.

Boy, 5, Is Painting Prodigy

Five-year-old Louis Lyons is shown with some of his paintings at his London, England, home last night. The Royal Academy of Arts revealed that one of the most discussed paintings at its current summer exhibition is Louis' work. An academy spokesman also said the picture was painted when Louis was three and he is the youngest painter to ever have had a picture accepted by the academy.

Consumer Price Index Up Point

OTTAWA (CP) — The consumer price index rose more than a full point to 141.8 in April from 140.7 in March, with a wide range of price increases topped by higher sales taxes in Quebec and Newfoundland, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The important housing component of the over-all index, which accounts for nearly a third of the total, rose to 130.1 in April from 128.4 in March this year, mainly because of higher rents, home-ownership costs and electricity rates.

Food, the second largest component, was up to 144.9 from 143.8 because of higher restaurant prices. Foods for consumption at home also showed a large number of price increases.

Higher prices prevailed for butter, eggs, carrots, tomatoes, celery, lettuce, canned and frozen vegetables, canned fruits, beef roasts and weiners. There were lower prices, however, for coffee, tea, lard, shortening, citrus fruits, bananas, fruit juices, round steak, most cuts of pork, lamb, veal and poultry.

Price increases were scattered through the rest of the survey. Most men's, women's, and children's clothing prices were up, as were footwear and cloth [illegible]

Both the cost of new automobiles and the cost of automobile operation were higher. Transportation fares in Toronto rose, along with a seasonal increase in rail fares across the country.

While contributing only a small amount to the over-all index, the cost of health and personal care jumped to 130.0 from 125.2 in the month, largely because of higher fees for medical, dental and optical services.

There were minor increases in the prices of sporting equipment, bicycles, toys and newspapers. But the prices of radios and television sets were down. Higher cigarette prices prevailed in some cities.

On a percentage basis, the consumer price index at the beginning of April was nearly one per cent higher than at the beginning of March. It was more than three per cent higher than in April last year.

The over-all consumer price index has risen each month since September, 1965, when it was 139.1. Its last dips were in August and September that year when it moved down four-tenths of a point."

The food index, however, reached a peak 148.1 last August and then declined to 143.3 in March and moved back up to 144.0 in April this year.

DBS has no measure of family incomes paralleling the index of consumer prices. However, its index of average weekly industrial earnings and salaries, based on 1961 equalling 100, was, in a preliminary calculation, 127.1 in January this year, the latest figure available.

The wages and salary index in December was 122.7 compared with 118.3 in December, per cent.

on 1961 rose 5.1 index points to 145.9 from 140.8, an increase of 3.5 per cent, in the year. In that period, the consumer price index rose 5.4 index points or 3.5 per cent, in the year. In that same 1965. Thus wages and salaries

McCutcheon Said After Leadership

OTTAWA (CP)—Senator Wallace McCutcheon, wealthy financier and industrialist, will formally announce his candidacy for the Conservative party leadership before his 51st birthday next week, an informed source said Tuesday.

Senator McCutcheon, trade minister for the last eight months of the Diefenbaker administration, will resign his senatorship and seek a seat in the Commons. It is understood he will go after his party's nomination in York North.

The Toronto senator retired as vice-president and managing director of E. P. Taylor's big Argus Corp. Ltd. to enter politics five years ago and bring a businessman's approach to government.

John Diefenbaker appointed him to the Senate and cabinet in 1962. He developed an unbounded enthusiasm for political life, urging other businessmen to get into it.

It is understood Senator McCutcheon has formed the nucleus of a leadership campaign headquarters here, which he intends to move to Toronto as the September leadership convention approaches.

Key man in his organization is Richard Thrasher, MP for Essex South from 1957 to 1962, former parliamentary secretary to then labor minister Michael Starr and then executive assistant to Mr. Diefenbaker.

Senator McCutcheon is expected to announce a personal leadership campaign platform reflecting his political views when he announces his candidacy this week or next. One informant said he would make the announcement Thursday.

Strike-breakers Ban Is Requested

OTTAWA (CP)—The Rand inquiry into Ontario labor disputes was told Tuesday there should be laws to protect unions against professional strike-breakers.

Outlawing strike - breakers would allow "a straight economic battle" and lead to faster negotiated settlements, the International Typographical Union said.

ITU representative Allan Hestage replied that picket lines are needed to inform the public and win its support.

Commission counsel Marshall Pollock said public knowledge of an ITU dispute with three Toronto daily newspapers had not made much difference for the union.

The ITU testimony was focused on the struggle the union had with the three Toronto dailies—the morning Globe and Mail and the evening Star and Telegram—in an epic battle.

ITU representative Allan Histed said the union was "murdered by propaganda" in a dispute that erupted July 1, 1964, when about 600 ITU members left work.

Mr. Histed said they walked out after each daily fired five men and arbitrarily ordered work changes.

In what he described as a planned and "Machiavellian situation," the dailies then hired professional strike - breakers from the United States and kept on publishing.

The strike-breakers were described as "a service provided by the American Newspaper Publishers Association."

Stirling Sanctuary Just A Hobby For The Kents

By MAURICE SWITZER
(Trenton Bureau)

STIRLING — Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kent are a conservationist's dream. Their R. R. 4, Stirling home doubles as a maisture sanctuary for any wildfowl that may come their way, and the "idyllic setting comes replete with babbling brook, shady nooks, and peaceful pastoral surroundings.

About eight years ago, the Kents purchased a proven mated pair of Canada Geese for $45 from Quebec, and they've been winging it ever since.

The fowl collected and kept by the Kents haven't however. The feathery charges are pinioned to ensure they don't stray from the sanctuary's bounds.

Although required is fulfil, the responsibilities of a $300 bond with the federal government, the Kents are not interested in the potential profit-yielding aspect of their hobby. The bond, issued by the department of national resources, lays down a number of stringent stipulations, basically intended to prevent sanctuaries from becoming shooting preserves for hunters.

The Kents are also forbidden to sell carcasses of migratory wildfowl for culinary purposes. They themselves have only had the heart to eat one goose since declaring their grounds a sanctuary.

In fact, the only eligible buyers of geese or ducks are fellow conservationists, under penalty of heavy fine for abuse of the privilege.

Ed Kent's background (a long-time CNR section foreman out of Madoc) isn't apparently one which would cultivate an interest in wildlife.

"But I've always had the desire to have wildlife around me," he says," and birds in particular." "I think it was my association with Indian children at my Shannonville home when I was a boy that instilled the feeling for nature in me."

"There's something about the hobby that gives immense satisfaction. We could possibly do something else with the money we spend on feed, but we enjoy the birds."

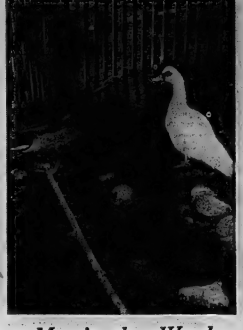
After a glimpse of the Kent home interior, that goes without saying. The mallards, teals and geese that have been part and parcel of the Kents' life for eight years are represented in the form of paintings, salt and pepper shakers, plaster of Paris figurines, and even a shoe brush.

But no samples of taxidermy.

Area game wardens have been aware of the unofficial conservationists in the neighborhood . . . Mr. Kent says it has been a common practice to bring ailing wildfowl to the sanctuary for recuperation.

There are never usually less than about a dozen birds on the premises, including the original mated pair that protect new-laid eggs as vehemently as newlyweds.

The hobby seems to provide a varied assortment of fringe benefits. Notes Mr. Kent: "It was a ready-made nature lesson when I was a Girl Guide leader. There probably isn't a child in Stirling who hasn't been here."



And from Mr. Kent: "The martins we attract here by putting up houses solve the summer mosquito problem. The bugs seem to be a mainstay of their diet."

"Let anyone try to come near the house and they honk blue murder," says Ed Kent.

One lesson, on the other hand, isn't nearly as vociferous. A lone Muscovey duck is a bird of a different feather. He belongs to a duck species that . . . doesn't quack?

Even wildfowl novelties like this are no challenge to the now experienced Kent conservationists. They just roll off like you know what.

Mum's the Word

The white Muscovey in the foreground is an unusual duck indeed . . . his species can't quack. A pair of Mallard mates swim closeby.

Take A Gander at That One!

Ed Kent holds an eight-year-old gander while Mrs. Kent shows him what will be a feathery offspring in about four weeks' time.

Viet Cong in Border District Have Difficult Time Surviving

WAR ZONE C, South Vietnam (Reuter) — Viet Cong in this 100-square-mile jungle area on the Cambodian border northwest of Saigon have more survival problems than guerrillas in most other parts of war-torn South Vietnam.

Because there are no civilians in the area and because it is known enemy stronghold, the Viet Cong are subjected to repeated bombing and artillery attacks and periodic mass sweeps through the zone by large United States forces.

Intelligence sources say the zoon harbors the Viet Cong's central offices as well as their 9th Division. Both are prime targets for U.S. ground troops.

Despite this the guerrillas have maintained their hold on the area, using an intricate series of base camps and communications centres to keep their organization largely intact.

One of those camps was recently uncovered by a U.S. armored column forcing its way through the dense jungle during Operation Junction City, the largest operation of the Vietnam war, involving more than 25,000 combat troops.

The camp had two main features—thatched shelters above ground and deep tunnels and trenches forming a pattern throughout the area.

A heavy jungle canopy overhead had been left to provide concealment and only the ground-level scrub had been cut back to allow the guerrillas freedom of movement.

Short poisoned punji sticks stuck out of the ground, almost hidden by the undergrowth surrounding the camp.

The sharp points were designed to wound troops throwing themselves to the ground when fired upon. The poison is said to kill a man in 20 minutes.

Two anti-personnel mines faced the tail entrance—both capable of blasting 500 heavy pellets after a tripwire had been touched.

Inside the perimeter of trenches and firing positions were four main thatched-roof buildings, including a large kitchen with a cast-iron stove and large copper and cast-iron pots.

A long stovepipe took the smoke down into an underground tunnel leading 50 yards away from the camp.

The dining room, some 20 yards away, contained two large, well-made tables and several wooden chairs.

Yugoslav Admits Bombing

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Yugoslav immigrant admitted in secret grand jury testimony made public Tuesday that he took part in the Jan. 29 bombings of six Yugoslav diplomatic missions in the United States and Canada.

Dragisha Kasikovic, 34, who was once imprisoned in Yugoslavia as an enemy of the Tito regime; was ordered jailed by U.S. district Judge Burnita S. Matthews for refusing to answer further questions before a grand jury investigating the bombings.

New Role for Old Schoolhouse

Young's School House to Become Carrying Place Garment Plant

CARRYING PLACE—Young's schoolhouse considered a community landmark at the junction of highway 33 and the second concession of Ameliasburg will not be downgraded like other country schools closed in the process of expanding elementary school areas. Some of them have been turned into pig pens and chicken coops, since they were vacated.

Young's schoolhouse, however, is to serve as a manufacturing establishment of children's and ladies' apparel thanks to an enterprising Toronto businessman.

Recently the one-room abandoned school building was purchased by a well known garment maker, A. P. Hayward. Earlier Mr. Hayward was engaged in a larger city based operation. His concern is established in Newfoundland to Victoria, B.C. on the west coast.

Interviewed at the local premises Mr. Hayward said his undertaking here was an endeavor to keep active by retaining an interest in business after many years of involvement. "There is adequate room in the school for all I intend taking on at this point in time," he explained, emphasizing no plans for expansion had been included in the blueprint for his current project. His enterprise will provide employment for five skilled sewing machine operators the year round.

The arrival of new industry in the township has sparked enthusiasm among elected officials in particular. Reeve George Cuningham views the acquisition as the forerunner of a trend expected to gain momentum with the opening of the Quinte Skyway this year joining the Prince Edward County road system to the two major highways for a direct route to the large metropolitan areas east and west without crossing by ferry at Glenora.

Last Thursday was the 100th anniversary of the Young's site as a designated school location. The original red brick schoolhouse was replaced by the present frame structure in the meantime.

The other night some of the former pupils gathered at the school for the last time. The party called a centennial get together was sponsored by Mr. and Mrs. William Hawkins, sr. of Carrying Place. The program included a special message of welcome for the new owner. Reeve Cuningham, deputy reeve Laird Adams, councillor Mrs. Reta Barrick and councillor Norman Post attended.

During the proceedings much reminiscing was prompted by a former teacher at the school, Mrs. Vernon Westfall of Carrying Place and Mrs. Ruth MacDonald of Consecon, who taught music and Sunday school classes at the school for 26 years. Township senior citizen, Mrs. Rose Chase, recalled the school was there when she came to the community as a bride. Ed Barrick of the Redoreville road acted as master of ceremonies.

Army Doctor Refuses To Instruct Medics

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — An army doctor faced a court martial today for refusing to obey orders to train U.S. Special Forces for Vietnam duty.

Capt. Howard Levy, 30, o Brooklyn, N.Y., went before the military tribunal at nearby Fort Jackson today after several efforts to get the trial transferred to a civilian court failed. The proceeding is expected to last a week.

The five charges against the specialist in dermatology include refusal to obey an order that he train Vietnam-bound Special Forces medics in the treatment of skin diseases.

A motion that precedent be shattered and the case be transferred to civilian courts was refused by the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington Tuesday.

Anthony Amsterdam, lawyer for the American Civil Liberties Union, argued for the transfer and said a soldier's right of free speech overrides the military right to silence him unless national security is directly involved.

He asked that the appeals court overrule a district court that refused last week to take he case from the military tribunal.

Irwin Goldbloom, arguing for the U.S. justice department, said the Levy case involved military discipline, not freedom of speech.

"Levy is asking unprecedented release, a release which no court ever has granted," Goldbloom said.

Levy also faces charges in connection with statements that he would refuse to serve in Vietnam if ordered to do so and his alleged references to Special Forces soldiers as "liars, thieves and killers."

Levy also is charged with "conduct unbecoming an officer and gentleman."

If convicted, Levy could be imprisoned for 11 years.

Pinch Hitting

By Garry Alexander
Staff Sportswriter

Dick Ellis has finally accomplished what he has been reaching for during the past few years.

He and his clique are on top of the Belleville and District Softball League world.

But it will get mighty lonely up there.

For, as was predicted so often last season, Ellis is in complete control — of a one-team league.

Gone are numerous district softball executives who controlled the league and kept it active with from four to seven clubs over the years.

Gone are the cutries from surrounding centres — Trenton, Tweed, Madoc, Point Anne, the RCAF, Picton and finally the other Belleville teams, which are so necessary if there is to be a league.

Bob Temple confirmed yesterday that he has folded the Bobcat club, "at least for his season."

Picton still has a ball club for the simple reason that Jim Guernsey and his mates feel that new blood in the form of Kingston teams would draw there this summer.

Guernsey made it clear earlier that "We had no intentions of coming back into a Belleville and District League such as it had been in the last year or so, controlled by a sponsor and a loaded executive." Madoc's Charley Hamilton said the same thing.

There could have been a solid six or seven-team league under the B. and D. banner this summer had there been an unbiased executive which would have permitted Dick Ellis the same amount of control in league matters as the other clubs had.

Along with Ellis, the Bobcats and Trudeau division from Belleville, Madoc, Picton, Point Anne and very likely one or two Trenton area teams would have entered.

At an early B- and D. meeting, Harry Rollins accepted the position of league president after several others had declined. "I know what shape the league is in but I am going to try and straighten it out," he said. He likely did try, as did others before him, but how much can you do against a stacked deck?

All of the out-of-town clubs announced they would not be back and that included Picton, leaving Ellis, Bobcats and Trudeaus.

Apparently Kingston is having woes too in fielding a healthy league so the two centres got together and at first it was announced that the three Belleville clubs, three from Kingston and Picton, now back because of Kingston, would play together.

Then Trudeau dropped out. A meeting was held in Belleville for the remaining three clubs in this area. Picton came in and so did Ellis but the Bobcats were not represented. It was stated that Temple's efforts in trying in several out-of-town players had not worked out.

But, it is alleged, Mr. Ellis paid the entry fee for Temple's club. Picton was not altogether happy, especially when "told" by Ellis men that you "will have to use the same umpires we do or else umpires from Picton will have to join the Belleville and District Umpire's Association." It was another effort to keep the Centennial umpires out of work.

This despite the fact that at a Napanee meeting it was agreed that Kingston could use their umpires for home games and Belleville theirs. Yet in keeping with the line of thinking that has wrecked the loop, Picton had to do as told.

Days later, rumor was flying that Temple had folded his Bobcats.

Rollins confirmed it Monday and said he did not know where the new Kingston-Belleville-Picton grouping stood now. "Doug Reid was to have presented a schedule to the Kingston clubs Saturday and said he would call me as soon as he got back but I have heard nothing from him. Kingston won't be happy with only one Belleville club. This is certainly going to leave a lot of players out of ball this season," he added.

Reached by phone, Temple said he had folded "because Kingston is a long trip for softball if not for hockey and because the two sports sort of run together and I just want to relax this summer."

He stressed, however, that it was likely for just one year. "Perhaps I'll be back when we have something like the old league, with Picton, Madoc, Trenton, several Belleville clubs playing again."

And there will be such a league again, too, when some people learn that no one team is bigger and more important than a league.

Orr Named To 2nd Team

All Stars; Four Hawks, Two Rangers

MONTREAL (CP) — Chicago Black Hawks won their first National Hockey League championship this year and players from the club are carrying this domination through the post-season awards.

The NHL announced today that four members of the Chicago club have been named to the first all-star squad, with a fifth holding down a spot on the second team.

Sports writers and broadcasters in the six NHL cities chose defenceman Pierre Pilote, left winger Bobby Hull, centre Stan Mikita and right winger Kenny Wharram to represent the Hawks on the first team. Glenn Hall, the veteran goaltender who was called out of retirement early in the 1966-67 season, was picked for the second team.

In addition to Hall, the second team has Tim Horton from Toronto Maple Leafs and rookie Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins on defence. Centre Norm Ullman and right winger Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings and left winger Don Marshall of New York complete the second squad.

The four Hawks named to the first team have all been chosen before. Pee Giacomin and Howell it is their initial selection.

Mikita, who tied the record for most points in a season by scoring 35 goals and a record 62 assists for 97 points, was the lone unanimous choice of the selectors. He drew a perfect 90 points in each half.

Hull drew 174 of the possible 180 votes, Pilote 156, Giacomin 149, Howell 147 and Wharram 117.

Howe topped the second team with 96 votes. Horton drew 94, Orr 89, Ullman and Hall 62 and Marshall 59.

All teams with the exception of Montreal Canadiens placed a man on the two teams. It is the first time in 34 seasons the Montrealers have failed to get a player on either squad.

Orr, the 18-year-old sensation who earlier won the Calder Trophy as rookie-of-the-year, is the first Boston player to be named to the all-stars since centre Bronco Horvath made the second team in 1958-59.

Voting was conducted at the end of the first half of the season and again after the 70-game schedule.

The only change on the over-all first screen from that of the first half is Wharram at right wing. He took over from New York's Rod Gilbert who drew only seven votes in the second half after leading the first poll with 80 points.

Each member of the first team receives $1,000, while the alternates collect $300 each. Leaders in each half receive $300 from the league, with the runners-up drawing $250.

Giacomin, Pilote, Orr, Mikita, Hull and Howe led the second-half voting, while the runner-up spots were taken by Denis DeJordy, Hall's goaltending partner at Chicago, Howell, Horton, Ullman, Wharram and Doug Mohns — Mikita's left winger.

Mikita also won the Hart and Lady Byng trophies as well as the Art Ross Trophy as league scoring champion, to make league history as the first player to win three awards in one season.

Memorial Cup

Marlies Two Games Up

FORT WILLIAM, Ont. (CP)— Toronto's mastery of the face-off circle was instrumental in their victory Tuesday night over Marlboro coach Gus Bodnar after his team's 8-4 win over Port Arthur Bruins.

He illustrated his point with a sheet of statistics which showed their big scoring line of Terry Caffery, Gerry Meehan and Doug Acomb controlled 25 of 39 faceoffs in leading Toronto to a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven Memorial Cup junior hockey final.

That line also spearheaded Marlboro's opening game 6-3 victory Sunday.

"We're playing pretty well," Bodnar said. "Any team that can score eight goals is."

The third game in the series will be played here Thursday night.

"We played better and they did too," Bodnar said after the game. The Port Arthur dressing room was locked to visiting Marlboros, hiding the score sheet 40 seconds into the first period, wrapped up the decision late in the second half with four goals in the space of three minutes and 58 seconds.

Marrs, whose goal scorers were Ken Rodgers, Tim McCormack, Bill Fairbairn and Chuck Kelner, had reduced a 3-0 deficit to one goal just before the Toronto deluge.

Edmonton Seeks Brewer

EDMONTON (CP)— Edmonton Nuggets have been negotiating for weeks with Carl Brewer in an attempt to "get him to come to Edmonton," Nuggets owner George Orlesky said Tuesday.

"Carl tried getting in touch with me by phone yesterday from Toronto but I wasn't in and he hasn't called back," Orlesky said in an interview. "I don't know where in Toronto to get in touch with him."

Orlesky was commenting on a Calgary report which said Brewer, a former National Hockey League star and member of the Canadian national team, soon will be named coach of the Nuggets.

Burned Driver Said Improved

MONTE CARLO (AP)—Italian race driver Lorenzo Bandini, injured in Sunday's Monaco Grand Prix, was reported in slightly improved condition today in Princess Grace Hospital.

His doctor said that Bandini's kidneys were functioning well, adding hope for eventual recovery.

Bandini was severely injured and suffered burns over 80 per cent of his body when his Ferrari overturned on a curve and caught fire.

Watch Your Language, Boys!

The Umpire Is A Lady!

NEW YORK (AP) — Bernice Gera doesn't want to play first base for the Yankees but she sees no reason why she can't stand behind the plate and call balls and strikes.

"For the life of me, I don't understand why women can't be baseball umpires," the blonde, 35-year-old Long Island housewife said today. "Look who you have doing the job now, a bunch of old men in their 50s, many of them fat and out of shape.

"You don't have to be an athlete to be an umpire. All you need is to know baseball, have good eyesight and good judgment. There are a lot of women who can fill that bill.

"I'm certain we will some day have women umpiring in the major — maybe sooner than you think."

It may be Bernice—a 5-foot-3, 125-pound package of energy who says:

"I have loved, eaten and lived baseball since I was eight years old. I want to find a place in baseball, preferably umpiring."

Bernice has applied — and been accepted—for the Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Baseball School, opening June 1. The first women ever to be admitted to the camp, she will spend four weeks there absorbing instruction from such baseball Hall of Famers as Mac Carey and Bob Feller.

"They know I'm a woman, and they didn't turn me down. I'll see how things go. When I get out, I'll probably start making applications to umpire."

The youngest of five children of a coal miner, Bernice began playing baseball with her two older brothers when she was eight in her home town of Gardiner, Pa.

She had a trunk full of trophies when she moved to New York in 1943, later marrying a free - lance photographer, Stephen Gera. She couldn't shake her interest in baseball.

She started coaching Little League teams and giving exhibitions for charity. She has hit a few fancy major league pitchers and performed with such personalities as Roger Maris, Sid Gordon and Cal Abrams. She gave a batting demonstration in Kansas City three years ago—at the invitation of Charles O. Finley, the owner of the Athletics.

The shapely Mrs. Gera has a certificate attesting to the fact that she has 20-20 vision, but that's not the main problem.

Most ball players have good eyesights, too, and who's going to make them keep their eyes on the ball?

STIMULANTS OUTLAWED

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Teammates of any athlete found to be taking stimulants during the 1968 Olympic Games and future Olympics will be automatically disqualified.

Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic committee, said Tuesday the new rule does not mean all athletes from the convicted athlete's country would be disqualified, but only those competing directly with him.

Win Fourth Game 4-0

Eagles Clean-Sweep Allan Cup Series

DRUMMOND V I L L E, Que. (CP)—Before the best-of-seven Canadian senior hockey final even started, Drummondville general manager Roland Bolduc predicted his Eagles would drub the visiting Calgary Spurs in four straight games.

So it was to be expected following Tuesday night's game 4-0 Eagle victory that Bolduc donned that "I - told - you - so" mantle. Drummondville did dump the Spurs in four straight to win their first Allan Cup.

The Eagles, playoff champions of the Provincial Senior Hockey League, outplayed the Spurs in every game in the series and the Western club had little chance to organize against Drummondville's gumption checking and skating.

"We were beaten by a better club and they deserved to win it," general manager Ron Butkin of the Spurs said after the game.

The Spurs seemed to run out of steam after the first 15 minutes and, the Eagles came on with two goals late in the first period.

Claude Oye turned in another sparkling performance for the Eagles, stopping 38 shots to register the shutout, his second of the series. He also blanked the Spurs 4-0 in the opening game last Wednesday.

Oye, who has signed for a try-out with Philadelphia Flyers, one of six new clubs that will ignite the expanded National Hockey League next season, was mobbed by team-mates as the final buzzer sounded.

'Drummondville's victory marked the 57th time in 59 years that the Eastern representatives in the final have won the award.

The last time a western team invaded the east and won the cup was in 1928 when Trail Smoke Eaters defeated Kirkland Lake, Ont., at Kirkland Lake.

The game was delayed five minutes at the half-way mark of the second period when Calgary's Jack Wilson lost his contact lenses and an attempt was made to find them.

Lapalme gave the Eagles a 1-0 lead at 15:38 of the first period when he scored on a deflection and Lagueux made it 2-0 less than three minutes later when he slid a 15-foot backhander under Botts.

Roberts increased Drummondville's lead to 3-0 at the one - minute mark of the second period when he and Lapalme combined on a two-way passing play. Lagueux closed out the scoring at the two - minute mark of the third period when he drove a low 20-foot wrist shot past Botts.

The Spurs were expected to leave for Calgary today.

NHL Expansion Draft

Governors Set 3-Minute Limit

NEW YORK (CP)—The National Hockey League Tuesday set the rules for its expansion draft next month.

The new NHL division of six teams will draft players from the six existing teams at a meeting in Montreal June 5 to 10.

The league's board of governors meeting here made no change in the previously announced ground rules which allow each of the current teams to protect one goaltender and 11 other players in the first round of the draft.

Established Tuesday was a three-minute time limit on each selection.

The present teams — Toronto Maple Leafs, Montreal Canadiens, Chicago Black Hawks, New York Rangers, Detroit Red Wings and Boston Bruins—must file their protected lists by 5 p.m. Monday, June 5. The lists will be checked and posted for inspection by the six new clubs at 9 a.m. the next day.

The draft will begin at 10 a.m. the same day.

The new teams are California Seals, Los Angeles Kings, Minnesota North Stars, Philadelphia Flyers, Pittsburgh Penguins and St. Louis Blues. They will operate in a separate NHL division.

Each expansion team will have three minutes from the time of the previous selection to make its player choice, including a 30-second warning. The current teams will have the same amount of time for filling their protected lists.

The first and second times an established team loses a player in the draft it can add one man to its protected list. Then the protected list remains unchanged while three more players are drafted from the team. After that, the established team will protect another player, lose one in the draft, protect another and so on until the draft is concluded.

Each of the six new teams is guaranteed two goalkeepers and 18 other players, and each existing team has the privilege the same number of players.

About 330 players are eligible for drafting.

Each club will be allowed three 10 - minute conferences during the draft period. If a player taken more than three minutes to make a pick, it will be regarded as having used up one of his conferences.

NHL President Clarence Campbell was asked what happens if one club exceeds the three permitted conferences.

"The penalty will be determined of the club's choice until the next claimant has made his selection," said Campbell. "It is not a big penalty, but it will make them think because they could lose a good draft choice.

Heavies' Tournament Line-up

NEW YORK (AP) — The eight-man heavyweight elimination tournament looks like a tidy little package, but in the wide world of boxing even the angles have angles.

This is the way Mike Malitz, president of the newly - formed Sports Action, Inc., has it lined up in his schedule book:

Sept. 18-Oct. 7—Karl Mildenberger, West Germany, vs. Thad Spencer, San Francisco, in Frankfurt, Germany.

Tentatively the semi - finals would be held Oct. 21 and Dec. 2 and the finals in late January, 1968.

But no contracts are signed.

If things work out, the fights would be held late Saturday afternoon and would be carried on home television with the finals reserved for closed circuit television.

However, Cassius Clay still is not out of the picture.

Although he has been stripped of his title by the New York state athletic commission and other groups, he is out on bail after pleading not guilty to a federal grand jury indictment on charges of refusing to accept military induction.

Clay wants to fight Chuvalo in Montreal and there is talk of bouts with Leotis Martin in Stockholm and possibly Spencer or Patterson in Tokyo during summer.

Chuvalo's manager, Irv Ungerman, said in Toronto Tuesday he was "very, very eager" to meet a Clay bout but added: "We'll try to fight Frazier in the elimination tournament."

Frazier so far has not agreed to participate in the tournament for which each first - round fighter will get a guarantee of $50,000.

"If Frazier holds out we definitely will be interested in meeting Clay," said Ungerman.

Rich Harness Race

Pigeons Pick Post Positions

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — It took eight racing pigeons 32 minutes to cover a little more than seven miles today to pick the post positions for Saturday's renewal of harness racing's richest race — the $178,064.70 Messenger Pace at Roosevelt Raceway.

Eight three-year-olds figure to make quick work of it in the one-mile race. Victory will be worth $89,032, a purse mark for trotters and pacers.

The draw for post positions was made at the monument marking the grave of Messenger, the foundation sire of trotters and pacers.

Each pigeon carried the number of a horse and the first back to the trap was the one bearing the name of Arthur Nardin's Byrd of North Bay Village, Fla., 107 crow. No. 3 post position. But Nardin's Byrd, never out of the money in 21 career starts, was rated no better than 2 to 1 by the track handicapper.

The No. 1 position went to Jackavin, a 9-to-5 choice on the basis of five straight victories this year.

Nardin's Byrd will have a capable stablemate in Romulus Hanover; winner of 12 of his 20 starts last year and two of three outings this season. Both are trained by Billy Haughton.

Second Of All, winner of 11 of his 13 races but not only since this year, also was quoted at 2 to 1; Nevele Dancer and Mr. Byrd were each quoted at 10 to 1, Coral Ridge 30 to 1 and Red Water 50 to 1.

Centennial Rally

Back Roads Shake Up Standings

KINGSTON (CP)—A pair of Ontario motorists and narrow backroads played a large part Tuesday in the shake - up in standings in the Centennial 4000 rally.

Paul MacLennan of Toronto and his navigator, John Wilson of Waterloo, Ont., slipped from first place with 21 points to fourth place with 155 points.

MacLennan and Wilson, in a Ford-sponsored Lotus Cortina, lost most of their points when they could not pass motorists on narrow roads.

On the first road, a car was stuck in the mud and the rally leaders had to wait until the stuck car was freed.

On the second, motorists in front of the pair slowed as a precaution to pull over to the side of the one-lane road.

As a result, Roger Clark of London, Eng., also in a Lotus Cortina moved into first place. Clark and his navigator, Jim Peters of Toronto, took only one penalty point in Tuesday's run here from North Bay.

They now have 24 points and are solid favorites to wind up as over-all winners of the event which finishes today in Montreal after eight gruelling days of 4,500 miles between Vancouver and Expo 67.

Karl Schulz and Paul Mason of Toronto moved into second place with 53 penalty points by picking up six Tuesday. Their Datsun 2000 running well and their navigator Schulz could be going all out to catch up with Clark today.

John Smith and her navigator, Ann Coombs of Toronto, in a Sunbeam Imp, have a total of 871 points, well ahead of their only competition, Diane Carter-Polivka of Toronto and Barbara Ann Scott of Hamilton, Ont., in a Rambler American with 1,585 points.

The third victory in the Coupe des Dames, Anita Taylor of Rotherham, Eng., and Terry Cawthorn of Montreal, dropped from the competition Tuesday when they got stuck in the mud near North Bay.

Leading the private section are Herb Felton of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and his navigator Jim Sinclair of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., in an Austin Cooper.

They have a total of 313 points and stand sixth over-all.

Bruce and Betty Schmidt of Trowbridge, Ont., have 605 points in a Volkswagen and lead the Lake mixed crew section.

After Tuesday's run, Datsun led the manufacturers' event with 1,637 points, American Motors was second with 2,728 points and the Volkswagen dealer's team third with 2,932 points.

Carew's Bat Sparks Twins

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The advice Rod Carew gets doesn't go in one ear and out the other. Both ears are too busy listening—ear to ear language and the other ear to another.

Sometimes, however, Carew's bat does the talking, such as Tuesday night when he rapped three hits, giving him eight in two nights, as Minnesota Twins crushed Washington Senators 10-1.

Carew is an American who was born in Panama and learned Spanish fluently before moving to Brooklyn. As a result of his bilingual ability, the 21-year-old second baseman gets advice in Spanish from his Latin team-mates and advice in English from his U.S. teammates.

The hits have fallen in so well so far that Crew is hitting .342, third best in the league.

In other AL games, Detroit Tigers edged Cleveland Indians 4-3, Chicago White Sox nipped Baltimore Orioles 5-4, Kansas City Athletics topped Boston Red Sox 4-3 before 'Boston Red Sox 4-3 before 'boston and New York Yankees squeaked by California Angels 5-4.

Carew stretched his streak to seven straight hits before he was given credit for a fielder's choice on a run-scoring squeeze

LINES FROM THE LANES

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

FIVE, FIVE
It's another big weekend in town for tournaments and 36 of them in the city alone. Tomorrow is the finish in match play Sunday for the Intelligencer Gold Cup, beginning at 1:30 at the Bowls-O-Drome.

There's lots and prizes up for grabs and anybody can meet against man - masters or the ladies' champion. Sunday's the deadline for list of entries in last Friday's apparently there was a mistake when the draw was and in. This does not change the bowlers but does slow things up a bit. Sunday's draw is for 32 rinks in the 110 average class, are attending Jack Pelton, Harry Taylor, Jim McKenzie, Ron Saylor, Bill Saleman, Lloyd Rowland, Jim Barber, Glenn Hamilton, Art Bullet, Bill Bullet, Ken Bullet, Ken Bullet, Ron Forrest, Dick Hopkins, Bill Hardwick, George Crabb, Les Lennox, Art Allen, Bob Dallas, Les Lennox, Tom Fletcher of Trenton, Jack Stewart, Gil Campbell, Cliff Hooker, Ted Bowers and Wally Allen. If any of these names are not here, are ready to fill in if somebody can't make it.

There will be a weak link in the list so anybody can win.

Congratulations are in order for Chloe "Woody" Woodward who bowled brilliantly to capture the "Mr Bowling" crown here last Saturday with a record 2823 total. It's used a tournament - high single of 1,201 and a high game of 399 to top Jim Saylor, Jim Barber, Les St. Louis and others. It was an exciting climax to a great tourney. 52 bowlers competed.

TEN PINS
Gar Anderson comes along into Belleville Tuesday night for the nation's annual men's championships tournament coming up at the Brunswick Belleville Bowl this Saturday and Sunday.

The closing deadline for entries is 7 p.m. Friday and Gar, who is the A.B.C. sanctioned tournament which will see champions named for the 1966-67 season for five-man teams, two - man teams, singles and all - events.

The five-man team event will be held Saturday evening beginning at 7:00 o'clock with the two - man and individual events getting under way Sunday at 1:00 p.m.

Prize money will be good, based on the number of entries received in Anderson, who has been association secretary and is acceptable to the sanctions. The tournament committee consists of R. Lowson, R. Christopher, Jack Bell, D. Cannon, R. Foster and A. Wakin. Gar expects to be here for the tourneys and their supervisory at the Bowl this weekend.

There were a couple of happy ten - pinners in town Saturday night in the persons of Barbara Ann Scott and Barbara Wood. Barbara won the women's section and Gord the men's in the finals of the Brunswick Bowl-Your-Way-To-Europe tournament here defeating more than 50 others.

The pair are still a long ways from Europe but their ten trips to Washington, D.C. later this month to compete against other winners from Canada and the United States in the finals of the bowl will take them. The city's good wishes go with them to Washington.

This tourney is based on the individual's average and the bowler who tops his or her own average by the most pins wins. Barbara, who is a new comer, finish her season's average by 34 pins and Alex topped his by 35.

With The Trotters

TORONTO (CP)—King C. Lee an eight-year-old trotter, picked up his third consecutive victory Tuesday night, winning the eighth race at Greenwood Raceway. He edged out Irish Valley by a half length and paid $17.60, $6.60 and $4.40. Prince McKlyo combined for a $5.10 daily double.

Rejean Boily, 23, - year - old Quebec City native, set up the head end of a $20.30 exactor in the sixth when he drove Tiki Hanover to a $10.80 victory over Teddy Direct C.

A crowd of 8,541 wagered $237,033.

Russia Has Visions Of World Minor Hockey Championship

MOSCOW (CP) — Canada's hopes of regaining the world amateur hockey championship got a dose of cold water from the latest reports of minor hockey activities in the Soviet Union.

A far-flung organization has grown up to develop talent and keep the national team replenished. And there's evidence that Moscow no longer dominates teen-age hockey.

The U.S.S.R. appears to have gone slightly hockey mad. And when the enthusiasm is added to the fact that this country has more than 11 times the population of Canada, it's obvious the talent pool is almost bottomless.

Even more important, there is no equivalent of the National Hockey League and other professional organizations to draw off the top levels of the amateur graduates.

An illustration of how far this movement has progressed was provided by the all-union junior championships in Kazan, 450 miles east of Moscow.

About 250 teams took part. And they represented the best of thousands of other local clubs. For example, in the Tartar Republic, of which Kazan is the principal city, 1,000 teams participated in local playoffs.

In the region around Gorky, an automobile city halfway between Moscow and Kazan, 750 teams operated this season.

And where Moscow teams used to walk off with all the purses, the big Kazan tourney this year was dominated by teams from far to the east.

Boys from Kuibyshev, south of Kazan, won the title in the 17-18 age bracket; Chelyabinsk, in the Urals, took the 15-16 class, and Novosibirsk, nearly 1,000 miles east of the Urals, won the 13-14 category.

After the national competitions were over, a junior team picked from the best young players in the country went abroad to play against minor teams from East Germany and Czechoslovakia.

Organization of minor hockey is intended to provide a reliable, permanent substructure for senior hockey which has been well-organized for a number of years and is still growing.

In theory, the Soviet Union's potential for producing hockey stars should be practically unlimited with its 230,000,000 people, even though under climatic conditions favorable to winter sports.

The game is really only about 20 years old in this country. Yet it has caught the fancy of the people in a big way. And the kids are starting young.

During the winter vast numbers of youngsters can be seen playing shinny, both in the city and in the country. And one of the most popular gifts at New Year's, the principal gift-giving holiday here, is a hockey stick.

Perhaps one reason for the spreading interest is that television and radio bring the glamor of the world championships into homes across the country. Russian boys listen to or watch these games. And where a Canadian boy might dream of becoming another Bobby Hull, the Russian youngster thinks only of being good enough to win a place on the national team and going abroad to play for the Motherland.

Cards Top Pirates

Cubs Pound Giants; Santo 5-for-5

By JOHN RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ron Santo, who started the season in a batting slump, recently had shown some signs of improvement.

But the hard - hitting Chicago Cub third baseman improved all over the place Tuesday with the first 5-for-5 game of his career as the Cubs pounded San Francisco Giants 10-2.

Early in the season Santo was hitting, .086 and not until the Cubs returned for their current homestand did he start getting some hits.

Also hitting a lot better in Wrigley Field's familiar surroundings is Ernie Banks with eight hits—two of them homers —and eight runs batted in during the last five games. He had two hits, one a two-run double, in Tuesday's triumph.

In other National League action, St.-Louis Cardinals topped Pittsburgh Pirates 6-3, Houston Astros beat Los Angeles Dodgers, 5-2, Philadelphia Phillies nudged Atlanta Braves 3-2 and New York Mets slipped past Cincinnati Reds 3-2 in 11 innings.

The Cubs scored four times in the sixth inning, with pitcher Ray Culp's two-run triple the big blow. Glenn Beckert homered for the Cubs and Tom Haller of the Giants extended his hitting streak to seven straight before grounding out.

Orlando Cepeda had four hits, drove in two runs and scored two himself in the Cards' victory. Roger Maris, who has been pacing up the long ball for base hits, got his first National League homer.

Ron Davis' homer and run-scoring single led the Astros past the Dodgers and Larry Dierker picked up his third victory against two defeats with some ninth-inning relief help from Claude Raymond.

Reliever Dick Hall for the Phillies got Hank Aaron to hit a fod fly with the bases loaded and two out in the eighth, preserving the Philadelphia victory. Don Lock's two-run homer gave the Phils the margin.

Tommy Davis' 11th - inning homer gave the Mets their win and handed Mel Queen his first defeat after four straight triumphs.

Leafs Zero Suns 6-0

Toronto Maple Leafs and Toledo Mud Hens swapped places in the International League standings Tuesday, and while it wasn't much of a trade, it at least gave Toronto baseball fans something at which to take heart.

For the first time this season, the Maple Leafs left last place in the eight-team league with a 6-0 defeat of Jacksonville Suns.

At the same time the Mud Hens were absorbing their fourth straight loss, a 6-1 drubbing at the hands of Rochester Red Wings. In the third game of the night, Richmond Virginians outslugged league leading Buffalo Bisons 7-3 as Ed Rachow survived early home runs by Cal Emery and Mel Perry to post a six-hit victory.

For the first time this year the Leafs showed some punch at the plate with Jose Cardero and Sid O'Brien pacing an 11-hit Toronto attack.

Dave Morehead scattered seven Jacksonville hits.

Miners Dig Upcoming Fight

GLACE BAY, N.S. (CP)—This coal mining centre of 24,000, one of the last good "fight towns" on the continent, is talking boxing again this week.

In tiny pits deep under the neighboring Atlantic and in the miners' washhouses, much of the conversation is about Saturday's Canadian middleweight title fight between champion Blair Richardson of nearby South Sar and challenger Jim Mellmor of Windsor, Ont.

The fight talk is music to the promoters' ears, indicating that fight card has fallen in popularity in many areas, the promise of a good fight can bring out the fans here.

A crowd of more than 4,000 is expected for the Richardson-Mellmor 12 - rounder in the creaking Miners' Forum, venue over the years of dozens of fight cards.

The Forum has held as many as 6,100 for a boxing card.

The last time that many fans jammed the smokey, humid arena was in 1953 when Richardson won the Canadian title from Wm' Greaves of Edmonton in a gruelling battle they still talk about here.

Richardson, a blond 26-year-old youth worker in Boston, is well known here. Most of his important fights, including his British Empire middleweight title victory over Gomeo Brennan last year, have been in the Forum.

Prefers Tigers To Argos

WELLAND (CP)— Defensive halfback Ed Learn, traded to Toronto Argonauts Monday by Montreal Alouettes, says he would rather play for Hamilton Tiger-Cats than Argos.

"With Hamilton, I could live at home, work and still commute back and forth, he said Tuesday. "Toronto is a longer drive. It may even be impossible but I will have to see what can be worked out."

Learn, who sells cars here during off-season, said he would talk to Toronto officials before deciding whether he will report to Argos.

Dear Mom:

Hope you can spare a few minutes from your busy schedule today to read what we wish to tell you on the occasion of Mother's Day next Sunday... things we've really meant to say long before now. We're been so busy trying to keep ahead of you... and you've been so busy looking after the family... that we haven't had time to say some of the things we meant to — until now! You see, we feel really close to you... having served you... your mom... and maybe even her mom with the things up-to-date Canadian women have come to expect of a modern supermarket... things that only you as a homemaker understand.

First of all, you are the single most important person in our life... and just in case we've ever overlooked saying it before, we think the job you're doing as mother, counsellor, tutor, chef, nurse and the dozens of other roles you perform, is truly an inspiration. Sometimes we wonder just how you manage to get it all done. Yet, you always come through.

Not only do we care... but also, we understand. We understand how important service... quality... and reliability are to you. And that's why we're continually planning to be able to meet the standards you will set in the future. If we've ever let you down in any small way, Mom, please let me apologize here and now... and assure you that anytime I can personally be of service to you, do be sure to see me.

Yours very truly,

Your Dominion Manager

P.S. We think you're the greatest!

THE LITTLE WOMAN

Real Progress Made on Park

DESERONTO — Now that spring is here, real progress is being made in Centennial Park, the committee was told when meeting under the chairmanship of Bert Lloyd last week. The cement footings have been poured for the change houses and washrooms.

Last Thursday children of the public school planted 200 white spruce and 200 silver maple trees along the front of the park proper. None were planted in front of the trailer camp. The trees were planted in a double row, with the evergreens nearest the road.

Chain link fencing which will act as a safeguard for children along the ravine is now on the site. Once the posts have been installed and the fencing is in place, it is hoped to throw open the area beyond the ravine to Scout and Girl Guide groups for camping, meetings and picnics. The same type of fencing will also be put up to mark the boundary between the park and the adjoining private property at the extreme west.

A food company has donated 45 gallon cans which will be used for trash, and delivered them to the White Elephant Store, where the women who form the store committee will paint them.

Ernie Lark is turning over the proceeds from his Lucky Strike Lanes Monday evening, for tickets sold for Centennial Park by the Y.B.C's. If enough tickets are sold he will repeat this offer next week, he told the meeting.

An additional substantial donation has been collected through the efforts of the Royal Canadian Legion, branch 220, which has already contributed $500 as a branch. One of the posters asking for donations of either money or labor was posted in the hall, and the total cash contributed by both members and visitors is $97.

A great many people have volunteered to furnish labor, the secretary, Jack Layfield, reported. The question of park benches has not yet been decided by the committee appointed to look into the matter. A motion authorized the purchase of 10 more picnic tables.

The question of curbs to prevent cars from driving from the roadway on to the grass has been settled. Sixty concrete curbs, weighing approximately 300 pounds each, will be ordered from the Department of Justice. These are being manufactured by inmates of the penitentiary at Collins Bay. Various sources were investigated, but prices were much better on these.

When Councillor James Sharpe, appointed for the curbs for the park he was able to obtain them through special arrangements. Councillor Sharpe is an employee of the Collins Bay Penitentiary, and is also an active member of the Centennial Park Committee.

Square Dancers Attend Meet In Trenton

NAPANEE — Thirteen couples, recent graduates of "The Pioneers" square dancing class, attended the square dance meet in Trenton Saturday night, held at the Canadian Armed Forces Base, in Trenton.

It was a gala event, widely attended, with couples there from Kingston, Toronto, and many other points, some as far away as Sudbury and Sioux Lookout. The whole club came by bus from Albany, N.Y.

Doctors Should Tell Drug Effect

NAPANEE, Ont. (CP) — A man for whom drugs are prescribed should be warned in writing by the doctor that he is going to be impaired if he takes a drink, Magistrate R. C. Jackson said Monday.

He was commenting on a charge of impaired driving against Russell Vanesa, 45, of Kaladar, Ont., who pleaded not guilty and testified that he had taken a barbiturate before being stopped by police and charged.

The man's physician, Dr. A. A. Hoscin of Roslin, said the pill he had taken, when mixed with alcohol, could produce an impaired effect.

Magistrate Jackson said it is a "horrible situation" when no warning is given to a motorist who takes barbiturates.

The case was remanded to June 12.

Doctors Prepare Strike Plan Just in Case Fees Are Frozen

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. R. M. Matthews, outgoing president of the Ontario Medical Association, said Tuesday the association is preparing a strike plan although no immediate strike action is contemplated.

"We just feel we have to have plans for any contingency," the Peterborough doctor told a news conference following a council session of the OMA annual meeting.

Dr. Matthews said the OMA council had asked its plan-of-action committee to prepare a draft for presentation at the next council meeting on "ways and means of organizing the curtailment or withdrawal of services."

He said the strike plan might be used in the event the federal government attempted to freeze doctors fees, but only after all other forms of resistance had been tried.

Dr. Matthews said he anticipated no conflict with the provincial government as long as doctors had the right to contract fees with the patient. However, he said that if the government becomes the total purchaser of services, that would change the picture.

Dr. Matthews earlier told the OMA council it was inevitable that the federal government would be forced to control the cost of its medical care program, possibly with the use of a freeze on doctors' fees.

Ontario Health Minister Matthew Dymond said Tuesday there was no mention of doctors' fees during recent discussions on medical care insurance between the Ontario and federal governments.

Dr. Dymond said in the legislature recently that doctors' fee increases should be subject to some form of voluntary negotiations between the doctors and the provincial government.

In his address to the OMA council, Dr. Matthews, made no mention of Dr. Dymond's plan for negotiation of fee increases, but he criticized members of the legislature who opposed the OMA's January fee increases.

In a later session of the OMA council, a resolution was passed urging changes in proposed amendments to the Ontario Public Health Act which threatens the interests of Ontario doctors.

Dr. Matthews said following the council session that Bill 71, which is before the legislature, gives the health minister "power to require doctors to obtain a special licence to operate a health facility and to stipulate the qualifications for such a licence."

"The bill is so broad it could be used to take over our practices. We want an amendment which would exclude offices operated by physicians licensed by the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario."

Dr. W. J. S. Melvin of Kingston, elected Tuesday to succeed Dr. Matthews as OMA president, said the OMA had no reason to think the health department intended to use the bill to place new restrictions on doctors.

"But once it's on the books it can be used. We must be suspicious of any open-ended legislation."

Kingston Doctor Named President

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. W. J. S. Melvin of Kingston Tuesday was elected president of the Ontario Medical Association, succeeding Dr. R. M. Matthews of Peterborough.

Other officers elected at the association's annual meeting were: Dr. James Small, Midland, Ont., vice-president; Dr. J. H. Walters, London, Ont., chairman of the board, and Dr. L. W. Herwick, Toronto, treasurer.

Dr. Melvin is a former associate professor of surgery at Queen's University in Kingston and is on the staff of Hotel Dieu and Kingston General hospitals.

He is a member of the medical advisory boards of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children, the Rehabilitation Foundation for the Disabled, and the Canadian Occupational and Physiotherapy Association.

Dr. Melvin joined the OMA board of directors in 1962, was elected chairman of the board in 1965 and vice-president in 1966.

MDs Ask Babysitters Receive Health Checks

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Medical Association approved a measure Tuesday asking the labor department to require health certificates for baby-sitters working with registered agencies.

The recommendation was made by the Committee on Child Welfare at the association's annual meeting.

Dr. G. G. Hinton, committee chairman, said the certificates should include an assessment of mental health and chest x-rays.

The association also approved the committee's recommendation that medical schools be urged to include training in behavioral sciences, emotional disorders and learning problems in their curriculums.

Approval was given to the proposed installation of kits for doctors' use in police cars and ambulances.

Belgium Offers Pavilion to Montreal

MONTREAL (CP)— Belgium today became the third country to offer its pavilion to the city of Montreal after Expo 67 closes next Oct. 27.

Prince Albert, who represented his country Tuesday at its national day at Expo, made the offer at a press conference following the ceremony.

There was no immediate word of acceptance from Mayor Jean Drapeau but at the opening ceremonies of Expo April 27 he said he hoped it would be possible to preserve the "great structures and units" after the fair's end.

Previously, Ethiopia and the Indian Ocean island of Mauritius had offered their pavilions to the city.

The $3,000,000 Belgian pavilion is a three-storey structure of light-brown brick with large gold - tinted glass panels that make it largely transparent.

The theme of its exhibits, which include priceless masterpieces of art, is "Humani nihil alienum a Belgis" (No human quality is foreign to the Belgians).

Meanwhile, Prince Albert continued his visit to Expo with a planned reception aboard the Belgian naval training ship Kasimina which docked Sunday.

The national day Tuesday was a personal triumph for Princess Paola who accompanied her husband, Prince Albert, to the ceremony. Photographers jostled each other fiercely to get good positions for photographing the lovely princess but she showed no irritation.

Later today, the royal couple leave for Quebec where they will take off for a five-day tour of Northern Quebec, including Fort Chimo, Wabaham and Poste 'a la Baleine.

Attendance for the day was 135,934 compared with an expected 97,140. Total attendance at the fair to date is 3,277,677.

Eight Hundred Flags at Expo Driving Protocol Boys Crazy

MONTREAL (CP)—The most flag-dipping place in Canada right now is Expo '67 with thousands of banners rippling from uncounted flag-poles across the 1,000-acre site.

Biggest flag-dyer is the Expo corporation itself whose protocol consultant, Janet Kay, is the maintenance of more than 800 flags and be ready to come up with unusual flags for the fair's special and national days.

"We are going crazy just trying to keep up with them," Paul Leblanc, protocol assistant, said Tuesday.

Next in the flag department is the United Nations pavilion which flies the banners of 122 member nations plus the Expo and Quebec flags.

The UN pavilion expects to change its nylon flags, measuring five feet by four, every six weeks. The wear and tar on the flags is heavy because they are unfurled 24 hours a day in all weather.

Mr. Leblanc said Expo is putting a man on the job next week with the sole responsibility of replacing flags that are worn or dirty.

In addition to the six-by-three flags of the 62 nations participating with Canada in the fair, flown at the main entrances at Place d'Accueil and on St. Helen's Island, Expo has scattered about the site 30 flags of Canada, 30 of Expo, 30 of Quebec, 150 of Montreal and 30 centennial banners.

Then there are the big six-by-11 flags of participating nations flown from staffs at Place des Nations where Expo holds its national days honoring participating countries and paying homage to various organizations such as the Red Cross or the St. John Ambulance Association.

Some flags, heavy with labor costs, may cost up to $300 apiece.

The flag that keeps Mr. Leblanc and his crew busiest, however, is Canada's own.

"It is light-coloured and it gets dirty and it has to be replaced most often because it fades," he said. Mr. Leblanc said Expo soon expects to remedy this by using a Canadian flag with non-fading dye in the red maple leaf.

Halifax Actors Triumph Again

MONTREAL (CP) — Neptune Theatre's production of "The Sleeping Bag," by Nova Scotia playwright Arthur L. Murphy, ... enthusiastically received in ... Tuesday night.

... audience at Place des Arts warmly applauded and laughed through the comedy, the second of two contributions by the Halifax group at Expo 67's world festival.

Theatre critics were also impressed by the Monday night presentation of the group, Sean O'Casey's Juno and the Paycock.

The Neptune Theatre, only four years old and already esteemed by some as one of the five best repertory companies on the continent, gives two more performances of each play at the festival.

The Sleeping Bag is about a scientist, his explorer-guide and the scientist's attractive — if naive-secretary, stranded in the Arctic.

The reason the play came out so well was the complete absence of "gimmicks."

The play's author, Arthur L. Murphy, is not a full - time author but a former summer reporter for the Halifax Herald who now combines his duties as a surgeon with writing theatrical scripts.

Farmers March May 24 Despite Greene's Note

OTTAWA (CP) — Some 3,000 Ontario and Quebec farmers plan to protest federal dairy policy on Parliament Hill May 24 despite a telegram from Agriculture Minister Greene telling them the date is not suitable.

The presidents of the Ontario Farmers Union, Ontario Federation of Agriculture and Union Catholic des Cultivateurs de Quebec disclosed details of the minister's May 6 telegram—and their decision to go ahead, regardless—at a press conference Tuesday.

The organizations had already told the government of their intention to parade on the Hill May 24, and to submit a brief to the cabinet that day. Details of the March on Ottawa had been sent to local branches when the Greene telegram arrived.

The key demand of the dairy farmers is for a $5.10 guarantee for every 100 pounds of milk used for manufacturing. The federal dairy policy effective April 1, 1967, guarantees ... $4.75.

Mr. Munro said there are ... other inequities in the dairy policy." Under the new policy ... — Ontario farmers who ship milk for both manufacturing and fluid sale—lost all the federal subsidy.

SANTA KEPT WAITING

THURSO (AP)—The 200 inhabitants of the island of Foula in the Shetlands, off the north of Scotland, celebrated Christmas two months late this winter. All's well on the island, the postmaster reported by radio in February, although rough seas had kept the mailboat in port since Dec. 14. Foula was isolated for 73 days in 1961.

Neglect Caused Death

TORONTO (CP)—A coroner's jury ruled Tuesday that the three-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Phillips died from malnutrition, the result of gross negligence on the part of his parents.

The jury recommended the parents undergo psychiatric treatment and that their remaining child, a three-year-old girl, be placed in the care of the Children's Aid Society.

The parents testified they went to bed midnight Sept. 24, 1966, and slept until noon.

Mrs. Phillips, 20, said she rose and went to look at the infant in his carriage. She said he appeared grey, different from his usual color.

Mr. Phillips, 23, said he tried artificial respiration and then bundled the baby into a blanket and looked up the nearest hospital in the telephone book.

Dr. Fred Jaffe, the pathologist, told the inquest the dead child had bruises on his back and legs, had suffered five broken ribs that had healed and had sores identified as diaper rash.

TV, Radio Control Is Sought

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Daniel Johnson said Tuesday the province should have control over content of radio and television programs broadcast in Quebec.

He told the legislature that the province should have the right to censor content because "it's a matter concerning education," a provincial responsibility.

Speaking during discussion of spending estimates of the provincial secretary's department, he said he hopes to establish a "television bureau" under jurisdiction of the superior council of education, an advisory group within the education department.

Asked by reporters whether provincial control would extend over French and English networks of the CBC, he replied: "Why not?"

Red Skelton Writes, Composes Music, Paints

Complex, creative and self-driven, once described as moody but now clearly a happy man at 53.

—Writes a love letter daily to his wife—and has been doing so for 22 years.

—Sleeps five hours, rises at 5 a.m., writes, composes and paints for five hours before breakfast and has dinner at 3 p.m.

—Composes five to 10 melodies daily at a piano, to tape recorders, and has 22 marches being played in schools around the U.S.

—Writes a short-story outline a day and completes one story a week.

—Paints oil pictures by the hundreds — formerly clowns numbering more than 800—but now mostly grotesque characters with droopy chins and eyes.

—Dictates into a tape recorder's neck microphone — whistling, humming tune ideas and outlining pantomimes and sketches—as he drives his car between his home and CBS-TV in Hollywood.

—Drinks gallons of iced tea and swears off the pounds ago by working in his garden in an oilcloth raincoat—"Greatest sauna bath in the world," says Red.

U.S. television's longest-lasting comic, now in his 16th consecutive starring season, erupts in conversation in such philosophical vein as:

—"I have a collection of clocks, none of them work. I think more people waste time looking at a clock than anything else. There's plenty of time. The trick is to apply it."

—"I see beauty in everything. A blade of grass all of a sudden becomes a spiral, a cathedral, with a small diamond on the end of it, a dewdrop."

This six-foot-two, 185-pound man with freckles, pink complexion and poetic mind has been described by an associate as "the new Red Skelton, the silent, sincere," most warm-hearted character in show business."

Once he was pictured as sad and lonely, a moody Pagliacci who had fired a succession of agents, managers and personal advisers.

A Says Red: "I let people take me right and left."

Others have said: "Red has finally found peace—with himself and with the world." . . . "He has the soul of an artist and the kindness of a saint."

Skelton has said his wife, Lothrud, who died at 34 in 1958 of leukemia, gave him an understanding of pain and a feeling for people who were suffering.

And, with new associates and time to understand himself, he said in 1962: "I'm more content than ever since we moved to Palm Springs, things have straightened out."

Red and his wife Georgia—he calls her Little Red and she calls him Big Red—live in a magnificent structure of stone, glass and wood. He's on a green at the Tamarisk Country Club, where Red, although not a golfer, is a member.

"I can sit here and cast my show or a picture," says the star of more than 30 films, "because every celebrity in the world goes by."

Among them are Andy Williams, Danny Kaye, Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin, Val Brynner and Dwight D. Eisenhower. Lucille Ball putt-putted up on her motorbike one day and told the maid: "You tell Red to get out and play with me. I'm lonely."

Train Robbery Movie May Make $8 Million

HUSBANDS BOSWORTH, England (CP)—Once again the mail express pulls up with a screech of brakes in the middle of the night on a lonely stretch of track in rural England.

Once again, as on that dramatic August night in 1963, masked robbers swoop out of the darkness to overpower the driver, break into the bullion car and get away with more than £2,500,000 in banknotes.

This time, however, the Great Train Robbery has resurfaced round the world is being carried out with the full co-operation of the law and British directors. The re-enactment, taking place on a closed branch line in Leicestershire — the actual hold-up happened in a cutting near Cheddington, Buckinghamshire — will be a movie expected to make $8,000,000 if it gets worldwide distribution, $500,000 more than the original loot, the bulk of which is still missing.

The movie, for which the leading role, Bobby Baker, will be some of the money, presented its makers with a bust of legal problems before they, for instance, be sued by members of the original cast, now serving hefty jail sentences? Two GCI and three U.S. lawyers were called in by Baker and co-producer Michael Deeley to shape a script free from the threat of writ.

They emerged with a formula that sets a near-documentary, 25-minute reconstruction of the actual robbery in a fictitious framework speculating on events before and after the crime. Names of characters were changed several times.

"We had to make sure there was no risk of accidental identification with anyone," said Baker, who plays the gang leader. "Our greatest fear involved is the film are in no way based on the characters who took part in the Great Train Robbery."

Otherwise no detail has been spared in Robbery to make the trappings authentic. The mail train leased by British Railways is hauled by an express engine identical to the one pulling the Glasgow-Euston express Aug. 8, 1963. Offers of advice from persons claiming knowledge of the event that night have been flowing in to the film company.

"If everyone who came forward was really at the know, the line must have been pretty crowded that night," commented Deeley.

Drinker Recovers His Sight

CAMPBELL RIVER, B.C. (CP)—An 18-year-old Indian youth who was blinded following a wood alcohol drinking spree last February is slowly regaining his sight.

"I've never heard of a case like it," said Dr. Don Kirk, who treated Clarence Paul. "It's been a surprise to all of us."

Clarence, who terms his recovery so far "a miracle," was admitted to hospital in this Vancouver Island city totally blind after the drinking session with three other youths.

The methyl hydrate killed one of his companions. Another was blinded for life when the fluid destroyed his optic nerve.

Clarence's recovery is slow, but he can make out objects and can see the sun which nearly set for the last time for him.

"Normally a person who is going to regain his sight will do so in about four days," said Dr. Kirk. Clarence's recovery started much later.

"It would appear there was just enough of the nerve remaining, connected for the healing process to take place," the doctor said.

"It was a foolish thing to do," admitted Clarence. "I'll never do anything like that again. I'm so thankful."

Nanette Fabray Has Recovered Hearing Lost for Many Years

"What was that?" she asked her husband, writer Ronald McDougall.

"That," he replied, "was my book of matches falling on our three-inch carpet."

The incident dramatized a year and change in the life of Nanette Fabray. She now can hear.

Two months ago she underwent an operation to correct a condition that apparently had afflicted her for life. She had otosclerosis, a hardening of the bones that vibrate to provide hearing.

"My hearing now is beginning to grow more normal," said the actress, "but at first the sound was fantastic."

"I remember being in a blind race as I was emerging from the anesthetic. I was hearing some loud noise, which I later discovered to be the sheet rubbing against my bandage.

"One morning I was making breakfast for my husband. I poured some corn flakes into a bowl and the noise was so strong I had to clap my hand over my ear."

Miss Fabray, who can be seen in an NBC re-creation of the old Colgate Comedy Hour Thursday night, provides an example of how a performer can succeed despite a handicap—or perhaps because of it.

Miss Fabray said as a result of her deafness she became shy and withdrawn. She devoted her time and energies to performing. She never realized the extent of her handicap until one night on tour in Bloomer Girl.

"I went onstage and was amazed to find I couldn't hear the orchestra," she recalled. "I went to a doctor in that city and he told me there was nothing to be done. I would be stone deaf in five years.

"You can imagine the effect. I was shattered, destroyed. Fortunately I went to another doctor in New York who said I might not go deaf. But he said there was nothing I could do but wear a hearing aid."

For 10 years Miss Fabray performed with a hearing aid.

In recent years she has talked freely about her affliction and works with several hearing organizations. She feels publicity about deafness will persuade those who have hearing problems to overcome their fears of stigma and to seek help.

Poison Ivy Pills May Prevent Woes

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any kind of shot or medicine I can take to prevent poisoning from poison ivy, poison oak, etc.? I usually wind up getting these terrible rashes and medicine to put on the rash to help dry it.

It seems that I don't have to touch the plant to get it. It must just be carried on the wind. It's humiliating, miserable! — Mrs. D. T.

I can give you a little hope, but limited. There are varying opinions on prevention of such poisoning. It is my understanding that injections are worthless, but I am willing to stand corrected if there is real evidence to the contrary.

Tablets containing the principal offending substance taken by mouth, may have some value, although some physicians doubt it.

If used at all, these tablets should be employed only by persons highly sensitive to the plants, and they should use the tablets under a physician's direction, since there are reports of reactions from their use.

The best protection is to understand and recognize the three-leaf plant and stay away from it.

You must come in contact with the sticky juice of the plant to be poisoned, and the plant must be broken or bruised for the poison to be released. It doesn't take much to bruise a leaf, though.

The poison isn't carried by the wind, unless the plants are being burned and the sap is carried by particles of smoke. That definitely can carry the poison.

There are other ways it can be carried, however — on shoes or other clothing, on the fur of animals.

You can suspect that you have been exposed to the plant, wash thoroughly and as soon as you feel the slightest itch. Don't wait for the rash to appear. Immediately, if possible, wash with a strong soap, which will remove the poison. It can also be dissolved and swabbed off with rubbing alcohol.

If poisoning develops anyway, drying agents (Burow's solution, zirconium ointments, aluminum chloride solutions) will help.

In severe cases, cortisone derivatives or injections of ACTH may be necessary.

Penicillin would not help the situation directly, but might be necessary if the blister-broken infected.

All of this may be small solace to an ivy-sensitive person, but I am offering the best information I have.

One more thing: If you have a cottage, cabin or other such summer haunt, have someone else grub out or otherwise get rid of all the ivy or poison oak (or for some folks, dogwood, which can be as bad or worse) or have it killed by spraying with a plant-killer. Calcium chloride thrown at the roots will kill ivy. The first best defence is to avoid contact.

Dear Dr. Molner: My mother would like to know the meaning of metacarpophalangeal joints. — J. S.

It means the knuckles of the foot. The metacarpal bones are the long ones in the hands. The short bones of the fingers are the phalanges. Hence the metacarpophalangeal joints are the joints connecting the long bones with the finger bones.

Diefenbaker Launches Debate On Throne Speech Policies

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament has but one item on its debating schedule today: John George Diefenbaker.

The Conservative leader was to launch formal debate on Monday's throne speech today, and he spent most of Tuesday in careful preparation for the opportunity.

Mr. Diefenbaker can expect to get the floor about 3:15 p.m. He is expected to use the remaining two hours and 45 minutes until the 6 p.m. adjournment.

The debate, which may last eight days, permits the Opposition leader full scope for attack on government policies, climaxed by a motion of non-confidence.

Prime Minister Pearson, who follows Mr. Diefenbaker, probably won't get a chance to speak until Thursday.

After him come leaders of the other opposition parties, who may also move non-confidence in the form of amendments to Mr. Diefenbaker's motion.

The Conservative leader's staff was at work analysing copies of the throne speech even before Governor - General Michener finished reading it at the ceremony opening the second session of Canada's 27th Parliament. The throne speech is an outline of the government's legislative plans.

Mr. Diefenbaker has already delivered a biting critique by way of promising he will have something to say today about a number of items hid out of the speech.

In the Commons Tuesday, Newfoundlander Don Jamieson (L—Burin-Burego) stood without a note on his desk and eloquently moved the formal address in reply to the throne speech.

It was Mr. Jamieson's maiden speech in the Commons, delivered nine months after his victory in a Sept. 19, 1966 byelection, and the veteran broadcaster appeared to relish his opportunity.

He met his obligation to praise government policies, but he also called for reform in federal-provincial relations and warned that young Canadians demand a better set of values from their political representatives.

He made a plea to the federal and provincial governments to avoid constitutional hair-splitting in their common search for better cities, for freedom from the "stifling mediocrity" of urban Canada.

The government's new broadcasting legislation must carefully assess the power of television for good and evil, Mr. Jamieson said.

The government should provide for comprehensive, objective research into what television is doing to society. It should try to determine how television can be used more effectively to advance educational goals.

Florian Cote (L—Nicolet-Yamaska), another byelection victor last year, seconded the address in reply to the throne speech with a defence of the government's agricultural policies.

He said farmers are better off under the Liberal government than the Conservative predecessor, and they know it. He predicted their planned march on Parliament Hill May 24 will "show their appreciation to the government for efforts it has made to help them."

Heath Proposes UK Deterrent As Lever for Market Entry

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Wilson's "great debate" on Common Market entry comes to an end tonight and some top aides say Britain's independent nuclear deterrent figuratively nearly exploded in the House of Commons Tuesday.

Tory Opposition Leader Edward Heath found himself hoisting the H - bomb during a speech in which he backed the Labor government's plan to apply for market membership.

He rocked the Commons—particularly Socialist left wingers—with a statement on the role of the British bomb in the European community. It should, with France's nuclear bomb, be "held in trust" for Europe, said Heath.

Socialist back-benchers, this simply meant that one day West Germany — a respected member of the Common Market, and Six—will have the bomb, and the Socialists clearly were right.

Wilson pounced and Tories jeered him. Wilson shouted above the jeers: "He is trying to help us get in. We want to know what he is saying he would like to do."

Heath, while backing the government, could not resist jibing at Wilson about his conversion to the Common Market principle after years of opposition. He described as "rubbish" Wilson's claim that it was the market and not Wilson that changed.

"There is a gleam of battle in his eye, rose to say that Heath had been reported as wanting Britain to have her deterrent with Europe.

Wilson, hearing the magic phrase, sat up. Heath delivered a lengthy answer ending with: "It should be possible for those weapons to be held in trust for Europe."

"Do you propose sharing the British nuclear deterrent for the purpose of forming a European nuclear deterrent?" demanded Wilson.

"What I am proposing is that France and Britain, with their nuclear deterrents, should say: We are prepared to have a consultative on which members of the community can discuss these matters."

The exchange provided one of the liveliest moments so far of the three-day debate in which about 160 Labor MPs by Tuesday night had signed an amendment refusing to approve the government's decision to apply for market membership.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way especially if you have tried this plan, and still bring back alluring curves and graceful tenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. Huge Majority Appoves Britain's Euromart Bid

LONDON (CP)—"We expect to get in."

That was the confident comment of Foreign Secretary George Brown as Britain's application for European Common Market entry went forward formally in Brussels today.

Prime Minister Wilson signed the application before the 630-member House of Commons gave him a staggering majority of 426 on the issue late Wednesday night.

Wilson's Labor government was assured of support from the Opposition benches because the Conservative and Liberal parties were "marketeers" long before the Socialists.

Indeed, Wilson's control of his own forces was far from complete. Rebel left - winger Michael Foot estimated that 35 Labor members risked expulsion from their party by voting against the government despite strict orders by the whips. Foot said as many as 45 to 20 may have abstained.

The vote was 488 to 62—one of the biggest peacetime margins—and was received in silence in the Commons chamber at the end of the three-day debate that had some aspects of anti-climax.

"It was like sitting through a feature film the second time," said Tory spokesman Angus Maude, referring to the earlier abortive attempt of a Conservative government to join the market, blocked by French President de Gaulle in January, 1963.

Although the figures indicated some 88 Commons members did not take part in the vote for various reasons, the Wednesday margin indicated broader national backing than existed for the 1961-63, unsuccessful Tory try.

Before the decisive ballot was taken, the Commons crushed 487 to 36 an anti-market motion put forward by right-wing Conservative members.

The Tory Daily Telegraph publishes a Gallup poll indicating that the government's decision to apply for membership has brought sharp reactions among the British people.

First, although supporters of the application continue to outnumber opponents, they no longer command an absolute majority.

Second, it has, paradoxically, encouraged the belief that the application can succeed, the poll indicates.

The French position was noncommital following a Tuesday cabinet meeting after which France's information minister, Georges Gorse, said Britain's bid was debated. The minister said de Gaulle is likely to discuss the application at his press conference Tuesday.

The Daily Mirror carries a cartoon of de Gaulle telephoning Wilson:

"Allo, Harold, you can come in if you give us one thing—Canada."

Kidnapped Girl Rescued

Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald C. Farncomb, disappeared with a man who led her along Duplex Avenue early today.

The parents received a call for $10,000 ransom shortly after.

At 11:30 a.m., two officers spotted a tall, fair-haired man amid some construction boarding in front of the Hospital for Sick Children.

Senator To Seek PC Post

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator Wallace McCutcheon today announced he will seek the leadership of the Conservative party on a platform of the freedom of the individual and putting a stop to the "drift toward the new socialism."

Calling himself a "reformed lawyer and a tired businessman," he criticized the Liberal and Conservative parties for neglecting the individual and favoring costly, compulsory welfare programs in recent years.

"I'm frightened by the trend of our movement toward what I call the new socialism."

He favored means tests in welfare programs and opposed universal coverage.

"What's it like?"

Planes' Cost To Double

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator John L. McClellan predicted today the Pentagon would pay up to $12,000,000,000 to get 1,200 F-111 planes in the air—double the cost defense officials once estimated for 1,700 of the controversial aircraft.

Outlook Improves

U.S., Euromart Drop Bid For Grain Trade Treaty

BRUSSELS (AP) — Prospects for a Kennedy round agreement to lower world trade barriers improved today after the United States and the European Common Market gave up trying to regulate the international grain trade by treaty.

Grain trade was one of the major issues blocking agreement among the negotiators in Geneva for 53 nations who face a Sunday deadline. Other unresolved disputed centre on tariffs on other farm products, chemicals and steel.

The six nations of the Common Market had sought detailed regulations on sharing the world's grain markets and on price supports for grain farmers. They deadlocked with the United States on the question of how much they should promise to import.

As a compromise, the U.S. proposed that each nation continue to control its own grain crops and its foreign trade in grain, taking its chances in competition on the international market.

Representatives of the Common Market nations — France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg—agreed at a meeting in Brussels Wednesday night to go along with the U.S. proposal.

Sicco L. Mansholt, chief farm executive for the Common Market, told reporters: "Ours was a long-term political solution. The Americans have a hard, short-term commercial solution. If it is settled on this basis, our farmers will be very glad."

An international treaty would have frozen farm subsidies and limited the power of farm organizations to affect national policies on price supports and acreage. The U.S. Congress might have vetoed such a proposal.

The U.S. had sought to guarantee that the Common Market would continue to import 13 to 14 per cent of its grain needs, as it has in the last three years. Farm Rep. the market's chief negotiator in Geneva, was prepared to pledge imports of 10 or 11 per cent.

Irwin Hedges, the chief U.S. negotiator for agriculture, said in an interview in Geneva: "What the Common Market proposed would have led to instability, not stability in world markets."

Because of vast differences in tradition, wealth and education, an agreement among the 53 nations in cut tariffs by an average of 20 per cent over five years would be a considerable achievement.

After nearly five years of negotiations, there still is a possibility the Kennedy round may fail altogether, although Rey told reporters Tuesday he saw good chances of success.

The negotiators have agreed that unless the last issues are settled by Sunday, there will be no time to complete the job. President Johnson's authority to slash American tariffs as much as 50 per cent expires June 30.

Dymond Will Meet Doctors on Friday

TORONTO (CP)—Officials of the Ontario Medical Association are to meet Friday with Health Minister Matthew Dymond, to discuss charges of a lack of communication between the two parties.

Dr. Dymond told a press conference Wednesday he would meet the OMA executive, at its request, but stick to his view that the doctors' association was to blame for the breakdown in communication.

He described as "ridiculous" statements from the OMA that the federal government may eventually limit doctors' fees after the province enters the federal medical care plan. He said these fears were a result of the poor communication between the doctors and his department.

The health minister said there would be no future strike by Ontario doctors, despite the fact that OMA is preparing a strike plan in the event the federal government freezes doctors' fees to keep down costs of medical care insurance.

"The doctors have too great a sense of responsibility to strike," Dr. Dymond said.

Dr. Dymond denied that he or Premier Robarts had refused to meet with the OMA executive.

The health minister described as unfounded the OMA's fears that amendments to the Public Health Act, given final reading in the legislature Monday, could be used against the doctors.

The OMA council Tuesday criticized Dr. Dymond for not informing the association of the bill's contents and decided to press for the exclusion of doctors' offices from the licensing provision.

Dr. Dymond said the government saw no need for changes in the amendments as requested by the OMA because "it is not our intention to license doctors' offices."

Federal Officials Will Have No Power To Set Doctors' Fee

OTTAWA (CP)—Health Minister MacEachen said Wednesday the federal government will have no power to interfere with medical fee schedules when national medical care insurance legislation comes into force next year.

He issued a statement replying to Dr. R. M. Matthews, president of the Ontario Medical Association, who said in Toronto Tuesday that doctors are planning a possible strike if a federal fee is imposed on medical fees.

"There is nothing in the federal Medical Care Act which would give any basis for the eventuality of federal interference in arrangements made by the provincial governments with medical associations or other with regard to fees," Mr. MacEachen said.

"Medical care programs will be provincial programs, operated by the provinces in accordance with provincial laws. This principle is one with which the medical profession must be well aware."

Fair Trial Prejudiced Says K. Scott's Lawyer

The lawyer defending a 37-year-old Maynooth truck driver on a capital murder charge in the death of the man's wife, today claimed his accused client's chances for a fair trial had been prejudiced by a Toronto newspaper report.

The newspaper was not identified in court.

The charge was made by Robert Temple as he sought a week's remand for Emily Isabel Scott, arrested Sunday after his wife, Doreen, 33, was found shot at their Maynooth home.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills agreed with the barrister and suggested the Crown Attorney review the newspaper report.

Mr. Temple lodged his protest as the magistrate remanded Scott in custody for his second court appearance next Thursday at 4 p.m.

Mr. Temple said the report, which appeared Monday, had caused him "great concern."

He claimed the article was "definitely prejudicial — and I might even use the word inflammatory."

"It is based on hearsay of the worst type," he added.

"It is were to continue then I don't know how the accused . . . well, it would be most difficult to have a fair trial," said Mr. Temple.

"At least in this locality anyway," added the magistrate.

U.S. Warship Scraped Again By Red Ships

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American destroyer Walker was scraped by a Soviet warship a second time today in the Sea of Japan; it was learned.

U.S. defence department sources said the latest incident of American and Soviet confrontation in international waters involved another Soviet destroyer.

The incident was said to have occurred off the northern coast of the Japanese island of Hokaido.

The Walker, along with two other U.S. destroyers and the aircraft carrier Hornet, have been undergoing anti-submarine warfare training manoeuvres in the Sea of Japan.

Wednesday, another Soviet destroyer — not the one involved in today's incident — made several close sweeps toward the American group, coming as near as 50 feet off two occasions and finally bumping against the Walker, causing minor damage.

King-size Cleanup!

Hopes of Belleville Collegiate grade 10 students for a trip to Ottawa got a lift last night when a mobile crane dropped in on their fund-raising carwash project. They'd been charging 50 cents a car and had made about $15 when the crane operator agreed to trundle his equipment out . . . and paid $2 for the king-size cleanup job.

Three Colborne Youths Receive Stiff Penalties

BRIGHTON — A crackdown on underage liquor consumption in the Colborne area led to three youths from that village receiving stiff penalties in Brighton magistrate's court yesterday.

Magistrate R. B. Batten sentenced Craig Robinson, 20, to 90 days, concurrent, on three charges of underage consumption; his brother, 18-year-old William Robinson to a $100 fine on each of two charges of falsifying a liquor purchase slip; and James Hartford, 21, to 90 days, concurrent, on two charges of illegal possession of liquor.

The jail terms are to be served in the Hasting County Gaol.

The offences occurred during April and were investigated by Brighton Provincial Police.

The court was told each youth had "at least four" liquor control act convictions against his record within the past year.

Crown Attorney G. Bonnycastle said he would be asking for severe sentences for anyone facing similar charges in the future in order to try and cope with Colborne's underage drinking problems.

County Schools To Benefit By New Grants

PICTON (Staff) — Many schools in Prince Edward County may benefit from a new program announced Friday by Ontario Education Minister, William Davis. The announcement would allow substantial capital grants increases announced earlier for their building projects, to apply to projects approved back in 1965 and 1965.

Several county building projects would stand to benefit from this new program. In particular, North Marysburgh and Athol Central schools and probably Sophiasburgh. Another would be Hawke School in Ameliasburgh.

A spokesman for the Sophiasburgh school board said he could not confirm that the project was approved in 1965 but he thought that it was. The proposed addition to Prince Edward Collegiate Institute, the new Hallowell Central School and the Wellington-Hillier addition all stand to benefit all having been approved within the last year.

Public School Inspector H. L. Knight said, "it is very hard to speculate. We will have to wait until the details are available so the school boards can apply." No local officials are prepared to make any estimate of what the announcement might mean in dollars and cents for tax relief.

Fair Trial

It's highly prejudicial to more than your client, and I think the Crown Attorney should review the article, and, if necessary, take any proceedings that might be indicated."

Assistant Crown Attorney Tom Lally said he would place the issue before Crown Attorney John Pringle.

"There are a number of aspects to it that are extremely bad," concluded Mr. Temple.

The discussion marked the end of Scott's first public court appearance since his Sunday afternoon arrest, after his wife was found dead outside their home on Highway #2, 13 miles north of Bancroft.

His remand was delayed more than an hour as officials sought to sort out details of court jurisdiction.

The wait was exceptionally long, since the general practice in district courts involving such charges, makes a remand a mere matter of minutes.

However, confusion was caused by the fact that Scott was arrested in North Hastings, the jurisdiction of Magistrate R. C. Jackson.

The accused man today was brought before Magistrate Wilbur, who pointed out he could not act unless so advised by his bench colleague in North Hastings.

Madoc provincial police were despatched to inform him of the dilemma in Belleville, after it was discovered the armory — now abandoned by the military — was without a telephone.

Throughout the wait Scott sat quietly in the dock watching the lively list of traffic and minor crime cases being processed.

Pleads Guilty To Break Enter Charges

Leonard A. Losee pleaded guilty to two charges of breaking and entering today in police court.

On March 24 Mr. Losee broke into Deseronto Cleaners and Dye, a hoop coal and then broke into a Deseronto Red and White Store and stole soft drinks, chocolate bars, cigarettes and other articles.

Dennis Rodgers, driving near the scene on his motorcycle, saw a truck which the police said had been stolen, and heard the breaking of glass in the window. Windows were broken in both establishments which Mr. Losee entered.

Damage to the Red and White Food Store was about $45. Damage to the Cleaning establishment was about $56.

Mr. Losee, married with one child, has been remanded until June 1 to await a pre-sentence report.

As well today Magistrate T. Y. Wills sentenced David William Brooks to seven days in jail for driving while under suspension.

Raynard Kenney was fined $50 for leaving the scene of an accident in which he was involved and $25 for driving while his licence was suspended.

Benefits of Amalgamation Of School Boards Outlined

Amalgamation of the Stirling-Rawdon High School District and the Centre Hastings High School District with the Bay of Quinte District would allow earlier provision of better educational services, but decreased costs could not be expected.

This was indicated last night by a top Department of Education official as he addressed a special meeting of local school boards and municipal officials on cost factors resulting from the proposed high school district amalgamation.

Mr. James Thompson, assistant superintendent of the Ontario Department of Education, spoke to about 75 education and municipal representatives at Centennial Secondary School.

Attending the meeting were representatives from all three high school boards involved, from the Belleville public and separate school boards, the city of Belleville and the townships of Ameliasburg, Sidney, Thurlow and Tyendinaga.

The meeting was chaired jointly by Grant Kerr, chairman of the Bay of Quinte District Board, Belleville Mayor Jack Ellis, Wards Robert Boyce of Prince Edward county, and Hastings county warden William Shannon.

Hastings county council has already passed a bylaw approving joining of Stirling-Rawdon and Centre Hastings High School Board with the Bay of Quinte Board.

To make the amalgamation official Belleville and Prince Edward also have to pass bylaws.

Mr. Thompson told the meeting that Education Minister, Hon. William Davis, was in favor of larger school areas and district boards of education instead of individual boards for elementary and high schools.

Speaking on the financial aspects of school district amalgamation, Mr. Thompson said special grants were available if the per pupil rate for a combined board than for separate boards.

He said this special grant would be paid for three years and for the next three years would be decreased one third per year after which regular per pupil rates would apply.

Mr. Thompson said that government grants on debenture payments at Stirling Rawdon and Centre Hastings were based on 95 per cent of the approved grants.

In Belleville such grants were on the basis of 78.8 per cent.

If amalgamation took place the percentage figure would be 82.7 per cent on new structures for the combined area. However existing debenture payments would continue at the same rate.

Mr. Thompson made brief reference to the present policy of named high school board representatives and said the education minister favored elected rather than appointed boards.

He said amalgamation would not interfere with any future plans for future boards of education.

Area High School Inspector Ralph W. Proats said there would be six major advantages to an enlarged school district.

These were: (a) institution of master teachers and subject coordinators, (b) visual aids, (c) educational TV, (d) central computer for all educational computer, (e) special school for opportunity classes and (f) shared services of a psychologist, attendance counsellors and guidance co-ordinators.

Mr. Proats said that the Bay of Quinte District High School Board with its close to 4,000 students was close to being able to provide these services.

However, with amalgamation and the resulting increased enrollment, the services could be provided sooner and easier.

TRENTON — Clothing belonging to a Belleville man whose body was found in the Trent River, July 3, 1965, was found on the riverbank near the 401 overpass, yesterday, by Wm. Hydro hydro employee.

Mr. Menzies reported to OPP at Brighton that he had found a pair of trousers, a man's shirt, socks and shoes, car keys, a driver's permit made out to Aldrice LaBlanc of 383 Dundas Street, Belleville, a car ownership card, a bank book and 75 cents in the pocket of the trousers.

Cpl. Poulier of the OPP investigated.

IN MEMORIAM

REID — In memory of a dear son and brother Clifford (Cowboy) Reid, who passed away May 11, 1962.

Sadly missed by mother, brothers and sisters.

BELL — In loving memory of Orville Bell, who died and passed away May 11, 1962.

God saw you getting weary,
So He did what He thought best.
He came and stood beside you,
And whispered "Come and rest."
You wished no one's last farewell,
You bade no one good-by,
You had gone before we knew it,
And only God knows why.
—Sadly missed by brother Jack and Mary.

Safety Week Campaign Is Stressed

NAPANEE — All this week Ontario Provincial Police vehicles are driving with their headlights on during the day. This safety campaign through to next Sunday, May 14.

The object is to bring to the attention of the public the Child Safety Day campaign. The Ontario Provincial Police, in cooperation with the B'Nai Brith and the Ontario Safety League, hope that this campaign will bring to the motoring public the need for greater surveillance in all areas where children are likely to be present.

Last week the Napanee detachment of the O.P.P. performed 25 safety checks, issued 13 warnings for minor mechanical defects, and laid 32 charges under the Highway Traffic Act. They investigated ten traffic accidents in all, seven with property damage only, and one person receiving minor injuries in each of the other three accidents.

The week's report gives a total of 894 duty hours, and 8,403 miles of highways and other roads patrolled.

Home and School Association Holds Annual Dinner Meeting

Shades of pioneer days! Home and School Associations were founded in Canada in 1886 and, in appearance, the annual dinner meeting this year must have somewhat resembled the meetings of that year as many beautiful Victorian costumes were in evidence. The meeting was held on Wednesday evening in Tabernacle United Church, with representation from almost all Associations in this area.

Mrs. Eleanor Jourard, president of the Cherokee was in charge of the program. She welcomed special guests Mrs. Ivy St. Lawrence of Toronto, executive secretary of the Ontario Federation of Home and School Associations, Mrs. G. E. Moss of Oshawa, provincial vice-president of Area C (Scarborough to Napanee), Mrs. E. H. Anthony of Pickering, incoming vice-president of Area C, and representatives from the Catholic Parent Teachers' Association.

Mrs. St. Lawrence brought greetings from the Ontario Federation staff. She stated that Belleville is the first Council to break the barrier to become a "Booster Council". Mrs. St. Lawrence outlined the activities of the office staff and their problems, both serious and humorous. Home and School Associations' primary concern has always been to have included in the school curricula those subjects which will best prepare the youth of today to meet life, even though they are not organized under Home and School. They stress equality for all children and are active not only in the subjects taught but in the welfare and safety of all Canadian children.

"Home and School members", she said, "believe that everything they do for one child is done for all children of this and future generations."

Mrs. Betty Fort introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Ruth Smart of Hannibal, Ontario, who is Provincial Membership Chairman. She is a versatile free lance photographer with a flair for loading each statement with vital information. She has worked for Home and School in far flung isolated Associations as Chairman of Northern Affairs, and was a member of the Board of Directors for four years before assuming her present position. Her talk stressed the ways and means of increasing membership and organizing new Associations throughout the Province.

She said, "We must justify the faith which the Department of Education places in Home and School by being satisfied by increased grants; by seeking advice re constitutional curriculum changes and supplying C.P. personnel training."

Mr. William Coveney expressed the appreciation of all present to Mrs. Smart for her lively and interesting talk.

Mrs. Anthony brought greetings from the Ontario Federation and expressed their delight with the work of the Belleville Council. She also presented Mrs. Betty Fort with a Life Membership certificate and pin. Mrs. L. Slemon presented Life Memberships to Mrs. Ethel Tucker who is retiring from the teaching staff of Foxboro Public School and to Mr. Edgar Bateman, Principal of Sir Winston Churchill School. A Booster Club certificate was presented to the Belleville Council.

The officers for the coming year were installed by Mrs. G. E. Moss, Mrs. Moss also presented Mrs. Eleanor Jourard with a gold bar for her president's pin.

Mrs. Mary Marshall of Ameliasburg received appreciation for the work accomplished by the retiring executive.

The officers installed last evening were: president, Mr. John Welch, executive vice-president, Mr. Gordon Wooldridge; district vice-presidents, Marion Hand (North Marysburgh); Gilbert Bolen (Belleville), and Mrs. H. C. Ferguson (Trenton); treasurer, Frank Thorn; executive members-at-large, Ilene Luffman, Irene Hamilton, Mary McLaughlin, Margaret Scott and Norma Ross; leadership training, Lil Stevenson; hospitality and social, Violet Willett; publications, Mrs. E. S. March; publicity and bulletin, Eleanor Jourard; registration, Mary Rompen; teacher advisors, H. R. Frisk, W. Lott, I. A. Carswell and S. Summers.

The Council is still without a Recording Secretary and a Corresponding Secretary.

Flight and Visit to Expo Enjoyed by Newspapermen

By ROY PEACOCK

Would you believe Expo in a day?

Including around trip from Picton or Belleville and back home by midnight after dark. And with a bird's eye view of the picturesque St. Lawrence Valley thrown in for good measure.

The whole trip, including a visit of about eight hours to the big fair, is all possible when you do it by air on a flight by one of the Prince Edward Flying Club planes.

This was demonstrated yesterday when Instructor Clapp, the club's chief instructor, flew a party of newspapermen down to the fair. The flight down to St. Hubert RCAF station south of Montreal took just under two hours, and the trip home, back long a slight headwind about two hours and 15 minutes.

The trip was in the nature of a pilot flight which the Picton Flying Club hopes to inaugurate ferrying fair-goers to Montreal and back.

St. Hubert Airport south of Montreal has been designated the official Expo field for private flights to the fair. From the airport there is a five-mile ride by taxi to the Metro subway terminal at Longueuil and then short subway ride to the fair.

It was sunny all day yesterday in the Quinte area, but not so down the St. Lawrence and at Expo.

Rain hats and raincoats were the order of the day as the rain spattered down in intermittent showers with the sun peeking through only on brief occasions.

The rain and chilly weather cut attendance down to but there were still lineups to the major pavilions, particularly at the American, Russian and British pavilions.

What about the fair itself? Naturally in a brief eight hours you can see but a small part of it all.

We did manage to get through some of the major pavilions, including those of America, Russia, England, India, France and Thailand. Also visited were the Ontario and Quebec buildings as well as some of the smaller nations.

Impressions: The Russian pavilion is the biggest, coolest and has the most to see with that nation's accomplishments being given the full treatment.

But don't pass up the pavilions of some of the other nations. For instance that of Britain is particularly interesting, and the presentation can be summed up in three words — yesterday, today and tomorrow.

Also very interesting are the pavilions of Germany, India and France.

We didn't have time for the many theme buildings or any of the smaller national pavilions on the lower end of St. Helens Island. Neither did we get around to the entertainment section at LaRonde or Ile Des Havre at the main Expo entrance.

The Expo grounds cover roughly 1,000 acres and tired feet can be expected unless full advantage is taken of the Expo Express running between the Island, or the popular minirail, both of which yesterday were doing a roaring business, despite the rain.

Escalators take visitors to the topmost floors of many of the pavilions while carpeting is in vogue in many of the buildings, all in consideration of tired feet.

Also at most of the pavilions are free movies where visitors get a rest and enjoy educational entertainment at the same time.

News media representatives are going all out at the fair. Television crews from many parts of Canada and the United States are there — we saw one crew complete with mobile trucks all the way from Regina.

At the French building they have their own TV set — color, complete with recordings and live stage departments.

And incidentally, one of the best vantage points on the whole grounds is from the cosmically located French pavilion which has seven levels plus a rooftop observation floor.

Food prices on the grounds are stiff in the big pavilion restaurants but there are lots of small eateries dispensing hotdogs, hamburgs and refreshments at a reasonable figure. But prices are posted and Expo visitors have their choice of the style in which they want to eat.

But there is no point against bringing your own lunch. Yesterday we saw a group of young people squatting on the carpet on one of the floors at the Russian pavilion eating their sandwiches.

Leaving St. Hubert shortly after 7:00 the flight up the St. Lawrence Valley is made into the rays of the setting sun.

Big lake boats and ocean freighters waiting for locks or strung out in line are silhouetted against the inland river.

The big Quebec Hydro dam and powerhouse at Beauharnois, the twin American and Canadian powerhouses at Cornwall and the Iroquois control dam further upriver look small and unimpressive from a height of 2,000 feet.

Later the lights of Brockville, Gananoque and Kingston blink on as darkeness settles in. In the darkness Amherst Island and Prince Edward county is barely outlined against the water and the landing at Picton airport is under lights.

Water Pollution Main Avenue Of Attack By Liberal Nominee

TRENTON — Several prominent Quinte area Liberals last night took verbal potshots at the Ontario Conservative government of John Roberts for complacency to the point where "they think they own the province."

Keynote speaker for the event — the annual meeting of the Murray Trenton Liberal Association — was Robin Russell of Cobourg, Northumberland provincial nominee for the Liberals.

Choosing water pollution as his main avenue of attack against the incumbent Tory regime in Ontario, Mr. Russell called for legislation to regulate waste dumpage in waterways such as the Trent system which he claimed has led to the closing of beaches and a decline in commercial fishing.

"There is a great need for a young dynamic party to take the reins of government at Queen's Park," he said. "One must agree with the words of Bob Nixon (provincial Liberal leader Robert Nixon) "Tory government is government by the indifferent for the entrenched" "and other members of the new generation are fed up with provincial politicians who pass the buck, and say 'Let Ottawa do it'."

"The present government in this province is motivated by political expediency, not public need. But the new generation is interested in progress, not politics."

Former Northumberland MP Pauline Jewett said "making and discontent" with the Roberts government should lead to increases in Liberal strength in a provincial election.

"There is immense pressure on Mr. Roberts to call an election immediately," she noted, "because we Liberals are on the rise, and they fear we may have gained too much strength by a fall election date."

Dr. Jewett assailed the provincial government for promotion "an uneven economic growth" mainly in the Toronto area.

"They are interested mainly in growth in material, not human terms," she added.

"Tories aren't bad people, and by police as $1,050.

Three Freed on Charges

Robbery-with-violence charges against three Trenton men were dismissed yesterday by Judge J. C. Anderson when other witnesses failed to positively identify the accused.

Freed were Percy Brunton, Peter Brunton and Phillip Walsh.

The three were charged after a group of men entered the Trenton home of Arthur Dionne March 5, C. A. Dionne, his daughter while his house was ransacked and $40 taken.

Under cross-examination by Belleville barrister Robert Temple several witnesses were unable to identify the accused they had seen leaving the Dionne house.

Throne Speech

Throne speeches traditionally are prepared by the Government and read to Parliament by the Queen or her representatives.

Governor-General Roland Michener baptism in this sphere the other day demanded unusual fortitude. Not only was the speech a long one, but it was full of meaningless verbiage. Like this: "During the past 100 years the world has changed beyond the recognition of anything within the experience of those who laid the foundations of Confederation."

And this: "In foreign affairs Canada has put its major effort into the pursuit of peace. Our diplomacy aims at strengthening Canada's position in the councils of nations so as to work towards that world peace and stability that is the agreed objective of all sectors of public opinion in this country."

In routine parliamentary business, the most consistent exponent of such equivocal gobbledegook in Ottawa's External Affairs Minister Paul Martin. Speaking at the signing of a five year cultural agreement with Belgium, Mr. Martin spoke of Canada's efforts to increase its contacts with the French speaking world. Then he added:

"Canada is now engaged in a great effort of renewal and transformation aimed at giving full effect to each of its two great cultures. It sees in this an essential condition of the development of its personality and its unity, and in the final analysis of the maintenance of its independence."

Heroic words, but scarcely guaranteed to raise more than a yawn — let alone the flags of Canada, Belgium or even Quebec. And that brings us to the role of La Belle Province in this matter. Mr. Martin noted (rather naively as it turned out) that French Canada "will naturally be particularly interested in the agreement with Belgium."

It is interested in right, but in a critical way. Mr. Martin with characteristic circumspection, said the federal government "will not fail to facilitate the participation in the agreement of any province desirous of implementing one or another of its dispositions."

In an earlier statement, however, Premier Johnson of Quebec (which already has direct relations with France under two separate agreements) said Ottawa should not expect Quebec to delegate its powers in fields like natural resources, education and culture.

What a schmozzle is this biculturalism and bilingualism business in Canada. Ottawa and Brussels want closer cultural, scientific and educational ties with each other, but Quebec is apparently in a huff about it. Perhaps Mr. Johnson thinks his province, and not the federal jurisdiction, should be the negotiator in any agreement with another French-speaking country.

Mr. Kneisel's Post

Belleville's first Industrial Commissioner, Ernst Kneisel, is leaving the post he filled with distinction to become administrator of Loyalist campus in the new College of Applied Arts and Technology.

To the frequently thankless task of trying to expand Belleville's industrial base, Mr. Kneisel brought skill and dedication. That his efforts and those of the commission at large seemed often to end in frustration was not for want of trying, but was indicative rather of the competition the city faces from other centres with favorable locations.

Recently the commission's patient efforts brought tangible results in the decision of a United States firm, Superior Electric, of Bristol, Connecticut, to build a plant here.

It will take more of the same kind of steady effort on the part of the commission and Mr. Kneisel's successor to bring more industry to Belleville.

Meanwhile the commissioner's appointment as administrator of Loyalist campus augurs well for the establishment of a smooth-running administration there. In fact, Mr. Kneisel has been serving as interim administrator since last November and confirmation of his new post is expected tomorrow when the college's board of governors meets in Madoc.

End of an Era

It is always sad to see the passing of an era, not to mention the outward symbols of the period. The demolition of Vancouver's old Majestic Theatre in Hastings Street is a case in point.

The Vancouver Sun's picture of a group of burly wreckers doing a "soft-shoe" dance stint in the body of the theatre before completing their task was eloquent of a final heroic gesture.

So down comes the Majestic. And once it is gone it is gone forever. As New Zealand author Hector Bolitho said in his autobiography: "You can never go back."

To Spend or to Economize Is Revenue Minister's Dilemma

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Perhaps the most intriguing paradox of this Socialist-inclining minority Liberal Government is that the leftward-leaning "Minister for Taxation" shapes up as the taxpayers' best friend.

This Calculus "Man for Taxes" is Revenue Minister John Edgar Benson, five years MP for Kingston, who has turned out to be the businessman among the few in the ministerial corps or circle around Prime Minister Pearson.

The Benson we know him in Parliament, doesn't impose the taxes — Finance Minister Sharp does that — but only collects them.

And scarcely a job, that, calculated to endear him with the taxpayers who have only just finished mailing him their annual tribute.

But he wears two Cabinet hats, one as Revenue Minister, the other as Treasury Board President.

And on his sleeve he wears two hearts. One, under the influence of his years as a Queen's University economics professor — and how! know what most of these campus financial visionaries are like! — makes him glance wistfully Left as a social security spender.

The other, proud of his prepolitical career as a chartered accountant — and you know what hard, practical, dollars - and-sense types these people are — compels him to look right and count the cost.

As Revenue Minister, he sees the tax money roll in — this year there will be close to $12 billion of it — and he knows it does not come easy.

He gets the hard-paying idea when the bitter jokers among his seven million tax-paying clients mail him their cheques written on shirts, or he receives a stone by parcel post with an acid invitation to "try getting a little blood out of this."

Perhaps out of a tax - guilt complex, or, could be that it is simply because he is a good businessman and wants a 100 cents worth of value for every dollar, But Benson as Treasury Board President has turned out to be what one of his Cabinet colleagues with grudgery admiration describes as "a very hard guy with a buck."

As Treasury Board boss he second-guesses the spending estimates of Cabinet, and tries to cut them back or at least keep them under control — and he sets in for the Government in its collective bargaining with the huge increasingly expensive Federal Civil Service staff.

A couple of the other ministerial burdens of the Treasury Board have been quite frank to report he gets through more business and understands it better than anybody else around the government's money-table.

He has already had a couple of dry runs at setting Federal Government staff strikes — the walkouts of the postal workers and of the transport air traffic controllers which tied up the mails and public air services alike.

Those settlements not easy

For there were the mails shut down with business and industry fuming. And there were the planes grounded, with controversial and holiday travellers blamed.

The public pressure was on to settle. And fast

Ben Benson, in the heat, could have wilted.

But he kept his cool, in fact, he remained so icily calm, so deliberately composed, so unpatched, unprompowered and unhurried, he just may have worn out the strikers. For he talked and talked and talked from early morning until early next morning, eating and collapsing at his desk, giving all the appearances of being able to carry on quite comfortably like the Energizer bunny.

So the strikers, up against an insoluble and unlikely reasonable iron-man, and perhaps beginning to feel the ragged edge of fatigue, settled for something like 50 cents on their demanded dollar.

Then had the Prime Minister didn't turn Businessman Benson loose on those Montreal dock strikers before setting the patient arm of the law to them for what has become known as the "Pearson 30 Percent Formula."

So look to this "hard guy with a buck" to do his level best to which, by past performance is pretty good — to hold the line in Civil Service collective bargaining and maybe save you a tax dollar or two.

How is he bearing up under the load?

Well, he may be feeling it just a little, cool cat that he is. For Benson reporters have wondered when they have seen him fidgeting a bit — nervous tension? — in the Commons during the Daily Question Period.

Good sound businessman he certainly is, but what kind of politician? Three times he has won Kingston with the constituency's biggest-ever-save-one majorities — and Sir John A. Macdonald once campaigned there.

Higher Prices?

Geneva Talks Foreshadow New Global Wheat Agreement

By CARL MOLLINS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The latest for regulating world wheat markets—a vital factor in Canada's economy—is due to change as master-minds of the success or failure of the 11th hour Kennedy round tariff talks now in progress in Geneva.

No matter if the governments involved in the talks reach final agreement, the cereals pact being negotiated by their delegates is likely a starting point for negotiations for a new international Wheat Agreement. The old one expires July 31.

Canada and other wheat exporters declines to renew the IWA last month because they wanted a higher world price for wheat. Canada's primary aim at Geneva—and perhaps when the International Wheat Council meets on the IWA in London, — was an increase of 40 cents a bushel.

Reports from Geneva indicate the negotiators are haggling on a price increase ranging around 25 to 30 cents. The figure is hard to determine because the whole price-setting formula has been altered.

Under the Geneva formula, all wheat prices would be related to a standard set for No. 2 hard winter ordinary wheat delivered at United States ports in the Gulf of Mexico.

Under the IWA, the price was related to No. 1 northern delivered at the Canadian Lakehead.

The Geneva formula would establish price for other grades of wheat—including the premium variety grown in Canada — by fixing differentials from the U.S. standard.

Under the IWA prices of various grades were set periodically by relating them to that of No. 1 northern.

The IWA fixes the minimum for No. 1 northern at $1.61½ a bushel and the maximum at $2.02½. The price is in U.S. dollars.

The Geneva formula proposes a minimum of $1.72 or $1.74 for No. 2 hard winter ordinary at U.S. Gulf ports, again in U.S. dollars.

Under the IWA that grade of wheat is selling at between 6 cents and 30 cents less than No. 1 northern.

The reported Geneva price range was proposed by the European Common Market and supported by the U.S.

The U.S., a wheat exporter, agreed to the price while pressing for concessions on two other fronts—guaranteed access for U.S. wheat into the six-nation Common Market and substantial material support by importing countries for a joint food aid program.

The food aid program was proposed by the U.S. and is supported by Canada. Under it 165,000,000 bushels of wheat would be provided as aid. The Americans have been attempting to persuade industrial importers—the Common Market, Britain and Japan — to contribute substantial shares.

Canada is less concerned than the U.S. about the access to the European market. She calculates Europe will continue to require substantial amounts of premium - quality Canadian wheat, whereas the Europeans can grow substitutes for U.S. grades.

But the aid and access questions have been counters in the bargaining on the price of wheat, a factor that tends to diminish the pressure for higher prices.

Electronic Watchdog

Chicago Sun-Times

The first portable electronic watchdog has been produced by a British company, its "ears" are so susceptible to movement that it will let off a wail 100 times louder than a dog's bark if so much as a mouse enters the room which it is guarding.

We know of a small dachshund that is just about as sensitive toward untoward noises, especially the sound of the mailman's shoes coming up the walk. But his master's footstep doesn't arouse him. How does the electronic watchdog distinguish between friendly and unfriendly noise? How does its master tip-toe through the room to the refrigerator without setting it off? The story from London didn't say.

Tourist Boost

Ontario's tourist trade in 1966 amounted to $1.6 billion, an increase of nearly eight per cent over 1965. Of this total an estimated $440 million came from the U.S. and other foreign spending and $80 million from other provinces.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

May 11, 1967 . . .

Canada paid the Hudson's Bay Company $11,000,000 97 years ago today—in 1870— for its territorial holdings in Rupert's Land and the Northwest Territories. It was this extension of Canadian boundaries which involving the opinions of the people who inhabited it that had led, a few months before, to Louis Riel's establishment of a Metis republic in the Red River colony. This was suppressed by military force and, as a result, Manitoba was set up as a full-fledged province.

1901—Trail, B.C., was incorporated.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1917 — Germans counter-attacked new British lines between Lavrelle and the Souches River; the British Army raised its enlistment age limit to 50 from 46.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1942—U.S. submarines sank a Japanese destroyer and two freighters; Transport Minister P. J. Cardin resigned from the federal cabinet over the conscription issue; the Chinese wound up mopping-up operations against Japanese forces in Shantung and Hopeh.

Ambiguity Remains

Supreme Court Rules Girlie Magazines Are Not Obscene

By BARRY SCHWEID

WASHINGTON (AP) — Whatever may be the U.S. Supreme Court's going definition of obscenity, and there are several, Monday's ruling in this highly subjective area makes one thing clear: Girlie magazines are not obscene.

Undoubtedly this is cheering news for sellers of such publications, just as it is displeasing to those who consider girlie magazines corrupting.

But perhaps equally significant is what the decision does not do: Lay down a rule on whether retailers may be prosecuted under state obscenity laws when they claim they were largely unaware of a suspect publication's contents.

The court's definition of obscenity is no clearer than it was in March, 1966, the last time it delivered major pronouncements on the subject and upheld the conviction of Ezra magazine publisher Ralph Ginzburg.

The convictions of Robert Redrup, a New York City newsstand operator who sold two racy paperbacks to a policeman, and of William Austin, who sold girlie magazines in his Paducah, Ky., bookstore, were thrown out Monday because a majority of the nine justices found their prosecutions in conflict with the first amendment guaranteeing free speech.

At least four different constitutional views of obscenity were presented in the unsigned opinion but none was singled out as controlling in the Redrup and Austin cases.

When the court took on the cases more than a year ago it specifically refused to pass judgment on whether the magazines and the two paperbacks were legally obscene.

Instead, it said it would decide procedural issues, including the question of knowledge of contents.

The court acted then, it said Monday, "upon the hypothesis that the material involved in each case was of a character described as obscene in the constitutional sense."

"But," it said, "we have concluded that the hypothesis upon which the court originally proceeded was invalid." In other words, the magazines and the two paperbacks, Shame Agent and Lust Pool, cannot constitutionally be held obscene.

$ Premium

U.S. visitors to Ontario and elsewhere in Canada this year will again be favored by a 7 (approx.) per cent premium on their dollar. There has been no change since the international exchange rate of the Canadian dollar was stabilized at 93⅛ cents in terms of U.S. currency in May, 1962.

Shoplifting Phenomenon

Windsor Star

Shoplifting is an increasing bane in the commercial world. The "self-serve" system offers opportunities not so available when there was a clerk behind every counter.

Many culprits may be people without much means and who cannot resist picking up something which attracts them. Their motives are understandable, though not excusable. But others are kleptomaniacs, who just have a neurotic impulse to steal even though they can well afford to buy.

We note an instance in Huddersfield, England, involving an architect with an income well in excess of $10,000. He picked up a tin of lobster valued at 30 cents, for which he was fined $100 with the alternative of three months in jail. His reputation was ruined for a paltry 30 cents.

Smaller shopkeepers, who know most of their own customers, learn by experience what kleptomaniacs are among their clientele. They just keep a close eye on them.

One of the most curious court cases we have heard had to do with a high official of the Ontario Government. He stole a dress for a girl with whom he had become infatuated. Curiously, it was much too large for her and horrible in its pattern. She couldn't have worn it in any case.

That man never could explain the impulse which suddenly overcame him. He hadn't stolen anything before — and probably didn't after. But he was sentenced to six months in jail, took his job with his career ruined over a senseless offence.

PM Informs Commons

Financial Disclosure Applies to Subsidiaries

OTTAWA (CP)—The government's new rules for financial disclosure will apply to subsidiaries of United States corporations, Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons Wednesday.

He said Canadians are demanding more information of major companies, "whether private or public, Canadian-owned or foreign-owned."

Speaking in the debate on the throne speech, Mr. Pearson said major sectors of the economy are dominated or influenced by large corporations.

This might be good for Canada's position in export markets, but governments, investors and consumers did not have enough information on corporate operations to say whether they are wielding their influence "with the public interest in mind."

Mr. Pearson specifically mentioned that private companies do not now have to reveal any information about their operations. All wholly-owned subsidiaries of foreign corporations fall into this class, and most do not publish financial statements.

Mr. Pearson hinted that the Commons' summer adjournment may be late and brief. Before adjournment, he said, he wants the House to deal with the main spending estimates, the budget, the Immigration Act, the Cape Breton Development Corp., the Canadian Wheat Board Act, the Canadian Ownership Act and the Interpretation Act.

He also said the government hopes at least to introduce its major broadcasting legislation and a resolution on capital punishment.

Among his surprises was the promise of legislation this year changing postal rates, presumably on second-class mail, and bills concerning gold - mining subsidies, federal co - operatives, private pension plans, juvenile delinquents, the National Energy Board and recapitalization of the CNR.

Growing interest in the concept of a guaranteed annual income for families or individuals might be met by a thorough examination to determine "whether the idea is practical and desirable," he said.

He said the next decade must see construction of 1,500,000 dwellings just adequate to house Canadians, as many houses as have been built in the last 20 years.

Beyond the simple problem of quantity, the quality of houses and of city life must be improved. Cities must do better than "just horizontal rows down streets and vertical rows up elevators."

Municipal, provincial and federal governments must co-operate to reserve land for open space in urban areas now becoming steadily more concentrated.

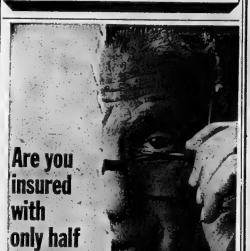
Jewett, Temple Said Ready

TRENTON — Two former Liberal MPs, both ousted in recent general elections, last night indicated their readiness to re-enter the federal political fray.



Dr. Pauline Jewett, who lost her Northumberland seat in 1965 to George Hees, told last night's annual Murray Township Liberal Association meeting she had not made a decision about running again.

She added however "I haven't really made up my mind, and don't expect to until closer to the next federal election."

"But I hope very much you will ask me to run again."

Robert Temple, Belleville lawyer who was replaced in the House of Commons by Lee Grills after a narrow Hastings South contest, told supporters he was interested in accepting a federal riding nomination, if he were asked to let his name stand.

If you are not insured by an Independent Agent, chances are you are receiving only half the benefits you might expect when placing insurance on your dwelling, car or business.

An independent insurance agent represents several companies. His job doesn't end with selling you insurance. MARMORA C.W.L.

MARMORA — Past president and diocesan spiritual convener, Mrs. Breen O'Connor, reviewed the aims and objectives of the Catholic Women's League to members at their May meeting in the parish hall Monday evening.

"The CWL seeks the betterment of social action and the stimulation of effort in all lines of women's work, in particular in promoting the true ideals of Catholic family life," she said. Other objectives are in furthering the cause of Catholic education on all levels, encouraging the formation of committees throughout Canada to study and apply the best methods of extending religious and civic help to immigrant groups, and promoting religious harmony."

"It would seem that lately we are getting the name of a social party and bake sale organization — these things are a necessity if we are to have funds with which to operate. Each parish council, however, serves a real purpose with its work done for the parish. Participation is the keynote for today. The League program is diversified enough that regardless of the talents of the individual, she can participate in any one of the conversership or standing committees. Each parish is different and must employ all the ingenuity and goodwill of its people to find and build the new avenues of self knowledge and co-ordinators of action. The CWL is organized, pledged and eager to serve well its citizens of goodwill for God and Canada'."

The 33 members were welcomed by new president, Mrs. Bill Monk, who named convenors of standing committees: sewing, Mrs. John Clairmont and Mrs. Arthur Sheridan; membership, Mrs. Joe O'Neill; spiritual, Mrs. Charles Brady; education, Mrs. Donald Shannon Sr.; league magazine, Mrs. Charles Crawford; social welfare, Mrs. Jim Hughes, Mrs. Jim Shannon and Mrs. Leo Doyle; social action, Mrs. Breen O'Connor; citizenship and immigration, Mrs. Roger O'Neill; radio and TV, Mrs. Hugh Brady; scrapbook, Mrs. Tom Brady; Guides, Mrs. A. Successful Living

Boys and Girls Discuss Dating at Meeting

Dear Doris: Can you help me? For the benefit of my daughter 15, my nephew 14 and their friends, I started a discussion and social group. We invited five boys and four girls. I asked them to write a subject they would like to discuss on a piece of paper.

Most of the papers dealt with dating and they had quite a lively discussion on this, then had refreshments, danced and listened to records. They all seemed interested in carrying on with this and we arranged for another meeting.

Would you have any advice on the running of such a group, and where to obtain literature dealing with this?

One of the girls seemed very much beyond the others. She was sure she was at the main peak in her life and bitterly resented her parents' interference! Perhaps you have some thoughts on how to deal with teen-agers who feel they know it all. — Head Barsby Above Water

Dear Head: You are a brave soul to tackle it. My list of Reading For Young People is on its way.

It's par for the course when a lad or lass of 15 or so insists that his knows all the answers. As time goes on and he gets to be ancient like 18, he usually stumbles on the fact that the next generation up have some fairly sound ideas too.

Don't let them throw you. Provide a forum, never show shock, and let them have it out, whatever it is. They'll reach some mighty sound conclusions in such an atmosphere.

Dear Doris: Nurses, teachers, high school students and even ministers are heard to say, "I like to lay in bed on Sunday morning", "Lay down, doggie," and "Just between you and I", to mention a few examples of incorrect English used by educated Canadians.

An old public school Gogi-gius Grammar text shows simply and plainly that "lie" is intransitive and "lay" is transitive, as a verb. Of course the verb "lay" is also past tense of the intransitive verb "lie". — Ex-Teacher.

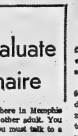
Dear Ex-Teacher: You've hit on two slips of the grammatical tongue which jar me too. But you must admit that the "lay" and "lie" business can be confusing, what with the past tense of one also serving as present tense of the other.

When are open our mouths, we tell on ourselves. People tend to classify us according to the grammar we use. Wouldn't it be a good idea for all of us to have grammar headbooks?

My job is handling words, but I can promise you my dictionary is at my right hand, and thoroughly dog-eared!

Confidential to Betrayed: What gets me is how you ever got hitched to such a rube. He must have shown some slight tendencies toward bad temper and a vroving eye! But you were so much in need of the love he declared!

It will take more than a few tranquilizers from the doctor to cure him. Sound marital counselling might help both of you.



Don't just muddle along. Doris knows human behavior and can help. Write to her and confidence stamped, self addressed envelope for private reply.

Ann Cannot Evaluate This Questionnaire

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The teen-agers here in Memphis think you are based in to our world like no other adult. You must get a ton of mail from teen-agers or you must talk to a lot of kids because you really have the word. Just to keep you posted I am sending a copy of a questionnaire that has been floating around our high school. Nobody knows for sure where this thing got started, but the kids in my crowd, both guys and dolls, think it's pretty good.

ANN LANDERS

I would like your opinion of this questionnaire and I know you will level. Please don't suggest I take it home and get my mother's views. If she saw it she would faint. And we'd have to call the doctor. Here it is:

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Steamed Caramel Pudding

In print I cannot point my finger or stamp my foot to emphasize. But I can say "Be sure to try this!"

It is the answer to a request for a Christmas Caramel Pudding that came after Christmas and that we have been testing on and off since it arrived. Today I made a test that satisfied me perfectly. This is a tried new pudding to me. It might be described as a steamed soufflé except that it does not fall. Ground almonds are the "flour". It is a gourmet recipe.

STEAMED CARAMEL ALMOND PUDDING
(serves 6)

1 1-3 cups granulated sugar
¾ cup hot milk
2 tbsps butter (room temperature)
4 large eggs — yolks and whites separated
2 tsps. vanilla
3 tbsps. flour
2 tsps. baking powder
1 1-3 cups (4 oz.) ground almonds (lightly toasted)

In heavy large frying pan melt the sugar to a rich gold color. Remove from heat and at arm's length slowly add the hot milk, stirring until it stops spattering, then return to heat and stir until the caramel melts again. Do not be upset when it lumps and curdles for it will all smooth out in the end. Remove from heat and let cool to room temperature.

In the butter bowl beat together the butter, egg yolks, vanilla, flour and baking powder. When smoothly mixed stir in the ground almonds, then the cooled syrup. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold in.

Butter generously a pudding mould or bowl of at least 4-cup capacity and sprinkle inside with sugar. This is easy for the sugar clings to the butter. Shake out excess sugar. Pour in pudding batter, cover with lid or double foil tied on snugly, and steam in large covered kettle or steamer with boiling water coming halfway up sides of mould, for 1 hour.

Loosen sides and bottom too, with bendable metal spatula and turn out on fancy serving plate and serve hot with pouring cream or unsweetened whipped cream.

NOTE: 1) The enquiring reader said this could be served cold but I doubted her. However I chilled half of ours and she is right. It is good, cold. 2) However I think it is its best hot and that it should be steaming while you and your guests are eating the main course. 3) Those of you who are always looking for new steamed desserts for Christmastime should clip out and file this now and file it in your Christmas recipe folder.

WHAT IS YOUR A.Q.?

(Adoption Quotient)

WOULD YOU QUALIFY AS AN ADOPTING PARENT?

—There are many risks in adopting a child.
TRUE. Just as there are many risks in having a natural child. Some adoption agencies would argue that their risk is less in that they are able to see the child before placement and are assured that the child has been passed as fit for adoption by competent medical authority.

—Adoptive parents are told nothing about the child placed with them.
FALSE. Adopting parents are given all information about the child that is considered relevant to his future physical, mental and emotional development.

FALSE. Racial and ethnic origins are taken into consideration in adoption placement — but only insofar as they are important to the applicants.

FALSE. There is no mention of religion in that section of provincial legislation concerned with the adoption of children.

—Couples are not allowed to adopt more than 2 children.
FALSE. It is true that a few years ago Children's Aid Societies did not usually place more than 2 children on adoption with a family. This was because the number of applicants to adopt greatly exceeded the number of children considered for adoption. This is not the situation today.

For further information about adoption contact your local Children's Aid Society by writing Box 186, Belleville or telephone 968-5704 for an appointment.

Mr., Mrs. R. Fleming Wed for 60 Years

CROOKSTON — More than 200 relatives and friends called on Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fleming recently in the Orange Hall on the occasion of their diamond (60th) wedding anniversary.

Among the many congratulatory messages received were telegrams from Ontario Premier John Roberts and Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson.

Mr. and Mrs. Fleming are living on the homestead and are both enjoying good health.

They have five children three daughters, Alice (Mrs. Elmer Wood) of Crookston, Reta (Mrs. George Albree) of Madoc, Vada (Mrs. Carman Downey) of Crookston, two sons Percy and Lloyd both at home. They also have 11 grandchildren. Mr. Fleming has one sister Estella (Mrs. Arthur Stevenson) of Stirling and Mrs. Fleming has one sister (Miss Sarah Wallace) of Crookston both of whom were here on Sunday.

The couple also received many lovely cards, gifts and flowers.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Joe: "My father earns $10,000 a year, but he says he can never pay all the bills my mother runs up."

John: "Does your father get mad at your mother about the bills?"

It's impossible and perhaps unwise to try to conceal most family problems from young children, but the child should learn discretion, too.

Children should be told that some things, family finances and family problems, for instance, are private matters and are not to be discussed with their friends.

Underwriters Fete Wives

The Bay of Quinte Life Underwriters entertained their wives and friends recently at an evening of entertainment at the Knights of Columbus club rooms. Each woman was given a colorful floral corsage on entering the lounge for the cocktail hour. Dinner, served by Gerry McAvoy and his company, followed.

Gordon Ackerman, president of the local association was master of ceremonies. Stan Wiggins proposed the toast to the women and Mrs. Gordon Miller responded.

Guest speaker was Mrs. Margaret Baker, who described with slides, Expo and the Bell Telephone Company's part in the event.

USE NO MORE PILS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Veterinary surgeons here have stopped using a birth control drug — similar to that used by women — on bats and dogs because of side effects in a small percentage of the animals. These included inflammation of the reproductive system and an inability to conceive after the drug had been withdrawn.

Remarks Career Girls Get Tired of Hearing

"After all, she's wedded to her work."

"If you ask me, a woman's place still is in the home."

"To be as tactful as possible about it, Joan, I don't think that dress is for you. In a job like yours, you don't want to look too young."

"Congratulations, Joan. As the first girl in this firm ever to win her 25-year pin, you have every right to be proud of yourself."

"Sorry, miss, but we don't serve unescorted ladies at the bar. Would you care to sit at a table?"

"Let's all go Dutch."

"Don't tell me you can cook, too? I thought all career girls were helpless in the kitchen."

"Okay, okay, Sidney. I don't mind your kicking a woman for the job, but couldn't you at least pick one with a better figure?"

"We're giving a shower for Rosemary. She's getting married to the head of her department next month."

"I do believe it's your first grey hair, miss. Shall I tint it or pluck it for you as a souvenir?"

"... And, of course, after you've been with us for 40 years, you're entitled to the full pension."

"She must have her eye set on the boss. Why else would she stay here at her salary?"

"So you're the young lady who works in my husband's office. Well, well, well. Somehow I hadn't expected you'd turn out to be so pretty."

"I love my wife, but ..."

"Hey, Joan. It's my wife's birthday. Would you mind trotting out and buying a couple of dozen roses for her? While you're at it, pick one out for yourself. I'll pay for it."

"Instead of the patter of little feet, she listens to the patter of little memos."

"They're all just marking time until they can catch themselves a husband."

"Gee, Joan, sometimes I forget you're a gal. I guess I tend to think of you as just another one of the fellows."

A Brief Pause

Mrs. R. T. Potter stops to chat with bridge players at the Progressive Conservative Women's Association annual dessert bridge and euchre party held in St. Thomas' Parish Hall Wednesday afternoon. Seated clockwise around the card table are Mrs. O. Hales, Mrs. H. Kellar, Mrs. J. Dickey and Mrs. M. Davison.

PC Women's Group Holds Dessert Bridge

Blue and white, the Conservative colors, predominated in St. Thomas' Church Parish Hall Wednesday afternoon at the fourth annual dessert bridge and euchre sponsored by the Belleville Progressive Conservative Women's Association.

Desserts, many in oriental motif shape, filled the long central table. The centrepiece of blue-tinted carnations, white mums and gladioli was flanked with blue and white candles in silver holders. Mrs. M. Orr and her decorating committee had arranged the individual tables with oriental motif placemats. Baskets of cut flowers were arranged about the room and a large bouquet of blue flags and white mums was placed at the entrance. Receiving at the door were Mrs. Lee Grills, Mrs. Elmer Sanderock, Mrs. R. T. Potter and Mrs. Dorothy Howell.

In charge of the 60 tables of bridge and euchre in play during the afternoon was Mrs. L. Jordan and Mrs. P. McWilliams was convener of the prize committee. Mrs. D. Dimeni was kitchen convener, Mrs. M. Tugnett and the Association executive were in charge of serving and Mrs. N. McBurney and Mrs. J. Ellis were treasurer. Other conveners were: bake table, Mrs. H. Yorke and Mrs. H. Rollins; desserts, Mrs. S. Mulholland; tea and coffee, Mrs. M. Little; salads, Mrs. R. Locke and transportation, Mr. Art Doyle. Mrs. C. Rendell was general convenor for the event and Mrs. L. Shore was co-convenor.

A centennial quilt, made by the women of Christ Church and purchased by the Association, was raffled by a committee in charge of Maxine Little. It was won by Mrs. W. Hurst.

Bridge winners were Mrs. J. Hartz and Mrs. M. Messenger; euchre winners were Mrs. M. Nowenski, Mrs. P. Hammett and Mrs. M. Henry.

Part of the proceeds will be used by the 400-member organization to provide toys and dolls at Christmas time for the firefighters' project for underprivileged children. Last year the Conservative Women donated $700 in money and articles to brighten the holiday for children in the community. A donation will also be made to the Macdonald-Cartier Library in Ottawa, the centennial project of the National Progressive Conservative Women's Association.

Better Chance to Get Stake If Married

VANCOUVER (CP) — A woman who wants to go prospecting in British Columbia appears to have a better chance of getting a provincial grubstake if she's married.

An increasing number of women are reported applying for such assistance — usually about $500—but only two are likely to get their grubstake this year. And both will be accompanied by their husbands when they venture into the wilderness.

Douglas Rae, provincial grubstake supervisor, explains why married women are favored.

"We gave a grubstake to one girl once who took a man along to work with her. When we went to check on her later, we found he wasn't keeping his mind on the prospecting."

One married woman who got a grant two years ago was Marjorie Hayward. It was renewed last year by Mr. Rae, who describes her as the best woman prospector to receive a grubstake.

Relaxed Laws On Divorce Requested

OTTAWA (CP) — The Business and Professional Women's Clubs of Ontario have asked for relaxed divorce laws in the province including one allowing marriage breakup by mutual consent of the partners.

Also sought in a resolution approved at their weekend convention here was the additional broadening of divorce grounds to include alcoholism, drug addiction, mental or physical cruelty, insanity and desertion. Adultery is the chief legal ground now.

The resolution was directed at the Ontario government by the 250 women delegates, who also voted to ask for the establishment of a provincial commission to co-ordinate anti-pollution efforts involving air, water and soil.

Each of the 73 Ontario clubs in the organization was asked to study day nursery needs in their communities and urge municipal authorities to fill gaps. The province will pay 80 per cent of the cost of day centres, but municipalities have the responsibility of establishing them.

By resolution, the women agreed they are discriminated against in pay scales and job opportunities.

The group, which reported a loss in membership last year to 2,700, agreed to hold the 1968 conference in Fort William. The five Northwestern Ontario clubs will play host.

Labor Troubles Are Threatening Expo

MONTREAL (CP)—Labor relations troubles nettled Expo 67 today but the harassed committee said to dish off numbers of visitors beyond the early expectations of Canada's world fair.

While members of the 1,200-member security force were holding meetings to discuss an arbitrator's wage ruling, Montrealers and visitors were pouring through the gates at an unanticipated rate.

By midnight Wednesday, 144,298 had entered compared with a computer-anticipated crowd of 113,320. This meant a total of 8,433,938 since the fair opened 13 days ago—more than 1,000,000 beyond expectations.

There was a threat of a work stoppage on the public opening day April 28, but the security men resumed work when an arbitrator was appointed. His ruling was that the wage rate for protection agents should remain at the rate which came into effect May 1 under an earlier ruling—$2.47.

The fair's attitude was expressed by Robert Shaw, deputy commissioner-general, who said in a statement that Expo "fully expected the union to respect the agreement it has with Expo, as have all other unions."

He referred to a no-strike agreement. The security men's union, which polices the 1,000-acre site, is affiliated with the Quebec Federation of Labor. The men had told the arbitrator they wanted a $3.50-an-hour rate.

Expo's answer was a statement that A. G. Kniewasser, general manager of the fair, would seek a transcript of the Liberal member's remarks and "would turn it over to police authorities concerned.

But with the above-most-go-on attitude, Expo got set for today's ceremony honoring Burma with a flag-raising in Place des Nations, the fair's amphitheatre.

Wednesday night the city of Montreal wined and dined Brig. Yia Pe of Burma and his wife.

One note that has not been struck in the national days of on the program—Mr. Dooley Ethiopia, Mauritius and Sel- present flowers to Brig. The gium since the fair opened is Pe.

Wagner Makes More Troubling Revelations

QUEBEC (CP)—Former justice minister Claude Wagner Wednesday uttered charges about organized crime at Expo 67 in Montreal by making more "troubling revelations."

Speaking in the legislature, Mr. Wagner, a former judge, identified four organizations he said do business at Expo, saying "undesirables have succeeded in profiting from Expo facilities." In three cases, company names differed with charges he made Friday when he told the legislature Expo had been infiltrated by organized crime of Cosa Nostra calabre.

Mr. Wagner said Wednesday "undesirables . . . have provoked confusion of names to throw off responsible authorities."

He again named Joe Frankel, whom he described earlier as "a chief of the Montreal bookies," and William Obront, described Friday as "a notorious member of the Mafia."

Mr. Wagner said Joe Frankel "created confusion to penetrate concessions at Expo" by incorporating companies with names similar to two well-known Montreal businesses.

He said Frankel incorporated Fleur de Lys Linen Supply Inc. and New System Vending Co. Ltd. and solicits the same clientele as New System Towel Supply Co. Ltd. and Fleur de Lys Vending Services Inc.

Mr. Wagner also named Margie's Flower Shop Ltd. as a company with a place in an Expo warehouse. Friday he referred to a florist company as Margie's Flower Shop and Margie's Florist Shop.

Commission Shows Deficit

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Northland Transportation Commission has reported a $12,082,641 net deficit on all operations in 1966 compared with a loss of $725,096 in 1965.

The commission's annual report, tabled in the legislature Wednesday, said the Ontario Northland Railway earned net revenue of $18,196,028 compared with $17,141,939 in 1965 and had a surplus after payment of taxes of $1,189,742 compared with $292,256.

Income from other sources was more than offset by fixed charges of $1,082,641, producing the net deficit. The report said most of the increase in revenues was a result of rail freight business.

"Rail passenger services declined by $41,000 but this was more than made up by the increase in bus revenues, which amounted to $114,818."

Total debt of the commission at Dec. 31, 1966 stood at $23,649,000 of which $18,649,000 was funded.

Rebel by American Motors

Rebel 770 4-Door-Sedan

has more room inside than Fairlane, Comet, Chevelle, Buick Special, Olds F-85, Tempest, Belvedere or Coronet.

(and for good measure, more front head and legroom than a Cadillac)

Rebel from American Motors is the roomiest intermediate you can buy. It even tops the full-size cars in some areas. Like rear seat legroom and front seat headroom. Even the trunk gets into the act with a full 18.2 cu. ft. of luggage area.

All this room and an intermediate's trim dimensions, handling characteristics and price tags too? Absolutely. And everything you'll like about the Rebel 4-door sedan is carried over into the full Rebel line.

For instance: Rebel SST Convertible.

The excitement of this handsome Rebel is a great cover up for all the room inside. More room, in fact, than the "full-size" Galaxie or Sport Fury convertibles.

For instance: Rebel 550 2-door sedan.

This sporty "Hardtop" is actually a 2-door sedan. The thin door posts cleverly conceal the fact that this is the lowest priced Rebel.

For instance: Rebel 770 Cross Country Wagon.

This is the intermediate wagon with more cargo-room, more people-room than any other wagon in its class. Even the roof rack is standard. (On other cars it's an $80.00 extra.) So, you're ahead on space before you look inside. When you do . . . 91.1 cu. ft. of carrying capacity.

On the subject of power, American Motors gives you a choice of two dependable Sixes and three high-performance V-8's. They're the newest and most modern engines in the industry, engineered to deliver more power, more economically. But for all the room and power, the nicest thing about Rebel is the way American Motors builds it. With Single-Unit Construction that makes the entire car a single, structural unit. With Deep-Dip rustproofing, the unique seven-coat dunking that protects every nook and cranny. With a cushioned, acoustical ceiling that filters out road and traffic noise. With a ceramic-armoured muffler and exhaust system that lasts for years. With extra comfortable coil spring seats.

Tom McCahill of Mechanix Illustrated summed it all up in his road test in the March issue: "There isn't a better intermediate-size car sold than the 1967 Rebel."

More Local Government Needed

TORONTO (CP)—Fred Young (NDP—Toronto, Yorkview) said Wednesday night the refusal of the provincial government to move more rapidly toward regional municipal government is effectively destroying local government in Ontario.

"With every passing year, as pressures mount for greater efficiency, the ability of the average small local council to cope with an increasingly complex situation decreases," he told the legislature.

"And as more larger units of administration are set up by government ministers, there remains an ever-shrinking area of responsibility for local councils."

He said local government can survive in Ontario only if the smaller municipalities can combine around strong central cities in regional municipal government, "and then only if the functions being removed from them now by the cabinet are handed back."

Mr. Young said municipal experts he has talked to in Ontario and Europe agree it takes at least 250,000 people to constitute a viable municipality.

"This number would enable the local government to take advantage of automated machinery and of computers. It would provide a tax base to pay for modern amenities demanded by modern society, and it would make possible a high degree of training and competence in municipal staffs."

Only five municipalities outside of Metropolitan Toronto have 250,000 persons, he said. Only eight of Ontario's 264 municipalities have populations over 100,000.

"In fact, in this province, 234 municipalities are below 8,000 population and 209 are below 2,000 mark. Ninety-three have 400 or less.

Member Denies Press Report

TORONTO (CP) — Stephen Lewis, NDP member of the Ontario legislature for Scarborough West, denied Wednesday a statement attributed to him by The Canadian Press that to send a child to the Orillia Ontario hospital school for the retarded is like "a sentence of death."

Mr. Lewis made his denial, of a CP story from Toronto April 27, on a point of personal privilege in the Ontario legislature. The CP story said Mr. Lewis's remarks were made at a Toronto riding NDP meeting April 26.

Mr. Lewis said he wished "to totally disclaim such a statement" and added that "I addressed no political meeting on the night of April 26 in Metropolitan Toronto or elsewhere in Ontario."

"In fact, on that date I was attending a small coffee party in my riding to which the press, of course, were not invited, and during the course of which no reference was even made to the subject matter of the story."

He added:

"I wish . . . to emphasize that although on occasion I have been a fierce critic of the department of health and of its facilities for retarded children in Ontario, I have never uttered anything even approximating that which was attributed to me in the news story. . . ."

System of Priorities Set Out by Minister

TORONTO (CP) — Municipal Affairs Minister W. J. Spooner said Wednesday night the province and municipalities must establish a system of priorities to ensure that demands for increased services are met with adequate finances.

He told the legislature the increase in the property tax base in municipalities has not kept pace with the financial demands on local government.

To help overcome that, the province has increased road and unconditional per capita grants and subsidies for social and family services.

. . . It is significant that are still faced with growing demands to provide new services, to expand urban services into areas which were previously rural and to up-grade the standards of existing services, for every dollar levied by municipalities, the province contributed 70 cents towards the cost of local service," Mr. Spooner said in introducing his department's spending estimates.

"I might add . . . that in 1953 the corresponding figure was only 33 cents."

Liberal Member Wants Para-medical Groups Under Insurance Plan

TORONTO (CP) — Murray Gaunt (L—Huron-Bruce) called on the provincial government Wednesday to include all "paramedical" groups under the Ontario Medical Services Insurance Plan.

A resolution introduced in the legislature by the Liberal member said the government should bring "chiropractors, optometrists, osteopaths, dentists and other para-medical groups" under OMSIP.

Mr. Gaunt said it is "obvious the medical doctors are going to fight tooth and nail to keep these other groups out."

Pointing out that Ottawa has agreed to include para-medical care in its health insurance legislation if there is a "consensus" among the provinces in favor of the idea, he said inclusion of the services under OMSIP would demonstrate Ontario's point of view.

Neil Olde (PC — Middlesex South) termed the resolution a "typical example of the irresponsible approach by the two opposition parties to issues of the day."

He was sure the government would give every consideration to including the services in the insurance scheme, but the costs might be extremely high.

Mr. Olde said the resolution might also have included mention of drug costs.

NDP Leader Donald MacDonald replied to the Conservative member by saying he had "rarely heard a more mealy-mouthed set of excuses for government inaction."

Provincial Game Act Amended

TORONTO (CP) — Amendments to the Ontario Game and Fish Act given first reading by the legislature Wednesday will permit landowners to transfer fishing and hunting rights to the government in exchange for land improvement projects.

"It is anticipated that private landowners who would otherwise be reluctant to permit hunting and fishing on their lands or sell their lands outright will be prepared to enter into this new type of agreement," he told the house.

Mr. Brunelle said the Crown might agree to undertake stream improvements, protective measures, stocking programs, fencing, sign erection and other management programs in return for the rights.

"Through the agreement the owners will be compensated for giving up these rights and from the public point of view the new proposals should be less costly than complete acquisition of the land, thereby making more hunting and fishing available at less public outlay."

Sqdn. Ldr. Bob Gibson To Head Truce Unit

Squadron Leader Bob Gibson of Belleville leaves for Kashmir May 13, to take command of the RCAF Air Transport Detachment at Srinagar, Kashmir. This detachment supports the United Nations Military Observer Group India/Pakistan by airlifting UN Observers to their posts along the cease-fire line that marks the de facto boundary between the area controlled by Pakistan, and that controlled by India. This Canadian Air Transport detachment has been operating since 1964.

Squadron Leader Gibson's service career to date has included duty as a fighter pilot, a flying instructor and staff officer. During the past three years he has served as staff officer in charge of management information services at Air Transport Command Headquarters, Trenton.

SQUADRON LEADER BOB GIBSON

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate
"What's Your Problem"

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Spring means outside work. I've a fine set of tools but keeping them clean and free of dirt almost drives me crazy. The instructions say "wipe with an oily rag after use."

This doesn't solve the problem for the tools keep getting rusty in hard to reach places and around joints. Also getting off the encrusted dirt takes too much elbow grease. Do you know of a better way? — Mr. S. T.

ANSWER: The best and easiest way I know for keeping garden tools shining and clean is as follows. Keep a pail of oil-saturated sand in your garage. After a tool is used and before hanging it up, work it through the oiled sand a few times. The sand will scrape off all dirt and polish the metal at the same time. The oil will coat the metal parts lightly protecting them against rusting.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I am from the old school. When I wash my floors, I like to use plenty of hot water and strong soap. My high school daughter tells me that her home economics teacher says that this is not the way to treat my asphalt tile and linoleum floors. I know you're not a housewife, but you are supposed to be an expert in construction. Am I doing the wrong thing? — Mrs. O. F.

ANSWER: My information will clash with some of your old-fashioned training. All resilient floors (asphalt, rubber, vinyl and linoleum) should be protected by wax and washed as little as possible.

When washing is required, a mild soap and lukewarm water should be used. Harsh cleaners and scalding water may cause the floors to fade and discolor. Also, they will eventually make the floor covering hard and brittle.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

Pleads Guilty To Theft of Bata Shoes

TRENTON — Robert Nelson Smith, 26, of R.R. 4, Trenton, was remanded for sentence in magistrate's court Tuesday after he pleaded guilty to stealing 40 pairs of men's and women's shoes from the Bata warehouse in Frankford while he worked there for two weeks.

The court was told Smith sold the shoes for an average $3 a pair. After he was arrested, he assisted police in recovering 23 pairs of the shoes, valued at $132.

"Employers put five per cent into their budgets to allow for goods their employees steal," said Magistrate R. C. Jackson. "The result is higher prices to the consumer."

GIVEN TWO MONTHS

Lawrence Stacey of 40 Queen Street will spend the next two months in jail because he made a sworn statement to police on Feb. 18 that his car had been taken without his consent and then recalled later that he had given permission to a local man to use the vehicle. He was charged with committing public mischief.

BEATS PARKING RAP

Robert Lloyd Gamble of R. R. 2, Trenton, beat a parking violation charge in Trenton court Tuesday when he testified he had been home at the time the alleged violation was committed.

However, Magistrate R. C. Jackson said it was too great a coincidence that the car on which the ticket was placed was the same make, the same color and bore the same licence plates as Gamble's car. He advised Gamble to "find out who borrowed the car."

Provincial Government Protest

Controversy Surrounds Belgium State Visit

QUEBEC (CP) — Belgium's Prince Albert of Liege and Quebec's Premier Daniel Johnson exchanged champagne toasts Wednesday night, but clouds of controversy still swirled around the prince's state visit to Quebec.

Prince Albert and his wife, Princess Paola, were drawn into what Premier Johnson described as "a serious family quarrel" between the provincial government and the federal government at Ottawa.

Mr. Johnson charged in the legislature that the federal government had used the royal visitors to crush provincial jurisdiction, saying "these persons know they have been duped by Ottawa."

He disclosed that the provincial government has protested to Ottawa over the signing of the cultural agreement in Ottawa Monday between Canada and Belgium. He called the agreement an "adventure" because Quebec had not been consulted.

The five - year agreement, which is to promote artistic-technological and scientific exchange, was signed in the presence of Prince Albert, whose visit coincided with Belgium's national day at Expo 67 in Montreal Tuesday.

Since the agreement involves education, a provincial responsibility under the constitution, Mr. Johnson charged the federal government with invading provincial rights without the province's consent.

In the legislature, he said the federal government "wanted to use those visitors to show the world it's possible to crush the province in a field under its jurisdiction. We won't endure this and there is not a Quebecer who will endure it."

The storm blew up only two hours after the royal couple arrived from Montreal.

Mr. Johnson's criticism of the federal government arose from a question posed in the legislature by Opposition Leader Jean Lesage.

Mr. Lesage asked whether it was true that the province's protocol chief, Andry Pactry, had sent a telegram to Ottawa declaring the Canadian ambassador to Belgium, Paul Tremblay, unwelcome in Quebec.

Mr. Johnson havoked his right not to answer, saying he did not want to discuss the issue with the royal couple as guests, but proceeded to make charges against the federal government.

Wednesday night, at a state dinner in the royal couple's honor given by the province, the prince and premier talked in glowing terms about "the natural bond of friendship" between Belgium and Quebecers.

Mr. Tremblay attended the state dinner but would not comment on the issue.

Negotiation Possibility Recedes

Pearson Gives Assessment of Vietnam to Commons

OTTAWA (CP)—An expanding war that "will mean the destruction of the Vietnamese was part of a gloomy personal assessment of Vietnam given to the Commons Wednesday by Prime Minister Pearson.

Expressing increasing anxiety about Vietnam, the 70-year-old former Nobel Peace Prize winner said:

"My reading of the situation . . . indicates that the possibility of early negotiation has receded, that a quick military victory is not possible, nor a military solution."

This meant a situation that "gets more dangerous internationally," said Mr. Pearson, former president of the United Nations General Assembly.

Mr. Pearson also said that if his analysis is correct it would mean the indefinite involvement politically and militarily of the United States in Vietnam "with all that this implies."

It might also mean the indefinite continuation of the cold war, since Vietnam was the only major obstacle between the U.S. and Russia. This would "postpone indefinitely" any hope for an east-west detente.

The result would be increasing pressure on Europe "to make its own arrangements with Eastern Europe, with the damaging effect on the Atlantic coalition and the collective security that this would have."

Mr. Pearson, speaking in the throne speech debate, agreed with Opposition Leader Diefenbaker that NATO and collective security "are still essential for the protection of freedom" in Europe and the Atlantic area.

He rejected Mr. Diefenbaker's criticism of the government for "pusillanimous neutrality" on Vietnam.

porting on side or the other.

It was better for Canada to continue to work in a quiet, unspectacular way.

Canada would also work as a good friend and neighbor to the U.S. This did not prevent the country from speaking out "when there is an obvious and inescapable duty to do so."

"O.K., you can start. I checked with our insurance man and you're fully covered."

Building Costs Jump From $5-$28 Million On New Science Centre

TORONTO (CP)— Three opposition members said Wednesday cost estimates for the Centre of Science and Technology rose to $28,000,000 from $5,000,000 because the government had no idea but not a plan when it announced Ontario's major centennial project.

Ken Bryden (NDP — Toronto Woodbine) said he didn't think the government had any plan at all when the project was announced by Premier John Robarts in 1964.

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said the original plan for a $5,000,000 centre was sound. But the government yielded to "grandiose ideas of a $20,000,000 museum" imposed by tourism Minister James Auld and Education Minister William Davis.

J. R. Trotter (L — Toronto Parkdale) also said there was "no over-all plan" when Mr. Robarts made his announcement.

The government more or less rumbled to where they are at this time."

Thomas Wells (PC — Scarborough North) said opposition criticism "will be shown to be false when the centre opens."

The science centre is not expected to open until 1968.

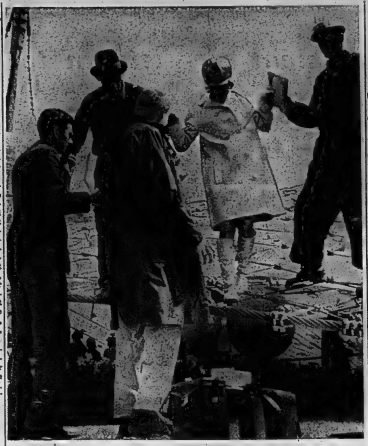
Retraining Program Graduation Is Held

NAPANEE — Last Friday evening saw the graduation at Cityna of 23 of the 30 adults who had enrolled in the first of the retraining programs to be given in this country under the Federal Department of Manpower and Immigration. Of the three who did not complete the course, one was forced to give up through illness, one was called back to employment, and the third was married. All of those closely connected with the night classes held in the North Addington District High School have marvelled at the persistence of the students in the face of difficulties, such as home ties, bad roads and bad weather.

For convenience, the graduates were divided into two groups for the presentation of their certificates. Mr. Barney Silder, a member of the school board assisted by Mrs. Sylvia de Waal, B.A., one of the teachers of the class, in English and mathematics, made the presentations to the first group.

Those included Darlene L. Baker, John A. Baker, Theresa E. Baker, Bryden, Andrew J. Clancy, Cora Davison, Kathleen F. Edwards, Arnold A. Flieler, Carl James Godfrey, Charles Good, Mrs. B. Gray, Alice Winnifred Hill, Gwendolyn Helen Jackson, Vernon Ray Jackson, Bedford R. Journal, and George Kennepol.

Presentation of the certificates to the second group was made by Mr. T. W. Cox, manager Canada Manpower Centre, Napanee, assisted by Mr. Ross Goldie, B. Sc., who had taught the commercial subjects.



Graduates in this group were: Kurt G. W. Kreisel, Mary Lloyd, Christine B. McIntyre, Betty Merlin, Susan A. O'Brien, Etta W. Perry, Bessie Rosenblat, Betty Irene Scott, Gerald S. Scott, Marguerite A. Scott, William A. Tibble, Iris Thompson, Ellen G. Turner, Linda M. Vanbiene, and Frances Mary Webb.

The implementation of Program Five, under which the night classes at the North Addington District 28th School classes were held, is the joint work of the Federal Department of Manpower and Immigration, and of the Ontario Department of Education. Minister of the Federal Department is the Hon. Paul Marchand, with G. C. Dodds the Director General of the Canada Manpower Division. Carrying out the program in the Napanee District are Thomas W. Cox, manager, and Jan R. Medora, special service officer.

Acting for the Ontario Department of Education as coordinator, Ontario Manpower retraining program for the Quinte District is Edward J. Buckley, B.A., M.A., of Belleville.

OPPOSE INSECTICIDES

MONTREAL—(CP)—The Quebec Wildlife Federation Wednesday issued a statement "strongly and very indignantly" protesting against the spraying of insecticides over the St. Lawrence River by Expo 67 officials. To kill off shadflies, Expo dumped 2,700 gallons of an insecticide called Rotbene or DDD on river waters around the site Friday and may continue with other sprayings later in May.

Arctic Explorers Home, 'Wait Until Next Year'

EDMONTON (CP) — Ten bearded men stepped from an RCAF Hercules transport at Canadian Forces Base Edmonton Wednesday night confident that they can lick the Arctic.

"We were beaten this time," said leader Ralph Plaisted, a St. Paul, Minn., insurance man. "But next year we'll reach the pole."

The men had tried to reach the North Pole overland by motorized sled from Eureka, N.W.T., on Ellesmere Island, about 625 miles south from the pole and more than 2,000 miles northeast of here.

"The breakup beat us," Mr. Plaisted said in an interview. "The ice started breaking up about a month before it should have."

"We're going back next year. But this time we'll go earlier, perhaps in February."

The expedition this year started March 25.

Three Canadians accompanied the predominantly American expedition. They were RCAF Cpl. John Austad of CFB Edmonton and Jean Luc Bombardier and Pierre Drouin, both of Valcartier, Que.

"We learned we didn't need all the equipment we took. I'd say we cached about $25,000 worth of equipment before we came back. That's why I'm betting we'll return north next year, every one of us."

Mr. Plaisted said the group's most nerve - wrecking experience occurred when it spent three days driving two miles.

"We went up a blind alley. We didn't have good enough maps and we hadn't contracted enough for adequate aerial reconnaissance. We were amateurs this time, but we learned you have to know where you're going on the ice."

They suffered no serious illness and morale always was high.

Trip to Thailand

Strictly Personal

Britain Loves Its Nobility, Title Carries Responsibility

LONDON — Although the House of Commons here has a distinct Socialist majority, it has refused to vote for a bill abolishing titles in Britain. The bill would have ended all titles after the death of their present holders, and forbidden the Queen to bestow any new ones.

Only the Royal Family would have remained if the bill had been approved; it would have done away with barons, viscounts, earls, marquesses and dukes, as well as knights and baronets who take the title "Sir."

The measure lost by a sizeable vote, with even a majority of Labor Party (Socialist) members voting against it. And it proves once again that Britain loves its nobility and treasurers its social hierarchy, no matter what radical social or economic programs it plumps for.

Most Americans cannot understand this, and regard titles as manifestly "undemocratic." Yet Britons are quick to rebut that America has its own "aristocracy" — made up of the rich, the privileged, the celebrated, and sometimes the merely notorious. A title in England, they say, carries with it some responsibility; but eminence in America owns up to no corresponding obligation.

Actually, the giving of knighthoods in recent years has been increasingly liberalized and democratized in Britain. Many performers in the arts have been so honored, and one famous actor was given a knighthood even though he had recently been convicted on the ugly homosexual charge of soliciting a young boy publicly.

The lower classes, indeed, seem to place more importance on titles than do the holders themselves. They would rather work for a baronet than for a knight, and prefer a genuine hereditary peer to anyone else. The concept of the "gentleman" is still strong in modern England — a gentleman being someone who "plays the game" and will not let you down.

W. S. Gilbert made magnificent mockery of the House of Lords a century ago, but it is still extant and useful in the British structure of government. For one thing, it institutes social reform measures that are too controversial for either party to sponsor — and that, in a sense, helps take politics out of national programs.

Even if Britain should go completely Socialist, no one doubts it would retain the peerage, who perform the same psychological function for the public that our movie stars and TV personalities provide for us. In America, only Jackie Kennedy has a status that can help us understand how Britons feel about Royal Personages.

Pot Bellies Are Partly Emotional

TORONTO (CP)— Have you looked at that pot belly in the mirror lately?

Two doctors, in a paper released Wednesday at the annual meeting of the Ontario Medical Association, contend that looking at it helps to get rid of the pot.

"It has been stated that the body image of obese patients, particularly adolescents is distorted by their emotional attitude to it," said Dr. Daniel Capron of the department of psychiatry, University of Toronto, and Dr. Robin Banks, psychologist at the University of Waterloo.

"We would go much further and hypothesize that people with eating problems cannot become very fat or very thin unless they come to themselves the real size of their body—specifically its width and thickness.

"Conversely, in order to correct psychogenic obesity (caused by the emotions) a vital aspect of treatment is its reinforcement by increasing the accuracy of estimates of one's body size.

"To this end, the writer suggested some years ago that patients look at themselves daily for some minutes, naked, in front of full-length angled mirrors. Patients have followed this suggestion since then, with some success."

Fat people who claim diets do not help them found some backing in another paper given by Dr. J. M. Debney, associate professor of physiology, Michigan State University, East Lansing, Mich.

"The failure to lose weight on a prescribed diet creates a situation that is disappointing to the patient and discomfiting to the physician," he said. . . .

"The physician usually contends that the diet is not being followed. However, there are some obese individuals who do not show a loss in weight on an extremely low calorie intake, even when their eating is controlled by keeping them under constant hospital care."

He cited reports of such patients living on 600 calories a day without losing weight.

"If the lack of weight loss can be accounted for by a retention of water, the question then arises as to why the water is retained. If this is not the answer, the only remaining possibility . . . is that these individuals are obtaining more than the usual amount of useful energy from the oxidation of foodstuffs.

"Clearly, the question of differing metabolic efficiencies the way in which food is converted into tissue and energy is an imposing challenge to workers in all disciplines related to human nutrition."

Britain Formally Applies For Full Membership in European Common Market

BRUSSELS (Reuters) — Britain today formally applied to become a member of the European Common Market and the British bid was quickly followed by a similar one from the Republic of Ireland.

The British application was a simple document signed by Prime Minister Wilson 12 hours after he won massive House of Commons support for Britain's second attempt to become a member of the six-nation European trade group.

The British application was given to Renaat van Elslande, chairman of the Common Market's council of ministers by Sir James Marjoribanks, British ambassador to the Common Market.

Less than an hour later Seán Morrissey, the Irish ambassador to the trade group, presented van Elslande with his country's application.

At the same time that they applied for Common Market membership, Marjoribanks and Morrissey also asked for their countries to become members of Euratom, the European Atomic Energy Community. The applications came before application was made for membership in the European Coal and Steel Community.

The Irish Republic's first negotiations for membership were suspended early in 1963 after the first British entry bid into a French veto.

The parliamentary vote in London Wednesday night was 488 to 62—one of the biggest majorities ever given a British government in peacetime.

Government Crippling Municipalities-Liberal Member

TORONTO (CP)—George Ben (L—Toronto Bracondale) said Wednesday night the provincial government is "crippling municipalities without giving them a crutch to lean on" by not assuming a larger share of education costs.

He told the legislature some municipalities turn down plans for subdivisions because they cannot afford to finance the schools which the expanded population would require.

Ever - increasing municipal taxes were forcing some homeowners to sell.

If the government assumed a greater share of education costs, Mr. Ben said, it would not have to introduce "here - braised" schemes like the bill now before the house to defer up to $150 of the school tax paid by persons over 65.

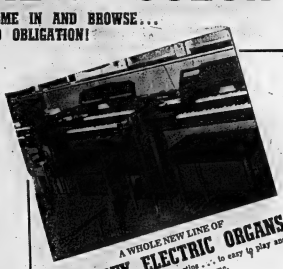
If the costs of education were based on income, Mr. Ben said, a man earning $5,000 a year would pay $87 in education taxes. The same man with a home in the Toronto area assessed at $5,000 would pay $225 in education taxes under the present system.

The Liberal party has held that the province should pay 80 per cent of the costs of secondary education. The province now pays about 80 per cent.

BC Trade Fair Opens May 17

VANCOUVER (CP) — The fourth British Columbia International Trade Fair opens May 17 with the prime purpose of making Pacific rim countries more aware of trade possibilities with Canada.

William M. Hamilton, president of the fair, says because of lack of development many "rim" nations are not ready to trade with Canada but will be in the near future.



"Sooner or later these nations will have the resources and capabilities to conduct an active trade program. When they do Canada may as well be on their doorstep.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

Are lefthanders, forkiders, southpaws — call 'em what you will — increasing in numbers?

This applies only to the homo sapiens and his distaff side. Whoever heard of a southpaw racehorse, automobile or aircraft?

A forkside, southpaw or lefthander is a person who writes from the top of the page downward; wears the wristwatch on the right forepaw, and picks up the telephone receiver with his right hand.

Paradoxically many hockey players who shoot "left" are righthanded otherwise. The NHL or any other shinny league would be in helluva spot if no lefthingers were available.

A great number of topflight baseball pitchers are southpaws. The records show that they, down through the baseball ages, have proved better than their counterparts who threw from the knifeside. Individually, that is.

Harry Myles, of Toronto, Central Ontario Manager of Wiser's Distillery Ltd., a subsidiary of Corby's Distillery has proof, golf-wise, that the lefties are on the up-and-up.

Harry has been in charge of the Wiser's Ontario Southpaw Golf Championship since 1955. The tournament will be played for the first time this year on the Bay of Quinte Country Club course on August 25th.

The championship was originated by the Wiser people back in 1950 under the jurisdiction of Harry Myles. He has done such a good job that his company as well as the Ontario Golf Association has tabbed him with the position ever since.

"Back in 1950," says Harry, "we had a problem to get sixty entries. From that time on, especially the last few years, we have had over 200 entries with a draw of 160 allowed."

The OGA Wiser's Ontario Southpaw championship is known on the OHA circuit as one of the most competitive and social tournaments of the year.

From Mr. Myles records it would appear that "lefties" in golf especially have nearly tripled over a span of less than a decade. From sixty entries to over 200 could be called a remarkable increase.

I understand that a number of well-known professional golfers are southpaws. In hockey ranks Frank Mahovlich of the Toronto Maple Leafs shoots his golf from the portside and will likely play here in the August tournament.

Hub Macey who once wore a Bellevilie senior "B" hockey uniform, now of Kingston, is one of the better southpaw golfers in these parts. Hub has not missed a tournament. I'm told and once finished in the runner-up spot for the championship. Hub, too, will be here firing at his golf balls from the "other side."

Speaking of golf what is said to be the only "Golf League" in North America holds its opening tournament at the Country Club on Saturday. Some 150 players from two Peterborough clubs, Lindsay, Port Hope, Cobourg and Belleville will tee off for 75 prizes.

Bill Salter is the loop president and John Dahl the treasurer. There will be four flights in play. League tournaments are held each month at the various club courses.

The Midland League as it is called has been in operation for the past 25-26 years. Mr. Dahl informs me. The team that leads the league at season's end gets a special trophy.

This gathering of the golf clans starts play at eight a.m. It is a strictly amateur affair and brings together the best golfers in the district. The post-mortems at the "19th" are well worth hearing.

GOLF ODDITIES

Speaking of "southpaws," Bobby Jones shot nine holes in 42 using his right hand only at East Lake course, Atlanta . . . Reg Gann, Chattanooga pro shot 13 pars in a row twice and lost both times in 1932 . . . Big mouth - Paul McWilliams, Asheville, could put four golf balls in his mouth and at the same time . . . Paul Runyan, White Plains, shot each of 18 holes exactly in par at Virginia Beach in 1934 . . . Meyer Franklin, nine years of age, made a 164-yard hole in one at Jackson, Michigan in 1937 . . . Believe this or not — Alex Edne in exhibition in Long Island drove a golf ball through a 500-page telephone book which stood on end with supports . . . Three-year old Eddie Hale drove 53 yards off a watch at Guerca's Village, New York . . . Tom O'Haver, Bloomington, Indiana, broke his club but made a hole-in-one back in 1935 . . . J. H. Oyler played from last hole, Maidstone, England, to first hole Littlestone, England, distance 35 miles in 1087 strokes, requiring two and one-half days. He lost 17 balls.

He belted a homer and drove in three runs for the Athletics Wednesday night in a 7-4 victory over Boston.

Elsewhere in the American League Wednesday night, Tommy John hurled a six-hitter and Chicago White Sox smashed four home runs in a 13-1 romp over Baltimore Orioles, Detroit Tigers dropped Cleveland Indians 4-2 and California Angels edged New York Yankees 3-2.

Monday drove in two runs with a single in the third inning as Kansas City wiped out an early three - run Red Sox lead.

Then, after KC had taken the lead in the seventh on singles by Danny Cater and Dick Green, Monday boomed his second homer of the season.

Tom McCraw, Pete Ward, Dick Kenworthy and Tommie Agee smashed the homers and John scattered six hits, losing his shutout to the defending World Series champions in the ninth on Curt Blefary's homer.

It was the biggest offensive output of the season for the White Sox. The Orioles dropped their sixth straight and ninth in the last 10 games.

Willie Horton hammered a two-run homer for the Tigers, who won their sixth in a row and stayed one half game in front of the White Sox.

Mickey Lolich, who struck out nine, needed ninth-inning help for Fred Gladding for the victory. Larry Brown homered for the slumping Indians, who have lost four straight and six of the last seven.

Torre Bat Clouts Three Homers

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Joe Torre, whose home run output once went up with his weight, has found he did not need the extra pounds after all.

The big Atlanta catcher slimmed down over the winter to around 205 pounds, about 10 below the weight he carried when he rose to National League stardom.

With three homers in the Braves' doubleheader split with the Phillies Wednesday, Torre showed that the streamlining had not hurt him a bit.

Torre knocked one over the leftfield stands in the first game, which Philadelphia Phillies won 4-3. He added two more in the nightcap, won by the Braves 7-2. Hank Aaron of the Braves also homered in each game.

In other National League games Wednesday, Pittsburgh Pirates edged St. Louis Cardinals 2-1, Los Angeles Dodgers topped Houston Astros 5-1 in 10 innings, Cincinnati Reds beat New York Mets 4-3 and Chicago Cubs edged San Francisco Giants 3-4.

The Phillies won the first game of jkheir doubleheader on a wild pitch with the bases loaded in the ninth by Phil Niekro. Aaron and Toorre both have seven homers for the season.

Bob Veale went 8 2-3 innings for the Pirates and set the Cards down on just five hits. But the big right - hander walked two men in the ninth and needed Elroy Face to register the final out. Willie Stargell hit a two-run homer for the Bucs.

The Dodgers and Astros were tied 1-1 in the 10th when, with two out, Willie Davis singled stole second, came in on Ron Hunt's single and the rush was on. The other Dodger runs came in on Jim Lefebvre's double, a balk and a single by John Rosboro.

Floyd Robinson, John Edwards and Tony Perez each knocked in two runs as Milt Pappas won his third game for the Reds. Ken Boyer got his 2,000th career hit and Ed Kranepool and Al Luplow homered for the Mets.

Billy Williams' two-run homer made the difference for the Cubs and Kenny Holtzman picked up his third victory against no defeats, though he needed relief help from Dick Radatz. Ken Henderson and Jack Hiatt homered for the Giants.

Storms Car Finishes!

A 1963 Volkswagen rescued from the brink of the wrecker's graveyard and given new life covered itself with glory in the Centennial 4,000 Rally completed in Montreal last night.

Norman Storms and Gordon Smith both of this city brought "Operation Resurrection" to the finish line after a gruelling trans-continental grind finishing in 22rd position in the overall scores and second or third in the Private Entries Class two.

Storms is a teacher at Moira Secondary School while Smith is an undergraduate of Waterloo University. Smith will teach phys-ed at Moira Secondary School next year.

Mrs. Storms, who anxiously watched the progress of the family car from her hospital bed was "thrilled to death" today when she heard the news from her husband in Montreal.

The 1963 Volkswagen checked into the finishing point in "excellent condition" Mr. Storms said.

"I could turn around and drive back to Vancouver without a hitch," he said.

Mrs. Storms added "The students at Moira did an excellent job on resurrecting the Volkswagen. They deserve a tremendous amount of credit."

While the results are not yet official, Storms said he was in 19th position yesterday morning and nine cars dropped out before reaching Montreal.

The Storms car came through with an almost perfect mechanical record. The only thing that happened was the breaking of a speedometer cable. This is a feature in the cars of the students of Moira who helped with the "resurrection."

Storms and Smith were a very happy pair as they rode through Montreal last night in a special cavalcade of "finishers."

Mets Fans Slumping

Better Recall Casey!

NEW YORK (AP)— Has the New York Mets' attendance bubble burst or are the turnstiles in Shea Stadium not clicking as regularly because of unseasonable cold weather?

Whatever the reason, New York's National League baseball team is not drawing as many banner crowds as last season. Through Tuesday night's game it showed a drop of 26.4 per cent in home attendance.

Tuesday night's game against the first-place Cincinnati Reds drew only 8,604, bringing the total for 11 home dates to 187,687. The average is 17,000.

After 11 home dates last year, the Mets had attracted 255,030 customers for a 23,200 average. They went on to finish with a season's aggregate of 1,932,693, the highest ever for a New York National League team which includes the Mets of 1962 through 1965 plus the late New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers.

The Mets' on - the - field performance doesn't seem to have anything to do with their home attendance decline. Their record is 9-13 and last year at this time it was 8-12.

Clark, Peters Win Centennial Rally

MONTREAL (CP) — Eight laps and 4,000 miles after it started, a winner was decided in the Centennial 4,000 rally Wednesday—but the final standings were in doubt until the end.

With the final results tabulated Roger Clark of London, Eng., and Jim Peters of Toronto, in a Lotus Cortina, placed first with a total of 44 points.

For the first six days of the event, Paul MacLennan of Toronto and John Wilson of Waterloo, Ont., were leaders but when they fritered Clark and Peters jumped into the lead and stayed there.

MacLennan and Wilson, last year's winners, slipped into fourth place with 329 points after running into trouble on Ontario roads. They had sailed through British Columbia and the Prairies with only two penalties.

Clark, a 27-year-old professional rallyist, was elated and celebrated by dancing into the early hours of today at a rally party.

This was the first time Clark and Peters had worked as a team and the first time in the event's seven-year history that a non-Canadian had won.

It also was Clark's first world championship win. The Centennial 4,000, sponsored by Shell Canada Ltd., is one of five rallies which make up the world championship for manufacturers teams.

"I'm glad to be here and in first place," said Clark. "The rally was boring during the run through the Prairies, but in Ontario and Quebec it was something of a challenge."

This crew, which finished fourth last year, had one of the late drive to slip into second. For most of the rally they were in the bottom half of the top 10, but came on strongly over the rough roads of Northern Ontario.

Going into Wednesday's run they were third, but moved to fourth when Karl Ondrejka and John Manson of Toronto rolled their car and lost heavily. They finished third in their Datsun with 170 points.

The Schutz, Manson entry broke a seal on their steerator and were penalized 30 points and lost another 15 for having deals in the roof of their car.

Another Citroen was sixth and won the mixed-crew section of the rally. Jean - Claude Ogier and Lucette Poinbet of Grenoble, France, had 387 points.

The long grind from Vancouver took a staff toll of cars with only 43 of an initial field of 93 making it to the Autostade at Expo 67.

Clark's Lotus Cortina was the first car to arrive at the 25,000-seat Expo stadium, but only about 600 persons were on hand to greet him in the rain.

On the journey across Canada the rallyists ran into mud, snow, ice, rain and sunshine.

Winners in the private entry section were Fritz Hochreuter and Lotz Ecker of Toronto, in a Volkswagen 1500 with 633 points.

Rosemary Smith of Dublin and Ann Brooke of Toronto won the Coupe des Dames in a Sunbeam Imp for the second year in a row.

Miss Smith arrived at the finish line resplendent in a pink driving outfit and posed for photographs. About two hours earlier she was grimy from the long run from Kitchener, Ont., but stopped at a gas station to change in order to look her best at the finish.

There was no competition in the women's section for the tainted Miss Smith. Diana Carter-Polivka of Toronto and Barbara Jean Jack of Burlington, Ont., in a Rambler American were involved in a head-on collision early Wednesday and dropped out of the rally. Neither girl was seriously injured.

Anita Taylor of Rosherham, Eng., and Terry Gillies of Montreal, in a Lotus Cortina, dropped out Tuesday when they became stuck in mud near North Bay.

Details won the manufacturers award with 2,017 points. A Volkswagen drawer team was the only other finisher with 3,248 points.

Pan-Am Games Sites Near Completion

WINNIPEG (CP)— The final push is on as an army of volunteers and staff prepares for the July 23 opening of the Pan-American Games, Canada's biggest-ever sports spectacle.

Finishing touches are being placed on stadiums, arenas and waterways throughout this Prairie Metropolitan Centre of 500,000 for the two-week event which will draw more than 3,000 athletes from 37 Western Hemisphere nations.

Some facilities have been completed, others are down to the paint - brush and broom stage. But two possible trouble spots are looming.

There is some concern about progress on the Pan-American pool, the $2,000,000 showpiece of the Games, and headaches at the ticket office where a pile-up of orders has forced a shutdown of over-the-counter sales for at least a week.

Only six weeks remain for completion of the pool, where Pan-Am trials for the Canadian swimming and diving team are to open July 1. It will be the only Olympic-sized indoor swimming and diving pool in the country.

The ticket jam developed May 6, deadline for priority redemption of 180,000 advance vouchers sold at $1 each. The vouchers entitled purchasers to first call on tickets of their choice if redeemed by the deadline, and $80,000 worth of orders poured in on the last day.

Mail orders, meanwhile, having been accumulating and numbered in order of receipt. They will be filled with the seats I gram.

Title Tournament Hits Snag; Joe Frazier Refuses to Accept Terms

TORONTO (CP)—Refusal of Joe Frazier of Philadelphia Wednesday to accept terms of a proposed eight-man elimination tournament for the vacant world heavyweight boxing championship is not bothering Irv Ungerman, manager of Canadian champion George Chuvalo.

In a television interview Wednesday, Ungerman said he is confident an adequate replacement can be found for the 1964 Olympic Games champion "possibly in South America."

And, even if not, there is always depomed champion Cassius Clay waiting for someone to fight so he can pay his court costs while battling to beat the U.S. draft.

Clay, stripped of his title by the World Boxing Association and the influential New York State Athletic Commission, has said he would like to meet Chuvalo, who he already has beaten.

He was shaken loose of his crown because he refused to accept military induction even after losing a series of court actions based on the premise that as a black Muslim minister he is exempt from Duty.

Clay's backers have said he would like to fight Chuvalo in Montreal before Expo 67 coincides in October. He also has said he would fight former champion Floyd Patterson or any of a number of others, if they'll get in a ring with him.

Chuvalo had been picked to meet Frazier, winner of all 18 of his professional fights—14 by knockouts.

But Frazier's backers said Wednesday in Philadelphia they prefer that the No. 2-ranked contender pursue an independent course toward the title without constraint by Sport Action, Inc., promoters of the tournament.

In the contracts Sport Action has sent the contenders is a clause tying the eventual winner to Sport Action for two years or will the heavyweight champion guaranteeing to make his first title defence in the Houston Astrodome.

One of the directors of Sport Action is Fred Hofheinz, son of Astrodome owner Roy Hofheinz.

Accepting the terms, with Chuvalo, and scheduled to meet for a guaranteed $20,000 in the first round are European champion Karl Mildenberger of Germany and Thad Spencer; Patterson and Oscar Bonavena of Argentina and Ernie Terrell and Jimmy Ellis, a former Clay sparring-partner.

The first round is tentatively between Patterson and Bonavena in the Astrodome July 15 with the other fights early in September.

The second round, Oct. 21 and Dec. 2 would be for a guaranteed $75,000 a match with the final, worth a minimum $125,000 a man, to be held in late January—$125,000 a man, to be held in

Major Leagues Cut-Down

Veteran Hitters, Pitchers Get The Axe

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Veteran pitchers hurling shutout baseball and veteran hitters batting over .300 were among the cut-down casualties, but the biggest sparks may fly from the outlawing of a rookie batting .194.

First baseman Mike Epstein, touted as a future superstar, was optioned by Baltimore Orioles to their Rochester farm club before Wednesday night's major league deadline to reach the 25-player limit.

"Mike said he was very disappointed and might not report to Rochester," said Orioles manager Hank Bauer.

Epstein, 24, the minor league player of the year at Rochester last season, declined comment after meeting with Bauer and Harry Dalton, Baltimore director of player personnel.

"I pointed out the opportunities to him," Dalton said, "but it's his career and it's his decision."

Among those once highly-publicized veterans to get pink slips were Ralph Terry, Bill Monbouquette, Gordy Coleman, Manny Jimenez and Bob Buhl.

Atlanta Braves, hospitalized ace right - hander Tony Cloninger, 1-1, for an indefinite period. The former 20 - game winner, who has not pitched since April 26 because of a pulled back muscle and a virus infection, is suffering from an eye problem.

Los Angeles Dodgers traded infielder John Werhas to California Angels for outfielder Lee Gabrielson and New York Mets purchased third baseman Ed Charles from Kansas City for $60,000 and minor league outfielder Larry Elliot. The Mets also bought utility infielder Bob Johnson and pitcher John Miller from Baltimore.

National League

San Francisco—Cesar Gutierrez and Bob Barton optioned to Phoenix.

St. Louis — Ted Savage and Jim Cosman optioned to Tulsa.

American League

Kansas City—Ed Charles traded to the Mets; Bob Duliba optioned to Syracuse; Wes Stock made a coach; Roberto Rodriguez and Ed Rancho released from Vancouver.

California — Bob Priddy sent outright to San Diego.

Canadian Open

Player, Yancey Entered

MONTREAL (CP) — Gary Player, one of only four golfers in history to capline all four of golf's major championships, and Bert Yancey, recent winner of the Dallas Open, have entered the $200,000 Canadian Open to be held here June 29-July 2, it was announced Wednesday.

Player, from Johannesburg, South Africa, has been in semi-retirement since taking the U.S. Open in 1965 to complete the cycle of the world's top titles. He also won the British Open in 1959, the Masters in 1961 and the PGA championship in 1962, and ranks seventh in the all-time money winnings list with $365,000.

Yancey last month placed third in the Masters classic and later won the Dallas Open.

Ready To Go
Celebrities Dinner!

Plans are progressing nicely for tomorrow (Friday) night's big sports celebrities dinner in Picton.

The dinner is being staged by the Quinte McFarlane Junior "B" Hockey Club and a fine list of sports celebrities has been confirmed.

Jim "Snipe" Matthews, who made a flying trip to Picton

RED O'QUINN

"It has been confirmed that many of the old 1958 and 1959 Mets will be at the dinner, including Ike Hildebrand, big Al Dewsbury, Pete Conacher and Joe Lopico", Matthews said.

It will be like old home week for Picton Mayor Harvey J. McFarland, who is buying a block of tickets for his guests, to help out the cause.

Added to the celebrity list this week was former world welterweight and middleweight boxing champion Carman Basilio, along with Canada's weightlifting coach Ken Cave - Brunet and one of his ace Mixers, Price Morris.

Earlier, Bobby and Dennis Hull, "Red" Storey, "Red" O'Quinn, Rick Black, Harry Sinden, MR Dunnell, Vic Bagnato, Lorne Cook, Bob Nixon and master of ceremonies Jack Devine were confirmed.

There will be presentations to various persons present, including the awarding of three trophies to members of the 1966-67 Junior Mets.

"Tickets are going well, I understand, but we have a few left here and in Picton", Matthews said, " and for anyone who decides to come at the last moment, we can likely find him a ticket at the door", he added.

"With speakers like Storey, Dunnell and O'Quinn, plus the Hull brothers, Sinden and the others, we are sure of a good show", Lockyer said earlier.

The dinner itself is scheduled for 7.00 p.m. at the O.E.S. Temple but there will be a reception at the Royal Hotel earlier. It is slated for 5.30.

OASA Clinic For Umpires Here Sunday

Do you like to argue official decisions and tell the umpires they don't know the rules?

If so (and what ball manager, coach, player and fan does not) you can further your knowledge of softball rules and regulations this weekend.

An Ontario Amateur Softball Association clinic for umpires, coaches, managers and other interested parties will be held at the Recreation Centre Sunday, from 10.00 a.m. to noon and in the afternoon starting at 1.00.

"All softball officials, umpires and managers especially, are welcome to attend", Jim Tebworth said this week, "but we feel it is especially important for minor softball officials. They can absorb a great deal to assist their work with the youngsters".

Tebworth, an umpire and OASA convener here, has been in charge of the clinic arrangements.

Heading the clinic will be Andy Davidson, past president of the OASA, and Max Schiff, the current OASA 1st vice president and a widely-known umpire.

All phases of the rules and workings of officials will be covered and questions answered from those in attendance.

"There is no charge involved for the clinic and we expect a big turnout of city and area men who are interested in the betterment of softball," Tebworth said.

So Will Clancy
'Punch' Will Be Back!

TORONTO (CP) —When the next National Hockey League season opens, Punch Imlach still will be coach and general manager of Toronto Maple Leafs.

He left no doubt of this Wednesday in an interview prior to leaving for the Western League annual meeting in Seattle although there had been suggestions he give up one of the jobs.

PUNCH IMLACH

The suggestions were most prevalent last February when Imlach went to hospital for two weeks and King Clancy, his assistant, took over handling the club.

At that time, after losing 10 straight games, the Leafs were on a three-game streak without a loss. Clancy extended it to 10.

But Imlach, under fire at the time of his illness because the club seemed to be languishing, returned to lead them to the Stanley Cup after defeating Chicago Black Hawks and Montreal Canadiens in the playoffs.

Wednesday, Imlach scoffed at suggestions he give up coaching after winning four Stanley Cups in six years.

"It doesn't make sense to retire now. Why quit when you're on top?

"Kinzr and I have talked it over. We see no reason why we can't continue as we have. The worst is over. It should be easier for a while.

Revise Constitution Now Urges Diefenbaker

Gradual Approach Best Says Prime Minister

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker gave Parliament a choice Wednesday—meet the next 100 years with a massive effort now to reform the constitution or make gradual changes to adapt it to new needs.

Mr. Diefenbaker, through a non-confidence motion confined to the constitutional issue, bid for a decision when the Commons votes on it Monday.

His motion calls for a cenenn-ial constitutional conference to bring the constitution to Canada, revise and amend it and chart a course towards national goals.

Mr. Pearson rejected this in favor of a gradual approach which "never incurs the risk of total breakdown by total agreement at a total formal conference."

"We believe that as a government it is our duty . . . to resist any constitutional leap in the dark."

Their confrontation on the issue, lurking in the background for several years, produced at-most - unprecedented agreement between the leaders that in Centennial Year a new spirit of unity and co - operation is moving Canadians.

Mr. Diefenbaker wanted it harnessed to talks among governments, political parties and representatives of all classes of society.

"The tinkering that has gone on is arousing an antagonism throughout the country. The constitution cannot be changed by whittling it away."

Confederation "will not survive long if the constitution is to be circumvented, undermined or departed from on an ad hoc basis."

He recalled that before his government was defeated and replaced by Mr. Pearson's minority administration in 1963 the provinces were invited to such a conference.

"We wanted a meeting for the purpose of restating the goals of Confederation, a gathering designed to correct any injustices that have taken place during the past 100 years, a gathering of Canadians to round out and restate these goals for the second century."

The need asserted in 1963 now has been proved and "it is time now for action rather than this pussillanimous diplomatic approach that somebody somewhere is looking into this matter who will finally come up with something so that we will be in a position to call together some kind of a meeting."

Mr. Diefenbaker, whose party has called a leadership convention in Toronto Sept. 6-9, was delivering his last throne speech address as Opposition leader unless he successfully defends the challenge to oust him.

He accused the Liberals of tinkering with the constitution through "erosive deals that are made privately." The end product, he said, was the bipartisan view in the Quebec legislature that the provinces can conduct the own international relations.

"Canadian unity cannot be preserved if we continue to chisel away the principles that made Confederation, possible and which are still the law and constitution of this country."

Mr. Pearson argued that the constitution has proved adaptable over the last 100 years, and that the "accommodation and compromise we have had to make did not mean weakness."

Language and cultural differences produced differences in values, attitude and viewpoint but "we have always reconciled these differences under our present constitution."

"We have made federal democracy work even though democracy requires a maturity, restraint and discipline which is far more difficult to maintain in the jet age than it was in the horse and buggy days of 75 years ago."

Change could be made gradually or as Mr. Diefenbaker proposed, by building a totally new structure through early, wholesale revision at a great conference.

First stage of the gradual approach was agreeing on how to change the constitution. Next came the amending formula to make required changes.

"Indeed, change of this kind could end with a total revision if all governments concerned so agreed." This was not a whittling away but an approach that "never incurs the risk of total breakdown."

The federal government had a special role in constitutional change and now was preparing a federal viewpoint on how to make it more effective.

Mr. Pearson said he has invited the provincial premiers to informal talks here July 5 after they are sworn as members of the Canadian privy council in Queen Elizabeth's presence. The Queen will be in Ottawa at the time as part of her Canadian visit connected with Expo 67.

He hoped there would be agreement among them on some matters "which could be made the subject of an early joint effort in the constitutional field."

A starting point could be adoption by the provinces of a bill of rights, based on that enacted while Mr. Diefenbaker was prime minister.

"Surely before we end seriously hope to agree on structural changes, we should endeavor to agree, federally and provincially, on a statement of common values and on a declaration of our basic individual and collective rights as Canadians."

Bigger Baby Bonuses Urged For Parents With Diplomas

TORONTO (CP) — Professor Lloyd Graham of the University of Toronto school of social work suggested Wednesday increased family allowances should be paid from pregnancy onward to couples with a certificate from an approved parenthood course.

Prof. Graham told the annual conference of the Ontario Association of Children's Aid Societies this would serve as an alternative to the Russian system in which children from the age of three months are entrusted to professionals in bringing up children.

Betty Graham, provincial director of child welfare, told the conference that the out-of-wedlock birth rate has continued to climb despite a steady decline in the total birth rate since 1960.

But Miss Graham said figures show the rate of increase in the number of unmarried Ontario mothers is slowing down. Last year the increase was four per cent while the previous year it was 10½ per cent, she said.

Rev. Rudolph Villeneuve, president of the CAS association, said bad housing has contributed to family breakdown and has helped load many work on children's aid societies.

Foes of Erie to Ohio River Canal Declare Canada Must Be Consulted

WASHINGTON (CP)—Opponents of a proposed canal from Lake Erie to the Ohio River said Wednesday Canada needs to be consulted first and warned of another Chicago water-diversion controversy.

They published a state department letter saying the Canadian government already has a copy of a report by the U.S. Corps of Army Engineers on the 120-mile project. Further, if any water diversion affected Canada's section of Lake Erie, it would require the approval of either the Canadian government or the international joint commission set up to handle mutual boundary water problems.

The power authority of New York State said the canal as planned now would tie up water worth $3,000,000 in Canada-U.S. power and threaten downstream navigable water levels past the port of Montreal.

Opposition to the canal was voiced at a hearing of House of Representatives public works and expropriation committees. The actual sitting was to be closed but copies of the submissions were made public by representatives of the power authority, railways, Great Lakes ports, Cleveland and Pittsburgh, municipalities, farm groups and unions.

Congress last year authorized $500,000 for studies on the technical and economic feasibility and initial reports have been favorable.

Now, backers of the canal want another $2,000,000 and this is being stoutly opposed.

The New York power authority said the project's impact on hydro generation, by drawing off Lake Erie water to flood the canal and 10 locks, would affect Ontario and Quebec as well.

Canal backers say chief benefits would accrue in barge traffic of coal and iron ore for the steel industry, primarily Youngstown, Ohio, which would be on the canal.

The authority operates hydro projects at Niagara and in the Cornwall area in co-operation with Ontario Hydro.

Democratic Congressmen Joseph Vigorito of Pennsylvania submitted a letter from the state department and one from Transport Secretary Alan Boyd saying a close scrutiny is being maintained of the plan.

The state department letter said a "precise study of the effects of Lake Erie is under way, but the results will not be known until the over-all design of the canal project is further advanced."

At that time, the state department would be able to discuss with Canada the relation of the canal to the 1909 boundary Waters Treaty covering Great Lakes levels and Canada-U.S. water diversion.

Light Marks Patch

VANCOUVER (CP) — K. C. Dickeson has invented a light to be attached to the canes of elderly and blind pedestrians after dark. A three-foot red plastic tube with a light inside, it was approved by the British Columbia Safety Council, which says it could be manufactured for only $1.35 each.

Uranium Miners in Ontario Not Likely Cancer Victims

TORONTO — Likelihood that Ontario uranium miners—many of whom worked in the Quirke district up to 1960 — might be prone to lung cancer through radiation, was discounted here yesterday.

An official rebuttal came in the wake of a warning by Washington officials that 529 U.S. miners may die of cancer in the next 20 years because of co-the-job exposure to radiation.

Centre of uranium mining in the Quinie area used to be Bancroft, where four mines operated from 1955 until 1960—a shutdown because of world - demand failure.

In Toronto, officials of the Ontario department of health and mines said Ontario uranium miners do not face the same hazards as those in the U.S.

R. L. Smith, the province's chief engineer of mines, said there are about 1,500 uranium miners in the province, most of them working for three major mines in the Elliot Lake area where officials can keep a close check on health conditions.

"The problem of radiation is fairly well under control in Ontario," he said. "If there were any problems, the health officials at the mines would have noticed them in the 10 or 12 years of operations at Elliot Lake."

Dr. Arthur Schmidt, a physicist in the health department's radiation protection section, said the provincial and federal governments were well aware of the dangers at the outset of uranium operations in Ontario and made stipulations as to proper ventilation and health surveillance.

He was not aware of any deaths of Ontario miners as a result of excessive radiation.

He stressed the importance, from the safety viewpoint, of keeping mining operations centralized rather than permitting large numbers of small uranium operations as in the U.S.

Canada Week in New York

Montmorency Hydro Workers On Strike Today

MONTREAL (CP)— A "no-workers in the Montmorency tuling" or staggered-area strike by employees of Hydro-Quebec was to continue today with 800 employees in the St. Maurice district returning to work.

Spokesmen for both Hydro-Quebec and the Canadian Union of Public Employees, which represents the strikers, said before the strike began that essential services would be maintained by emergency crews.

Fraser River Threatens to Test Areas Flood Control Measures

VANCOUVER (CP)—In 1948 the unpredictable Fraser River taught 30,000 farmers who lived in fertile valley flatlands a $13,000,000 lesson in flood control.

This year the river threatens to see just how well the farmers, the provincial government and the Fraser Valley municipalities learned that lesson.

The lowland farmers and the municipalities are anxiously watching the spring runoff from the biggest snowpack ever seen in the mountains of the British Columbia interior.

So far, the April-May runoff has been well below the long-time seasonal average and that meaning that millions of gallons of water that should have gradually gone downstream are still locked in the high mountain country.

Though the runoff has been higher than it was in 1948—a good sign—the delicate balance of river flow could be upset by the vastly greater snowpack in the mountains this year.

A hot spell plus snowpack equals disaster in the opinion of many officials of the B.C. water resources service.

"If a prolonged hot spell were to occur, rivers can rise to flood stages," the service said in its May snow survey bulletin. "However, if the melt pattern is weak that controlled runoff occurs, the resultant maximum stages, although high, would not be excessive."

The service said mountain snowpacks in 1954 and 1964 were almost as big as this year's but no serious flooding occurred, due to favorable temperatures and weather conditions.

The Vancouver weather office earlier this month predicted above - average temperatures during May in the Kootenays and Cariboo regions where the mountains are, and average temperatures for the valley area.

The prediction alarmed many river watchers, but temperatures have been below normal in both areas.

Snow in the Kootenays and a sharp drop to the freezing level on interior mountains earlier this week combined to further retard melting of the snowpack.

In 1948, the first flooding occurred at Kimberley in the Kootenays where Mark Creek overflowed May 24 following a long, hot holiday weekend.

At midnight, the Fraser River burst through a dike at Agassiz, 70 miles above Vancouver, to trigger the Fraser Valley disaster. About 200 people were billeted in a tent town on high ground at the town cemetery and food was dropped to them by air.

On May 31, flood waters punched a 150-foot hole through a big dike protecting Nicomen Island near Mission, a few miles upstream from Langley. More than 500 people were evacuated. The next day the river crested at 26.45 feet.

On June 9, two weeks after the battle started, the river crested again at 24.31 feet after rising 3.36 inches in 24 hours.

Five days later the battle was over.

Alberta Cattle Ranges Are Again Deep in Snow

LETHBRIDGE (CP) — The need as a result of two heavy snowstorms in late April and the new snowfall, which lasted steadily through Wednesday and into today, will cause many deaths, agriculture officials predicted.

David Thomson, executive assistant to federal Agriculture Minister J. J. Greene, said losses from Wednesday's snow could equal those from the late April storms: perhaps as many as 15,000 head.

Pearson Says Televising Of Commons Likely

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said Wednesday that the televising of parliamentary proceedings may be allowed during this session on "an experimental basis.

Initially only committee sessions perhaps would be involved, he said during the Commons debate on the speech from the throne.

Dief Says Grits Grab All Credit

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker complained Wednesday that the Liberal government is claiming all the credit for Expo 67 and centennial celebrations.

The country's history is being rewritten and the centennial is being reserved "for Liberals alone," he told the Commons as he began the major opposition attack of the throne speech debate.

The Conservative leader said Sir John A. Macdonald has been written out of his place in Canadian history in the versions being promulgated by the centennial commission.

Even the Confederation train, which could do a great deal to show Canada to Canadians, "lacks the inspiration that comes from the greatness of the lives of those of the past."

Instead of honoring great Canadian Indian chiefs, the train had begun its trip featuring Sitting Bull, an American. The picture of the Queen had been carried by the train until Conservatives complained in the Commons.

To Your Good Health

Irritation Cause of Black Tongue

Dear Dr. Molner: I have had a heavy coating on my tongue for about two years, but feel all right. I wonder what to do. — G. L.

Dear Doctor: Would you write about cause, treatment and cure of black tongue? — Mrs. N.

The surface of the tongue consists of papillae or tiny raised outgrowths. Black tongue results from irritation of the surface and a matted thickening of the papillae.

Excessive use of antibiotics can change the bacterial balance and be a factor. So can smoking, or other irritation.

The black color is due to iron pigment in the papillae, or can be a result of blood coming very slowly from the irritated surface.

One method which can be tried is softening of the thickened surface — powder the tongue with peroxide a bit and hold it there for about 10 minutes before spitting it out. Then gently scrape the tongue with a toothbrush or the edge of a spoon.

A supplement of Vitamins A, B and C may help.

As for the ordinary "coated tongue," it is not necessarily a sign of digestive disturbance or any health ailment, although some illnesses do contribute.

Strawberry have the heaviest coating. A flavred tongue often goes with respiratory diseases, such as the common cold.

Particles of food, mucus, cells of the tongue surface and yeasts constitute part of the coating. The papillae may become enlarged and trap debris between them.

Month treatment, doubtless in part from both dryness and dust, have a furry, coated tongue.

Tongue movements as in chewing, talking, and swallowing tend to keep the tongue surface clean. The coating is thickest in the morning because there has been less tongue activity and if the person is a mouth breather the coating will be heavier yet.

Dear Dr. Molner: What does a hernia look like in the chest? Does it come from and can anything be done about it? My son was told by his doctor that he has one, but that he should not worry about it. Can it be operated on? Occasionally he has pains.

He is worried. He is 33. — Mrs. M. P.

Sounds very much like hiatal hernia, which is as the diaphragm. If so, write for my booklet on Hiatal hernia — send 20 cents in coin and an unstamped envelope plus 5 cents for postage to Dr. Molner, in care of the Chicago Sun Times Syndicate, Box 158, Dundee, Illinois.

Fly for the majority of hiatal hernia can be successfully controlled without surgery. The booklet will explain all your questions.

Dear Dr. Molner: Could you give me some advice on how to put on some weight? I eat three good meals a day and have given up smoking, as I have only gained a pound in two weeks. — J. K.

Best advice I can give is to remind you that a pound in two weeks is 26 pounds in a year. Some folks who want gain magic formula to get fat overnight are headed for disappointment. Those who want to lose all their thicker overnight. There is a great difference between a complete assimilate food. Contains a high calorie diet and be patient.

Note to Mrs. W. L: I suggest that you stop letting your friends tell you what nutritious will or won't do and listen to your doctor who knows how to use it.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For May 12

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Clear communication lines. Be sure of directions, messages. Tendency toward confusion today does exist. Know this — take proper precautions. Then you save time, tempers, money.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Not wise to mix money matters and emotions today. Argument could ensue unless you check tendency to act on impulse. Analyze actions, motives. Be especially considerate of young persons.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Family friction likely unless you are diplomatic. Some information you receive is less than accurate. Know this and withhold final judgment. Circumstances due to turn in your favor.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Indirect approach gets results. No time to force issues. Obtain valid hint from Gemini message. Study meanings, indications. Read between the lines. Hidden factors important.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Friends may not be too practical concerning money affairs. Rely upon your own judgment. Some today encourage extravagance — with your possessions. Be realistic. Thriften reins!

VIRGO (Aug. 23—Sept. 22): Strive for greater independence of thought, action. You recently had burden lifted. Now you have greater freedom. Use it wisely! Agreement with one in authority favored in evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): No day to battle those who command heavy weapons. You get your way through diplomacy rather than force. One who taught you in past could make reappearance. Be grateful.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Some of your beliefs may be shaken. Turn this into opportunity to be creative. Chances are not necessarily adverse. It will do you good to move out of pattern or rut. Celebrate occasion wisely!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Don't sign agreements unless green light is given. Means don't exceed actual authority. If you take things for granted there may be difficulty. Show proper respect for superiors.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Day features opportunity for creative thinking. Involves revision of some pet theories. Obtain hint from Scorpio message. Member of opposite sex requires personal attention.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Emotions appear to dominate logic. Avoid basing actions on impulse. Accent the positive. Those close to you are puzzled by some of your attitudes. Elucidate . . . make yourself clear.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Straighten out disputes, legal contradictions in connection with home, property, pet projects. Be sure. Obtain sense of security by checking, consulting experts. Be thorough!

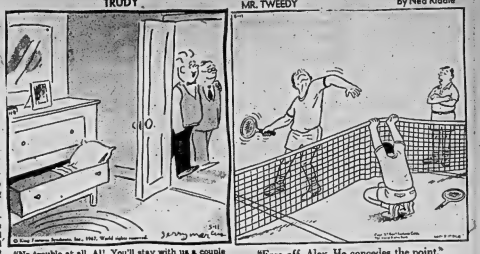
If today is your birthday. . . you are versatile, have sense of humor . . . and current cycle promises chances to show off basic abilities. Check details before making radical changes.

General Tendencies: Cycle high for Gemini, Cancer, Leo. Special word to Aquarius: If you understand yourself . . . others will follow suit.

WANTS JEWEL CLASSES

HALIFAX (CP) — The Maritime provinces should set up training workshops for jewelers, says Clifford Brown of Halifax. A jeweller himself since 1912, he says such schools might encourage more young people to learn the skills of the trade.

Niagara Park Plan Praised



TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government's decision to preserve the Niagara escarpment as parkland has been praised by G. W. Wolfram, president of the Niagara Escarpment Trail Council, in a brief to Premier John Robarts.

Mr. Wolfram says in the brief the preservation of the escarpment is a giant step forward to meeting growing public need of outdoor recreational facilities.

The brief suggests the government should issue a directive to the Ontario Municipal Board to ban all further residential and commercial development on the escarpment.

The next step is to appoint an agency or create a new one to establish a co-ordinated program of acquisition and development of the escarpment as parkland, the brief urges.

It suggests the Ontario department of lands and forests or the Niagara Parks Commission as possible agencies to be given such responsibility.

U Thant Fearful World War Started

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—UN Secretary-General U Thant says he fears "we are witnessing today the initial phases of World War III" being fought in Vietnam. The U.S. government denied the contention.

Thant told the UN Correspondents Association Thursday that the United States must stop bombing North Vietnam as the first necessary step toward prevention of a Third World War.

"If the present trend continues," Thant said, "I am afraid a direct confrontation first of all between Washington and Peking is inevitable."

U.S. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg, after consultations with officials in Washington, issued a statement declaring:

"We do not share his current assessment of the situation in Vietnam."

Goldberg also took issue with Thant's claim that neither the U.S. nor North Vietnam accepted unconditionally the secretary-general's March 14 plan for a standstill truce, preliminary talks between both sides and a new Geneva conference conducted in the spirit of the 1954 Geneva agreements on Vietnam.

Goldberg said North Vietnam's response to Thant's proposal was negative while that of the U.S. was affirmative.

Commenting on Thant's call for a stop to the bombing of the North, Goldberg reminded the secretary-general that the United States made an offer of a bombing halt last fall from the rostrum of the UN General Assembly.

The secretary - general said that only North Vietnam's continued resistance to "the pressure of an enormously superior power has prevented an enlargement of the conflict beyond the frontiers of Vietnam."

'Your Daddy May Go Down in History As Having Started World War III'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson told his daughter Luci last June, "Your daddy may go down in history as having started World War III," the Washington Post says.

The president related this remark and the story behind it Thursday night at the annual White House reception which he and Mrs. Johnson gave in honor of members of the U.S. Supreme Court, reports society reporter Judith Martin.

She says President Johnson told one unidentified guest about a late night session he had with his daughter during the bombing of oil tanks in North Vietnam by U.S. planes.

Luci had complained that he looked tired, the president recalled, and he told her to sit down and learn some history.

"You may not wake up tomorrow," Miss Martin quotes the president as telling his daughter.

Johnson went on to tell Luci of the restless night he had waiting to hear if the American planes returned and said the prayers and hopes of his daughter and himself had gone with the men on their mission, writes Miss Martin.

Two Saigon Airfields Are Shelled

SAIGON (AP) — Communist guerrillas raked two airfields near Saigon with rocket and mortar fire today, killing six Americans, wounding 100 and blowing up or damaging more than 25 planes.

The guerrillas used the biggest weapon in their arsenal, their Soviet 140-millimetre rockets, against the big air base at Bien Hoa, 16 miles northeast of Saigon.

The two fields hit were Bien Hoa, the largest tactical fighter base in South Vietnam, and an army airstrip at Phuoc Vinh, 34 miles north of Saigon. Phuoc Vinh is largely a support strip, with helicopters, transport aircraft and spotter planes stationed there.

Most Toronto Teachers Will Resign if Asked

TORONTO (CP)— Results of a secret ballot by Toronto's 2,200 high school teachers indicate more than 84 per cent of them have rejected Toronto board of education's last salary offer and will resign if asked to by the provincial executive of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation.

The ballot results were released Thursday after a two-hour meeting of the federation's Toronto district executive and salary negotiating committee.

Toronto teachers' federation leaders said last week that if the vote showed a clear rejection of the board's offer, they could either go back to the board for one final attempt to reach an agreement, or turn the teachers' retroactive pay negotiations over to the provincial federation directly.

A pay scale ranging from $6,100 to $13,000, compared with $5,400 to $11,200 at present, was accepted by the teachers' negotiators but the retroactive pay issue blocked settlement with the board.

At Oshawa 100 teachers have threatened to resign.

Teachers want $4,500 minimum and $7,000 maximum for Level 1 teachers.

U. S. Seeking Prisoner Swap

SAIGON (AP) — The United States has been extending diplomatic feelers to North Vietnam for months in the hope of arranging a war prisoner exchange, a U.S. spokesman said today, but there is no indication Hanoi is ready to agree to a swap.

The spokesman said, however, there was a continuing offer and that at any given moment several such diplomatic feelers could be under way.

There are several channels open to the U.S. for such contacts with the Hanoi regime. The embassies in Moscow and Warsaw frequently have extended such probes. The U.S. also has made contacts through the International Control Commission which Canada, Poland and India set up to oversee the Geneva agreements of 1954 on Vietnam.

The North Vietnamese hold at least 178 airmen who have been downed over the North. In addition, the Communists hold an unknown number of Americans captured by guerrillas in the South.

The war prisoner question is complicated by the fact that the North Vietnamese government does not admit officially that its troops have infiltrated into the South.

The only North Vietnamese prisoners with "official status" are 16 seamen which the United States captured after sinking a patrol boat in the China Sea last year.

Russians Now Blame U.S. Ships

WASHINGTON (AP) — The dispute over two collisions of U.S. and Soviet warships in the Sea of Japan was a standoff today: Each side accused the other of causing the bumps.

The United States charged the Soviet Navy with harassing U.S. Navy vessels on the high seas. The Russians charged the Americans with provocations.

The U.S. claimed the destroyer Walker warned away the two Soviet destroyers that jostled her—one Wednesday and the other Thursday—but that the warnings were ignored.

The Russians claimed the skippers of their destroyers drew the attention of the Americans to the impermissibility of getting dangerously close," but that the U.S. ships ignored this.

Reds Lead Hong Kong Rioters

HONG KONG (AP)—Communist-led Chinese rioters attacked police, set two police vans afire, wrecked shops and stalls and smashed their way into a resettlement housing project today as anti - British violence mounted on the outskirts of Hong Kong's mainland Kowloon section.

A leading communist newspaper in Hong Kong demanded that the British governor meet conditions similar to those imposed on the neighboring Portuguese colony of Macao in January.

In Macao, 600 screaming Chinese students surrendered and harangued British Consul Norman Ions after several hundred demonstrators invaded the consulate grounds, slashed the tires of the consul's car, and painted a seven-foot turtle on the consulate door.

The turtle is a Chinese insult, meaning stupid or stoogs.

The Kowloon mobs surged through a predominantly Chinese section of factories, workshops and tenements, strewing wreckage and doing damage at half a dozen spots.

One crowd of about 500 rushed into a resettlement housing area, broke into the caretaker's office and hurled a refrigerator and other furniture out of the windows.

Police fired tear - gas shells and charged with batons to break up the mobs, but as soon as order was restored in one area, violence broke out in another.

Guatemala's Secret Police May Have Found Bormann

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — The hue and cry that Martin Bormann, most wanted of the missing Nazi war criminals, is still alive arose again today after Guatemala's secret police arrested an elderly man and sent his fingerprints to West Germany.

Bormann, who would be 76 if alive and worth a $25,000 reward, has been reported in Argentina, Brazil and Chile on various occasions but no definite trace has been found of Hitler's deputy fuehrer.

Eduardo Garcia Gomez, chief of Guatemala's secret police, said the man, who appeared to be in his 70s and had "foreign" physical features, was arrested while working as a peasant in Mariscos, 180 miles from Guatemala City.

He was held at secret police headquarters. Unconfirmed rumors said a doctor who examined the man found traces of plastic surgery.

Expo Copter Crashes

MONTREAL (CP)—Two men were killed Thursday when a five - seat civilian helicopter crashed during a test run shortly after taking off from the Expo terminal at St. Hubert air station 15 miles southeast of Montreal.

The victims were identified as pilot Bertrand Rebiere, 36, a former resident of France who lived in Montreal for some time, and flight engineer William Auld, 30, of Ottawa.

What Started Out as Friendly Walk Ended in Terror for Toronto Girl, 6

She said a man met her on the street near her Toronto home and said he had been sent by the principal of her school to come and get her.

But to make sure, the man asked Mary her name and where she lived. Then they walked, hand in hand, toward Mary's school, where she was expected to arrive early to take part in a special Grade 1 project.

Three hours later Mary, a vivacious, outgoing daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Farncomb of Toronto, and the strange man were still walking. Mary was afraid but did not call to anyone for help.

As they approached a subway station on University Ave., in downtown Toronto, police ran toward them from several directions and grabbed the man. Mary, who was crying, wrapped her arms around a big detective.

James McLaud, 23, of no fixed address, was charged with abduction. He is to appear in court on the charge today. Police said he recently came to Toronto from Montreal.

While Mary and her friend were on their three-hour walk, police said a man called the Farncomb home and demanded a $10,000 ransom for Mary. The man told Mrs. Farncomb to get the money in small bills. He would call back at 4 p.m.

A massive police hunt for the girl began almost 2½ hours earlier, shortly before 9 a.m., when Jennifer Barrington, a neighbor of the Farncombs, spotted Mary with the strange man.

Jennifer's father was driving her to school, but before they could turn the car around Mary and the stranger had disappeared. Mr. Barrington called his wife and she ran across the street to Mrs. Farncomb. Police were called when a phone call to Mary's school established she had not arrived.

Mary and the man were spotted by Detective-Sergeant Alex Pedlar about 11:30 a.m., more than two miles south of the scene of the abduction. The man was arrested when he tried to climb over a construction board fence in front of the Hospital for Sick Children.

Mary told police the man had not harmed or threatened her. She said they had taken the subway part of the way to the downtown area and he had made two telephone calls.

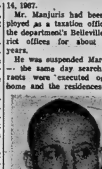
Income Tax Official Charged in Court

A Belleville income tax official, already under suspension, has been charged with uttering forged documents.



Alex Manjuris has been summonsed to court May 19 to answer two charges under the Criminal Code and two similar counts laid under the Income Tax Act.

He was served with the charges by the RCMP after Department of National Revenue investigators laid the complaint before Crown Attorney John Pringle.

The charges allege uttering of medical receipts and a charitable donation between March 7 and April 30, 1966 and March 14, 1967.

Mr. Manjuris had been employed as a taxation officer at the department's Belleville district offices for about three years.

He was suspended March 15 — the same day search warrants were executed on his home and the residences of a

Mr. Manjuris sought counsel from Belleville lawyer Robert Temple at that time.

Mr. Temple created a public stir when he charged tax officials had infringed individual rights in their handling of the case.

OMB to Hear Review of Application

The Ontario Municipal Board will again review its decision on the application of Belleville orthopaedic surgeon, Dr. Harold F. Williamson for a change in zoning to allow operation of a medical clinic at 262 Dundas Street, East.

The date of the hearing scheduled to be held in the city hall council chambers is May 25, commencing at 11.00 a.m.

On two previous occasions the OMB ruled against Dr. Williamson in his applications for spot rezoning in the Dundas Street area. The last hearing was Nov. 21, 1966.

At both previous hearings Dufferin Street residents living at the rear of the Williamson property on Dundas Street, have objected to the requested zoning change.

At this meeting, an honorary life membership in District 4 was presented to Kenneth M. Bird in recognition of his service to his professional organization. Mr. Bird has retired from full time teaching after forty-two years, mostly spent in Sidney Township. No Falling--Out Here...

. . . In fact everyone appears enjoying the situation as EMO co-ordinator Angus Duffy (left) gives impromptu talk on lecture to John Lomoro and fallout assessment team. They will spend five weeks in the Belleville area examining buildings' potential for nuclear fallout protection.

Fallout Protection Available In City Will Be Assessed

The nine-man team will come calling in the Belleville area starting Monday — and stay for up to six weeks.

It's part of a cross-Canada survey by federal and provincial emergency measures organizations to determine fallout protection available in all buildings — except private homes.

The crew, operating in pairs, will assess the physical dimensions and materials used in all buildings - industrial and institutional — to determine its capability for affording protection from nuclear fallout.

"There'll be no interference with building occupants and a minimum of questions will be asked," says group leader John Lomoro.

The team is composed of university and has the task of assessing every building in Belleville plus ventilation, water and hydro services.

The national survey follows a pilot project in Alberta which revealed available building ruled out the need of a costly program for building fallout shelters.

Town Tax Rate Set

CAMPBELLFORD — Campbellford Municipal Council set the tax rate Monday evening at 141.5 mills on commercial property and 123.4 mills on residential property.

All salaries were increased by six per cent across the board, effective Jan. 1, 1967.

A bylaw was passed to increase members' allowances by $6 per meeting, bringing the total paid each member for each meeting to $18. The mayor's salary was increased $100 a year.

No new sewers were built in 1966 and none will be built until Ontario Water Resources grants permission. No potations are now under way for the building of a sewage disposal plant.

Clerk E. M. Trey said that because of debenture issues the tax rate for 1968 might be considerably higher, unless changes are made by the government or in the Lansdowne system.

Wally Payne again addressed Council about a caterer's licence in a service construction worker in the town. Plan Construction, now working at the new Hillcrescent Public School, had requested Mr. Payne's service. The request was again last year until the regular meeting June 5.

E. Steele addressed Council in regard to services to a lot he owns in a proposed new subdivision. Because more than 60 per cent of the lot is located in Seymour Township, he was advised to contact Township Council as a preliminary move in obtaining necessary services.

P.S. Board Hopes to Build Completely Adjustable School

Meeting with architects from the firm of Sorgenz and Heljonsen Thursday night, the board discussed three separate types of building, favoring in principle a design calling for a rectangular format of classrooms surrounding a large central room. The other two plans involved a more strung out arrangement and taking up too much playground space.

Classrooms are to be built so walls might be either taken out completely or enlarged by simply moving dividers or panels.

The centre of attention in the two storey structure would be on the bottom floor a new gymnasium, 65 x 60 feet and on the second floor, a library resource area. No classrooms would surround the two large rooms, against the outside walls.

Cost however may be prohibitive.

The architectural firm estimated a cost for each foot at $25 and the plan proposed according to sketches seen last night would run about 28,000 square feet in size. The cost of $604,000 would be $4,000 over the allotment of Picton Council for the new addition.

NEW METHOD UNDER STUDY

Presently the "open classroom" scheme is under study by educational bodies as a possible development in the future. In some Canadian cities already some public schools are being built on this principle. In the United States a number of schools have been constructed in this manner.

Two of the main points in favor of the new system are, according to the architects, flexibility of space and less regimented mode of teaching.

Similar changes, leaning to-wards separate workrooms that can easily be enlarged.

Of the two other plans seen only one included a new playroom. The board had originally thought in terms of additional facilities in this area but were advised against it because although the cost of a gym-nasium would be improved it could handle no more pupils.

Few changes in the present structure were anticipated. The principal's office however would probably become a larger general office.

The modern plan was described by architects as, "the best of two worlds."

A special meeting will take place in two weeks time, on May 25, between the board if the detailed plans will be discussed.

Picton Farmers to March

PICTON (Staff) — Dispensing with Ontario Farm Union or Federation of Agriculture points of difference, local farmers gathered here Thursday to hear plans for the forthcoming Ottawa march.

With the possibility of a "united front for the first time," local branch OFU president, Leonard McAlpine, urged a good turnout for the May 24 march on the Capital. He said the group wanted at least 200 local farmers representing Prince Edward County in Ottawa.

If the march is not successful, the blame is on those farmers who don't go, he said.

Looking over the poor turnout at the meeting, Roy Saigeon, Vice-president local OFU branch was disappointed in the participation. He pointed out if Ontario farmers' numbers don't reach the hoped for 10,000, farmers would be in a poor position at the bargaining table in Ottawa.

Nothing should be more important to farmers in Prince Edward County as the present Federal Agriculture problem because it is farm wages at stake.

Adopting a few points from a brief presented to Parliament in the evening, he felt the Canadian Farm Policy discriminated against farmers. "A farmer can't expand," he said.

Politicians are controlled by labor, the CMA and Bay Street, he charged.

In spite of government suggested alternate dates, including May 23, the march will go on as scheduled, Klaus Wershoven, president of the local Federation of Agriculture told the 90 odd farmers present.

We don't want to march, but feel we have to, he said. At this point he introduced a brief outlining the demands of farmers to the Federal Government.

As well as the dairy farms at stake, he made it clear the march was for the good of agriculture in general.

Quoting from the brief: "As well as a quota deal for the country's dairy farmers, the marchers who go to Ottawa will want a coherent, comprehensive, long-range program for all of agriculture."

The broader purposes of the march is to get from the government something better than the present inadequate farm plans and programs that we have right now, the brief continues.

Commenting on the small turnout, Chairman Hunter said at least it was an enthusiastic gathering, and that indicated success at any rate.

Grants Help Farmers Make Ottawa Trip

PICTON (Staff) — The Ottawa March Committee for Prince Edward County received a second receipt of $200 and a promise of $200 more in grants towards financing their May 24 March on Ottawa.

Thursday night during an organization meeting, local farmers learned the group received $200 in grants from the County Milk Committee and an additional $200 grant from the Township of Hallowell council. The final grant will come from County Council here pending their approval Monday night during the dinner meeting.

Co-ordinators for the march committee were from the Federation of Agriculture here, Klaus Wertboven and from the Farm Union group in Prince Edward County, Leonard McAlpine. James Alexander represented the Milk Marketing Board, Secretary for the organization is William Jones and treasurer, Gordon Parks.

Aiming for a representation of at least 200 local farmers, two captains were chosen in each township overnight organization of the trip to Ottawa.

From Ameliasburg, Alfred Cairns; Sophiasburg, Alec Williams; Hallowell, Gerald Goode; Athol, Donald Nicholson; Ross Pearson; South Marysburg, Bernard Keough and Milton Hall; Marysburg Nelson Storms were chosen.

Bus captains are: Harry Evans, Rose Farrow, Keith Foster, Alfred Cairns and Bernard Keough.

Although farmers have agreed to make the trip to fill about half the buses so far. Five buses are anticipated. Tickets to help cover expenses are $3 each.

Centennial Year Fly-by Project of Flying Club

Centennial observances throughout the Bay of Quinte district are taking on many forms, but it has taken the Oak Hills Flying Club and its flying pastor, Rev. James F. McGarvey of St. James' Church, Stirling to come up with something just a little different.

The event is a Centennial Ecumenical Fly-in on Saturday morning, May 13, to commemorate the history of the Hastings area and to offer prayers for its continued success.

Anywhere up to 10 planes are expected to take part in the fly-past, depending on weather conditions and will take off from the Oak Hills field about 8.30 a.m.

The fly-by will pass over Belleville, Trenton, Tweed, Madoc, Marmora, Havelock, Campbellford and Frankford, arriving back at the Oak Hills airport by 9.45. As the flight passes over each of the centres, clergymen in each place will say prayers.

Father McGarvey, himself a pilot and charter member of the Oak Hills Flying Club, will pilot his own plane.

Each of the other pilots in the fly-by has contacted his own clergyman.

In announcing the Centennial Fly-by Father McGarvey said there will be no attempt at clog formation flying.

"We are not trained for that," he said. "The planes will fly in single file at distances of 500 feet or more apart."

Housing Measures

"The committee feels there is an overwhelming need for a national housing plan based on the premise that every Canadian deserves a decent place in which to live."

This is a key element in the report of the Commons-Senate committee on consumer affairs.

Among other things the committee recommends that the $10,000 ceiling on government-guaranteed loans for the purchase of existing homes be lifted to $18,000. The loans would be available for a straight purchase or for improvement of the older homes. The present requirement that at least $1,000 be spent by the buyer on improvements would be dropped.

Loans for home improvement work would be increased beyond the maximum limit of $4,000.

There is merit in these proposals, as there is in the committee's suggestion that it be made a permanent watchdog body to protect the interests of consumers.

Related indirectly to the premise that "every Canadian deserves a decent place to live," and by inference the fact that present housing policies do not afford such facilities in every instance, is the provincial legislature's measure permitting municipalities to grant elderly homeowners interest-free property tax deferments of up to $150 a year.

Criticized by some because no means test is involved (so that an elderly millionaire could obtain the $150 concession, "if he had enough gall," to quote Municipal Affairs Minister Spooner) and that it would have to be made up by other taxpayers, the measure nevertheless will assist many older people who may be having difficulty maintaining their homes.

Somewhere to Sit

The day when Belleville's downtown area assumes a more verdant and tree-lined aspect, to augment the floral arrangements which last summer enlivened the Front Street scene, will be a happy one.

Under redevelopment provisions, foreseen by the Chamber of Commerce, Belleville may one day have a mall and the central area will be one which shoppers and just plain strollers will be able to enjoy more fully.

Who knows, we might even see the day when sidewalk restaurants on the European-style come into vogue and weekends (in particular) will no longer be a nightmare of auto traffic and exhaust fumes.

Meanwhile we have heard a suggestion that with the possibility of the monument to Sir Mackenzie Bowell being moved from the Armouries lawn, the area concerned at the corner of Pinnacle and Bridge streets would make a pleasant rest area for citizens. It would be a place to "take the weight off their legs," as they say in Ireland.

Come to think of it there are few places where one can sit down and watch the world go by — only a couple of seats in the small park area down the street from this office, another seat outside The Intelligencer building itself, and the bus stop area on Front Street.

There is a lot of lawn there at the Armouries. However, any arrangements for its development in this way would be a matter for the military authorities and the city.

Ottawa's Image

Downtown streets are in poor condition and there is a lack of parking space for visitors to Parliament Buildings. Bus transportation to the airport also comes under fire, one in particular being an elderly vehicle which gives passengers a bumpy ride.

In other respects, though, Ottawa is setting a good example of civic pride. And it is happening at the citizen level. For instance, a group with the formidable title of Ottawa Local Council of Women's centennial committee for the beautification of Ottawa held a "clean-up and paint-up" day in one area of the city.

Dozens of children, lured by the prospect of free pop and hotdogs, came along to help. Trees were planted, a rusting old car was towed away from a shopping area, and the area given a general sprucing up. Some storekeepers, spurred by prior publicity, had painted the exteriors of their establishments.

It just goes to show what initiative will do at the local level, even in these days of increasing Government involvement in daily routine.

"Buy Back Canada" an Unrealistic Slogan

Montreal Gazette

One of the worst slogans ever invented is the one: "Buy Back Canada." The idea behind this slogan is that foreign investment in Canada in future should be discouraged, if it takes the form of equity investment and ownership. While foreign money will be needed, it should be shifted in the form of money borrowed from abroad — money that would be paid back over the years by Canadians, leaving this country free.

The slogan, and the thinking back of it, is unrealistic. And it is unrealistic in a neurotic way. Canada would not be better off under these conditions; it would suffer keenly, if not disastrously.

One of the most penetrating rebuttals of the "Buy Back Canada" theory was given this week before the Canadian Club of Montreal by W Earle McLaughlin, chairman and president of the Royal Bank of Canada. As Mr. McLaughlin says, Canada is much better off with foreign investment in the form of equity than it would be if that investment were in the form of debt.

The idea that foreign equity investment in Canada will lead to a dread Day of Judgment is false, it suggests that at some stage of national bankruptcy, she will spend the rest of the century in a kind of international debtors' prison.

But the chief advantage of equity capital is that there will be no Day of Judgment. Mr. McLaughlin points out that foreign equity investment in Canada is not money that has to be paid back. It is "eternally embodied" in Canadian bricks, mortar and machinery. It will never have to be paid back because it couldn't be. Though dividends are paid if the enterprise is successful, there are no dividends paid if it is not.

Even supposing this equity investment could be transformed into borrowed money, what would happen? The obligation to pay interest on the money borrowed, instead of dividends, would mean that the dead weight of foreign bonded debt could never be escaped.

The interest would have to be paid, in good times or bad. And if it were not paid, it could not simply be passed over, as with dividends. If default occurs, the bondholders, as segior investors, would simply step in and take over ownership and control of the enterprise.

This would be bad enough. But consider the other disadvantage that would result from shifting foreign investment out of equity and into debt.

Canada would lose the immense advantages it now enjoys through having access, through foreign subsidiaries in Canada, of the immense technical skills and research resources of foreign companies. Canada could not hope to duplicate the quality or depth of such research by its own resources.

Moreover, Canada would artificially dislocate the international capital markets, which should themselves be allowed to determine the proper balance between equity and debt financing. To make the system work at all, the Government would have to play an immensely complex role.

Says Mr. McLaughlin: Nothing is surer than this: that a policy in defiance of market forces will need powerful government subsidy, support and direction and massive intervention in the Canadian economy."

What would all this accomplish? Instead of maintaining the industrial activity of Canada by establishing new Canadian efforts, or expanding existing ones, the capital and energy of Canadians would be diverted merely to buying out foreign-owned enterprises. Substitution is not expansion.

The "Buy Back Canada" slogan can only result, in Mr. McLaughlin's words, in "frustration and the kind of irrational behavior without precedent in Canada's past."

Canada has many problems. But it will not solve them by becoming neurotic. There are plenty of new ways of expanding the Canadian economy, without diverting limited capital to trying to buy others out. Restarting a dead federal-Laurier provincial bonded debt is no answer to anything.

Kennedy Example

Substitutes for Monarchy

Peterborough Examiner

Those who would abolish the monarchy in Canada for good and sufficient reasons usually ignore the curious compensating behavior into which Iiber countries, who have no monarchy, are sometimes led. In France, for instance, the magazines give over great quantities of space to pictorial scrutiny of other royal families and seem disproportionately obsessed with the activities of the European royalty. In the United States, Hollywood and the White House take the place in the nation's imagination which normally other families occupy. Whereas British readers are regaled with the progress of the Queen's cold or Princess Margaret's marriage, Americans pore over details of President Johnson's operation, its dating habits of his daughter or the latest Hollywood scandal.

A third, if related, element is now being added and that is the Kennedy family, or dynasty as it is sometimes referred to. This clearly have a special glamor of their own over and above that which accrued from the life of a President. John F. Kennedy. Whether this is viewed as a good or bad thing, it is unquestionably a fact. But the seriousness of it can be seen from an announcement by a Detroit publishing firm, American Data Processing Inc., which usual produces technical periodicals, that it is going to put out a monthly magazine devoted entirely to the doings and observances of the Kennedy family. It will be called The Kennedy Letter, which, under its title pages of news and fe tures about the family" and "no pages set aside for original material," whatever that may be.

This may be regarded as a most ominous development in American life. But at least it will mean that Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy, who is regularly travested in magazines with names like Scarlet Secrets, will have a magazine all to the herself.

Newfies in Mood of Self-criticism

Newfoundland Journal of Commerce

Traditionally we are a Province of waiters. Over the years we have exploited the sea, the forest and the mine, pulling nothing back and leaving a trail of waste in our wake.

In the past, cod has been the only fish we bothered about. In fact, the name was synonymous with fish — throw away the fish and the rest! We have taken the best timber — leave the tops to rot and create a fire hazard! Another terrible and potential waste, possibly lingering loss of human life, of property and of young timber. Get what you can out of the mine — never mind the dust and rubble left lying about!

The telephone is as good a way as any to waste anyone's time. Why not give someone a "buzz"? And whoever would suggest limiting a call to 3 minutes after which period one pays extra is considered anti-British?

Of course it's always easy to drop in without an appointment and waste time talking trivialities.

There is absolutely no dearth of talent in this province. Much of it must be latent but what comes to the surface is often wasted. Some programs on radio and television have much to be desired, but doubtless please the undiscriminating. That which is not worthwhile is the kind of garbage we can do without and disperse with by the simple expedient of turning a knob. We don't have to waste time focusing our eyes on stupid behavior or leading our ears to find inept nonsense.

We waste garbage of another kind, the household kind that we could use as good use to make compost for gardens in our own backyards where we could grow our own home-grown vegetables, so superior to the imported varieties. Superior, very taste, and cheaper. Cheaper, too, than imported varieties for which we pay not only the purchase price but exorbitant freight and other additional costs.

It's a well known fact, too, that farmers might well make more and better use of fish offal. Canada, like all transportation problem for the inland farmer just as there may be a similar problem for the coastal farmer bringing hog to mix with the fish waste, so valuable in phosphorous content.

We have nothing but respect and understanding for industrialists people who brought circumstances beyond their control, as without the proper seed.

Perhaps one of the worst forms of waste in this province is that of the unemployed and bodied men and women "living on unemployment." If these people are not contributing in any moral degeneracy in this way, they are the type that bestir themselves early to avoid work and get their hands on money produced by the more industrious. Many of them abuse the Welfare State! Perhaps now that the Unemployment Insurance is completely divorced from the old National Employment service which is now being replaced by the Canada Manpower Division, we shall benefit from the lightening up we expect to see.

In the meantime, it appears that we must continue to pay people for the unconstructive work of investigation to probe out the profligate and shiftless.

God helps those who help themselves. Perhaps it would be more apt to say that Government is expected to help those who don't lift a finger to help themselves!

Wheat Acreage Gets A Boost

Brockville Recorder and Times

Canadian wheat farmers are going all out this year to meet the challenge of the need for more food to feed an exploding world population. They are now preparing their fields in the prairies to plant over 30 million acres to spring wheat. This compares with 25 million acres three years ago.

With the right conditions, this acreage could produce a harvest in excess of 800,000,000 bushels and there is little doubt that there will be markets for every bushel. This is in decided contrast with conditions only a few years ago when much smaller harvests produced a problem of excessive surpluses of wheat. It is not too long ago when all of the grain elevators in the country were plugged with wheat and we had reserves of 500-million bushels, at that time there was thought of Canada following a US move to limit wheat production. The population explosion, however, has changed all that. With the world's needy growing fatter than food production the day of wheat surpluses is past.

The world population is increasing at the rate of 60 to 70 million people a year and wheat acreage has to be increased to feed many more hungry mouths each year. But there is a limit to the expansion of wheat acreage.

IQ Tests in the Doghouse

Ottawa Journal

The use of the "I.Q. Test" to assess people's abilities has been regarded with healthy skepticism for some time. The results of a survey of 148 seventeen year old Canadians at the University may make it even healthier.

The science instructors tried the "11-plus" test that 11-year-old British school children grimly must undergo to win an academic stream bound for first-rate universities. About 15 per cent of the Brits failed to scores the required intelligence quotient of 118 — and probably would have ended up in a trade school as 11-year-olds.

Some teachers with "first-class" degrees had IQs as low as 116. The best scientist in our department turned out to have the lowest IQ. The majority of the teachers failed to reach the 130 score required to be classed as brilliant — they were merely bright.

All this doesn't mean IQ tests have no value. But they are only an indicator. As teachers, employers and social workers have known for years, it isn't just ability that determines performance. Call it dedication, perseverance or just plain good habits, there is another dimension to be considered in gauging a person's effectiveness. If this involves being more subjective in rating people's abilities, then by all means let's be more subjective. It'll muddy up the "science" but the books will balance sheet will show the dividends.

NATO Adopts More Relaxed Cold War Strategy in Europe

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The new relaxed strategy of the Western alliance is based on a belief the West will get plenty of warning before the cold war descends on Europe again.

Both the United States and Britain believe they have a number of lines tapping Kremlin thinking, such as on nuclear non - proliferation and trade, and are convinced these lines can quickly and accurately disclose any sudden shift in Soviet policy.

The accumulating evidence points to a general improvement in Soviet-Western relations. The Kremlin seems more concerned with the internal demands of its people. It appears to have loosened its grip on Warsaw pact countries and to be concentrating increasingly on the new menace to the East —China.

The North Atlantic defence ministers found it easy to agree in Paris that they can safely refashion their strategy to suit their pockets as well as the existing state of the enemy threat. The number of Anglo-American troops on the Continent is to be reduced and the new standing NATO goal of 30 divisions has been trimmed to 20.

The target of 30 divisions proved unrealistic. It was never achieved. Britain argued that in the event of surprise attack the battle would escalate into nuclear war which would become defensive in a matter of weeks or even days. A huge ground force of front-line troops would be useless.

Britain has won its point. With lower goals, NATO can also reduce the volume of military supplies required to equip and maintain the larger armies.

Savings can be rechannelled into home projects.

In cutting manpower goals, the defence ministers have cancelled the old massive retaliation policy in favor of graduated response in the hope that a breath five could be established before it turned into a holocaust.

The argument is that the massive retaliation strategy was never realistic. It would be a last ditch act by hydrogen bombs dropped on the enemy at the outset of war. It would be an act of desperation and perhaps even suicide.

But if massive retaliation was never realistic, the old British argument that a conventional war would soon escalate into nuclear conflict may also have been unrealistic. Perhaps nuclear stalemate may simply mean a prolongation of conventional conflict requiring large armies.

Exemptions Will Continue

Government Meets Mining Industry Complaints on Carter Report

OTTAWA (CP)—The mining industry's public anguish over the Carter report on taxation has been met by a government guarantee that new-mine tax exemptions will continue for another 6½ years.

Finance Minister Sharp laid to industry fears temporarily at rest Thursday with a Commons statement which promised three-year tax exemptions for new mines would stay at least until Jan. 1, 1974.

He also pledged a status quo until Jan. 1, 1968, in treatment of prospectors and their backers, who are not now taxed on proceeds from sale of property they have discovered.

Purpose of Mr. Sharp's statement is to prevent cancellation by industry of planned developments because of concern over implementation of the Carter royal commission report on taxation.

The commission's report, turned over to the government in February, recommended abolition of both the mine exemption and the prospectors' incentives.

Mr. Sharp said the government will come to no conclusions about the report until this fall, and in the meantime he is anxious to "reclaim(s) them uncertainties."

He emphasized that his announcement "does not mean either that the government has adopted the commissioner's recommendations or that we have rejected them."

Mr. Sharp and his officials have been working for more than a week on a statement of reassurance that would still leave the government's hands free in deciding what to do about tax reform.

Bert Lebee (SC — Cariboo) said the announcement will be "very pleasing" to British Columbia, where he said $500,000,000 worth of mining projects have been put on ice since the report was published.

Noranda Mines Ltd. has publicly announced a holdup in plans for a $30,000,000 copper development at Babine Lake, B.C., and a $57,000,000 molybdenum-copper development near Pemticton, B.C.

In Quebec, Lac. called off an $85,000,000 asbestos development in the Ungava region, blaming the report and higher costs.

Mr. Sharp said that if the tax exemption for mines is announced on the basis of government proposals this fall, it would not be done in a manner to take effect before Jan. 1, 1974.

Nor would it "in any essential manner" change the method of application of the exemption before that date, he added:

"The effect of this undertaking will be that companies which now have projects in the planning stage will have 1968, 1969 and 1970 to come into commercial production in time to receive a full 36 months' exemption.

"In establishing this period we have taken account of the time required to bring large projects into production, particularly in areas where transportation and weather are important factors.

"This period will afford companies the time necessary for the extensive pre-production development work and the construction of ore processing facilities required before commercial production can begin."

The guarantee to prospectors and their backers keeps intact their incentive on income to Jan. 1, 1968 from properties or interests acquired before Jan. 1, 1968.

Suspended Sentences Imposed

TORONTO (CP) — Prudential Finance Corp. and one of its subsidiaries, Ontario Metal Specialties Co. Ltd., received suspended sentences Thursday after being found guilty of unlawful trading in securities.

Magistrate Joseph Addison said he suspended sentence because a fine would only cause hardship to those who had invested in the companies.

Prudential Finance was declared bankrupt last December, with an estimated loss to its investors—mostly individuals of limited means—of $20,000,000.

The companies were charged with selling debentures without being registered with the Ontario Securities Commission.

ANSWER: Good idea! PUTTING - ON - THE - DOG-CAKE

Use a 9" square diameter cake. Cut a 3" wide strip from one side. Cover a stiff cardboard with foil and place remaining large piece of cake at center for dog's head. Cut a 6" long piece from the 3" wide piece for dog's muzzle. Cut remaining piece in half and place diagonally at upper corners of "head" for "ears". Frost head first with fluffy white or butter icing. Put muzzle on top of lower edge of head. Now frost all over — inchelling muzzle, and ears and sprinkle generously all over with coconut and pat on gently. Press on black pun drops for eyes and nose and sliced red gumdrops for smiling mouth. This is amazingly lifelike and the youngsters here barbed at him.

Mutual Friend Refuses to Sit In Middle When Offered A Lift

DORIS CLARK

FRIDAY

Dinner Menus

Creamed Hard - Cooked Eggs (see Tues.) on Fluffy Rice; Mixed Peas and Kernel Corn; Cheese-Stuffed Celery; Broiled Grapefruit Halves with Maraschino Cherry Juice; Chiffon Cake; Tea.

Dear Doris: My husband and I often offer a mutual friend a lift in our car. We sit three sat in the roomy front seat. I feel ill at ease to get in without inviting her to enter first; up until now she has told me to get in first, which I have done, and I feel we have both done the proper thing.

However, last time we offered her a lift she refused the middle seat, flatly saying that she was not a train checker and that it was not up place to ask her to sit next to my husband. I told her that it was a matter of courtesy on my part, that she always had the privilege of declining and could still suggest that I get in first.

I find her so unreasonable that I am considering breaking up our friendship. — Non-pleased.

Dear Nonpleased: Oh, fiddlesticks! She said that manchaser thing, not you. As her gracious hostess, for the time, you feasted her with the invitation to sit between you; and she suggests you are throwing her at your friends.

This one thing is not worth wrecking a friendship for. Do what she wants. But don't let her deprive you of your sense of proportion when it comes to giving a lift to anyone else.

Dear Doris: In el debate I have taken the negative side to the following argum e n t: Resolved that children should be taken away from their parents at two years of age.

Could you suggest some objections? I know that it is ideal it used to be the practice of the nobility to send their children to boarding schools or have nannies take care of them. — Worthy Opponent.

Dear Opponent: The very idea shocks me. In social work we do all we can to keep little ones with their mothers and fathers as long as possible. Where it just can't be done, we hunt hard for a foster home which can provide the warm, loving, one-to-one relationship that a blossoming tiny human personality needs. This isn't found in a boarding school, at two.

Even imperfect parents (and who knows it all!) are better than no parents. We know for sure that babies raised in sterile, physically perfect comfort will pine away without the loving, cuddling, stroking, that goes with mothering at its best.

If there are boarding schools for toddlers of two in England, I haven't heard about them. Nannies? Yes. But here again, the money substitutes her love and affection for any lack.

Dear Doris: When a boy friend brought me home from skating, we sat in the car and talked for a while. Then my mother came out and yelled at me to get into the house. The next morning I was told by both parents that it didn't look nice and I should have brought him in.

I disagree, because it was too late to ask him in, and anyway, if I went to talk to a guy, I wouldn't bring him in because I know for a fact that my mother would listen.

My mother is always talking about getting into trouble. She even said that words do not have anything to do with it that it could happen to anyone. I disagree. I have a determined character, being a Scorpio, and I firmly believe that it was until I married before going all the way. — Don't fool my morals and never have. — Scorpio.

Dear Scorpio: I don't hold with handing a gal out in front of her date; but if it was too late to bring him in, it's dollars to doughnuts it was plenty late to be sitting in a parked car. Being born under a high-class star isn't going to make you immune to some low-class human approaches, and your mother knows this, but there is room here for some trust.

If you have been reading me you know I've been at this side to the following argum e n t: Resolved that children should be taken away from their parents at two years of age.

Fluff-brushing Can Create Simple Styles

By Reba & Bonnie Churchill

Shapely, feather - brushed hair styles are "in"; stringy, fling-about curls are "out." The trend is to curvier, more controllable styles. These are created by a fluff-brushing technique, which back-strokes hair from the scalp for only two inches down the strands. This action provides a cushion, which fills out and contours shape. Top layers are smoothed back from the face, then slides are hand-moulded to form relaxed waves. The latter dip onto each cheek and can be lifted or lowered to emphasize bone structure.

For those with shorter hair, the same flexible line can be achieved. Studio stylist Lynda Gurasich begins by parting hair in the centre and brushing it into a conventional flip. What makes outline noteworthy is the finish let Lynda Gurasich begins by Tresses are sculptured into gently curved waves. If strands are too curly, a styling clamp is placed just below the dip of the wave. The weight of the clamp literally stretches the curl into a curve. The flip is "feathered" by brushing from "top" of the wing-out to the ends. Spray, and cold's smooth-as-silk-look will last.

For those who love up sweeps, but have ended away from the sleek silhouette as too matronly, follow this tip. Before styling back of hair, lightly fluff-brush tresses. This provides added body, so when fashioned into a twist, strands aren't a spindly roll but a well-shaped contour, giving the updo added depth and symmetry. Sides are combed back from the face, and blended into the twist. The front, again, spotlights the softer, smoother line. Top is well-brushed into a soft, frothy, overlapping swirls, while bangs are hand-sculptured to sweep across forehead.

Birth Control Pills Cause Some Deaths

LONDON (AP)—The British Medical Research Council said Friday birth control pills may have been responsible for the deaths of 20 women in Britain last year.

That would make a ratio of three for every 100,000 women who used oral contraceptives—just half the risk the same women had of being killed in an auto accident, said the report published in the British Medical Journal.

It concluded: "There can be no reasonable doubt that some type of thrombo-embolic disorder—blocking of blood vessels by clots—are associated with the use of oral contraceptives."

The report came from studies based on cases in seven London hospitals and findings by the College of General Practitioners and the Committee on Safety in Drugs.

Man Needs Night's Sleep; Mom Can Nap

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My dear husband was only too happy to show me your column this morning — the one in which you said a wife should not expect her husband to get up at night with small children. Why don't you retire and turn your column over to someone whose mind has not been so badly damaged by age . . . someone who can at least remember what life was like when her children were babies.

ANN LANDERS

You said a man needs a full night's sleep so he can put in a day's work, and a mother can nap if she must. Did you my nap? ! ! ! You must be kidding. If I nap will you come over and do my laundry and cleaning and mending and baking and cooking?

My 11-month-old is already walking. She goes for the wall plugs, cans, paper and climbs furniture like a monkey. My two-year-old is as fast as a streak of lightning. If I let her out of my sight for one minute, our home would have to be declared a disaster area.

Bedtime for me is 11:30 and then I can look forward to getting up at least twice during the night with the baby who is teething or has a bellyache or wet the bed. Tell your husband should not be bothered, you say. I just about had him seeing things my way when you came along with this lousy column. Thanks for nothing. — READY TO DROP.

DEAR READY: I still say you can nap if you want to. Or would you rather be a martyr? Maybe you can't sleep, but just getting off your feet for an hour or so will give you added energy. Try it and leave your husband alone.

* *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: For the past ten years I've been a secretary to a successful and attractive businessman who has a reputation for entertaining women other than his wife. The office gossip has it that our boss is involved in an affair with a woman who is employed here. She is unmarried, good looking and well liked.

The boss goes on frequent business trips. Recently, he and this woman have been absent from the office at the same time. The two of them say they are together.

This is not my business and I don't wish to make it mine. But now the boss's wife has begun telephoning during the boss's absence . . . pumping me for information. She'll ask, "Is Miss Soandso in today?" Or, "I would like Miss Soandso to call me. Please see that she gets the message."

I've tried to be evasive, but today she nailed me by saying, "I'll hold the phone while you go see if Miss Soandso is in." When I told her I couldn't leave my desk because I was expecting some important calls she was furious.

My husband says as a loyal employee I must tell the boss about her inquiries. I hate being in the middle. How shall I deal with the wife? Should I tell my boss? Please advise me.— FRACTURED.

DEAR FRAC.: You are under no obligation to serve as a private eye for either the boss or his wife. If you are wise you'll have no part of such action.

Tell the boss's wife if she wishes to speak with Miss Soandso to call her direct. Surely Miss Soandso has a telephone at her desk. As for the boss, report nothing.

Early Uniforms Seen At Salvation Army Party

A centennial coffee and dessert party was held at the Salvation Army, Station Street, Wednesday evening. With the timely comments of Mrs. Lt.-Colonel Hawker, Divisional Home League secretary, the project was officially opened.

Mrs. Robert Lane and members of the Station Street Home League used a centennial theme for the evening. Tea and coffee were served by women dressed in early Canadian costume, old photographs were displayed around the room and crockery and utensils used a century ago became interesting table centres. Mrs. Lane and Lieut Mabel Jean Rawlins were early Salvation Army uniforms - including the large poke bonnets.

Mrs. A. G. Herbison supervised the bake table and Mrs. Harvey Potter looked after the sale of goods - including a colorful centennial quilt made by the women of the Home League. The proceeds of the centennial project will be put toward the Salvation Army Building Fund.

Kiwanis L.A. Visits Group in Kingston

On the invitation of the West Kingston Ladies' Auxiliary the Belleville Kiwanis Ladies' Auxiliary group travelled to Kingston Thursday evening. A delicious potluck supper awaited members on arrival. As this interchange has become a yearly event many renewed old acquaintances while others made new friends.

The guest-speaker was Mrs. Margaret Angus, chairman of the Kingston Centennial Committee, who is also the author of a new book on historic Kingston, The Stones of Old Kingston.

In an excellent address Mrs. Angus outlined the projects of the three levels of government as well as private groups for Centennial Year. She expressed the hope that when this year is past the interaction of diverse groups in the community which has resulted from this year's celebrations will continue and grow. In such a social climate a community would be able to provide a better life for its citizens and make a greater contribution to Canada in the future.

Following the guest speaker there was a brief singsong led by the Kingston president, Mrs. Edna Barrett.

After thanking the Kingston group for hospitality Belleville president Mrs. R. Lumbers presented them with copies of the Centennial cook book.

On the bus trip home plans for the June meeting were discussed.

Points for Parents

Mother: "That dress is too old for you. You need something round and fluffy looking."

Daughter: "Mother! Nobody wears anything like that any more. You're just trying to keep me a little girl."

A young teen-ager has very definite ideas about what "everyone is wearing," but she may need a little tactful guidance about what is appropriate for her age. It's easier to talk it over calmly ahead of time than it is in the store.

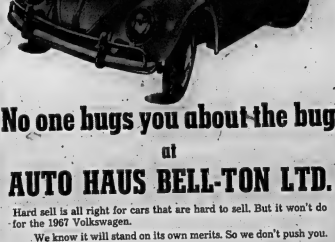
Should Remove More Breasts Says Doctors

TORONTO (CP) —Internal false breasts of silastic can be inserted so successfully that breasts should be removed more often from some women as a cancer - preventive measure, Dr. W. R. Ghent, associate professor of surgery at Queen's University, said Thursday.

Dr. Ghent told the annual meeting of the Ontario Medical Association that breasts should be removed and replaced when cells show dangerous changes that may indicate ultimate conversion into malignancy.

He said the operation is also suitable in cases where certain forms of completely benign noncancerous mastitis causes constant pain in the breasts.



Dr. Ghent said that from five to 15 per cent of the women who develop lumps in their breasts may suffer eventually from breast cancer.

Changes Made in Air Pollution Bill

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's proposed Air Pollution Control Act emerged from the legislature's health committee Thursday with three changes and the prospect of at least two more.

The legislation, slated to take effect before the end of 1967, provides for sweeping provincial controls over all forms of air pollution.

Hostile reaction from both industry and groups advocating stricter controls on air pollutants when the bill was introduced April 27 led Health Minister Matthew Dymond to withdraw it for a further two-week study.

During a two-hour study the committee approved three amendments which:

1. Require that anti-pollution devices for cars eventually prescribed by regulation not only be installed in cars but be placed in "effective use."

2. Permit the cabinet to pass regulations to set and maintain standards of air quality.

3. Allow the regulations to be applied in specific regions of the province or generally to deal with a province - wide industry.

In addition, Dr. Dymond agreed to instruct legislative counsel to prepare amendments allowing industries to appeal ministerial decisions to the Supreme Court and specifying composition of the proposed "air pollution control advisory board."

The minister flatly rejected several requests for changes in the bill from John Burrett of Niagara Falls, counsel for abrasives companies in the Niagara Peninsula.

One clause the firms wanted removed from the bill required any firm planning installation which might pollute the air to acquire provincial approval of control devices before proceeding with construction.

Insulin Prices Will Rise

TORONTO (CP)— Connaught Medical Research Laboratories has increased its prices for packages of insulin from 10 to 33 per cent because of the increased cost of making the drug, Dr. A. M. Fisher, assistant director of the laboratories, said Thursday.

Connaught produces all insulin sold in Canada.

Dr. Fisher said the increase in price, effective last month, was the first increase since the drug was discovered here in 1921 by Sir Frederick Banting and Dr. Charles Best.

He said the price of a 10-cubic-centimetre vial of insulin at the strength of 40 units a cubic centimetre has been raised to 90 cents from 85 cents. Other increases vary, depending on the strength of the insulin.

Brakeman Pulls Tot Off Track

ST. THOMAS (CP) —A CNR brakeman Thursday jumped from a moving freight train and ran ahead of it to snatch a young girl from its path.

The girl, a teen-ager who apparently be dead, slipped away in the confusion as a crowd gathered at the level crossing where she had been walking.

D. B. Potter, 50, of London, Ont., was riding on the lower step of the caboose on a train being backed toward the level crossing when he saw the girl on the tracks. He ran ahead of the train and pushed her off the tracks.

SAYS GNP WILL RISE

The president of the Urban Development Institute of Canada said in Vancouver Thursday Canada's gross national product and total national consumption should increase by four times in the next 33 years. A. Lloyd Caldwell of Halifax said that according to the economic forecast made in 1964 for the royal commission on health services, the GNP would grow from $37,400,000,000 in 1961 to $131,200,000,000 by 1991.

Killex kills more lawn weeds than any other lawn treatment

We guarantee it.

Used as directed, Green Cross Killex guarantees results—or we will refund the full purchase price.
We can make this guarantee because Killex contains a triple combination of components which kill more hard-to-kill lawn weeds than any other lawn treatment. Even where famous 2,4-D has failed, Killex has provided outstanding control over such problem lawn weeds as: Chickweed, Clover, Bedstraw, Black Medick, Heal-all, Ground Ivy, Knotweed, Shepherd's Purse, and of course Dandelions and Plantains.
Killex is economical, too. One ounce of Killex to one gallon of water weed-treats 250 sq. ft. of lawn. Yet for all its effectiveness, Killex is safe on most lawn grasses.
Even the best weed killers can fail sometimes. Killex is an exception.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

PICTON — Nostalgia is so deep in this pretty Prince Edward county town one could dip the paddle of memory deep — and not touch bottom.

Without taking away any of the glitter and glamor associated with top celebrities in the world of sport there is something more to the Quinte - McFarlands Sports Celebrities dinner than the repeated thrill to veteran sportsmen of boisnobbing with the stars.

Particularly those who were directly or indirectly associated with that now-swashbuckling gang of packaters wearing the sweaters of the 1959 Belleville McFarlands who snatched the bauble of world amateur supremacy from beneath the noses of Bunny Ahearne and the proud Russians.

Tonight's dinner should be the nearest approach to a reunion of the club which in my opinion shares honors with the Blair-led Whitby Dunlops as being the best amateur teams to represent Canada in world hockey since Ahearne smelled a big profit by authoring its organization.

It is expected that between 12 and 15 of the old guard will grace the festive board, the guests of their late-fifties godfather Hutsoner Mayor Harvey J. McFarland, the man who almost convinced the mayor of Prague that the Bay of Quinte was a damsite prettier than the Blue Danube and Prince Edward county was a garden where Czechs wouldn't bounce if they decided to come here.

There likely will be sounds of revelry when those Macs who have been residents in the district for these many years, greet the one and only Ike Hildebrand, the miniature mentor, Big Al Dewsbury, Joe Lepine, the Jack Bennay of Quebec, and Pete Conacher.

It was hoped that Bari Bradley would be here from Williams Lake but word have brought together in reunion the "half-pint" line of Bradley, Ike and Wilmer Brown who used-to tip the scales at 455 pounds when they climbed on together soaking wet.

Billy Reay, who piloted the Chicago Black Hawks to the NHL championship last season will miss the party by a day. Billy arrives back from a Florida vacation on Saturday. Along celebrities row, Rocky Marciano, undefeated world heavyweight champion, has sent his regrets.

Old Man Time will turn backward some six or seven years in his flight and the reminiscences will fly thick and fast.

They will recall the thrill of victory and one qualm of defeat disappointment in the final game with the Czech team. They'll bring back the weary hours of travel by bus, train and plane, while on an extended -Cooke's tour of Europe readying for the big tournament.

They'll relive the time when Turk Barclay got lost in Europe while hunting down some 600 hockey sticks that had gone astray with at one time the Turk riding the same train as the club and unaware of the fact.

They'll see in their minds eye the game in Helsinki when Johnny McLellan was sent in the hoosegow and the wild Finns pelted him with bicycle-spiked snowballs.

They will see again Lammy Lombardo who never drew a penalty, being named the outstanding defenceman, and the "Big Doo" who belted incoming foemen willy-nilly saying to the "Aw shucks, coach, Lennox at 'em they're coming in head down like sitting ducks."

They'll recall the banquets and referees; the tense moments, and the loyalty of non-playing buddies.

And they probably will thrill once more to the greatest moment of their hockey lives. That afternoon in a Prague Stadium when 24,000 stood up-to cheer. Russian officers stood at "attention" and their fellow Canadians stood silent, eyes aglint with tears as Canada's Red Ensign flutiered aloft in victory; a band played "O Canada" and the McFarlands once declared the 1959 amateur champions of the world.

Twins Took A Chance; It's Paying Off

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Pitching for Minnesota has made Ohio Isemberg Dean Chance happier than a farmer with a pen full of hogs and the market price doubled.

The hard-living right-hander, who had fallen on sad times since winning the Cy Young Award with California Angels, is rounding up the scattered pieces of his career with the Twins and fattening them up on a pennant thread.

"With this team, I don't think I'm going to lose another game," Chance said in an expansive mood Thursday night after blanking Kansas City Athletics 3-0 on a one-hitter.

"It's fun when you win; its fun to play the game," he said, recapturing his 5-1 record which makes him the winningest pitcher in the American League. "It means something to play for a pennant contender because you know you're playing for something."

Chance, who operates two farms with a total of about 225 acres near Wooster, Ohio, also owns almost half of Minnesota's 11 victories and has kept the sluggish Twins tied for sixth, only 4½ games from the lead.

Steve Hargan and Bob Bruce also had reason to be jubilant. Hargan bucked a five-hitter in Cleveland Indians' 2-1 victory over Washington Senators in the only other AL game, and Bruce allowed only three hits in pitching Atlanta Braves past Pittsburgh Pirates 8-2 in the only National League contest.

The Twins gave up Don Mincher and Jimmie Hall to get him. Now he talks about being named comeback player of the year, winning 20 again and adding another Cy Young award.

The 25-year-old hurler still is remembered for his escapades with Bo Belinsky as a member of the light - hitting Angels.

But the way Chance was throwing Thursday night, he only needed rookie Rich Reese's first major league homer with none on. Reese drove in two more runs and rookie Ron Clark socked in three more.

The only hit off him was Danny Cater's single in the fourth inning. He struck out eight and walked six.

Hargon, 3-3, did not have it so easy as he outdueled Camilo Pascual, 2-1. Hargan led 2-0 on two wild pitches that scored Ford Whitfield who doubled, and Chuck Hinton's run-scoring double.

But the Senators scored in the ninth inning when Hinton dropped a long fly for a three-base error after Frank Howard singled. However, Hargan struck out Paul Casanova to end the game.

Bruce breezed as the Braves jumped to a 4-0 lead against Tommie Sisk and added four unearned runs in the seventh, two on Felipe Alou's triple.

Gene Alley doubled home both Pittsburgh runs.

Boisterous Battle

Marrs Maul Marlies; Win 6-4!

FORT WILLIAM, Ont. (CP)— It's nice but let's not get excited.

That is how coach Ab Cava reacted Thursday night after Fort Arthur Marrs tripped Toronto Marlboros 6-4 in the third game of the Memorial Cup junior hockey final, slicing their deficit in the best-of-seven series to a single game.

"It puts us back in the series," Cava said, "But we're out to win the cup." Toronto still leads the series two games to one.

In the Toronto dressing room, coach Gus Bodnar and manager Jini Gregory were philosophical.

"Anything can happen in junior hockey," they said. "But we're in no way down," added Bodnar.

The fourth game in the best-of-seven Canadian championship series will be played here tonight.

Bodnar said a "bad" penalty — a two - minute sentence for slashing to defenceman Mike Polyk at 13:38 of the third period—decided the game. Fort Arthur scored what proved to be the winning goal 36 seconds later.

Polyk committed the infraction before a faceoff, taking a swipe at a Marrs player involved in a line change.

The big man for Fort Arthur were Bill Fairbairn and John Widing, who first donned Marrs uniforms last Sunday.

Both 100-pint men for Brandon Wheat Kings in the Manitoba league this season, they are reinforcements permitted under Canadian Amateur Hockey Association regulations designed to strengthen the Western club in the Memorial Cup series.

Widing and Fairbairn both scored two goals, including the latter in the third period as Fort Arthur broke out of a second - period slump that had put them behind 4-0.

Tim McCormack and John Healey were the other scorers for Fort Arthur in the final for the first time in 19 years.

Marlboros, 6-3, and 8-4 victors in the first two games, will convocune a 2-0 deficit with second-ivey, Tom Martin, John Wright and Cam Crosby.

Fairbairn, who also picked up two assists, scored the winning tally and lotted the insurance goal into an empty Toronto net after Marlboros had pulled goaltender Bob Whidden.

The rough clash before more than 1,300 fans ended with Crosby exchanging swings with Marrs Ray Addunno and Bob Kelly. In trying to separate the combatants, linesman Roy Lemaire suffered a scalp cut. The participants received majors, with Kelly getting an additional misconduct.

Referee John McVey called 28 penalties, including seven majors for fighting. Fort Arthur took 15, including four majors.

Lombanks Shaping Up Well

"We are shaping up pretty good and if we can get some good sunny weather for practice and fill a couple more positions, the Lombanks will be ready to go."

This was Murray "Moe"

PAT ASSELSTINE

Hunter, spokesman for Belleville Lombanks senior baseball club, speaking this morning.

"We hope to sign a coach today and we are still looking for a club president and another good pitcher.

"If we can get Jack Carson to accept the position of president it will be a tremendous help to the club," Hunter added.

Al Kelleher, who has been golfing for the club through workouts for some time, was expected to sign as coach but changed his mind this week. "Al decided to stick with the umpires this year and I guess you can't coach and umpire too," Hunter said. He added that another wellknown city ball star has been contacted, "and we hope he will decide to take the job today."

Around 15 to 20 players have been practising with the club and Hunter ran through a list of those expected to stick.

Pitching-wise, the club has four right-handers in ace Bill Latchford, Don Masters, young Rodger Hunter and big Bill Barbestuck. The Lewis brothers, Dave and Larry, have apparently decided to stick with the South Hastings Baseball League. Hunter hopes to line up another veteran pitcher with senior experience in the Toronto area who is now living and working in Belleville.

Ready for outfield duty are Dufly Fellwell, Rick Locke, who will miss about a month of the schedule while taking a course in Toronto, speedster Terry Wellesley, Carl Boomhower, Larry Soule and

LARRY MAVETY

John McGibbon. "Ralph Plane has been out a couple of times but he has decided to play softball," Hunter said.

Larry Mavety is working behind the plate and will likely be number one catcher.

In the infield, Jerry Hill and Stu Muirhead have been holding down first base, Pat Asselstine second, Hunter and Glenn Clarke third and Wayne Woods shortstop.

"Asselstine still looks great with the glove but he's had a little problem hitting the ball. That will come with practice," Hunter declared.

It was stressed, however, that despite the healthy turnouts, any district players who could help the club will still be more than welcome.

As for team executive, Wally Moffat is the vice-president, Tom "Red" Mavety treasurer and Jack Devins secretary. Hunter intended to approach Jack Carson again today re: the club president's position.

Three-Year Contract

Olmstead To Coach California Seals

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bert Olmstead was named coach Thursday of California Seals in the expanded National Hockey League.

Olmstead, 40, told a press conference he has agreed to a three-year contract with California which last season played in the Western Hockey League. Salary was not disclosed.

He said he turned down coaching offers from Los Angeles Kings, another NHL expansion club, and Vancouver Canucks of the WHL, the team he has coached the last two seasons. Canucks lost this year in the finals to Seattle Totems.

Olmstead said that under his contract he will have responsibility for player personnel, trades, draft decisions and training camp.

A native of Scepter, Sask., he came to Vancouver at the recommendation of Emile Francis, coach and general manager of the NHL New York Rangers.

"It was agreed if Emile found the combination job of coach and general manager too much of a load, I would become his assistant," said Olmstead. "After last season, it was quite apparent Emile could look after his responsibilities."

Olmstead played junior hockey with Moose Jaw, Sask. He graduated to Kansas City for two seasons before entering the NHL in 1948 with Chicago Black Hawks.

Now It's Trip Poker

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — How about a game of trip poker? Trip, that is, not strip.

The Ninety-Nines Incorporated, an international organization of women, plans an air race June 4 called the Pilots' Poker Run.

It goes like this: All entrants — men are included — have three hours to visit airports at Guelph, Kitchener, Buttonville, Toronto Island and Hamilton.

At each stop, the pilot gets a playing card. At the last stop, the pilot with the worst and the best poker hand wins.

Oh yes, there are prizes also for flying proficiency.

TWO PLAYERS SIGN

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference announced Thursday they have signed two more U.S. imports to attend their quarterback and receivers' camp opening here June 22. They are Bobby Johnson, 26, a flanker who has spent time with St. Louis Cardinals, Atlanta Falcons and Chicago Bears of the National Football League, and quarterback Darrel Williams, 22, from Xavier University in Cincinnati.

Nicklaus Shifts Out Of Low Gear!

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Jack Nicklaus is off to one of the slowest golf starts since he turned pro in 1962, and the question around the Professional Golfers Association circuit is: What's wrong with Nicklaus' golf game?

"I'm taking too many strokes," Nicklaus said Thursday with a chuckle after completing the first round of the $100,000 Greater New Orleans golf tournament with a two-under-par 70.

Nicklaus was two shots behind defending champion Frank Beard and Gardner Dickinson.

Beard nipped Arnold Palmer by a stroke in the Tournament of Champions a month ago and again last week at the Houston's Champions International. Palmer is not competing here.

The 27-year-old Nicklaus, who has won only $14,000 this year, said he was "pretty pleased" with Thursday's round.

"It's a pretty good round opening up. . . . It's better than I've been playing."

"The wind was bad," said Beard about Thursday's play over the 7,020-yard Lakewood Country Club course, which played much shorter because the hard fairways gave the ball a lot of roll.

"Those fairways are so hard, my tee shot from walking," said the 130-pound Dickinson.

Just a stroke behind the co-leaders Thursday were Tommy Aaron and Johnny Pott, Earl Stewart, a Dallas club pro, and Allen Henning of South Africa.

Two Canadians are entered in the tournament. George Knudson of Toronto shot a 34-37—71 while Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg carded a 37-38—75.

Rain Cancels Golf Fixtures

The weather man has stymied two important golf fixtures scheduled for this May of Quinte Country Club over the weekend.

The Minimal Golf League which planned its opening tee-off Saturday has been cancelled. So has the Club's Open Field day of mixed golf slated for Sunday.

The reason? "Wet ground," says club pro George Balas.

However it was announced the heavy rain of Thursday had a visible effect on a course that already was "very damp in spots."

General Motors Corp. turned out its 100,000,000th vehicle this year at the Chevrolet plant in Janesville, Wis.

Golf Child Prodigy

DALLAS (AP)— She's not much bigger than a two-iron, she's only 10 years old and she looks as if she should be out at the park playing hopscotch.

Instead, little Beverly Klass was among 40 women professionals teeing off Thursday in the $16,000 women's open golf tournament of the Ladies' Professional Golf Association.

Beverly is a child prodigy of the links who literally has been playing the game almost since she was big enough to walk and who has won some 40 trophies.

She's the youngest ever to compete in a major golf tournament.

"She's been playing since she was three years and nine months old," said her father, Jack Klass of Woodland Hills, Calif.

He said Beverly's best round was an 82 in a California tournament and she usually shoots in the 90s.

"She doesn't get too much competition so we came on tour."

"She's turning pro for the experience," he said.

Yesterday's Stars

Pitching — Dean Chance, Twins, fired a one-hitter at Kansas City, striking out eight as Minnesota Twins beat the Athletics 8-0 and Chance becomes the first American League hurler to win five games.

"The league hasn't asked me," Gaudaur said. "When they do, I'll make my position clear."

Queen Ends 31-Year Boycott, Invites Duchess to Unveiling

LONDON (AP) — The Queen has ended a 31-year boycott of the Duchess of Windsor by asking her and the duke to join the Royal Family in a public ceremony in London June 7.

A palace spokesman said the 69-year-old duchess, now in New York with the duke, accepted the invitation to attend the unveiling of a memorial plaque to Windsor's mother, Queen Mary, who died in 1953.

The Queen's invitation is the Royal Family's first official recognition of the American-born duchess since Edward VIII abdicated in 1936 to marry the two-time divorcee.

The abdication was particularly anguishing to Queen Mary, who pleaded with her son not to give up the throne for Wallis Warfield Simpson.

Ever since the abdication, the duchess has been ignored officially by Buckingham Palace. The duke, now 72, has taken part in a number of state functions and has met with his relatives during visits to Britain.

In 1965, the Queen met the duchess for the first time since the abdication. They talked privately together for 25 minutes at a London clinic where the duke was recovering from eye surgery.

Heath Believes Canada Moving Closer to U. S.

LONDON (CP) — Conservative Leader Edward Heath, who flies to Canada Monday for a five-day visit, feels Canada is swinging closer to the United States orbit while Britain moves closer to Europe.

"Canada is bound to move towards the United States because it is Canada's natural market and because of the high U.S. investment in Canada," Heath said in an interview as he prepared for the trip that will take him to Ottawa, Hamilton, Toronto, Montreal and Fredericton.

The bachelor Opposition leader, who cleared a air with his proposal that the British-French nuclear deterrent be held "in trust" for Europe, is riding a high wave of elation based on the heavy swing towards Tories in British municipal elections and the Labor government's decision to apply for Common Market membership.

As a Tory spinster, Heath headed the previous British negotiations that collapsed when France's President de Gaulle slammed the door against Britain in 1963. Undeterred, he has persistently maintained that Britain must try again.

"I believe Britain's proposed entry into Europe and her current role in the Commonwealth are still compatible," he said. "I want to see the Commonwealth maintained as it is."

At the same time, Heath has ordered a party lieutenant to draw up a new Conservative policy on Commonwealth affairs.

Heath, 51, also is reluctant to elaborate on his proposed new nuclear policy. As outlined in the House of Commons earlier this week, the Heath plan would link the small British nuclear deterrent with that of the French Force de Frappe, just as the huge American deterrent is held in trust for the Western Alliance.

A special seven - country NATO nuclear planning group also is considering the use of the Western deterrent though the U.S. still retains full control over the use of its warheads.

Asked whether he would suggest that the proposed European commander become a subcommittee of the larger NATO committee, Heath made clear in the interview that he did not.

Wilson has stated that in negotiating for Common Market entry he would not commit himself to any revision of existing Western nuclear policy. There has been fear expressed among some party adherents that he might be willing to pay the price of a Gaullist blazer on the British nuclear trigger as a Common Market bargaining fee.

Touching on the national swing towards the Tories, Heath suggested the party is getting back "its own people" who had slipped away because of the leadership dogfight and ministerial scandals a few years ago.

Seeding Delayed In Prairies

OTTAWA (CP)—Cold and wet weather is delaying seeding in the prairie province grain belt, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Wednesday in the first of its telegraphic crop reports for 1967.

The bureau said soil moisture conditions across the prairies are generally good to excellent, but warned that grasshopper infestation could prove a greater hazard this summer than last.

Cold and wet weather was the rule across the country this spring, the bureau reported, with growth and farm activity slowed down as a result.

Ontario reports seeding of spring grains has generally been held up. Essex and Kent counties reported 15 per cent of seeding completed, but this ranged down to zero acreage seeded in other parts of the province.

Most Ontario farm action was in the southernmost areas where the bulk of the oat and sugar beet crops have been seeded. Soil moisture is plentiful and growth is expected to be rapid once warmer weather arrives.

U. S. and British Students Adopting Continental Pattern

LONDON — Unrest and revolt on the college campus have come to Britain, unlikely as it may seem. This most orderly and law-abiding of nations is now beginning to experience what American colleges have been going through lately.

No less august an institution than the London School of Economics recently had a student "sit-in" that ended in almost total victory for the students, who had started their own "free university" in rebellion against the school's administrative practices.

Most of the disciplinary reforms demanded by the students were accepted by the faculty and administration, with the blessing of the school's director, Sir Sydney Caine. All the grievances advanced by the students' union and the graduate students' association were rectified, and the suspended presidents of the two groups were reinstated.

Most important of all, the students won a place on the "Board of discipline," which means, in effect, that they are no longer at the complete mercy of the school's board of governors (corresponding to our board of trustees) or the academic staff.

In point of fact, America and now England are undergoing a collegiate transformation that is having students move into the pattern set by Continental and South American students. In those places, students do not regard themselves as passive elements to be educated, but rather as emergent citizens with their own rights and freedoms.

Even in the repressive reign of the Czar, it must be remembered, Russian students in 1917 formed an important cadre in the Revolution; and Continental students have long taken part in political and social action. The fascist and nazi movements utilized students as spearheads in their early years; and more than one Latin American coup d'etat has been initiated by student revolt against the existing government.

As the world moves toward what seems to be permanent military conscription — even in so-called peace-time — and as alliances and enemies seem more fragile and temporary, students everywhere feel that they should not be the pawns of the political order, but must have an increasing voice in their own personal and national fate.

We may dislike or deplore such agitation on the campus, but it's here to stay, and it must be reckoned with. If Gov. Ronald Reagan of California tries to restore the status quo ante in his state's colleges, most educational observers believe he will be swept out by a tide whose force he underestimates.

Jobless Increase Reported by Centre

NAPANEE — The number of clients registered for work with the Canada Manpower Centre in Napanee showed an increase in both male and female categories over the previous month. There were 333 male and 182 female seekers work compared with 337 male and 155 female at the end of March.

The general labor outlook in the area is not too good. Industry reports a slowdown in sales which, in turn, has curtailed hiring. Automation is taking its toll by speeding up production, using less workers.

There is still a heavy demand for skilled, experienced workers, with openings for cooks, electricians, tool and die makers, sheet metal workers, pipefitters, stationary engineers, auto mechanics, waitresses, and kitchen workers.

No large construction projects are slated for the area and the local office anticipates great difficulty in placing the construction workers of the semi-skilled and unskilled class this summer.

Difficulty is also expected in finding work for high school graduates, locally, and high school students available for summer work only will undoubtedly have difficulty finding openings this year.

The Napanee office urges any employer who may be needing workers to contact them as early as possible because good workers are available now.

Ladies' Guild Hears Report Of Conference

DESERONTO — Mrs. A. F. Dowdell, speaking to the Ladies' Guild of St. Mark's Church Monday evening, gave a report of the W.A. Conference held in St. Luke's Anglican Church in Kingston early last week.

Mrs. Dowdell also had two interesting displays to illustrate the work being done by the junior girls. She showed articles which the six members of the Girls' Auxiliary had taken with them to a rally in Brockville May 6. During the year they have made baby nighties and jackets, and knitted booties which will all go into a bale for missions. As they had decorated soap and candles, which will be gifts for shut-ins, Barbara Keith was appointed treasurer for the day, and Marion Knight was asked to lead the singing. Because of their active participation, the Deseronto group was given third place for the day, Mrs. Dowdell stated.

Patsy Keith and Jean Hill had attended also.

The 14 girls of the Junior Auxiliary will be attending a rally in Kingston Saturday, the speaker noted. Each of the 12 groups attending has been asked to represent one of the provinces and Dauphin is preparing a program on British Columbia. These girls have made dolly bags which they have filled with such things as soap, tooth brushes, wash cloths which will be sent to Eskimo hospitals.

Mrs. Jack Spence thanked Mrs. Dowdell for her interesting account of the W.A. meeting, and the work of the girls' groups.

During the business meeting plans were completed for the rummage sale to be held May 12 and 13 in the White Elephant Store. The meeting June 19 will take the form of a potluck supper and penny sale, with the Kingsford Guild members as guests.

The meeting was opened in the usual way. Mrs. R. Secgeant is the secretary-treasurer. Mrs. Charles Gray was chairman for the evening.

Refreshments were served with Mrs. Jessie Punchard and Mrs. John McGillivery as hostesses.

Sunday School Lesson

Voice of Cool Counsel

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

Rudyard Kipling, the English poet, said in one of his poems that one of the marks of a man is the ability to keep his head when all around him others are losing theirs. He needs are a dime a dozen in this world. What the world needs is more people who in times of great stress speak with a voice of cool reason.

Such a man in ancient times was Gamaliel, a teacher of Jewish law and a member of the Jewish Senate known as the Sanhedrin. Had it not been for his cool courage and wisdom his colleagues might have been guilty of regrettable action.

Two Apostles, Peter and John, had been arrested for preaching about Jesus. They had been released with an ultimatum—that they were not to again preach in Jesus' name. But the disciples refused to be silenced. Again they were arrested, and after an amazing deliverance, returned to preaching at dawn of the day following their arrest.

A third time the disciples were arrested and brought before the Senate where they were sternly reminded that they had been forbidden to preach Jesus' name. Peter's answer was brief and to the point: "We must obey God rather than men." (Acts 5:29 RSV)

Peter then defied their orders by preaching to the very men who had forbidden him to preach at all. This so enraged some of them, they threatened to kill Peter and John, and might have done so except for the restraining voice of a venerable teacher named Gamaliel.

He first achieved order by requesting that the disciples be taken from the room. Then he addressed the men of the chamber. He reminded them of other times when they had been tempted to lose their heads. A firebrand named Theudas had given them great concern by gathering around him four hundred revolutionaries like himself. But he had been killed, his followers had been dispersed, and his revolt came to nothing.

A second revolutionary was named Judas, the Galilean. He, too, tried to start an uprising, but he, too, came to an untimely end, and his revolt amounted to nothing.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for May 14: "Gamaliel Advises the Council," Acts 5:12-42.

In the light of these two events, the council could afford to be patient. Then came his real word of caution. It was obvious Peter and John were not revolutionaries in the same sense the other two men had been. Their concern was religious, not political. So out of his deep wisdom, Gamaliel advised, "Keep away from these men and let them alone; for if this plan or this undertaking is of men, it will fail; but if it is of God, you will not be able to overthrow them. You might even be found opposing God!" (Acts. 5:38 - 39 RSV)

MODERN GAMALIEL SPEAKS

In our day, the world has seen another venerable leader speak a word of outstanding and reason. For centuries, Catholics and Protestants have mistrusted each other, and engaged in name - calling. Then a great Christian leader who called himself John XXIII spoke a word of reconciliation, and the atmosphere of hate and distrust began to dissipate. There are still great differences between these two Christian communions but the atmosphere has changed. Instead of rejection and hate, there is now acceptance and dialogue.

Unfortunately, the voice of reason does not always prevail. Pilate, for example, tried several times to speak a word of restraint and reason to the mob accusing Jesus. But in the end the hot-heads won. The voice of those calling for Jesus' blood prevailed. (Luke 23:23)

The world today could use a lot of Gamaliels. There are hotheads calling for an escalation of the war in Vietnam. There are extremists calling for the impeachment of Supreme Court Justices. There are extremists on both sides of the civil rights movement making inflammatory statements, and ready to use violence if necessary to achieve their ends.

But truth cannot be stopped by an edict. And people cannot be allowed to blacklist those with whom they disagree. That is the communist method. Democracy calls for an interchange of ideas. It stimulates dialogue and debate. The temptation is always to call for hasty action. Wiser men are guided by history. History has a way of vindicating those who are right.

Gamaliel not only trusted history, he trusted God. God's ways work themselves out regardless of what men may do. The United States early discovered that when it comes to religious difference, the best way to deal with them is not to oppress them and suppress all others, but to grant freedom for all men to seek and witness to religious truth as they see it.

Farmers Want 5-Year Policy

TORONTO (CP) — Eastern Canadian farmers will ask the federal government for an agricultural policy covering at least five years when they march on Ottawa May 24, a spokesman said Thursday.

Charles Munro, president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, said at a members' meeting the farmers' brief will include a plea for a long-term policy on the problems facing farmers, but the submission will not be restricted to dairy policy.

The brief will include 10 specific requests, including those for an aggressive program of export marketing and for a statement of plans for import and equalization subsidies.

Robarts Backs Quebec Stand

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robarts said Thursday Ontario should be consulted before the federal government signs treaties or undertakes "any other action as well that might involve matters that are purely the province's either by constitution or physically."

He was replying to Opposition Leader Robert Nixon who asked whether, in view of recent statements by Premier Johnson of Quebec, Mr. Roberts felt Ontario should be consulted before Ottawa enters into treaties affecting the province's resources, education or culture.

"I am a firm believer in more and more constitution between the federal government and the provincial governments," the premier said, "particularly when we are dealing with matters that might fall within the purview of the provinces.

"Of course there are many areas where there is overlapping jurisdiction and in those areas it is even more important that we have consultation."

The premier agreed to make a survey requested by Mr. Nixon on the verbal or other agreements Ontario has with foreign states in such matters as trade, culture, education and immigration.

Ontario Will Consider Common Bill of Rights

TORONTO (CP) — Premier John Roberts said Thursday he considers is "quite willing to consider" Prime Minister Pearson's suggestion of a common bill of rights for all Canadians.

The premier said he accepted an invitation to attend a meeting in Ottawa July 5 after he and other nine provincial premiers John Roberts said Thursday he considers is "quite willing to consider" Prime Minister Pearson's suggestion of a common bill of rights for all Canadians.

Mr. Pearson said Wednesday the proposed meeting will include discussion of a common bill of rights, which would be the foundation for federal-provincial action to reform Canada's constitution.

Union Applies For Vote

Labor has applied for a government - conducted organization vote at the W. T. Hawkins Ltd. plant, Belleville snack-food manufacturer

The vote will seek certification for the International Moulders and Allied Workers as bargaining agent for plant employees.

It will be conducted by the Ontario Labor Relations Board and will pre-date a board hearing on the union's formal application for recognition, a spokesman for the Belleville District Labor Council said last night.

The vote is the latest move by the union to organize workers at the plant after an attempt early this year among employees led to what the union claimed were dismissals by management.

Most of the employees were re - instated with back pay, after the union brought the issue before the OLRB.

Liberals Pass First Test Vote

OTTAWA (CP)—The minority Liberal government coasted through its first confidence test of the new parliamentary session Thursday night, winning 155-17 with solid support from the floor of the House of Commons.

It came on an NDP non-confidence motion in the throne speech debate criticizing the government for alleged inaction on constitutional reform. The 18 NDP members were joined by an independent, Maurice Allard (Sherbrooke).

The 32 Liberals on hand were supported by 54 Conservatives, including Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, seven Creditistes, two Social Credit members and independent J. A. Mongrain (Trois-Rivieres).

NDP Leader Douglas moved the motion, attacking the Liberals for their attitude on changing the constitution. He called for an immediate parliamentary study of amendments which, among other things, should designate a special status for Quebec in Confederation.

The motion was presented as an amendment to one introduced Wednesday by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker. A vote will be held on Mr. Diefenbaker's motion Monday night and another vote could come next Wednesday if none of the smaller parties decides to sponsor an issue.

Defeat on a non-confidence issue could overthrow the government and force an election.

NDP Wants Work Week Reduced to Forty Hours

TORONTO (C) — The legislature gave first reading Thursday to a bill that would give Ontario a 40- rather than a 48-hour work week with the same take-home pay.

The amendment to the Hours of Work and Vacations with Pay Act introduced by Ted Freeman (NDP—Fort William) also would make time-and-a-half for overtime mandatory.

Mr. Freeman said in a statement to the press:

"The 40-hour week has been the norm in enlightened countries and in organized industries for a generation, but the Conservative government still sticks to the 48-hour week which it introduced in 1944 . . .

His bill, expected to be talked out in the house during second reading, would provide for a maximum hours in industry of eight a day and 40 a week.

Expo--Tougher to Run Than It Was to Build

MONTREAL (CP)—The rains came again to Expo 67 Thursday night but Robert Shaw sees nothing but blue skies for the big show provided all concerned make a solid effort.

"It's going to be tougher to run than it was to build," Mr. Shaw, Expo's deputy commissioner-general told a Toronto meeting of the Canadian Managing Editors' Conference.

Meantime rain kept Expo attendance for the day down to the general area of the forecast levels—for once.

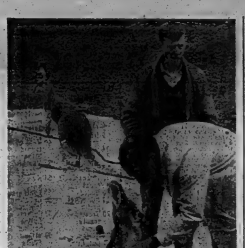
By 11 p.m. 125,318 had filed through the turnstiles, bringing total attendance since Expo opened April 27 to 3,561,813. An attendance of 129,550 had been forecast for Thursday.

But over-all admissions are 1,000,000 ahead of what was forecast for this date.

"Are you going to reject those sad souls who think that the new way to a headline is to attack something important?"

The deputy commissioner-general, said Expo has been lucky in having a "good-natured" audience up to now, many from Montreal.

"We must redouble our efforts if we are to attract, and keep happy, millions of visitors from the outside."



The foreign visitors would be coming in two or three weeks and the fair must have implemented before then all the improvements which the public by its very patronage, seemed to be demanding now.

Expo was able to take advantages of a combination of solid French - Canadian self-assertion and an English-Canadian inclination to help this movement along.

Today is Austria's national day at Expo, with a visit by the country's president as the highlight.

Expo experts, encouraged by the flood of attendance so far, are busy calculating a prediction for the total attendance through the six-month life of the fair.

Officials, who originally estimated 30,000,000 visits—would have been recorded by Expo's end, now are thinking in terms considerably higher than that. But no final figure has been decided on.

Kangaroos at Expo

Among the most interesting exhibits at Expo from the standpoint of the kiddies are the kangaroos forming part of the Australian display. Several types of kangaroos are included in the outdoor exhibit which also has transplanted eucalyptus trees, brought from "down under."

Talent Wasted

By CYNTHIA-LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The idea of a television special on top comedians replaying numbers that made them famous was great. Thursday night's NBC Comedy Hour would have done well to stick to the premise and not produce.

Quality was sacrificed for quantity. There was an enormous amount of talent around but much of it was wasted.

The brightest moments were those when Bob Newhart was scorching through his great old bit, as the driving instructor with a second student, and Shelly Berman suffering in his telephone monologues with the child who kept banging up.

Other annoying moments had nothing to do with nostalgia, comic or otherwise. Allen Sherman had a funny song about Aunt Minnie and her mid-atlantic Dick Shawn kidded rock 'n' roll singing styles. Carl Reiner with Mel Brooks as the 2,000-year-old man never have repeated material in all their years together but they are not funny.

A formidable trio of comedians — Edie Adams, Nanette Fabray and Joyce Randolph—never wasted in a raspy singing number. Phyllis Diller is more amusing in her solo monologues than when dropping bits Thursday night.

It was an uneven hour made more ragged by awkwardly placed and annoyingly interruptive commercials.

NBC and CBS will provide satellite coverage of Saturday, starting at 6 a.m. EDT, of Pope Paul's pilgrimage to Fatima. NBC will wrap up the story with a half-hour special Saturday night, 8-8.30.

Students Toss Rocks At Pavilion

MONTREAL (CP)—Two University of Toronto students Thursday were ordered held on cash bail of $4,000 each after pleading guilty to mischief charges arising from the breaking of two windows in the United States pavilion at Expo 67.

The two, Forbes L. A. West, 20, and Donald Dencison, 21, were arrested Wednesday night and charged with throwing rocks through two large windows of the pavilion, a 187-foot-high geodesic dome.

They were remanded for trial in municipal court May 18.

An incident Wednesday night was the third of this nature reported on Expo property within the last week.

Barry Harvey Davidson, 19, of Hamilton, Ont., is being held on $10,000 bail pending trial next Monday on a mischief charge arising from the damaging of a $75,000 statue outside the Swiss pavilion late Monday.

UPHELD WAY OF LIFE

SAN MARCOS, Tex. (AP)—Hays County commissioners decided it would be "unrealistic" to replace the courthouse cupidors, which are said to be in demand by antique collectors, with ornamental urns. "What would the county loafers do on the main floor if they didn't have their spittoons?" an official asked.

CargoRates Reduced

MONTREAL (CP)—Air Canada will reduce its general cargo rates on transatlantic routes Oct. 1, subject to government approval, it was announced Thursday.

Rates for Canadian exports from Montreal to the United Kingdom and Europe are to be reduced to 44 cents a pound from 52 cents, minimum charge of 440 pounds or more. Shipments of 1,100 pounds or more are to be reduced to 36 cents a pound from 41 cents.

To Your Good Health

Pellagra Due to Lack of Vitamin B

Dear Dr. Molner: What are the symptoms of pellagra? Is there a cure? — Mrs. W. D. S.

Dear Doctor: My brother has learned that he has pellagra. Is it contagious? — R.E.H.

Pellagra is a deficiency disease, and is not contagious.

It is a lack, primarily, of a part of the Vitamin B Group of blacks, or niacinic acid. However, it is probable that there may be a lack of some of the other functions of Vitamin B, as well as a shortage of some of the essential amino acids found in protein foods, particularly one called tryptophan.

Proper diet and replacement of the missing nutritional elements cure the disease, but if not properly treated, pellagra's symptoms are the Four D's — diarrhea, dermatitis, (skin disease), dementia and death.

The dermatitis makes the skin as well as the tongue quite red, and blisters form. Digestive disturbances include diarrhea. The patient may become very weak and anemia is common. The dementia is featured by irritability, emotional upsets, depression, sometimes, confusion, hallucinations and lethargy.

Treatment consists of a high-protein diet plus supplemental niacin. Fortunately a patient responds rapidly to this treatment, although it may take many weeks before the skin returns to normal texture.

Pellagra is distributed world wide but is seen more often in areas in which corn is an important part of the diet, and the southern states are one such area.

This does not mean that corn is bad in any reasonable quantity. It becomes so only when corn, and cornmeal alone, too much dependence is placed on it in the daily diet. Filling up on corn products at the expense of sufficient protein foods (meat, seafood, cheese, poultry, plus some protein in other foods) brings on the deficiency in time.

It was noted by early investigators that corn might be involved, and subsequent study indicates that corn, besides lacking tryptophan, may also contain a substance which actually is antagonistic to tryptophan.

There are 20 amino acids which combine in various patterns to form the proteins which are essential to health. When one of these is lacking, trouble is bound to develop. In this instance, it is pellagra.

Dear Dr. Molner: You write about horn cancer in newspapers. A magazine recently had an article about a medicine to "make menopause shocking." But what about women like me who have no cancer or have had it, and should have a hormone? Please write. — Mrs. G. K.

Dear Doctor: Menopause is a time of change in the body. Some women have a hard time, but most do not. Hormones are very useful in the majority of cases but in my opinion it is foolish to go beyond the facts to say that they make menopause "obsolete."

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband and I are both diabetic and therefore do not wish to have more children. I am taking contraceptive pills as well as one tablet a day for my diabetes, but some people say diabetics should not use the birth control pills. Is this so? — Mrs. R.

Diabetic women can and do use the contraceptive pills. The pill may raise the blood sugar level somewhat, and in certain cases this may make the diabetes less easy to control.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume of letters received, he is unable to answer individual letters. Incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For May 12

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): First requirement today is to be realistic. Face facts as they exist. Applies especially in connection with home property, long-range project. Make necessary domestic adjustment.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Protect yourself from those who would involve you in senseless controversy. Starts with gossip . . . and could spread to neighbors, relatives. Steer clear of one who is lazy, idle.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Keep desires within practical range. You may regret it if you over-spend. Be sensible where valuables, possessions enter picture. Stress quality, but avoid extravagance.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Day when you must co-operate in good cause. Otherwise your conscience gnaws . . . and you berate yourself. Say yes to request for contribution. Recognize responsibility to community.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Envious individual could cause you to lose temper. Be forewarned. Realize imitation is great form of flattery. Don't compound errors. Maintain dignity. Stick to principles.

VIRGO (Aug. 23—Sept. 22): Some friends may take attitude that they know best. Listen no matter how well-meaning others are . . . you should heed own counsel. Means don't assert yourself, follow through on ideas.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Remember one who aided you in past. Purchase of gift could make special person happy. Evening favors social activity. Accent good will. Steer clear of cliquetry.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): If you insist on brooding . . . very little is accomplished. Future can be bright if you plan ahead. Accent today on vocation, travel, special writing assignments.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): You may defy conversation today because of unusual interests. Stress diplomacy. Dig deep for information. But don't deliberately offend one who opposes old-fashioned.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Home, environment, ability to patch up differences — these areas accented. Mate or partner deserves special consideration. Surprise gift could brighten day. Use your imagination!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Improve comforts of home. Purchase which is practical but also beautiful favored. Stress today on appreciation of finer things in life. Excellent time to dine out, attend theatre.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Don't disclose all you know. Play cards close to chest. If you wear heart on sleeve there could be disillusionment. One you are interested in may not be positive about feelings. Wait!

If today is your birthday . . . current cycle promises constructive change, opportunity for travel. If single, marriage possibilities are heightened. If married, there could be an addition to family. You are an individual who is creative, able to make practical use of fine imagination.

New Quebec Scheme May Hurt Companies

TORONTO (CP) — Leslie Rowntree, Ontario commercial affairs minister, said Thursday night the deposit insurance scheme now being considered by Quebec may hurt companies not chartered in that province. In an address to the Ontario section of the Trust Companies Association of Canada, he said that the Quebec government intends to see that every deposit for in the province is insured, irrespective of the type of deposit-taking institution that is involved, and that this move will be financed by an increase in tax to the companies involved, thereby becoming an addition to the business tax.

"We in Ontario are prepared to co-operate," Mr. Rowntree said, "but it must be on the basis of a reciprocal arrangement with the other provinces.

"It would not be proper, in my view, for Quebec companies to receive advantages in our province that were not extended to Ontario companies in Quebec.

"In a nutshell, we do not want Ontario companies to have to pay more for the privilege of doing business in Quebec."

Reports Affect Trust Firms

TORONTO (CP) — Nicks F. Peterson, retiring chairman of the Ontario section of the Trust Companies Association of Canada, said Thursday the Carter royal commission on taxation report could affect stock trends for and other corporate services provided by trust companies.

Mr. Peterson, speaking to the association's annual meeting, also said adoption of the Lawrence report, which suggests changes to the Ontario Corporations Act, would make directors liable to lawsuits, make auditors independent, set standards for trust deeds and trustees and afford greater protection for shareholders.

John S. Beatty, general manager of the Halton and Peel Trust and Savings Co. at Oakville, was elected association chairman.

Million Hear Pope Voice Plea for Peace

FATIMA, Portugal (CP) — Pope Paul made an impassioned plea for world concord today during his pilgrimage to a shrine on a pastoral hillside where three shepherd children said they saw the Virgin Mary 50 years ago.

An estimated 1,000,000 pilgrims waving handkerchiefs gave him a rousing welcome as he arrived at the shrine after a 25-mile drive through peasant villages and roads lined by pine plantations from the Portuguese military base on Monte Real.

In the crowd was Sister Lucia, the 60-year-old Carmelite nun who is the only survivor of the three shepherd children who reported seeing "a lady in white" exactly 50 years ago today. The smiling, fat-cheeked nun had a front row position at the shrine.

Without mentioning the Vietnam War the pontiff urged men not to think about "projects of destruction and of death, of revolution and of suppression, but think rather of projects of mutual strengthening and of solid collaboration."

The throng in the general area to welcome the Pope was estimated by police at 3,000,000 with about 1,000,000 concentrated in and around the Fatima shrine.

Deploring the stockpiling of arms, he said the situation of mankind "has not progressed morally as much as it has scientifically and technically."

Bells pealed in every Catholic Church in Portugal as the silvery Portuguese airliner that carried the Pope touched down in heavy rain at the Monte Real airfield.

As he drove through the open countryside, peasant children dressed like the three who saw the visions, waved to him from the roadside.

The Pope told Portuguese President American Thomaz he came "with the humility and fervor of a pilgrim who faces a long trip."

"Our pastoral concern, as Your Excellency well knows," the Pope said, "occupies us in this particular moment of the history of the Roman Catholic Church and manifests to us all our efforts for the achievement of two goals of the greatest importance." He named these as "the eternal life of the Roman Catholic Church itself" and the love for men which the church is trying to give to the world.

Moment of Truth Near In Tariff Negotiations

GENEVA (AP) — Negotiators from 53 countries are near reaching decisions that may reshape multi-billion-dollar world trade, bringing more profits and more jobs for Canadian and other factories. Canadian farmers also are likely to benefit.

While some hold-out on a major issue could still wreck the Kennedy round of world tariff bargaining, optimism among Canadian and other delegations points to one more exhaustive, night-long session Sunday from which a broad series of agreements may emerge.

As some Canadian officials visualize the final haggling and horse-trading, a pre-dawn announcement Monday may see these decisions:

1. Agreement to reduce the world's tariff walls slowly during a period of five years, providing concessions that may stimulate and expand Canadian paper and metals industries among its many benefits.

2. A new three-year wheat agreement that may boost fixed minimum and maximum prices by 25 cents a bushel, but without tying the importing countries to guaranteed purchases. Linked with this would be agreement among industrialized countries to help pay for fixed amounts of wheat to,be shipped to underdeveloped countries. This also could help expand Canadian exports.

Amid threats of withdrawals and collapse, and some progress countries hope the May 14 deadline will finally see a formal pact, the biggest of its kind, as Canadian Trade Minister Robert Winters visualizes it.

The deadline had been set because of all the paper work remaining to be done before President Johnson can proclaim tariff cuts up to 50 per cent June 30. This is the last day that he has power to do this under President Kennedy's Trade Expansion Act of 1962.

Canadian Agriculture Minister J. J. Greene is as optimistic as Winters that a new wheat pact will emerge, to take effect next August.

Tariffs on thousands of products, from steel to dressfulls, form part of the bargaining which includes demands that import quotas and other trade restrictions be axed.

Wheat Bargainers Only Pennies Apart

GENEVA (CP) — World Tariff negotiators were reported today to be "only pennies apart" in bargaining over a new international Wheat Agreement and Canadian Agriculture Minister J. J. Greene expressed optimism that a firm pact will be hammered out during the weekend.

Canada has trimmed its demand for a higher price to 25 cents a bushel and a high-placed informant said the United States now is giving full backing to the Canadian position. He said world importers now are close to acceptance of this demand and "we are only pennies apart." The higher price would trim the U.S. treasury's cost of supporting American wheat export, he added.

The higher price would be applied to the floor and ceiling of a new three-year wheat pact to come into force next August. The current range runs from a minimum of $1.62½ to a maximum of $2.02½, U.S. funds, basis No. 1 northern at the Lakehead. The agreement would be based on American wheat delivered at gulf ports with prices set for different grades.

The informant said the Soviet Union, which is a party to the current wheat agreement, would be invited to join the new pact. Eric Wyndham White of the General Agreements on Tariffs and Trade, secretary-general and presiding officer at the Kennedy round, has been instructed to feel out the Russians who are not participating in the 53-country tariff negotiations.

Both Parents Of Dead Boy Get 2 Years

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Mr. and Mrs. Robert Charles Watson were sentenced Friday to two years in penitentiary for manslaughter in the Dec. 24 death of their 3½-year-old son, Sidney James.

Watson, 22, and his wife Dorothy, 24, changed their pleas from not guilty to guilty during their trial before an Ontario Supreme Court judge and jury.

The child died at home from infection caused by third-degree burns to 25 per cent of his body, nine days after being held in hot water as punishment for messing his pants.

MiGs Meet Raiders

SAIGON (AP)—American airmen bombing within five miles of Hanoi met heavy fire from North Vietnamese guns, missiles and jets Friday. Three U.S. Air Force planes were downed.

Military headquarters said practically every strike in the Hanoi area was jumped by Communist MiGs. One of the lost jets, a Phantom F-4C, was downed by a slower MiG-17.

The other two U.S. aircraft lost were Thunderchief jets—one lost to ground fire and the other to "unknown causes." Five airmen were listed as missing in action.

The toll brought to 339 the number of U.S. planes lost over North Vietnam. In aerial dogfights MiG pilots now have downed 16 U.S. planes while 49 MiG aircraft have been destroyed by American pilots.

The intensified air war was matched by heavier ground fighting in the South, mainly along the 17th parallel which divides Vietnam.

Pacifists Finally Arrested

WASHINGTON (AP) — War protestors who tried to demonstrate in the Pentagon's key command centre are in District of Columbia jails instead.

Defence department patience wore thin Friday as the pacifists' efforts to reach the specialed war room went into their fourth day.

U.S. marshals were summoned and arrested 30 demonstrators on charges of unwarranted loitering, sleeping and assembling on federal property.

All refused an opportunity for release on bail and were sent to jail to await trials scheduled for next Thursday before a U.S. commissioner.

Man Denies He Is Nazi

GUATEMALA CITY (Reuters)—A man arrested on suspicion of being Hitler's former deputy Martin Bormann told a press conference here that if he had known the Nazi fugitive he would have killed him.

Declaring that he was Bormann, the man told reporters Friday night that he was Juan Pelaro Martinez, 58, a drifting carpenter born in Montevideo, Uruguay.

But he said he knew no one who would vouch for his identity.

Busy Beaver--in Belleville

You bet it's in Belleville — and right by the West Moira Street fire hall, at that. Neighborhood youngsters flocked to the scene when word spread today the beaver was at work, damming a creek under the road near the fire station. Top, the beaver is headed upstream for building material. Bottom, he returns triumphant.

Canadian Spy Story Bilge

OTTAWA (CP) — Free-lance reporter Jack MacBeth, who spent four months in Vietnam a year ago, Friday described as "unadulterated bilge" stories by two other reporters that Canadian members of the International Control Commission in Vietnam feed information to U.S. intelligence agencies.

"Things haven't changed since I was there," Mr. MacBeth said in an interview.

Mr. MacBeth said the only intelligence the Canadians could pass on to the U.S. would be descriptions of people and reports on the weather and the price of bananas at the local market.

Garrison Says Oswald Had Ruby's Phone Number

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — District Attorney Jim Garrison said Friday Jack Ruby's unlisted private telephone number was found in code in Lee Harvey Oswald's notebook.

Garrison said the code used by Oswald has been broken.

The Warren commission in its report on the assassination of President Kennedy said there was no indication of any link between Oswald and Ruby. Oswald was identified in the report as the assassin.

Oswald's notebook, from which Garrison said the code was broken, was published in full in the Warren report.

"Quite systemetically, apparently for the purpose of concealing phone numbers he regarded as sensitive," Garrison said.

For Sale--Do-It-Yourself Theft Kit

Auctioneer Cam Bunnett fires bidding enthusiasm as Police Constable Frank Hall holds up next item for bidding . . . tank, complete with hose for siphoning gas. Bellevillians packed city police garages today for auction of items accumulated at headquarters.

Crime Pays for City Hall As Police Auction Held

Who said crime doesn't pay?
It did for the city hall.
And for city hall!
That's where the proceeds go from a big auction at police headquarters this morning.
More than 100 Bellevillians thronged the garages beneath headquarters to bid on a sundry range of goods, variety and quantity of which was enough to stock a second-hand wholesale business for a year.
Up on the block were items which have accumulated in police stores — the proceeds of petty crimes never reclaimed by the victims; articles confiscated in police checkups, belongings too long gathering dust on lost-and-found shelves.
The treasure-trove of used goods moved easily under the hammer and happy banter of veteran auctioneer Cameron Bunnett.
Prices bid and asked were as varied as the offerings.
Biggest laugh of the morning came when Police Constable Frank Hall, assisting Mr. Bunnett, held aloft a plastic container, complete with a length of hose — the do-it-yourself crime kit used by thieves for siphoning gasoline.
It sold just as readily as the other items.
Profit on the morning's proceedings are turned over to the city treasurer for use in the interest of the taxpayer.

Discrimination Shown Says Judge Anderson

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario civil service commission discriminates against female employees of the children's psychiatric institute at Bryon, Ont., near London, by paying them less than male employees doing equal work, a one - man commission has ruled.

County Court Judge J. C. Anderson of Belleville made the ruling in a report delivered Friday to the Ontario Human Rights Commission.

He recommended a new classification be created which would include female mental hospital aides and male attendants doing the same work in a new salary structure. The civil service commission agreed to comply with the judge's recommendations.

Female hospital aides now start at $3,000 a year and can earn up to $3,900. Their male counterparts start at $3,380 and can go to $4,400.

Judge Anderson dismissed another similar complaint by two aides at the North Bay Ontario Hospital on the grounds that while their work was similar to that performed by the male attendants, it was not the same.

Surge Dealer In Tweed Area Attends Seminar

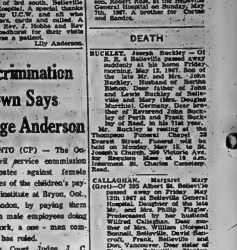
"New Dimensions in Dairying" was the theme of the meetings which featured a preview of new equipment under actual milking-time conditions.



While Martin attended the sales meetings, his wife participated in events held just for the ladies. She and other dealer's wives visited Chicago's State Street, attended a luncheon and fashion show and went on a tour of Chicagoland.

Foreign Students in Britain Not Given Help They Require

LONDON (CP)—Foreign students who come to Britain for advanced studies and training are often not properly prepared for the experience and don't get enough help after they arrive, a privately - sponsored survey contends.

With an ironic question mark in the title, International Community? is a 95-page report on a study-in-depth of the overseas student at British universities and colleges. It was published lately by two of the sponsors, the National Union of Students and the Scottish Union of Students.

Included are tips about the pitfalls awaiting any Canadian or other student planning to continue his studies in the United Kingdom.

But since Canadians probably face fewer problems here than most foreign students, the study is more likely to make profitable reading for both educationists and stay-at-home students in Canada, now that Canadian universities are welcoming an increasing number of non-Canadians.

More than 70,000 students from other countries were in Britain in the 1965-66 academic year, including about 1,000 from Canada. The report by R. S. Morris, a Scottish sociologist, is based on a study of the conditions faced by about 30,000 studying at colleges and universities.

His report details 74 recommendations to help ease the problem — from better and more forthright briefings to the student before his departure for Britain, to provision of suitable counselling services for the bewildered foreigner after his arrival.

In addition to complex problems faced by any student moving into the atmosphere of a university, Morris finds the overseas student encounters varied difficulties.

He must make adjustments in his relations with authority and the community, adapt to new morals and modes, find housing from sometimes hostile landlords, adjust his knowledge of English, accommodate himself to the climate and alter his methods of study.

Although the idea of bringing foreigners to British colleges is partly to improve mutual understanding, the report says many university authorities fail to take the steps necessary to achieve a proper blend of the two groups.

Instead of mixing, the overseas students and their British counterparts often stand poles apart. Foreigners accuse the Britons of coldness, prejudice and conceit while the Britons find the visitors peculiar, gauche and over-sensitive.

The report says many of the staff and students interviewed in the survey "seem to accept this apparent separation and are satisfied as long as the situation does not deteriorate further."

Since three - quarters of the foreign students come from underdeveloped countries, the question of color prejudice is given prominent treatment in the report.

It finds that many of the colored students are ill-prepared for prejudice; that publications designed to ease their way into British life are unrealistic in portraying the prejudice that exists.

It said "most" non-white students meet prejudice when they look for accommodation and a "small number clearly become embittered by their experiences in Britain."

Historical Village Being Constructed

STE. ADELE, Que. (CP)—Le Village de Serphin, a turn-of-the-century reproduction of life in French Canada, is being built near this Laurentian town 40 miles north of Montreal.

The historical village will propagate the legend of Serphin, an incorrigible miser in French-Canadian folklore, created by writer Claude - Henri Grignon.

At the start it will have a dozen buildings constructed in early 20th century style flanking wooden sidewalks and dirt roads.

The main building will be the house of miser Serphin himself, and visitors will be able to see his wife Donalda scraping and washing floors while he admires his hoard of gold in the back room.

Other buildings will be taken from Grignon's writings, including Auberge Jos. Mallerre, a typical restaurant of the times, with the staff in period costumes and meals served in the attic and basement.

A handicraft industry is being created in Ste. Adele to supply the souvenirs that will be sold in the village store.

The village will occupy a 50-acre site and long-term plans call for it to become a complete historical reproduction of the colonization period of the Laurentians recorded by Grignon in his writings.

U Thant's Warning

Harassing tactics by Soviet naval vessels against United States warships exercising in the Sea of Japan are viewed as evidence of more direct Russian intervention in the war in Vietnam.

The Soviets are said to be considering giving the North Vietnamese "anything they want" in the way of equipment to keep the war against the Americans going in South Vietnam.

Meanwhile United Nations Secretary-General U Thant sounds an ominous note when he declares: "We are witnessing the initial phases of World War 3 being fought in Vietnam."

Washington denies this contention, but it would be a man of unusual gifts of prophecy who would say with any uncertainty that war between east and west will not occur in our time.

U Thant believes China remains the arch opponent. "If the present trend continues," he says, "I am afraid a direct confrontation first of all between Washington and Peking is inevitable."

But how would China fight such a war unless the Americans were foolish enough to extend the ground fighting into North Vietnam and China proper? China has lately acquired nuclear weapons and it has no bomber force to speak of capable of carrying the war to the United States mainland.

Would Russia participate in these circumstances? That is the big question. No longer any friend of China, Russia nevertheless might be forced into such a conflict like it or not. The United States meanwhile should tread warily lest it force China and/or Russia into some potentially calamitous response to escalation of the war in Vietnam.

Traffic Arrangement

A return to the original system of routing traffic in the Pinnacle, Station, Moira and Front Street areas is scheduled once the new College Street bridge is open.

This is a compromise of sorts whose success must await the opening of the bridge, now imminent, and driver readjustment to the earlier pattern of the above routes.

Traffic experts had recommended that the temporary system instituted while the bridge was under construction be retained. According to city engineer Wilbur Purcell traffic movement had been facilitated.

In the early days of this experiment however, merchants found they were losing business by reason of what one city councillor dubbed the "snakes and ladders" game, and were quick to protest. And at the meeting of Council earlier this week a delegation of merchants in the Moira and Harriet Street areas claimed their businesses were still being affected adversely.

Now it remains to be seen what transpires for both merchants and drivers. The new bridge at College Street will take a little while to become accustomed to, and drivers should exercise caution while entering or leaving it in either direction. Ultimately, though, and with the earliest return of traffic being restored, there should be benefit in the arrangement for all.

Royal Visitors

Earlier this week Princess Paola of Belgium was in the spotlight, and it was said that photographers jostled each other fiercely to obtain pictures of her.

This Sunday Princess Alexandra arrives with her husband, Angus Ogilvie, to begin a three-week tour of Canada. First call for the couple will be Toronto. Some schoolchildren interviewed there a while ago seemed at a loss over Alexandra's identity when told the princess would visit the city.

The princess is a cousin of the Queen and one of the most popular members of the Royal Family. She is friendly, attractive and possibly the most outgoing personality in the Queen's family circle. Her father, the late Duke of Kent, and King George VI were brothers. Her mother is Princess Marina.

The Queen herself will be in Canada this summer. Queen Juliana of the Netherlands is due in about a week's time, and in September another Royal personality, Princess Christina of Sweden, will also visit Expo.

Safety Measure

The British Columbia safety council's suggestion that all outdoor community swimming pools should have a telephone nearby for emergency calls is a good one.

Drowning accidents claim many lives every year and while it is clearly impossible to consider having telephones in the vicinity of every lake and beach, their installation at public pools could be instrumental in summoning quick medical aid and saving lives at the community level.

Kindness That Kills Is the Final Insult to Tory Chief

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — It becomes more painfully obvious with each quietly passing Parliamentary day that when the "Rebel" Tory tribesmen scalped Diefenbaker at their Party pow-wow five months ago, they were in far too much of a hurry.

Perhaps it was pure panic, that the Old Chief really was invulnerable, even somehow immortal.

Or maybe they were drunk with their own daring. But they should stalk, and at last strike him down.

In whatever it was, they were in too much of a rush to think about the next day — and all the other 180 or so days to follow from then until next September's choosing of a new chief.

They assumed that any one of the several bright young braves in the tribal council, so openly aspiring to wear the Old Chief's reddened war paint and bonnet, could keep the Parliamentary camp fires burning.

Well, they assumed wrong. The young braves are far too busy leading their own personal war parties across the land to worry about what might be going on back in the Parliamentary encampment.

So seldom do these ambitious young warriors, Davis Pulton, Georges Hees and Alvin Hamilton, return from their cross-country delegate - and - vote-scouting expeditions, that they may be in danger of becoming interlopers in this towered Tepee-of-Talk here on The Hill.

They shouldn't be surprised, really, if one of their interoffice - cresting infrequent visits, some joker among the enemy Grit tribesmen sound the "I-Spy-a-Stranger" alarm which, traditionally, is the signal that some sort of a hostile — perhaps even a bewildered taxpayer — has infiltrated the camp.

The "Rebel" Tory tribesmen were dead wrong in a second assumption when they blundered and scalped the Old Chief.

Apparently they thought that a mighty political medicine man as Dief could carry on, convincingly, even without his brainbird, cockatoo-like, bestsprey headdress.

Well, it turns out he can't.

Stripped of his accouterments of tribal political war, with his braves one by one skulking off from his side, he doesn't frighten the Grits any more.

They simply refuse to take him seriously.

Thus was when he rose in wrath, the Great Chief Thundercloud, they trembled in their tents. For they knew him through 27 tempestuous years as a mighty warrior who once so massively, nearly single-handed, took on the Liberal Establishment and won.

Nothing about him, outwardly, has changed.

The Old Chief can still shoot from the hip.

But now they laugh.

And in their sensuous contempt of the terror - that - used - to - be they're even, with scornful condescension, blindly to the ageing warrior.

For there is Paul Martin, respected and esteemed foe of many a great battle over the last quarter century, in sadness now, sincerely being compassionate.

Was the time, too, when the Liberal "republican" wouldn't have dared cross the Old Chief's warpath.

But things have changed. It is different now. Auguste Chouquette has furious fun, and Dief pretends it isn't happening.

While it may be ghastly for the Old Chief, it is worse for Parliament.

With him scalped by his own rebellious braves, nothing is for real with these warriors.

They are playing games now, in the Teepee - of - Talk, for they all know it is as certain as death and taxes that everything is going to hold still on The Hill until they've done with Dief and there is a new Chief.

And while they may — not really, likely — fell him Chief, it won't necessarily make him so.

What is it going to be like? Different for sure.

Would you believe dull?

Robarts' Election Dilemma

Brockville Recorder and Times

Queen's Park correspondents are in agreement that Mr. Robarts had, indeed, planned a June election that has changed his mind. The intriguing question is why. There appeared little real doubt that the Progressive Conservative regime would be returned with a safe, although possibly reduced, majority. There are rumblings of discontent from dairy farmers and the charges of inquest interference made by former coroner Dr. Morton Shulman are proving an embarrassment to the government. But neither issue seemed enough to put the government in serious jeopardy.

Close observers of the Ontario political situation say that Mr. Robarts' enthusiasm for a spring vote began to wane in mid-April, when sales across the province began striking their municipal tax rates. The increase in almost all cases was high. The local tax bill in Toronto jumped by between $20 and $150; in Ottawa the increase was $7.53 per $1,000 of house assessment. Brockville, with an increase of only two mills, was one of the few cities in the province escaping a painful tax boost.

These municipal tax increases were accompanied, in most cases, by angry complaints that Toronto "should be doing something about it." But Toronto, which this February brought in a deficit budget rather than increase taxes, said it unlikely to get any greater assistance from the federal government, is feeling the tax squeeze every bit as much as the municipalities. The tax deferment plan announced last week applies only to the elderly and doesn't affect the majority of ratepayers. Premier Roberts has apparently decided to hold off the election until he has something worthwhile to offer.

RICHARD J. NEEDHAM

In the Globe and Mail

At some point in your early life, you've got to find out who you are, what you can do, and what you want to do. I didn't think you can find this out while living at home, and I don't think you can find it out while living in your hometown — not even if it's Toronto or Montreal.

The point is well made by the distinguished American novelist, Willa Cather: "In most families, the more struggle to have anything of one's own, to be one's self at all, creates an element of strain which keeps everybody almost at breaking point. For each individual in the household (even the children) is clinging to his individual soul, is in terror of losing it in the general family flavor. Always in his mind, each member of those social units is escaping, running away, trying to break the net which circumstances and his own affections have woven about him."

Suggests World Court to End War

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I have been talking to many people recently about the Viet nam war and some of the views are astonishing.

Everyone is quite sure that a world war will soon out, but they either don't know how soon out that would be or just don't care.

Some said, "It doesn't bother me so long as they are fighting over there," and others say, "Well, China started it so she's only getting what she deserves."

Now, if small pox or a plague broke out in our city the people wouldn't be so unconcerned, but anything happening overseas they don't worry about.

This may have been fine a few years ago because transportation and communication were so slow, but now in our supersonic jet age, this world has become so small and communicative that another war would affect all corners of the world or maybe even destroy most of it.

The trouble in Vietnam now is not a trivial matter. When the fighting first broke out the Viet Cong guerrillas of North Vietnam were scarcely South Vietnam in an attempt to take over the land and make the whole country communist. But now it seems to be a war of pride fought by the United States against China, although channeled through a bottleneck. My opinion is that the Americans are defending their purpose now in Vietnam. If they continue their attacks and bombings on North Vietnam, the Chinese may have no choice but to come into the war directly.

The strong countries always seem to be in conflict with each other and this why there will always be world wars. If a system is not worked out to prevent it.

The purpose of the United Nations is to keep peace and security in the world and it has failed.

This would be a court of justice set up for the world with every country belonging to it and every country serving as the power behind it. If Russia or China refused to join in, they would still have to abide by the laws and decisions because of their social and unity backing it. If any two countries became involved in a collision that threatened world peace the court would be brought into session to decide who was wrong and what should be done.

One country cannot fight the world, so it would have no choice but to come to terms peacefully. But now the United States is fighting alone. While the rest of the United Nations sit back. Is this what we call unity?

With a court set up by the world and for the world, there would be many advantages:

(1) One or two countries couldn't have to fight a war by themselves, like France, and especially England in the last two wars.

(2) The world would be prepared and able to suppress dictators or dictatorships such as Hitler before they could walk over the small countries.

(3) Quarrels would be settled in court before the situation could get too critical such as Vietnam.

(4) Size and strength of a country would be less important because small ones would have their rights defended too.

(5) It would bring nations of the world closer together and a greater mutual understanding would be developed.

Throne Speech

French Text Floors Reader

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Perhaps you were fortunate enough to be able to take the time to see the opening of Parliament on television.

Well, I sat there anxiously awaiting the Governor-General's speech from the throne. To my surprise, and perhaps to the surprise of the 17 million other Canadians I could only understand about a dozen words of the address.

I wasn't to be disappointed, though, for a female interpreter was telling me what to expect from the new Government. Perhaps the Governor General repeated everything in English, our national tongue, but I don't know, because I turned the set to "Cheyenne" as no doubt did many millions more of true and saddened Canadians.

I pity the poor immigrant who conscientiously goes to night school to learn English and when he wants to know how the government is run, surprise!, he can't understand a thing.

I studied French, the same as everyone else who went to school, but there are only a few million who are fluent enough to follow a speech in French.

Surely it is time we quit coddling Quebec. The next thing you know, the Indians will want you to speak only Indian in Toronto. The majority of the French Canadians are laughing at the rest of us, because you can go to almost any city in Quebec and find only English spoken.

D. CAMPBELL

EDITOR'S NOTE: Governor-General Michener spoke alternately in English and French.

Vietnam

Bowmen to Battleships

Halifax Chronicle-Herald

Escalation of the war in Vietnam may bring back that long obsolete weapon of the pre-atomic age — the battleship.

The United States Navy recently compared the fire power of battleships, cruisers and carrier-based aircraft in various situations and decided that the old-time battleship still can't be looked down on. As a result, the navy has sent the defence department a recommendation that could lead to the reactivation of one of the nation's four retired World War II battleships, the Iowa, Missouri, New Jersey and Wisconsin.

A reactivated 45,000-ton battlewagon, with its mighty 16-inch guns firing their one-ton shells, could deal far more effectively with steadily increasing Viet Cong coastal batteries than could the more sophisticated weapons currently in use, it is argued.

A strange war, in which the combatants have used crossbows (exhibited by a U.S. Special Forces "Green Beret" officer at a recent lecture in Halifax), shotguns, poisoned stakes and deadly old animal pits, may now see the return of a weapon which, although puny compared to the A-bomb, was perhaps the most awesome ever invented by man.

Fridtjof Nansen, the Norwegian explorer, statesman, scientist and humanitarian, died 37 years ago today—in 1930—at 68. Expo Seals Friendships

Montreal Gazette

One of the fringe benefits of Expo is the burgeoning camaraderie that is spreading all around the city.

Expo is on everyone's tongue. But it's more than that. People are not only talking to friends and acquaintances about it. They're talking to strangers too. Bus drivers and taxi drivers, subway clerks and policemen, manager to shopper, visitor to resident — it's the air.

Somehow it reminds you of the honeymoon feeling that's in the air when a city becomes the host to the person who had been living on the same street for 20 years.

It may not last. But let's make the most of it now. It's a good feeling.

Change From Atheism Not Identifiable Says Stalin's Daughter

NEW YORK (AP)—As she described it, her change from atheism to belief in God came about without any identifiable cause or influence. It simply welled up, from some hidden spring within.

It was as if a "person was blind" and "one day his eyes become open and he can see the world," said Svetlana Alliluyeva, the daughter of the Soviet Union's Joseph Stalin.

"It is the feeling that comes to you one day."

As to where it came from, or why, she said she didn't know. Yet her expressed had no biblical antecedents. And theology maintains that God often works incognito in people, even where He is unknown and unnamed.

"The true light that enlightens every man," the gospel of John calls it. "The light shines in the darkness, and the darkness has not overcome it."

That was the situation of Stalin's daughter, reared and trained in an atmosphere not only of no religion but of vigorous antagonism to it.

"I was brought up in a family where there was never any talk of God," she said, except in a negative sense. "Since my childhood, I have been taught communism, and I did believe in it, as we all did, in my generation."

Then what sparked the religious turn in her? By her accounts, it had no origin that could be specified or explained.

Only after Mrs. Alliluyeva had turned toward religion without outside inducements did she begin studying it, she said. "After that, I began to read more."

Five years ago, in May 1962, she was baptized in Moscow into the Russian Orthodox Church, a communion which stresses the mysteries of God's sovereignty in contrast to Western Christianity's tendency to try to codify and define it.

Mrs. Alliluyeva, new to her faith and having come to it in an area where means of teaching it are meagre, described her faith as a "generalized belief in God."

"I believe that all religions are true and different: religious are only the different ways to the same God." It was a rudimentary affirmation, a simple acknowledgment, without its developed ramifications.

"For me God is the power of life and justice and when I am talking about God I am just talking about happiness to live and to enjoy life on earth. I feel that humanity should be one, that mankind should not be divided. The people should together work for much good."

Mrs. Alliluyeva said she also appreciated other Christian approaches: including Roman Catholicism and Christian Science, and saw values in Oriental religions such as Hinduism. "I don't feel much controversy between these things and I do not want to attach a certain label to my religious feeling."

However, she said she felt religious faith was incompatible with communism. "I don't think that class struggle and revolution can go hand - in-hand with the idea of love."

She echoed the experience of St. Paul, who was struck blind when he became a Christian and whose eyes opened to truth as the scales fell from them.

It was, Mrs. Alliluyeva said, as if her eyes had been opened and she could "see the world and the sky and the birds and the trees." And that she was a child of the source of it all.

REMINISCENCES

"It's a kind of magic. For when I speak of the days of my youth, I feel young again." — Mrs. W. H. (Bess) Lattimer.

"Sometime ago I cut this prayer out of a church magazine, and now that I find myself approaching the group known as the aged, I read it everyday — it's that good," says Mrs. W. H. Lattimer, Belleville Towers, a well-known and beloved Bellevillian, who as a minister's daughter, a wife and mother has lived a full live here, and chats with us of memories. "See, here it is:

'Lord, Thou knowest better than I know myself that I am growing older and will some day be old. Keep me from the fatal habit of thinking I must say something on every subject and on every occasion.

'Release me from craving to straighten out everybody's affairs. Make me thoughtful but not moody; helpful but not bossy. With my vast store of wisdom, it seems a pity not to use it all; but Thou knowest, Lord, that I want a few friends at the end.' "

"Keep my mind free from the recital of endless details; give me wings to get to the point. Seal my lips on my aches and pains; they are increasing, and love of rehearsing them is becoming sweeter as the years go by. I dare not ask for grace enough to enjoy the tales of others' pains, but help me to endure them with patience.

'I dare not ask for improved memory, but for a growing humility, and a lessening cocksureness when my memory seems to clash with the memories of others. Teach me the glorious lesson that occasionally I may be mistaken.

'Keep me reasonably sweet; I do not want to be a saint — some of them are so hard to live with; a sour old person is one of the crowning works of the devil. Give me the ability to see good things in unexpected places and talents in unexpected people, and give me, O Lord, the grace to tell them so. Amen.'

"As a minister's daughter my life was richly varied in locale, in experience and friendship," continues Mrs. Lattimer, whose father, the Rev. Joseph Locke served in the Methodist Church of Canada for 62 years. He was a well-known throughout Ontario for he held churches at Bradford, Sharon, Beamsville, Colborne, twice in Belleville, twice in Toronto, Brampton, Onemee, Havelock, Colingwood and Peterborough.

"In Belleville, my father was minister of Holloway St. Church and the Manse is, those days was next door to Moodie Cottage. Mr. Yeomans who lived at the lovely gray-stone house on Bridge Street West, kept a cow and supplied us with milk. Who, today, would believe that a cow was once kept along that busy street? My brother George, (born in Beamsville), attended the West Hill school and I re-

DR. AND MRS. DONALD E. WOOD

Wood — Carleton

Grace Isabel, daughter of Mrs. Edmund Allan Carleton of Stirling and the late Dr. Carleton and Donald Edward Wood MD, FRCP (C), son of Mrs. James H. Wood of Toronto and the late Dr. Wood were married by Canon A. J. Anderson at St. John's Anglican Church, Stirling, May 6, 1967 at 2 p.m. Dr. Ross Johnson played the wedding music.

Given in marriage by her cousin, Gordon Carleton, the bride wore a gown of ice blue crystalette and organza festuring a scoop neckline with imported French appliques on the bodice and hem and an Empire waist line from which a short train fell to the floor. Her fingertip veil of silk illusion was held by an ice blue wedding band headdress and she carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations and ivy.

Her attendants, Miss Joan Bain and Miss Doreen Stead were dressed alike in street-length dresses of Dior blue Swiss shantung styled on lines similar to the bride's gown. They wore rose headpiece and veils of matching blue and carried cascade bouquets of Sweet Avalanche. The bride's groom's nieces, Miss Margaret and Miss Barbara Dalziel were flower girls. They wore ice blue flowered organza dresses and carried nosegays of pink sweetheart roses and white mums.

James Wood was his brother's attendant and the ushers were Robert Watson, cousin of the bridegroom and Barclay Simpson.

The reception was held at the Sun Valley Motor Inn, Belleville. The bride's mother wore an ensemble of candy-tuft pink with pink accessories and a gardenia corsage. The bridegroom's mother was dressed in a Liberty print silk dress with a hat of mauve and green nylon tulle and an orchid corsage.

For her wedding trip the bride chose a peacock blue wool ensemble with breton saisor hat of pale yellow petals, honey-colored accessories and a corsage of yellow cymbidium orchids. On their return Dr. and Mrs. Wood will live in Toronto.

Minimum Security Institution For Women Doing Good Job

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP)—Ingleside stands on the outskirts of this town, a clean, modern structure that looks like a motel and has, in fact, entracted the occasional motorist.

But the 24 beds are already reserved at Ontario's only minimum security institution for women.

Since Ingleside opened in September, 1958, 410 women have served their sentences there. It's not difficult to escape but the 25 who have done so were relatively new arrivals acting impulsively. The record of successful rehabilitation is high.

Women sent to Ingleside are carefully selected for their ability to tolerate minimum security and fit into the educational program.

"Our first concern is to upgrade the girl's educational level," says Superintendent Glen Thompson. "It is rare to find a girl who has completed the first two forms of high school, and now a Grade 10 level is the basic minimum requirement for most jobs."

The girls are given credit for the grade levels they achieve and often continue their education through correspondence courses or adult training courses after leaving. As well as academic subjects they are taught commercial skills and trained as secretaries, hairdressers, office workers or waitresses.

As important as the educational program in giving the girl what is often her first taste of home life. Gwynneth Carter, the senior supervisor, is a second mother to many of them.

To create this home-like atmosphere the schedule is relaxed and the girls are not regimented. Each girl has her own bedroom and Ingleside even has its pets, a German shepherd dog and a canary.

But the staff insists on punctual attendance at lessons and work programs, for they feel the girls must learn to be realistic where their jobs are concerned.

When they have completed their terms at Ingleside the girls go to half-way houses such as those run by the Salvation Fry Society, Salvation Army, Legion of Mercy and Hope Harbour, where they stay until they find employment.

Women's Pages of Capital Papers Carry Hard News

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson and President Virginia Satiow of the women's division of the American Jewish Congress have something in common.

Each recently has ruffled that powerful corps of women responsible for what appears in a peculiar Washington phenomenon, the women's pages of the capital's newspapers. It has been said — often rightly—that these pages contain more news of inside Washington than any other part of the paper.

President Johnson's sin — or that of his officials — was to limit the attendance of White House social reporters at a recent gala to an hour. A spokesman said reporters tended to congregate around the president at social functions and impede access to him by guests.

Mrs. Satiow's transgression was much worse. Why, she asked, do Washington newspapers print so much important news on the women's pages?

"When we come together and talk about peace, civil rights and separation of church - state, we should not be reported on the women's pages," she insisted while her press agents blanched visibly.

"The women's pages are like the sports pages. They have a special interest. When we're not talking about fashion, food and tea parties, we belong on the women's pages.

"But when we talk about the serious affairs of the citizen, we should be reported in that part of the paper worthy to receive them."

Both, the president and Mrs. Satiow were dealt with quickly.

The White House social reporters stared at him intently from behind a velvet rope while he received 118 heads of diplomatic missions and one refused to have any refreshment, saying she'd never eat another bite in the White House. But they left quietly as asked.

It remains to be seen whether the White House will continue to try to keep them out.

As for Mrs. Satiow, the Washington women's pages rounded up assorted prominent witnesses who hastened to defend the practice of putting hard news back among the recipes, teas and social notes.

"I believe more people read the women's pages than the editorial," said former actor Melvyn Murphy, now a Republican senator.

"I can read one party story and figure out which way the wind is blowing," said Charles Bratzer, an assistant secretary of the interior.

John Leslie, the labor department's chief of information, said the women's pages are so avidly read in Washington because, "unfortunately perhaps, there is more news in them than there is in the news section."

Wife Objects to Office Party Which Excludes Husbands and Wives

Dear Doris: Just what is your opinion of an office which invites the employees only to a party?

This party consisted of a big dinner, all the drinks you wanted and dancing. Another can coaxed my husband to go he went. I didn't urge him not to go. It was two a.m. when he came home.

My daughter came home unexpectedly that night and was quite annoyed when he came in. She said her husband wouldn't dream of going to a party without her.

One of the men escorted

somebody's wife home and got home much later, and naturally there was a lot of flirting. My husband has always wanted me to go every place with him. He is a very good man in every way but sometimes in a crowd a bit gullible. That is all. He's drinking. He can get very excitable.

Do you think I'm being unfair if I ask him not to participate such a party? Especially when he admits he would be very upset if I went to such a party by myself. — Worried to Pieces.

Dear Worried: Sounds pretty rigid. The employer-wife type party is rapidly disappearing. This is aside from the company dinner where the president passes out bonuses and presents gold watches to those retiring.

When the dinner is followed by a dance, the men duck out and bring back their wives; the girls are joined by their husbands. This often happens at conventions and sales meetings, where there are plans for the ladies during the business sessions, and get-together-gatherers for staff and their partners later. . . .

If these exclusive parties are stag, o.k. If not, I take a dim view.

Dear Doris: I am interested in what information you may have on studying the heavens.

Can you tell me where I could go to buy a good, but small, stationary telescope?

Dear Stargazer: Once in a while a classified ad offers a used telescope for sale. Your best bet is to send one dollar to the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada, 252 College Street, Toronto, Ontario, for "The Observer's Handbook, 1967".

In that book you will find a varied selection of telescopes and some guidelines about how to choose. Many amateurs start off with binoculars. Even they are more powerful than the initial telescope Galileo used). One telescope that is fully illustrated may be had for less than $50, and it has a four-inch objective lens.

It's a great sport. After you've gazed on the Sea of Tranquility and discovered mysterious lights in Jupiter's sky, you will come down to Earth with a thump. And like it but a start.

Dear Doris: I am very angry with my second husband, and the frustrating thing is that I still love him. I have cause to be. I have one child of eight by my former husband, and I don't remember her. Two is ruling him as an excuse why he doesn't want children.

He tells me constantly that he's afraid he'll shower more affection on me and he'll hate to fall will be hurt by this. He also says he cares very much for her. But he doesn't know if he loves him like a father should, because he's never been a father before.

I want to be a mother again, but I don't want my son to be hurt later on. He's my husband been right? — Frustrated.

Dear Frustrated: I dunno. Ing without thinking it. Such think his rationalizations talk could turn us all into Mixed-up Kids. If he is loving the best he knows how, why is he so doubtful? All a guy can do is pull out all the stops. If he cares about Bill, he ought to think about providing him with some brothers and sisters to play with.

But you gave, here? Is he afraid of the cost of a family?

Only Way to Handle Problem Is Honest Way

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I hope you will continue to advise girls who have had babies out of wedlock to tell their sweethearts before they marry. This is what happened to me:

I had a little boy out of wedlock and decided to keep him. I met a story about a brief, unsuccessful marriage which most people believed. When I met Ron I told him I was divorced. After several months of dating he asked me to marry him. I felt like the luckiest girl in the world.

Two days before the wedding my mother took me aside and told me I would be doing a terrible thing if I married Ron under the cloud of a lie. I wept and insisted I should take a chance on losing him. If he was unable to accept me because of my past I would just die. After hours of talking, my mother persuaded me that she was right.

I told Ron the next night. His reply was, "I knew it. I was just waiting to hear it from you. And now there is nothing between us to mar our perfect love."

So you see Ann, once again truth paid off in a way that is life giver could. Please keep telling the girls who are in my boat that there is only one way to handle this problem. The honest way. — A HAPPY MRS. WITH A CLEAR CONSCIENCE.

DEAR HAPPY MRS.: You told them dear, and, on behalf of all the girls whose minds you may have changed, I thank you.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Quite some time ago my daughter-in-law suddenly stopped speaking to my wife. I tried to learn the details but nobody would talk about it.

This family rift bothered me and I decided to get to the bottom of it. Last week I wrote my daughter-in-law and asked her to tell me why she had stopped talking to my daughter. I said, "Perhaps there was a misunderstanding which I can help iron out." I was shocked at her answer. She wrote, "I have always despised your daughter and decided to stop going through the hypocritical motions of being nice to her."

This reply cut into my heart like a knife. How should I treat my son and his wife now? Should I ignore them as they have ignored my daughter? Or should I pretend that I did not receive the letter of explanation? — SORRY I ASKED.

DEAR SORRY: Let this be a lesson to all self-appointed menders of ruptured relationships. The golden slogan "Mind Your Own Business" should be the cardinal rule for well-intentioned "fixers." Now, say nothing more. You've said too much already.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I met this girl when we were counsellors at a camp last summer. We are both 14. My parents met her and they like her a lot.

She wants me to spend a weekend with her (it is a nice ride from here, about 60 miles), but my folks won't let me go because they have never met her parents.

Does this make sense? I don't think so and I hope you'll set me straight. — MISSED Q.

DEAR MISSED: I suggest that the girl's mother write or telephone your mother and introduce herself. This would make your folks less uneasy about allowing you to make the trip.

P.S.: You are a girl aren't you? I'm assuming this although you didn't say.—

QUESTION: I sure do appreciate your efforts on your page and to know you test the recipes is re-assuring. Thanks so much. I have an item I wish to ask about. During the last war when sugar was rationed, the ladies used to fix bread fingers with Eagle brand sweetened milk. I liked it then and would very much like to know how to do it. I do not know how it was prepared but it was sort of crispy and chewy and was just as nice as some cakes. I hope everyone has not forgotten about it. — Mrs. E. H.

ANSWER: I think the following is the remembered recipe you want.

COCOANUT STRIPS

Slice day-old white bread ¼" thick. Trim off crusts. Cut into strips ¼" x 2". Long. Spread strips on all sides with sweetened condensed milk, covering well. Then roll in fine cocoanut. Brown under broiler or toast on fork over coals for campfire snacks. It will take like regul food cake. cocoanut-frosted.

One Type of Money Bank Was Made of Earthenware

By RALPH and TERRY KOVEL

A penny saved is a penny earned even if the penny looked different than those we use today. Banks have been around in the form of many shapes. One early type of bank was made from delft, or earthenware.

The bank or money box was shaped like a gourd. Colored 1894. Simon and Halbig worked flowers and foliage decorated in Grafenhain, Germany, and a the surface. Like many of today's piggy banks there was one made these banks.

To remove the money, the bank had to be broken.

Q. What is a tobourette?

A. Spelling it a problem with antiques too and the taboret, tabouret, or taborette has many spellings and meanings. Most times the word refers to a small cylindrical stool of the type popular in France during the 18th century.

The taboret could be a cabinet on counters that can be easily moved in a working area, in the 19th century in America. It could mean a drum table or a small portable stand for plants, often used as an hexagonal shape.

The antique collectors latest fad is the taboret plant table of oak or mahogany with an hexagonal top and oriental lines that was popular during the 1850-1900 period.

Many of you have written to inquire where the "Lucent Glass Bread Plate" could be purchased. The original pressed glass plate was made at the Indiana Flint Glass Co., of Findlay, Ohio. The company moved from Findlay to Albany, Ind. The plate was made at the Indiana site until 1902.

The plate mould was then sold to the Indiana Glass Co. of Dunkirk, Ind. They made a few changes in the design and today the reproduction plate until a few years ago. The only place to buy the old plate now is to find it in an antique shop. Perhaps someone will make the plate again and offer it for sale.

WHAT IS YOUR A.Q.?
(Adoption Quotient)
WOULD YOU QUALIFY AS AN ADOPTING PARENT?
—A child by adoption will share in his parents' estate along with natural born children.
TRUE. Under the law the adopted child becomes the child of the adopting parents and the adopting parents become the parents of the adopted child.
—The legal costs alone prevent many couples from adopting.
FALSE. There is no cost involved in adopting a child through the Children's Aid Society. There is, however, a filing fee of $4.00 payable to the court at the time of the completion of the adoption.
—An adopted child is unable to get a birth certificate in his adoptive name.
FALSE. At any time subsequent to the issuing of an order of adoption by the court, the parents of a child born in Ontario (and a majority of Canadian provinces) may apply to the Deputy Registrar General for a re-registration of the birth in their name. There is no additional charge for this re-registration.
—Adopting parents may include their child by adoption in their medical and health insurance plan.
TRUE. Most health and hospital insurance plans now cover children on adoption probation.
—There is always danger that a child placed in an adoptive home may be claimed by his natural parents.

For further information about adoption contact your local Children's Aid Society by writing Box 126, Belleville or telephone 962-5784 for an appointment.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Children on bicycles often seem unaware of the danger from cars. They ride in the middle of the street, without proper lights at dusk, and weave in and out of traffic.

Make a point of checking on your bicycle rider to see that he understands and observes traffic and safety rules. Disregard of such rules could mean his life.

Don't turn a child loose with a bicycle as soon as he learns to balance and ride one. Be sure he is instructed in traffic and safety rules.

Knowles Wants Party Leaders To Draft Vietnam Resolution

OTTAWA (CP)—A meeting of party leaders to draft a formal resolution for a full-scale Commons debate on Vietnam was advocated Friday by Stanley Knowles (NDP — Winnipeg North Centre).

Speaking during debate on the throne speech, Mr. Knowles urged Prime Minister Pearson to call the meeting for Monday because Parliament should "speak to the world about the tragic international situation facing us."

The NDP member's request followed a Commons statement earlier by the prime minister that MPs would have the chance during the throne speech debate to express their views on Viet nam.

The idea of a formal resolution was put forward at the start of Commons business Friday by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker who noted that U Thant, secretary-general of the United Nations, suggested the world is "slithering" into a Third World War.

Mr. Knowles said a formal resolution would be more effective than any number of speeches by MPs. U Thant's statements could not be brushed aside or regarded as academic exercises.

Earlier Friday, the Creditiste presented a motion, charging the government with failing to provide for the "constant economic growth" of agriculture.

It said the government had failed to recognize the rights of the provinces under the British North America Act, Canada's constitution.

The motion will come to a vote Monday night prior to the Conservative motion.

The cabinet was accused Friday of trying to henstring Parliament by pushing for restrictions on debating time.

Gordon Churchill (PC—Winnipeg South Centre) called for 'a revolt by back-benchers against any move to restrict debate further.

He said that if the government has its way individual MPs "will soon become puppets . . . merely rubber-stamping legislation."

Mr. Churchill said newspapers are picking up and expanding on a cabinet complaint there is a need for more efficiency in Parliament. This was a "typical Liberal method" of trying to curb opposition.

"The prince minister complains about the length of the session and the boasts about the number of bills being passed," he said. In an age of instant news, the government was pressing for instant legislation.

John Masefield Dead

ABINGDON, England (AP)—John Masefield, Britain's poet laureate whose verses sang of the lonely sea and tall ships, died Friday at 88.

Masefield considered himself mainly a storyteller and he cast his poems in simple rhymes and rhythms that had little to do with the complexities of modern poetry.

Extradition of Nazi Will Not Be Delayed

BRASILIA, Brazil (Reuters) — A Federal Supreme Court spokesman here today denied reports circulating in Rio de Janeiro that extradition proceedings against Nazi death camp commandant Franz Paul Stangl by Austria, Poland and West Germany will be subject to long delays.

The spokesman said the extradition hearing will take place as soon as the attorney-general has affixed his opinion to the brief. This is expected to be sometime between May 17 and 24.

Stangl was arrested in São Paulo Feb. 28 as he was returning home from his job at the Volkswagen automobile factory there. At the request of the Austrian embassy he was placed under 60 days' preventive arrest.

After the extradition requests were lodged with the minister of justice, the 60-day limit no longer was valid. But Stangl has been kept under heavy guard on unidentified military premises here ever since, awaiting court action on the extradition requests.

General opinion here is that extradition will be granted. But the question is—to which of the three petitioner countries? Brazilian law forbids extradition of any person to a country where he is liable to face capital punishment.

Stiffer Penalties Urged to Prevent Battered Babies

TORONTO (CP)—Stiffer penalties to curb the increasing number of child beatings were urged Friday at the annual meeting of the Ontario Association of Children's Aid Societies.

Bruce Affleck of Oshawa, Crown attorney for Ontario County, told the meeting that different prison sentences should be imposed in some cases of cruelty and neglect of children.

He also urged that amendments be made in the Canada Evidence Act to allow husbands and wives to testify against each other in battered - baby cases.

A worker for the Children's Aid Society of Metropolitan Toronto said some parents of battered babies are at least taking their children for medical treatment. If enforcement and punishment became too severe, they might not seek medical help.

In Ontario, 225 battered-baby cases were reported in 1966 and 28 charges were laid. From January to March, 1967, 121 cases were reported and 17 charges laid.

"Those children are being beaten; offenders are not being punished," said Mr. Affleck. "Something has to be done almost immediately, to alleviate the situation."

He suggested the Child Welfare Act be changed to provide penalties for persons, including doctors, who fail to report cases of cruelty and neglect.

Dr. Gerald Lynne - Davies, coroner for Waterloo County, objected to Mr. Affleck's proposal.

"It would be most unfortunate to make the regular medical practitioner a policeman," he said.

During another session of the association's meeting, a Toronto mother described her success with a Metropolitan Toronto Children's Aid Society experiment in which emotionally-disturbed children are placed in special foster homes for treatment.

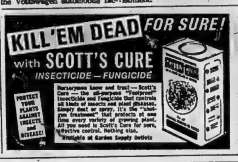
Mrs. Susan Barkley, trained in the treatment of emotionally-disturbed children at Thistletown Hospital, took two four-year-old disturbed boys into her home for two years.

One of the boys was hyperactive, a compulsive talker who rarely used a normal tone of voice and his bizarre mannerisms prompted other children to call him Crazy Stephen.

Mrs. Barkley, who has four teen-age children of her own, said Stephen now is ready to enter public school and has progressed to the stage where he is ready for adoption.

Company Code Is Urged

TORONTO (CP) — Members on both sides of the legislature cc3ed Friday for early implementation of a report, tabled April 4, that includes a proposal that a conduct code be set up for company directors, auditors and trustees.



The interim report by the legislature's select committee on company law also would give shareholders the right to sue company directors for not properly doing their jobs.

In other developments:

1. Albert Welker (C—Oshawa) said Pickering Township has become a dormitory for Metropolitan Toronto and wants provincial aid to meet a "disparate" need for more schools and other public services. A 1966 report on Metropolitan Toronto's government proposed the township be given special provincial grants because of its unique municipal status.

2. Vernon Singer (L—Toronto Downsview), A. J. Reaume (L—Essex North), Donald MacDonald, New Democratic party leader and Fred Young (NDP—Toronto Yorkview) said the government controls the Ontario Municipal Board so long as it refuses to grant board members security of tenure.

3. Health Minister Matthew Dymond said an advertisement by a Montreal "facial rejuvenation clinic" in a Toronto newspaper has been referred to the federal food and drug directorate by his department.

Adopting The Homeless Youngster Can Mean Lasting Happiness For Many Childless Couples

By ROGER WORTH
Staff Writer

The blonde, haired, blue eyed baby playing quietly on the floor couldn't know how much happiness he had brought to his home. One could tell from the expressions on the faces of the proud mother and father that the arrival of this youngster just had be the most important single thing that had happened in their lives.

They had considered this moment for many months and once a decision was reached they followed through and adopted a child. When he arrived in December he was only seven months old but now he had lived in their home for more than five months and next month he officially becomes a part of the family.

This is a partial history of only one of the more than 60 children that workers at the Belleville Children's Aid Society place in homes every year. The process of adopting a child works to the mutual advantage of both parents and children — bringing happiness to the parents and a home for the child.

Mrs. Janette Thompson, supervisor of child care and adoption in the Belleville area, says it is not difficult to adopt a child and that it generally takes less than six months to find the right child for the adopting couple.

The first step in the procedure, according to Mrs. Thompson, is for the prospective parents to call or write the society for information. "After the couple get in touch with our office we invite them in for a chat and get the particulars on the type of baby the couple want."

"We try to find the things that are most important such as the sex, color of the hair, age, nationality or any other particular feature a couple might want in an adopted child."

Mrs. Thompson says the greatest proportion of adopted children are youngsters up to the age of two. "Most of the couples like to have the children shortly after they are born," she said.

An adopting father must be at least 21 years old and it is felt that a couple should have been married for at least three years. Older couples can adopt if they are within the natural child rearing age although the limit is fairly flexible and the age of the child is also taken into consideration.

Following the initial interview couples are required to have a medical check-up. The case worker then interviews the couple again — both separately and together in the home.

Mrs. Janette Thompson

people think they are expected to provide more for the child than would the average family. "This is not the case — all we require is an average home or apartment and an adequate income to support the family. We don't require anything more than you would find in the normal home."

Following interviews, the couple, in almost all cases, are approved for placement and then follows the job of finding the right child for the couple. Mrs. Thompson says there is usually a short waiting period but that a child can usually be placed with the family within a two month period."

If the right child is not available in the Belleville area the local Children's Aid Society are able to draw on children throughout the province to fill their requirements.

When a child becomes available the couple are called to the office to hear the details relevant to the child's background. Factors taken into consideration at this time are the child's physical, mental, and emotional development.

If the couple are satisfied they are then shown the child and given time to decide whether or not they want the youngster. If they decide they want the foster the placement is made immediately.

Mrs. Thompson says most couples, once they hear a baby is available, are so excited they don't want a long wait before coming to see the child.

"If we keep them waiting more than a day or two we feel they will be spending sleepless nights worrying about their prospective child."

Mrs. Thompson said.

"Before the child can be placed," she said, "he or she must be made a ward of the crown, be passed physically by a competent medical authority and the Children's Aid Society must be assured in terms of the child's social background.

Mrs. Thompson says the focus of any placement is not on the adopting couple but on the child. "We have to consider what sort of home the child needs — considering its potential and other factors," she said.

After the child is placed the Children's Aid Society make a visit to the home to provide assistance for any problems or adjustments that might be required.

Following a period of six months the couple and the child appear before the county court judge to officially adopt the youngster. Mrs. Thompson says there is no charge other than a court fee of $8.

In the case of an older child Mrs. Thompson says the adopting couple must be prepared to "accept the youngster with his or her memories." We arrange a casual meeting. In a restaurant, department store or park between the prospective parents and the child. If this meeting works out we then visit the couple's home with the child and get him or her acquainted with the couple."

These short visits soon stretch into week-ends and within two or three weeks the youngster accepts the couple and remains in the home.

Mrs. Thompson says it's surprising how much one of these youngster can understand about their situation when an explanation is given.

The great majority of children in the Belleville area come from unwed mothers who want to give their children up for adoption. Older children come from broken homes.

Mrs. Thompson claims that children are now available for adoption. "Up until a few years ago it was a problem to get a child — now children are available," she said.

Mrs. Thompson herself has placed more than 300 children in her six years as a Children's Aid Society worker. "It gives me a great sense of satisfaction to meet these parents on the street — sometimes with their adopted children," she said.

Because children are more readily available now than they were 10 years ago it does not mean that we have lowered our standards," she said.

The Children's Aid Society is financed through the provincial and municipal governments and a staff of 17 professional people are available to look after the society's work.

Mrs. Thompson feels many couples, both young and old, could be interested in adopting children. "Those people should write or call the Children's Aid Society in Belleville."

Happiness Is A Child Named Robbie

This year old youngstar, Robbie Lafferty, will officially become the son of Cpl. and Mrs. Robert Lafferty of Belleville next month. He is one of the more than 60 children adopted in the Quinte area each year.

Foster Mother to 50 Babies

Miss Maude Watson of the Belleville Children's Aid Society turns over another infant to foster mother Mrs. Donald Askett of Middleton Park. Mrs. Askett has cared for more than 50 babies over the past 15 years.

Foster Homes Needed In the Belleville Area

One of the interesting facets of the adoption process operated by the Belleville Children's Aid in the Quinte area is the role of the foster mother. After a child is released to the society he or she is given a thorough medical check - up and then placed with a foster-family.

The foster homes here are private families who are willing to look after the children for periods of six months or more.

Typical of a foster mother is Mrs. Donald Askett of 33 Borden Drive in Middleton Park. She has been looking after children for the past 15 years and during that period has looked after some 50 children for varying lengths of time.

Mrs. Askett's husband is a member of the RCAF in Trenton and they have three children of their own, two boys and a girl aged 12 to 20. Mrs. Janette Thompson, the supervisor of the child care and adoption department of the Belleville society says they are using 75 foster homes on a regular basis but that the Society is looking constantly for new homes.

Mrs. Thompson thinks the motivation for most families who take these youngsters into their homes is the feeling that the "family can give something to the foster child."

Payment for the care of infants up to the age of seven in a foster home is $1.35 per day; for children aged eight to 13 the rate is $1.50 per day; and for children 13 and over the rate is $2 per day.

"We require that these foster mothers be between the ages of 25 and 55 in order to qualify," Mrs. Thompson said. "Anyone interested should phone or write the Belleville Children's Aid Society."

The Adoption Process

Part of the adoption program carried out by the staff of the Belleville Children's Aid Society is an interview with the prospective parents. Here staffer Mrs. Dorothea Wiens talks with a local couple.

Judy Attends Sub-Basement Party

National Art Gallery Is Swingingest Spot in Ottawa These Days As Wild Traffic, Cool Decor and Foldouts Combine for Action

OTTAWA (CP)—Oh swinging man. Like so far out of sight you couldn't know.

It was the sub-basement of the National Gallery of Canada, see, and there were all these cats, including State Secretary Judy LaMarsh in a chiffon tent-dress with a mini-skin hat for kicks. Also blue stockings and blue-and-green shoes.

There was this mind - destroying bond, Sir Broomer and his Kinetic Ensemble from Toronto, deafening with trombone, two saxophones and drums, like wild traffic noises out of synch.

It was the party after the opening of the big exhibit, Ilfied 300 Years of Canadian Art, the biggest show the government - owned gallery had ever put on, three floors of it upstairs.

At the party scene were Gallery Director Jean Boggs and the gallery's chief curator, Dr. R. H. Hubbard. 20 artists and 200 collectors who had lined up early to be gallery, and like they're blowing their minds.

The decor? Cool. Plashing psychedelic lights. Girlie foldouts from Playboy magazine on cupboards where workmen who pack and unpack pictures had left them. Packing cases all around. Heating pipes on the ceiling.

And Greg Curnoe, 31, all six-foot-three of him in a yellow suit with chartreuse shirt and sky-blue tie. Yeah. The London, Ont., artist submitted the winning design for the 21-square-foot cake the guests munched after the buffet and cocktails. One of his paintings was upstairs.

The cake, all orange, had chartreuse writing, which said:

"300 yrs. of Canadian Art: I think I love you: Hold me tight; I need you . . ."

Mr. Curnoe, who may design a station in the Montreal subway if the negotiations work out, said he's never used icing as a medium before.

"I liked it though. I have a sweet tooth."

Miss Boggs said the party was her idea.

"Except for the music," she shouted.

It started so quietly, Miss LaMarsh officially opening the exhibition with a speech.

"As you browse through the three floors that are devoted to this exhibition, you will surely feel that we are not people without a history," she said.

She paid tribute to Dr. Hubbard, an authority on Canadian art, and Jean-Rene Ostiguy, the gallery's curator of Canadian art.

The two men spent two years assembling the collection from Canada and as far away as England. Mr. Ostiguy chose the 101 works of painting, sculpture, tapestry and whatnot that make up the 1951-to-now part of the show.

"I love it," Dr. Hubbard said about the whole exhibition as he guided Miss LaMarsh through it.

It's the largest-ever collection of Canadian art and the most inclusive—it has furniture, silver and embroidery as well as paintings and sculpture.

He said part of it may go to the Art Gallery of Ontario after it is taken down next September, and Miss Boggs said it could serve as a blueprint for possible Canadian exhibits to show the world what Canada can do.

After Miss LaMarsh had seen it all—the serious paintings, the hard - edged abstracts, the Group of Seven works and the anonymous pioneer portraits and wood carvings — she said it was "Wonderful."

"Because you see in the pictures the social development, the way people lived, what they wanted in life and what they spent their money on.

"I'm delighted silver and furniture have been included because these are things people can identify with."

That was in the elevator on the way down to the party in the sub-basement.

A. Y. Jackson was there, at 85 an original member of the Group of Seven, he said the people that call pop-art look now are nowhere compared with critics of the Group's work in the old days.

"They used to say it looked like the inside of a drunkard's stomach," he said. "One man called it a single, narrow, rigid, formula of ugliness

He liked that so much we used it as the motto for our next exhibit. You should have seen the crowds that came."

The gallery hopes that people on their way to the Montreal world fair will come to see the exhibit, from the delicate early wood-carvings to the harsh metal objects of today—even without a party.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

The weekly variety of boxing is swirling again, sucking in a mixed-up melange called an eight man elimination tournament to determine a successor to Cassius Clay the title-stripped heavyweight champion of the world.

The "selection" of contestants for the preliminary four bouts saw Canada's Chuvalo matched with Joe Frazier, undefeated in 16 professional bouts, 14 by knockout; Floyd Patterson, and Oscar Bonavena the man-eating Argentine; Karl Mildenberger and clever German and Thad Spencer and Ernie Terrell and Jimmy Ellis, wherever he is.

I do not know who owned the "brains that made the selection, but he or they could have done a better job sticking a pin at random or pulling the names out of a hat.

Matching Chuvalo with Frazier was like drinking the cream off the coffee and letting the dregs end up where they may.

However, Cleverley Carp, the owners of Frazier's contract, has turned down the offer of the newly formed Sports Action Inc. to send the 23-year-old Philadelphian into such a squabble.

Now the maelstrom of mix-up is swirling again. The corporation board of directors unanimously voted to go along with Frazier's trainer Yancy Durham, who wants to pursue an independent course with the No. 3 contender.

Sports Action, an organization headed by one Mike Mallis proposed the tournament and has demanded the ancillary rights to the eventual survivors bouts for two years. Also it wants the winning fighter to make his first title defence in the Astrodome at Houston.

After the first defence the choice of opponents would revert to the champion although Sport Action would hold the radio and television rights for the two year period.

Mallis, who's Main Bout group handled the ancillary rights and promotion for Clay, includes Jimmy Brown the well-known football star.

But Cleverley strenuously objected to be tied to the Mallis group should Frazier win the elimination tournament.

With Frazier out, the tournament takes on the aspect of the sideshow carnival of a Big Top circus. With the master clown Cassius Clay looking on from the sidelines perhaps the inside of a jail, the mixed-up melange is a heiwa long way from becoming the "Greatest Show on Earth".

The cream of the ring coffee would have been, as was noted, the bout between Chuvalo and Frazier. Both are fighters who can hit and who can be hit with the Canadian having the edge in punching ability.

Many boxing men believe the unbeaten younger Frazier could take the measure of Chuvalo since both are of the boring-in type. But the Canadian has vastly improved since his bout with Clay.

Second best would have been the bout between Floyd Patterson and Oscar Bonavena. Patterson is said to be physically perfect again and in my opinion would steal the Argentine back to his gaucho a beaten fighter.

Karl Mildenberger would not have much trouble of disposing of Thad Spencer with Ernie Terrell just going through his guitar-and-dance routine with unknown Jim Ellis.

Meanwhile Clay, the master boxer and the fleetest heavyweight afoot ever to wear the world crown, will look on from the bleachers if and when the association vultures can fill in the vacancy left by Frazier's refusal to take part.

And if it comes about and a new world champion is declared in the elimination tournament, who prithee blad kire, will his opponents be in future challenging bouts?

They must come from the elimination ranks or Frazier himself. His will be the only logical contender left.

The elimination tournament, if it materializes, will be a carousel of cleet, a merry-go-round of mual with the calliope music coming from the organ of promotion with the "sponsors" at the keyboard.

Leads New Orleans Open

Knudson; A 66 With A Palmer Touch

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Although he had clear sailing for a $3,000 special award and a solid gold cup, Arnold Palmer passed up the $100,000 greater New Orleans Open. But he was represented Friday by one of the gloves that bears his name.

Frankie Laced George Knudson, a slender Canadian, wore a Palmer - approved glove for the first time in four years and fired a sizzling six - under 66 to grab the second - round lead.

But golf's golden - boar, big Jack Nicklaus, was breathing right down Knudson's back as the field began today's third round.

Nicklaus blasted out of a sand trap on the 18th hole Friday and the ball trickled into the cup. It gave him a 68.

Knudson's 36-hole score was 137—seven under par on the 7,030 - yard Lakewood Country Club course.

Nicklaus stood at 138, along with lefty Bob Charles, the New Zealander who won the 1963 British Open and Johnny Pott.

"I wore a Palmer glove today," said Knudson, "and I played just like Arnie. How about that?"

Knudson, 27, explained the glove hit this way:

"I couldn't hang on to the club last week at Houston and finally I got stubborn and decided that I wasn't hitting it solid. I couldn't hang on to the club because of the sweat.

"So I put it on my left hand and I felt much stronger in my left hand."

Q. Why haven't you worn a glove before?

A. Well, always since I was a kid I have played without a glove. I guess it was because I couldn't afford one. And I use all-weather grips and in most weather I don't have too much trouble hanging on.

Nicklaus has been in a slump but many of his fellow pros are predicting he'll put on a stretch run this summer and possibly catch Palmer, who has won over $87,000 already.

Former Masters and PGA champion Doug Ford, who fired a 68 in the Pro—am and thought his game was back in shape, slipped to a 76 the first day and a 71 Friday. He missed the 146 cut by one stroke.

Other notable casualties included Lionel Hebert, a former PGA champion, and Ken Venturi and Gene Littler, both former National Open titists.

Frank Beard, the defending champion and winner of two rich tournaments in the last month, had a 71 Friday and stood at 139 along with Jacky Dupit and Mason Rudolph, who ner of this tourney three years ago. Beard shared the first-round lead with Gardner Dickinson, who slipped to a 74 and was well back in the pack at 142.

The only other Canadian in the tournament, Wm Hounsum of Winnipeg, missed the 146 cutoff when he fired a 73 Friday to go with Thursday's opening-round 73 and a 146 total.

Marlies Close Door On Porks!

FORT WILLIAM, Ont. (CP)—Bantam goalie John Adams blanked a Edson in fundamentals Friday night, and his experiences may have cost the first-up Marrs another victory in the Memorial Cup Junior hockey finals.

The youthful netminder went to the corner to clear and found himself alone with Toronto's Richie Bayes. It was no contest as Bayes scored into the empty net and MacBeath were on hand to a 6-0 victory and a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven series.

The fifth game in the series will be played here Sunday.

Whidden made several key stops among 19 saves to preserve his shutout before 3,300 fans.

Bayes and Tom Martin each scored two goals. Terry Caffery and Doug Jarvis contributed singles. It was Acomb's sixth goal of the series.

Marlboros, although they took 10 of 16 minor penalties, scored three shots on the power play.

Their first power - play rush clicked when Caffery surprised Adams by a quick wrist shot to the short side.

Adams, the victim of all six Toronto goals, was replaced in the third by Gordie Bishop.

Bodnar had tribute for the efforts of Bill Fairbairn, a recruit from Brandon Wheat Kings of the Manitoba League who had a hand in four goals in Port Arthur's 6-4 triumph Thursday night.

But he had more for his own boys.

"They played their positions and passed the puck well."

Whidden made a key save on John Wilding, Fairbairn's linemate in Brandon where both collected 100-points plus this season, in the second period with Marlboros holding a 3-0 margin.

His mates seemed to take the steam out of Marrs. They could not muster a dangerous threat during 80-seconds of the third period when two Toronto penalty players were in the penalty box.

The absence of forward Bob Kelly appeared to affect Marrs.

Nicknamed "Bob a squallen," Kelly was sitting out a one-game suspension for leaving the ice during Thursday night to join a third-period fight.

End Losing Streak

Orioles Hatch; Blast Yankees 14-0

By BOB GREEN

J. C. Martin and Horace Clarke were in unfamiliar key hitting roles as American League baseball action Friday night, Clarke breaking a perfect game by Baltimore's Jim Palmer and Martin driving in the game's only run as Chicago White Sox extended their winning string.

Clarke, a .203 hitter for New York Yankees, singled leading off the seventh inning and was the only batter to reach base against Palmer, a 21 - year - old right - hander. The Orioles, meanwhile, blasted five New York pitchers for 16 hits, breaking a six - game losing string, 14-0.

Martin, sporting an .036 average, doubled in the only run of the game—and his first run batted in of the season—in Chicago's 3-0 decisionover California Angels. It was the White Sox' seventh straight triumph.

Detroit Tigers edged by Boston Red Sox 5-4, Kansas City Athletics nipped Minnesota Twins 3-1 and Cleveland Indians bombed Washington Senators 12-3 in other Al games all at night.

The White Sox' victory kept them within one-half game of front-running Detroit, which had to work hard for the one-run margin over Boston.

The Tigers got three runs without a hit, and another on an error. Norm Cash accounted for the other with a homer. Earl Wilson limited the Red Sox to four hits before he tired and they rallied for two runs in the ninth.

"It was a squeaker," Detroit manager Mayo Smith said, "but it looks as good as any in the win column. We'll take all we can get."

The Yankees couldn't get a thing against the 6 - foot - 4 Palmer. He retired the first 18 batters he faced. When gave up a single to Clarke. Tom Tresh promptly grounded into a double play and Palmer retired the Yanks the rest of the way for the minimum 27 batters.

Frank Robinson, Paul Blair and Andy Etchebarren were the big Orioles hitters. Robinson drove in four runs on three hits, Blair had four on four hits and Etchebarren four hits and two RBI.

Wins Fifth In Row

Marichal Crutching Limping Giants

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

San Francisco's limping Giants have come up with a formula for shedding those second - division blues.

Now if Herman Franks can just figure out a way to pitch Juan Marichal four times a week, the Giants will be sitting pretty.

Marichal, a spring training holdout, hurled his fifth straight complete game victory Friday night, whipping Houston Astros 6-1. Willie Mays and Tom Haller provided the power with long home runs.

For the Giants to try to win without Marichal is like a car trying to run on three wheels. Franks found that out the hard way in the first two weeks of the season when Juan dropped his first three starts and San Francisco sunk to the cellar.

But the ace right - hander has regained his rhythm and now all Franks has to do is just get two or three other pitchers in time with Juan.

Mays third home run of the season and No. 542 of his career came in the seventh inning with two men on and gave Marichal a comfortable working margin.

Haller, on a tear with nine hits in 12 at bats, had given the Giants the lead in the fourth but singles by Joe Morgan, Sonny Jackson and Jim Wynn tied it in the fifth.

Marichal finished with a seven-hitter and struck out nine.

In other National League games Friday night, St. Louis Cardinals rallied with five runs in the eighth inning for a 7-5 victory over New York Mets. Pittsburgh Pirates downed Atlanta Braves 5-2, Cincinnati Reds dropped Philadelphia Phillies 4-3 and Chicago Cubs nipped Los Angeles Dodgers 2-1.

The Mets carried a 5-2 lead into the eighth inning against St. Louis but singles by Julian Javier and Dave Ricketts, a force play, singles by Lou Brock and Curt Flood, a double by Roger Maris and an intentional walk to Orlando Cepeda tied the game and left the bases loaded for Mike Shannon's winning hit.

Jerry Buchek homered for the Mets.

Harvard Crew Favored

WORCESTER, Mass (AP)— Harvard's heavyweight crew, unbeaten in U.S. college competition since 1963, is favored to post its 35th straight triumph and win the Eastern Sprints title on unprecedented fourth straight year in the annual regatta today on Lake Quinsigamond.

Harvard, strong and powerful with an average weight of 198 pounds, looms as the class in the 13-boat field although dropping down to the 2,000-metre-1¼-mile-distance for the first time this year.

Harvard is top-seeded after sweeping through all opposition en route to the Eastern Sprints.

Harvard will take on Cornell, Navy, MIT and Columbia in the opening heat of the day-long regatta.

Terrell Passes Physical

PATERSON, N.J. (AP) — Ernie Terrell got the green light physically Friday for the heavyweight championship tournament to be run off by the World Boxing Association.

Dr. Fred Crossen said Terrell's physical condition is "100 per cent excellent, including his right eye." The eye specialist said the eye "is completely healed, and his vision is perfect."

The eye was injured when Terrell lost a 15-round decision to Cassius Clay in Houston, Tex., Feb. 6.

Clay was stripped of the championship recently after refusing to enter the army.

Sports Celebrities Dinner

The Mayor, The Macs And Red Storey

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

PICTON — Mayor Harvey J. McFarland wielded a rare hospitality baton here last night in the induction of the first Sports Celebrities Dinner held in this Prince Edward county town.

He hosted "My boys of 1950" the world amateur champion Belleville McFarlands. He honored the 1966-67 junior "B" club that bore the name "Quinte-McFarlands."

There were presentations, speeches humorous and tributive, reminiscences and stories garnished by a galaxy of top sports luminaries and municipal and political dignitaries.

The dinner was sponsored by the management of the Quinte McFarlands junior club under the jurisdiction of team officials Jim Heathews and "Red" Mavety of Belleville and Chris Lockyer of Picton.

"Red" Storey, well-known former football, hockey and lacrosse player and later a NHL top referee, a raconteur of rare ability was the guest speaker.

"Red" was in rare form. He had an audience of upwards of 175 on send-off with the rib-tickling Storey humor, anecdote, story and wisecrack. He lived up to his reputation of being the best after-dinner sports speaker in the country.

Among the sports celebrities were Bobby and Dennis Hull; Harry Sinden, Boston Bruins' coach; Red O'Quinn and Rick Black of the Ottawa Rough Riders; Carmen Basille, former world middleweight champion; Vic Bagnato, boxing impresario of Toronto; Milt Dunnell, sports editor of the Toronto Star.

Also Bob Wilson of the San Francisco Seals of the NHL; Price Morris, Canadian heavyweight weight lifting champion and the national coach, Ken Carr-Brazil of Belleville; Dave Kerr former NHL goalie, also of Belleville and OHA past-president Lorne Cook of Kingston.

Others at the head table were Mayor McFarland, Bob Boyce, warden of Prince Edward county; Doug Aikenhead, MP Prince Edward-Lennox; Norris Whitney, MPP Prince Edward-Lennox, Robert Hull senior; Drury Dorgan, manager of the 1959 McFarlands, and this reporter.

Telegrams of regret at inability to be present were read from George Hees, MP; Lee Grills, MP, and Pete Donacher, a former McFarland, and Billy Reay, ex-business manager of the Macs.

In extending his welcome to some 15 former McFarlands, the Picton mayor held high the Abearne Trophy, symbolic of world amateur hockey supremacy which became the property of the Macs after their 1950 triumph.

He paid outstanding tribute to the members present, "the finest bunch of boys that ever went overseas, I shall always be proud of them."

He also paid tribute to Bobby and Dennis Hull. "There is none prouder than I to have Bobby Hring in Prince Edward county." He also gave honorable mention to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hull senior.

Former McFarland's coach Ike Hildebrand of London voiced the appreciation of the club of the efforts of Mayor McFarland, the press and radio and residents of the county and district.

Former Macs were introduced by Ike. These were Floyd Crawford, Gordie Bell, Ed Marineau, J. P. Lamirande, Minnie Menard, Wayne Brown, Don Barclay, Keith MacDonald, Joe Lepine, Lionel Bolley, Noel Keegan, Davy Jones and Art Charlton.

Tribute was also paid to the Junior "B" Quinte Macs who received a standing ovation with club officials Lockyer, Matthews and Mavety. Lockyer introduced the head table guests as co-chairman of the dinner.

Presentations followed. Bobby Hull presented his own trophy to Ron Riley as the teams most valuable player. Riley also received a trophy as the leading scorer.

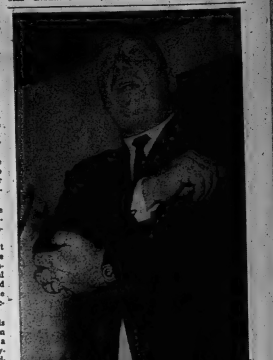
Chris Lockyer gave Ernie Sharpe the Rick Locke Memorial Trophy for the "cleanest player on the team".

A special presentation that came as a surprise to the recipient was an album containing signatures of special dinner guest, the team and photographs taken at the dinner given to Mayor MacFarland.

Warden Boyce said that his native village of Wellington was helping co-operate in a move to promote a county-wise sports program. He lauded Mayor McFarland and what he has done for the county and said that Belleville was not alone in being proud of what the world champion McFarlands did for the district. "Sport" he said "is a great character builder."

Brief addresses were given by Milt Dunnell, Bob Wilson, Bobby Hull and Carmen Basilio.



"Red" Storey is summing up said: "If every county in the world put its money in sport people would forget wars and learn to get along together."

A. A. Thompson of Tweed was the holder of the lucky ticket that won the Hereford calf donated by Bobby Hull.

From All of Us-With Love

Mayor McFarland admires the special photograph-signature album presented him at the Celebrities Dinner last night. Chris Lockyer (right) an official of the Quinte Macs junior "B" squad, made the presentation. In case you don't know, that's Bobby Hull looking on.

Hey, Who Said Corbys!

The master raconteur "Red" Storey pushes over a punch-line at the Celebrities Dinner. "Red" wowed his audience with his clever wit, humor and across-the-table personality. He had 'em in stitches.

Fiori Goegan Named Coach Of Lombanks

The Belleville Lombanks have come up with a coach and a full executive body.

Fiori Goegan, well-known for the past eight years on the Belleville sports scene, agreed to coach the club this morning.

"We are very happy to have Fiori as coach and feel his experience in sport will be a valuable asset to the club", "Moe" Hunter said in making the announcement.

Hunter also said that Jack Carson, Belleville's "Mr. Baseball" and a past president of both the O.B.A. and the E.O.B.A., has joined the executive.

Carson is the club vice-president and Wally Moffat has been moved up to the president's position. Tom "Red" Mavety is the team treasurer and Jack Devine the secretary.

Lombanks are working out daily and have a practice scheduled for Sunday afternoon, at the Fairgrounds, at 3.00 o'clock.

The seven-team schedule opens May 20 with Belleville's first game slated for May 22.

Softball Loop Organized Says Report

The Quinte-Kingston Amateur Softball Association will play a total of 30 games in its schedule this season, according to a story appearing Friday in the Kingston Whig-Standard.

Five clubs are in the grouping, three from Kingston being Lakes Bus Line, Prince George Indians and Lafontaine Clippers. Picton Kinsmen and Belleville's Ellis Sealers are the other entries.

Plans apparently call for the schedule to open in Kingston on May 24 and end on July 31.

The Kingston story says 30 of the 30 games will be played in Kingston's Megaflin Stadium on Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays at 8.15. It says Belleville and Picton will play each other five times and that each Kingston club will make five out-of-town trips.

In past years Picton home games have been played on Wednesday night. The Alemite Park in Belleville is booked by Ellis each Thursday.

No word on the league has been made available to the press or radio in Belleville.

Outdoor Tips And Tricks

BY BOB BLAND

Well we seem to be having all our April showers in May again this year, the rain curtailing what should be our good fishing period.

The pickerel (walleye) and pike season opened all over the country last night at midnight and the weather was and still is cold.

Moira Lake, Stoco and Crowe were loaded with early morning fishermen as was the Trent water system all the way from Nic 1 Dam at Trenton to Georgian Bay. Almost every dam on this great waterways was loaded with eager fishermen mostly from Toronto and the U.S.A.

For this type of dam fishing live bait such as minnows and worms seem to work best but with jigs and rapala-like lures ranking a close second.

At Moira Lake good fishing can be had from the railroad trestle dividing the lake. A black or yellow jig produced best results here.

At Stoco and Crowe lakes the fish seem to prefer live minnows or worms.

All this week although we have had poor weather, the pickerel and pike have been hitting at West Lake, right off the government dock in the village of Wellington. Best lures here were minnows and rebel or rapala.

The best time to fish here is in the evening from dusk to 1 a.m.

The Outlet from East Lake to Lake Ontario is another hot spot for evening fishing and again live minnows or rapala like lures are taking the most fish.

Quite a number of local fishermen are trecking down to Beaver Lake north of Napanee which is another good walleye lake early in the year.

How would you like to catch some good sized pike? Carrying Place, near the Murray Canal, on the east end, is the place, large minnows the bait.

The Salmon River is producing some fish and the mouth of Mud Creek on the Reserve is giving up some fair pike. The pike are taking red and white spoone at this location.

George Brown and Mike Cowan experienced a real cold weekend last week at Lavielle Lake in Algonquin Park, but they did catch some very nice fish.

Cache and Smoke lakes gave up some good specimens to Ken Kingston and gang last weekend.

If you are going fishing this weekend and have not been out this year it would be a good idea to put a new line on your reel. Last year's line might lose you a record fish.

Profit Takers Stop Drive For Upswing on Market

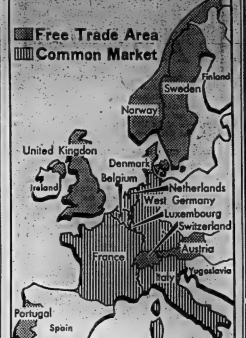
By LARRY DWORKIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Profit-takers dashed hopes for a sustained drive on Canada's major stock exchanges this week. Prospects for an immediate breakout look dim.

Although the Toronto and Montreal exchanges have advanced about 15 per cent since the beginning of the year, most of it was due to a strong New York market.

One analyst said he was disappointed that the Toronto market was not able to overcome the profit-taking in light of last week's decline.

The Toronto industrial index, key indicator of the market's performance, managed only a gain of .07 to 187.19. At Montreal, it fell 2.22 to 163.55.



Observers say it appears markets will have to mark time unless there is general improvement in corporate profits—one of the key barometers determining stock trends.

First-quarter earnings for a number of major firms were down from the similar period last year, indicating that last year's trend to lower profits may continue.

However, some analysts said they expect the profit picture to improve and that the markets will strengthen.

Trading activity at Toronto was again dismal as only 13,445,000 shares changed hands compared with 13,016,800 last week.

Brokers attributed most of the decline to increased Canadian investor participation at New York as well as a toughening-up of the exchange's regulations on speculative issues.

European Trade

The United Kingdom is currently involved in its second bid to enter the European Common Market. Its first attempt, in 1961, was vetoed by France but the prospects for entry seem brighter now. The United Kingdom is now a member of the seven-nation European Free Trade Association which was formed in 1959 to promote economic expansion and trade among member countries. The European Economic Community, or Common Market, was formed in 1957 and provided for economic integration of its six member countries. This includes elimination of customs duties and quotas, establishment of a common customs tariff and commercial policy towards outside countries, and free movement of people within the areas.

Philadelphia Band Steals Expo Show

MONTREAL (CP) — Philadelphia's colorful marching musicmen's string band almost stole the show from Expo Friday when they paraded around the fair grounds making music as they went.

Dressed in pink - and - blue ostrich feather headdresses complimented by brilliant sequined clothes costumes, the band soon had visitors pouring out of the pavilions to watch and film the spectacle.

Hundreds of camera-wielding spectators pushed and shoved professional photographers out of the way. The crowd followed the 25 men led by Capt. Dave Anderson from pavilion to pavilion until they finally came to rest in front of the United States pavilion dome.

There the captain broke into a spontaneous dance with Miss Liberty Belle while the band played There's no Business Like Show Business, and youngsters thronged around begging for autographs.

It began in a less - packed bandshell on St. Helen's Island where almost 100 Philadelphians had gathered to celebrate Philadelphia Day at Expo.

'We Are in Very Good Shape' Says Expo General Manager

MONTREAL (CP)—After 18 days of Expo 67, officials of Canada's world's fair looked back on their operation today and found it more successful than anyone had expected.

Friday night the fair's executive general manager, Andrew G. Kniewasser, general manager, told them: "We are in very good shape." "It's clear to everyone that we have a greater success on our hands than even the most courageous of us thought," he said.

The success was a total of more than 3,500,000 visitors since the gates opened to the public April 28. So far 1,000,000 more have come to the fair than had been predicted.

Now fair officials are ready to scrap the original estimate of 25,000,000 visits to the fair during its six-month term and are shooting for 60,000,000.

But Expo's success has brought its own problems.

Philippe de Gaspe Beaubien, director of operations of the $650,000,000 Expo city spread over 1,000 acres, said one of the fair's main problems is feeding its visitors.

With the capacity to feed 275,000 a day, Expo hopes to enlarge its facilities to feed more than 300,000.

What we have in mind is a large family restaurant, with meal prices under $2 and seat for 1,000 on St. Helen's Island," Mr. Beaubien said.

Bob Newhart Gets Bookings In Special Variety Shows

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—During the recent Johnny Carson crisis, the name Bob Newhart was bandied about as the prime candidate to head the Tonight show if Carson didn't return.

Says Newhart: "The New York Times offered me the show, the Los Angeles Times offered me the show, and Time magazine offered me the show. The only trouble was the NBC didn't offer me the show."

What's more he doubts if he would have taken it. A Californian and ardent golfer, Newhart didn't fancy moving his young family to New York, nor did he like facing the 90-minute live show, five nights a week, as a steady diet.

He was spared the decision when Carson responded to the network's offer of more cash. Newhart received an NBC deal more to his liking.

It includes spelling Carson for six weeks on the Tonight show, plus guest bookings with Dean Martin, Andy Williams, Bob Hope, Danny Thomas and other variety show hosts.

"The major item of the contract calls for NBC to prepare my own series for the season after the next one," said the former Chicago accountant. "It would be either a variety format or a situation comedy. I think I would favor a variety show."

Newhart added that he didn't think he could stand playing the same character week after week, as a situation show would require of him. Indeed, his success has been based on his ability to assume a variety of guises, from a public relations man advising Abe Lincoln on his image to a felonious employee returning from a big corporation.

His comedy sketches now number 35, and he tries to add think he could stand playing the five new ones each year.

Centennial Project

Skilled Amateur Artist Completes 100 Portraits of Canadian Personalities

How's your appreciation of time values? Good?

If so, you'll appreciate the story of Jeanne Gordon and her personal Centennial project.

As a skilled, amateur artist, her project involved 100 portraits of Canadian personalities.

The mosaic, in charcoal, was given four months for completion by Mrs. Gordon.

Shortly after she began she was hospitalized. She recovered, had nine weeks to regained, worked feverishly, completed the scheme and the next night was back under medical care — with a broken hand.

Mrs. Gordon has made a host of contacts through her artistic endeavors, but — momentarily at least — is not well-known outside her own neighborhood.

There, she definitely is noted because of her artistic promotes.

A native of Regina, she came from Ottawa to Belleville five years ago where she now lives with her daughter, Mrs. June Holland at 40 Glen Road.

All her life she's been interested in — and personally practised — painting and portraiture in various media.

Her gift, self - polished through self-reading, at the moment is centred in a mosaic of Canadian personalities drawn in charcoal, each one epitomizing a part of the passing national scene since Confederation.

For Mrs. Gordon, it represents a blending of patriotic awareness with personal satisfaction in having created something indelible to mark the nation's big birthday.

Her inspiration was stimulated by a radio report December 1, which recounted an ambitious project relating to 100 artists to each paint a national scene — the total sum of effort corresponding to 100 years of Confederation.

Mrs. Gordon, then and there, apparently decided to out-ambition the organizers of the project — in her own personal way.

She explains it this way: "It struck me if 100 artists can do that, so many landscapes and such, I'm only one so I could do 100 portraits."

With charcoal and colorpencil 'working'overtime, she set to work, imposing on herself a deadline of April 28 — the opening of Expo.

Then came the first setback. She was hospitalized January 2 — with only 20 portraits completed.

"I came out of hospital February 20 and I didn't know if I could possibly complete it," she recalls.

However, she set to work — still paced by that self-set April deadline — and toiled her prefect to a successful conclusion.

Most startling of all was the rapidity with which it was completed, — from the first to the last.

"I set myself a date of April 28 when Expo opened and I finished March 22," says Mrs. Gordon.

However, even being seven weeks ahead of schedule proved not a moment too soon.

The night after the big montage was complete she walked across her den to pick a pillow from the floor, tripped, and — in attempting to lighten her fall — broke her right hand!

While a setback, the accident apparently served to emphasize her accomplishment of beating the deadline on her personal Centennial project.

Or — and this is one of the things we have learned to guard against — the disease may be controlled yet not totally cured.

No germs are found in the sputum. The patient is in no danger of giving the disease to anyone else. Yet some of the germs may still lie dormant, encased in the scar tissue which has formed in the lung because of the disease.

That is why a patient, even though discharged from a hospital, is instructed to report back periodically for several years, to make sure that the tuberculosis does not become active again.

Therefore in some cases the scarred part of the lung is removed surgically, thus reducing the risk of a relapse — of some trapped germs getting up a new infection.

The basis for deciding when surgery should be employed is too technical to go into here. Enough here these must be left so as to provide sufficient breathing area, or "vital capacity."

It is, of course, delicate surgery, but in the last several decades the principles and and techniques have been developed to a point at which it is undertaken with confidence.

Your friend will require time to recover from the surgery, as he would from any major operation, but unless the surgery is required for some reason other than appears on the face of your letter, this should assure him of better health.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: I had rheumatic fever when I was eight and flat on my back three months, but there was no heart damage. I was treated with penicillin and am now allergic to it.

I am now 22 and have leg pains just like I had before. Can I have rheumatic fever again? — Mrs. G. B.

Yes, you can have it again. Rheumatic fever is no respecter of persons. Once you've had your doctor check you even before you see this reply.

The leg pains may be due to something else, but when you know that you are subject to this disease, take no chances. (Antibiotics other than penicillin can be used effectively for it.)

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there anything harmful in sunflower seeds? My sons eat a great amount of them. A person told me recently that they were harmful. — Mrs. V. W.

No harm of any kind of which I am aware, except that the husks might be a bit harsh on the digestive tract. They are available in powdered form.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: I have had diabetes 21 years. Recently I had a heart attack and was put on a low-salt diet in addition to following my diabetes diet. Is it difficult when all the canned vegetables have "salt added." — J. B.

You can obtain canned goods which do not have salt added at most grocery stores, and an inquiry or two should solve your problem quickly.

100 Centennial Faces!

Mrs. Jeanne Gordon checks out mosaic of famous Canadians for any needed finishing touches. Her personal Centennial project — 100 drawings — was finished in record time.

Girl Who Fled Hospital May Die if Not Treated

VANCOUVER (CP)—A cross-Canada police alert has followed disclosure that Miriam Myrtydemi, missing since fleeing hospital last Tuesday, may die within a month without treatment.

The 15 - year - old Jehovah's Witness fled hospital because she did not want another blood transfusion in treatment for a kidney ailment, treatment that doctors believe would lead to her living a normal life.

The British Columbia Children's Aid Society, which in a court action Friday won the right to retain custody of the girl, her spiritual adviser and her lawyer believes she is in hiding with her mother, Dorothy Lois Myrtydemi of Penticton.

Dr. John Price, one of 14 specialists consulting on the case, said Friday night Miriam would have two to four weeks to live if she did not get hospital treatment for the illness known as uremia.

Montreal Financier Fails to Oust Coyne as President of Western Bank

WINNIPEG (CP)—The clash of East and West in the fledgling Bank of Western Canada reached its fiercest confrontation to date Friday, and it remained uncertain whether the institution will ever open for business.

Montreal financier Marc Bienvenu brought the crisis to a head at a directors' meeting by trying to get rid of the bank's outspoken president, James E. Coyne.

He failed on a tie vote of the 14 directors present, Mr. Coyne voting in favor of himself. Four directors from Western Canada were absent. John L. Bodie of Edmonton, laughingly describing himself as a "renegade westerner," voted with Mr. Bienvenu.

Mr. Coyne, who launched the bank into continued public controversy three months ago with a violent denunciation of its major eastern shareholder, told reporters he and his group are ready to continue but the future rests in the hands of Mr. Bienvenu.

At one stage of the meeting, Mr. Coyne said, Mr. Bienvenu had stated his only alternative was to wind up the bank.

Mr. Bienvenu said he had told the directors: "I am not going to come back here for meetings every week . . . and have clashes all the time."

Mr. Bienvenu controls 50.2 per cent of the bank's approximately $12,000,000 capitalization through shares held by British International Finance (Canada) Ltd., formerly headed by Sinclair Stevens of Toronto but controlled by Bienvenu interests since March.

The bank president said among possibilities open to Mr. Bienvenu were calling a shareholders' meeting to change representation on the board, reducing its capitalization or winding up its affairs.

Asked about the possibility that Mr. Bienvenu would dispose of shares to Western Canadians, Mr. Coyne said some directors felt purchases could be arranged if a firm sale offer were made but the matter was not raised at the meeting.

Mr. Stevens, who resigned as chairman of the board Feb. 17 but remains a director, told reporters "there will be a Bank of Western Canada if Mr. Coyne drops his Messiah role."

Mr. Stevens headed the BIF group at the time Mr. Coyne, a former president of the Bank of Canada who resigned after a policy battle with the Diefenbaker government, issued a public statement of lack of confidence in BIF and its associated Wellington Financial Corp Ltd.

In presenting his motion Friday to have Mr. Coyne sever all connections with the bank, Mr. Bienvenu said Mr. Stevens also would resign his directorship if the motion passed.

"The two people who had been carrying on the controversy thus would have been eliminated and it would have been possible to go ahead with the bank on the lines for which it was created to operate—in and for Western Canada."

Mr. Stevens questioned the right of Mr. Coyne to cast a personal vote on a motion affecting his tenure, but the president's right was upheld in an opinion by the bank's solicitor.

The motion was the last of three presented by the Bienvenu group. Mr. Coyne told reporters.

A move to elect Mr. Bienvenu to the still-vacant chairman's post lost on the same tie, 7 to 7.

OMA Endorses Sterilization For Males if They Request It

TORONTO (CP) — A resolution endorsing voluntary sterilization of males was passed Friday on the final day of the Ontario Medical Association's annual convention.

Dr. Iain Todd of Toronto, chairman of the OMA's urology section, said his colleagues felt sterilization was justified on the basis of an already large family or illness of the wife.

The simplest sterilization operation, called a bilateral vasectomy, costs $50 to $100, can be done in a doctor's office, and has a 24-hour convalescent period.

Dr. R. J. Shepard of the department of physiological hygiene at the University of Toronto told delegates six out of every 10 Canadians are physically unfit and are going to the dogs faster than people in underdeveloped countries.

He said a physically-fit person should be able to perform a daily work effectively, easily survive physical emergencies and have adequate energy to enjoy leisure.

A Montreal psychiatrist told the association that mental illness is not an inevitable part of aging.

Dr. Manuel Sreker said he has found elderly patients respond to psychiatric treatment as well or sometimes better than younger patients.

Dr. Irving S. Wright, president of the American College of Physicians, said discrimination against employees because of age must stop.

Dr. Wright said it was predicted at a recent international congress of gerontology (the study of aging) at Vienna that, within 20 to 30 years, a life span of 100 will not be unusual and people of 65 will be considered "younger employees."

Diefenbaker Moves To Censure Gordon

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker moved a motion in the Commons today in effect censuring Privy Council President Walter Gordon for damaging international confidence, encouraging the Communists in Vietnam and stirring up trouble between Canada and the United States.

The motion to adjourn the House to discuss the subject was made on the basis of Mr. Gordon's speech Saturday criticizing U.S. policy in Vietnam and calling for withdrawal of Canadian support.

The speech, Mr. Diefenbaker said, created a crisis in international affairs "of greatest national and international significance," because it reveals a deep enmity towards the U.S.

The Opposition leader also criticized Mr. Gordon for making the speech outside Parliament while the House is sitting, thus creating a travesty of the principle that ministers' policy statements should be made in the Commons.

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux said the point at issue was whether the subject was sufficiently urgent to set aside the regular business of the Commons scheduled for today—the fourth day of general debate on the speech from the throne which concluded, the government's program at the opening of the new session last week.

Mr. Diefenbaker said it was of the utmost importance to hear the views of Prime Minister Pearson or External Affairs Minister Martin — "whichever one is directing the foreign affairs of this country."

"The exparied brushoffs we have been receiving" would no longer suffice.

"I take it that what he (Mr. Gordon) enunciated was government policy," the Conservative leader said.

The wording of Mr. Gordon's speech indicated that it was written elsewhere, "by those close to the external affairs department." It obviously was inspired by the government to create a smokescreen around Canadian policy on Vietnam.

Neither Mr. Pearson nor Mr. Martin was in the House when Mr. Diefenbaker presented his motion. Mr. Gordon was in his front row seat and smiled when the Opposition leader began his attack.

Mr. Lamoureux indicated after Mr. Diefenbaker spoke that he intended to rule against the motion.

T. C. Douglas, New Democrat leader, said that while the NDP opposed the terms of the Diefenbaker motion it thought there should be a debate.

Mr. Diefenbaker, reading excerpts from the Gordon speech,

Tariff Bargainers Are Still Deadlocked

GENEVA (CP) — Amid alternating periods of hope and gloom, key negotiators in the world's most crucial tariff bargaining continued today to search for compromises to ward off the possibility of collapse of four years of exhaustive effort to trim restrictions affecting billions of dollars in trade and millions of jobs.

Canadian officials said the big struggle has narrowed to a straight fight between the United States and the European Common Market with most other world trading countries sitting on the sidelines praying for a final compromise.

The big four of the Kennedy round — the U.S., the Common Market, Britain and Japan — made a brief attempt at a four-way settlement party today following an all-night session that failed to overcome transatlantic difficulties. They came out of the conference grim-faced without responding to reporters' questions.

Canadian and other negotiators were waiting for a call to another wider round of talks under the chairmanship of Eric Wyndham White, the secretary-general of the world tariff today, but the expected noon call did not arrive. Wyndham White's office said a time for such a meeting could not as yet be fixed.

Canadian Agriculture Minister J. J. Green, standing by for a decision, commented in an interview that the new wheat pact, hammered out by the Kennedy round negotiators, could fail to the ground if the overall tariff bargaining collapsed.

He was still hopeful, but made clear that if no agreement could be reached here, efforts would be made elsewhere to put a new higher-priced wheat pact into operation.

The wheat agreement worked out here and awaiting final approval is tied to an international grain pool, financed by industrialized countries to supply needy nations from available commercial stocks. Some of the agree participants had been enticed by other tariff concessions.

But Japan still held out as a donor participant despite reported high-level direct consultations between Washington and Tokyo.

Meanwhile, Common Market negotiators complained to reporters that Canada, which has a free-trade agreement with the U.S. on automobiles and also provides preferences to Commonwealth countries, is not providing sufficient concessions to Europe. A Common Market spokesman said the U.S. is making too many demands for access to Europe.

The negotiators had pledged themselves to a midnight Sunday night deadline but early afternoon today there still seemed to be a great abyss to be crossed before final agreement could be reached.

Hong Kong Under Red Pressure

HONG KONG (AP) — China put pressure on Britain today to meet tough Communist demands in Hong Kong, and Communist newspapers in the British colony urged Chinese residents to renew anti-British fighting.

But Hong Kong was generally quiet.

The Communist campaign against Hong Kong unfolded auxiliary to that in the neighboring colony of Macao. After anti - Portuguese rioting by blood and violence patrols by Chinese gangsters, the colonial administration capitulated to demands for admissions of guilt and compensation to victims.

Red Guards Raid Foreign Ministry

PEKING (Reuters) — Several hundred Red Guards broke into the Chinese foreign ministry during the weekend, stole confidential documents and beat up officials and soldiers guarding the building, wall posters reported today.

The posters said the intruders broke doors and windows in the ministry and copied details in notebooks from confidential documents. One of them shouted: "What's so terrific about secrets anyway?"

The violent episode of weekend fighting around the ministry compound said the raiders were armed with knives and metal instruments.

A number of persons were injured and 10 were taken to hospital.

Some foreign residents here saw fighting last Saturday, apparently among foreign ministry officials, Red Guards and others from groups pursuing a campaign of criticism against Foreign Minister Chen Yi.

The posters today said Red Guards of the Peking Foreign Language Institute broke into ministry offices during the early hours of Saturday.

The posters signed by cultural revolutionary committees within the foreign ministry described the Red Guards who broke in as "crushed enemies."

They came from a group known as the Red Flag Unit.

The posters suggested that the reason for the violence was that they had not been named among 10 Red Guard groups authorized by Premier Chou En-lai to carry out a campaign against Chen Yi.

Hees Demands Gordon Resign Over Vietnam

GRAND FALLS, Nfld. (CP)— George Hees, one of five declared contenders for the national Conservative party leadership, said Saturday Walter Gordon, Liberal minister without portfolio, should resign from the cabinet or change his views on Vietnam policy.

Mr. Hees, here for a provincial Conservative leadership meeting, pronounced newspaper report of a statement by Mr. Gordon which, he said, was in conflict with "what we understood to be the position of the government."

Mr. Gordon said in Toronto Saturday that the "bloody war" is not justified on "either moral or strategic grounds and may lead to the use of nuclear weapons. The Privy Council president also said he was speaking only as "an ordinary citizen."

In an interview, Mr. Hees said a minister in such a position is duty-bound to change his views or resign, Mr. Gordon came in for repeated criticism by Mr. Hees during his speech to a centennial banquet Saturday night which wound up the convention.

"Let's stop Walter Gordon telling us we don't need foreign capital. . . . It's fine for him to talk. It's a lot different when you are an unemployed miner on Bell Island."

Mr. Hees was referring to an economically dying mining town in Newfoundland.

Mr. Hees said Canadians must "dig deeper into our own pockets and put our cash on the line" instead of investing so much in banks and government bonds, if they are to finance more of their own growth.

China Would Block 'Sellout Peace'--Chou

The following story is the result of an interview in Peking with China's Premier Chou En-lai, by Simon Malley, 41, United Nations correspondent for the French-language magazine Jeune Afrique, and some African newspapers.

The material from Malley's exclusive talks with Chou and other Chinese leaders is made available by the Chicago Daily News and Publishers Newspaper Syndicate, a sister company, which held a copyright on it.

CHICAGO (AP) — Premier Chou En-lai and four other top Chinese Communist leaders have told a western newspaper man that China will send its vast armies into Vietnam if Hanoi is threatened with invasion or a "sellout peace."

China is "ready—tomorrow if need be"—to send an avalanche of volunteers into North Vietnam if Hanoi should request assistance, Chou said.

Malley writes that the premier, who looked fit and healthy despite his 71 years, said that China would have to reconsider its present policy if U.S. troops ever should land in North Vietnam.

"Americans won't be allowed to approach our borders," he stressed. "Our security would be at stake."

In addition to these conditions Malley writes, there is one other contingency under which China would enter the war—a "sellout" peace.

In this regard, Malley writes, Chou acutely lumped the Soviet Union with the United States as China's enemies.

Chou said that despite Soviet aid to North Vietnam, Russia believes it is to her own interest to conclude the war through a compromise that would be "tantamount to defeat" for the North Vietnamese.

'Made in Japan' Label Painted on Canadian Warship

NANAIMO, B.C. (CP) — The escort destroyer HMCS Saskatchewan had her battleship grey hull emblemened with the slogan "made in Japan" during a visit to this Vancouver Island port during the weekend.

Naval officials believe someone in a yacht drifted to the seaward side of the vessel Saturday night and painted the words in large yellow lettering.

NDP Asks $1.75 Wage Minimum

SUDBURY (CP)—A minimum wage of $1.75 an hour, an increase in paid vacation to three weeks a year and a reduction of the work-week to 40 hours from 48 has been called for by the Ontario New Democratic Party.

The proposals were made in a 22-page summary of the party's election platform released at a press conference Sunday night by party Secretary John Harney.

Four-point consumers' bill of rights included in the platform called for:

—A consumers' bureau with ample power to check product quality, advertising claims and packaging and sales gimmicks.

—A prices review board to investigate outstanding price increases and a rent review board requiring landlords to justify rent increases.

—A business code requiring manufacturers to post the true price of goods and reveal actual interest rates of all transactions.

—A separate department to stimulate the development of consumer and producer cooperatives in Ontario.

Marine Losses Rise

SAIGON (AP)—Heavy ground fighting and severe Communist barrages continued to cause sharply increasing American casualties as a new battle appeared to be building up between the U.S. marines and North Vietnamese regulars just south of the demilitarized zone.

The marines reported 12 dead and 82 wounded in attacks Sunday, and that did not include casualty reports from one of the day's sharpest battles with the North Vietnamese.

In the air, the U.S. command announced the loss of three planes Sunday — matching the number of Soviet-built MiG jets downed by American airmen in dogfights over the North.

Salinger Sure LBJ To Retire

WASHINGTON (AP)—Pierre Salinger, former White House press secretary, has told friends he has left $1,000 that President Johnson will not seek re-election next year, the Washington Post reports.

The newspaper adds that Salinger is so convinced of Johnson's plans to retire that he is talking of doubling that bet.

The Post also says Salinger is predicting the 1968 Republican presidential ticket will be New York Governor Nelson Rockefeller and California Governor Ronald Reagan.

Local Witnesses Protest Persecutions in Portugal

Thor Jensen, presiding minister of the Belleville Congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses, reported today that a combined attendance of 104 members assembled for the weekly Bible study school session at the Kingdom Hall last Thursday and Friday evenings unanimously approved a public protest of the persecution of Jehovah's Witnesses in Portugal.

The expression of the congregation followed a report on recent developments in Portugal in an appeal of the Witnesses to the Supreme Court of that land. Issues told the local congregation that the Supreme Court of Portugal had, on February 23 this year, upheld the conviction of forty-nine Portuguese Witnesses arrested in June of 1965 for attending a Bible meeting. They make up the entire adult membership of the Fatjo congregation. Police invaded a private home there and broke up religious services.

"You will be shocked," he told the local group, "to hear that these Christians were charged by the Plenary Court of Lisbon with being guilty of 'a serious spiritual danger to the state.' " It was ridiculous, he added, for anyone to think of such innocent Christians as a security risk. He explained, "It is most interesting that the prosecution produced no witnesses to back up the charges and chose to allow guilt to at any time during the three-day trial. Hence it was unreasonable to find the accused guilty to uphold these convictions." He claimed that the Portuguese were significantly, had not reported the Court's decision to the public.

"Even more shocking," the congregation was told, "will be the steps being taken by authorities. Thirty-five of those convicted are women who will be given prison terms of two years. Two of the women are expectant mothers. Their babies will be born in prison."

Terms of from one and a half to five and a half months have also been imposed on those convicted. Ten were given suspended sentences and forty-one were fined from $47 to $170 and must pay court costs and damages.

The hope was expressed that public awareness of the treatment of a minority religious group in Portugal might yet bring relief to the Witnesses there.

"My grandfather died,
The day I became a man.
It was always said he tried,
And he seemed to understand.
He hadn't the privilege to write,
But he received the "Golden Rule",
And he knew wrong from right."
—GRANDSON

—Remembered by grandson Lawrence W. Wyman.

ALFORD — In loving memory of my dear husband William Alford who passed away May 15, 1945.
At night the stars look down,
On the grave where sleeps the one I loved so dear,
It broke my heart to lose him but
I know he is better off.
For part of me went with him the day God called him home.
Sweet memories are all I have left,
Just entered God's eternal home
Sadly missed by wife Annie.

GORDISH — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather George Edward Johnson, who passed away May 15th, 1950.
Those fond forgotten silent years,
A fervent wish our dad was here,
Memories are sweet and dear,
But he was ours and we loved him so.
Dear God take a message,
Tell him how much we miss him,
Give him all our love,
And tell him we shall meet someday.
—daughter-in-law Betty and grandchildren.

REDDICK — In loving memory of our dear husband Charles Reddick, who passed away May 15, 1961.
"Broken is the family circle,
And one dear face passed away,
Passed from the earthly darkness,
Into the realms of perfect day.
But we all must journey homeward,
Though we may not see the road,
But there is a hand to lead us home.
In the unknown world above."
—Always remembered by his loving wife Ethel and family.

SEMARK — In loving memory of our dear mother Ethel Semark, who passed away May 15th, 1960.

In tears we watched you sinking,
We watched you fade away,
Our hearts were almost broken,
But we could not say you nay.
Time passes and I am reminded,
Of a day my heart was crushed,
The day God called you home,
And we all gladly gave you over,
In the bosom of life, death claimed her prize.
In the prime of manhood days;
But I hope some day to meet you,
And to be with you always.
—Lovingly remembered by daughter Betty.

WRIGHT — In loving memory of a dear grandson David M. Wright who passed away May 15, 1965.
Time may heal the broken heart,
But it cannot fill the longing,
For the one we loved so dearly,
Who shall say the grief is lessened,
Or the heart less wrung,
Who knows how sore we've wound still open,
With the passing of the years.
—Sadly missed, lovingly remembered by grandma and family.

WRIGHT — In loving memory of a dear grandson David M. Wright who passed away May 15, 1965.
There is a home in heaven for you,
And time long since you went,

And how we miss you so.
For you were ours and we remember.
Though all the world forget.

Bus Riders Start Paying More in Fares

A lot of today the cash fare for a bus ride is 20 cents, or six tickets for $1.00 instead of the previous five tickets for $1.00.

Anyone having a few old tickets still left over can redeem them at their Front St. or the tickets may still be used for riding the buses by dropping another ticket into the pot.

Through the fare increase, the city transit commission hopes to recoup about $10,000, thus enabling the city bus operation to be self-supported with in $50,000 for the year. Increase wages and other costs made the fare increase necessary, transit officials said.

Diefenbaker Moves To Censure Gordon

said the Privy Council president's attitude on the U.S. involvement in Vietnam "brings hope to Communists in every part of the world."

The Gordon speech made a debate urgent because no minister could sit in the cabinet and make policy statements that were contrary to cabinet views.

Mr. Douglas said he welcomed the Gordon statement and thought there should be "some opportunity for the House to echo that call" for a frank discussion on the matter. He hoped MPs would endorse Mr. Gordon's position.

Trade Minister Sharp said he had discussed the speech today with Prime Minister Pearson, External Affairs Minister Martin and Mr. Gordon. He was authorized to tell the House that the government's position on Vietnam "remains unaltered." Mr. Gordon's opinion was strictly a personal one.

Mr. Pearson and Mr. Martin were absent from the House because of the state visit of President Novotny of Czechoslovakia and debate should not take place while they were unable to speak, Mr. Winters added.

Mr. Gordon, former finance minister who returned to the cabinet last January after 13 months on the political sidelines, is one of Mr. Pearson's closest political advisers. He also has been an outspoken critic of some government policies.

In his Toronto speech Saturday he said Canada should demand from President Johnson a categorical statement that the U.S. would not use ABC weapons — atomic, biological or chemical.

The Privy Council president said in Toronto that the "bloody war" is not justified on "either moral or strategic grounds" and may lead to the use of nuclear weapons.

If people think he is exaggerating, Mr. Gordon said, they should demand from President Johnson a categorical undertaking that the U.S. "will not use nuclear bombs or germs or life-destroying chemicals under any circumstances."

Mr. Gordon said he was speaking only as "an ordinary citizen," but members of the opposition in Parliament have long claimed that no minister can divorce himself in this way from membership in the government.

Mohawk Band Will Re-enact Their Landing 183 Years Ago

Next Sunday, May 21, members of the Tyendinaga Mohawk Band will re-enact their landing 183 years ago on the shores of the Bay of Quinte.

Weather permitting three canoes each carrying two Indians, will land about a mile west of Deseronto at approximately the site where the ancestors of the Mohawk band landed back in 1783 to continue life under the British Crown. Sunday's landing is scheduled for 9.30 a.m.

Band Chief Toljt R. Brant reports that following the landing, the annual church service commemorating the Mohawk landing will be held at Christ Church at 11.00.

The Queen Anne communion silver will be used at the service to be attended by officials of the Indian Affairs Branch, local government dignitaries and other visitors. Included among the visitors will be T. L. Bonsh, director of Indian Affairs for the Central Region and R. Dupore, director of Welfare for Indian Affairs in the Central Region.

CJBQ is broadcasting from six o'clock to six this evening.

Dave Sovereign is reporting the news from Montreal; Tom Hookings is doing "Why Not Call" and "Up With the Sun." Les Jourard does his regular program.

Phil Flagler is broadcasting his Farm program from the "Man the Provider" pavilion while Dave Charles will do his program from LaRonde, a youth spot, in Montreal.

Eager Beaver Removed To Greener Pastures

That two - year - old beaver which late last week was attempting to establish a dam and pond near the firehall on Station Street is still looking for a new home.

But Department of Lands and Forest officials are going to move him further north where he won't be liable to cause any trouble.

Saturday firemen caught the dam building beaver at the firehall and moved him to a private wood, where Forester George Woodhouse in Thurlow township Elmwood Drive.

The force of the impact jammed the door of the Yateman car keeping Mr. Yateman in the vehicle until the arrival of police and the ambulance.

Saturday evening he built a dam on the Woodhouse pond.

"But I don't want the pond flooding my land, and now he would cut all my trees," said Mr. Woodhouse.

Mr. Woodhouse said the beaver very likely came from the Moira River.

Apparently the family life of the beaver decreed that when a young beaver is two years old he is kicked out of the family house and has to fend for himself.

So he makes his way up a nearby creek and starts to build a dam for himself.

Unfortunately for this beaver he chose a site in the midst of a populated area so it was decided he would have to be moved.

Society in Ferment

Wherever one looks on the United States scene these days there is some kind of civil eruption — a grocery store holdup in Detroit or Cleveland . . . stores being looted in Buffalo . . . students shooping it up in Fort Lauderdale . . . innumerable marches, "they many die violently each year? Some 17,000).

In such a large country, with such a melting-pot of people and of racial fusions this sort of thing is inevitable. Yet it should not be forgotten that amid such disorder there is also harmony among the great mass of people, a degree of positiveness and energy being channelled into creative paths and manifesting itself in the arts and sciences. At work is the old axiom of survival of the fittest.

Where there is dissension it does of course tend to create an overall impression of a society that has lost its way, and that among its people are countless individuals who have no roots or guiding principles, no sense of direction or feeling of belonging.

The good and the bad are inextricably woven in the human drama. The pity is that those who fall in life, go under, often stay that way and must rely on social security to maintain the basic necessities of life.

Yet in any unemployment lineup there is talent and vigor and initiative that needs only to be tapped. It would take only one man of spirit to inspire all the others to go out and do something — almost any activity would serve to restore their confidence and usefulness, so long as it had the benefit of their fellow man in mind.

One thinks of the voluntary work that could be performed, of the community services that could use drivers, of elderly people who need a helping hand.

Better that people should direct their thoughts along lines like these than that they get into escapades like the recent riot in downtown Boston. Spy movie promoters had offered free admission to anyone wearing a trench coat. Incredibly, 10,000 turned up. Yes, people are gullible, and amid the emptiness of their lives they will grasp at any straw that will afford them "kicks."

The riot went on for three hours, ten persons were injured and 20 arrested. Yet amid such evidence of man's frailty there were elements of comedy. They were afforded by a wise and knowing police dog — a German Shepherd which, steely-eyed without being vicious, grabbed one man literally by his (trench)-coat tails, stopped him in his tracks and reasonably paved the way for his Negro handler to make an arrest. "Man's best friend," in this as in other situations, is often the one to save man from himself.

The Treadmill

Dr. D. K. Grant, director of Medical Services for Ontario Hydro, had some timely advice for the executives of our day when he addressed a meeting of engineers and their wives in Belleville recently.

Reminding his audience of the pressure of modern life, Dr. Grant said the modern executive "must bring himself to a halt and review his personal and business life if he is to lead a happy and fruitful existence."

He spoke of the need to strike a proper balance between a busy working life and the claims of the family.

The only problem is, how is it to be done? Today's executive is so "programmed" to the treadmill and to the responsibilities of his work that he has little time or energy left for anything else.

Yet as the saying goes, nobody is indispensable. At some point a man must stop and consider what are the real values of life. And if he can ease up a bit and devote more time to family and to relaxation then so much the better.

Gamesmanship

In tennis it is not really "cricket" to employ what English humorist Stephen Potter described as "gamesmanship."

Like the nerve-straining fussing and stalling Roger Taylor, Britain's top player, indulged in to throw Canada's Mike Belkin off his stride in the recent Davis Cup tie in Bournemouth.

Taylor won the match but it was a dour struggle. Canada led in all the other matches, but in all but one (Belkin's victory over Mike Sangster) the Britons snatched the final decisions.

This gamesmanship business brings to mind Montreal banker John Henderson's talk to local Rotarians on the international lawn bowling tournament in Australia last fall.

There the Canadian team, which finished 6th in the overall standings, earned a reputation for their employment of the "strike" tactic of knocking the jack off the rink to force another "end." The English team did not like this. However, it seems the Canadians earned some grudging admiration for their gall at least, and made the South Africans wonder if perhaps they should revise their coaching methods.

Naval Incidents

Soviet Union May Be Planning Tougher Line on Vietnam

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The two incidents involving United States and Soviet destroyers in the Sea of Japan could be a signal that Washington has been half-expecting — the expanded Vietnamese war has produced a much tougher Russian line toward the U.S.

The U.S. version of Wednesday's incident was that the Soviet vessel brushed the American "despite repeated warnings" to stand clear.

On the Thursday collision, the defence department said first that the two vessels "brushed together" then later amended its statement to say that the Soviet ship ran into the American.

US officials said privately that two incidents in two days could hardly be called accidental. They charge deliberate harassment of a U.S. anti-submarine force by Soviet destroyers.

There are several theories in evidence here.

One is that the Russians are upset that the U.S. ships are manoeuvring in the Sea of Japan in the general area of the Russian seaport of Vladivostok. The harassing tactics could be to dissuade the U.S. from any such future manoeuvres in the area.

Another is that the Russians are getting tough over the Vietnam war.

Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin left here April 13 for Moscow with the war quickening by land, sea and air. His return is awaited by American officials to test the validity of Soviet hints of a similar buildup in retaliatory pressure to be applied elsewhere.

One theory is that U.S. President Johnson is holding back on some decisions until the prospects are clearer. These decisions include whether to grant military requests for more manpower in South Vietnam and whether to take the long-suppressed step of bombing or mining the harbor at Haiphong, North Vietnam's major seaport.

Another is that Moscow's barks will continue to be much sharper than any bites it can mount effectively anywhere.

But these possibilities are seen:

More aid to North Vietnam, across China or through Haiphong by sea, with the possibility of injecting a big new element for such weapons as land-to-land missiles rather than the land-to-air anti-aircraft missiles now in the north.

Ending or slowing co-operative gestures on such subjects as curbing nuclear spread, a counter treaty with the U.S., a pending air agreement or talks on avoiding a costly new arms race involved in anti - missile missile systems.

Perhaps Berlin pressure could be renewed, or North Korean border thrusts or additional trouble brewed in the turbulent Middle East.

However, playing fast and loose with some of those major topics might be as damaging or more so to the Soviet Union than to the U.S., it is held here.

Nor can the Soviet Union count on the unanimity of the Communist bloc as it once did— not certainly from China and not from its European allies.

But few expect it to continue to talk as softly as it has to the U.S. on assorted subjects since the U.S. has sharply raised the military pressure on North Vietnam. There's a certain amount of pride and status involved, for one thing.

As Joseph C. Harsch of the Christian Science Monitor notes, the Soviet Union has not had many recent major tactical victories to show — certainly not since it backed off in the 1962 Cuban missile crisis.

For major powers, as testified by the continuing U.S. sensitivity on Cuba, that sort of thing rankles.

Letter to the Editor

Truscott Case "Hysteria"

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Professor Keith Simpson, Britain's foremost pathologist has called the hysteria raised by the Le Bourdais book on the Steven Truscott case "a disgrace."

I couldn't agree more. When a government is intimidated and pressured into reviewing a case and the Supreme Court upholds the original decision by a majority vote only to find another national campaign launched to pressure them even further, we are fast approaching anarchy.

Should the latest protest marches, Truscott petitions and sittings cause a breakdown in Canada's judicial system, we could well find ourselves back under the law of the jungle or a dictatorship of the proletariat.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

May 15, 1967 — Gen. Philippe Petain was made commander - in - chief of the French army 50 years ago today—in 1917 —after Gen. Nivelle's attacks in the First World War in Artois and Champagne turned out disasters. There were mutinies in hundreds of French units which Petain gradually controlled, waiting for U.S. troops to reach Europe and enter the fight. In 1940, Petain was appointed premier of France and became chief of state of Vichy France, for which he was imprisoned from the Liberation until his death in 1951.

1535—Queen Elizabeth I was proclaimed "governor" of the Church of England.

1912—The present boundaries of Ontario, Quebec and Manitoba were proclaimed.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1917 — Austrian destroyers sank 18 British gunboats in the Adriatic; Gen. Petain replaced Gen. Nivelle as French commander - in - chief and Gen. Ferdinand Foch became chief of staff.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1942—the Japanese captured Tsingtuch, southern China; a U-boat sank a freighter near New Orleans; British destroyers sank two German gunboats in the English Channel and the RAF bombed German convoys.

It will be an all-time "first" for field lacrosse when star teams from Australia, England, U.S. and Canada compete in a world tournament in Ontario May 17-22.

CYC Volunteers

Alberta Mission Ends in Failure

Edmonton Journal

Late in January, a campaign was organized to run two young Company of Young Canadians volunteers out of the town of Faust, on Lesser Slave Lake.

Last month, to all intents and purposes, the campaign succeeded. By CYC decision, the two volunteers abandoned the project. One of them returned to Edmonton to draft a plan for "future projects" in Faust.

Faust is a community with perplexing problems, from economic stagnation to racial intolerance. Yet it is hardly the only such community in northern Alberta.

The Faust case is important because the Company of Young Canadians is important, and because the CYC failed in Faust. There are important lessons to be learned here, lessons that may prove useful in tackling similar problems in other small communities.

Not everyone in Faust resented the two volunteers. The pair had good relations with the town's Metis population, and with some whites, particularly the leaders of the Community League.

The CYC's critics resented the volunteers, first, because they were not clear why the volunteers were even there. Second, the purpose of the project, in concrete, understandable terms, was never adequately spelled out to the town's people.

One purpose was said to be assistance in providing better recreational facilities for the town's bored young people.

The townspeople expected the volunteers to assume active leadership in this; they were not properly informed that the CYC believes only in encouraging the growth of local leadership.

Some Faustians expected the volunteers to solve the community's problems. The volunteers were sent only to assist the local people in perceiving what their problems were, and to help them get help from appropriate government agencies.

The two volunteers were curiously dressed and groomed. This too, provoked resentment. And the volunteers failed to establish communication with their critics.

Most important, perhaps, the volunteers were poorly trained and ill-fitted for the role the Faust situation required. And they received too little support in the field from the Company's own field staff — until it was too late.

The fate of the Company is important: it is a bold experiment in providing a useful social role for discontented young Canadians. But the Faust project has shown its weaknesses.

If the Company is to survive, it will have to heal the black eye it suffered at Faust. And no amount of rationalization about the "strong community feeling the project engendered" will serve to obscure that fact.

Freedom Abused?

Expo Chief's Gloomy View of Press

Montreal La Devoir

Pierre Dupuy (commissioner-general of Expo 67 and former Canadian ambassador abroad) did not make any bones about it the other day. He said that, of all his years as a diplomat and in public life he had never seen a press as pessimistic as that of Canada. He even asked if in certain cases the so - called freedom of the press, which is being abused, should be sacrificed to the over-riding interests of the nation.

The judgment of the commissioner - general surprises us. We have travelled a fair amount. In all countries where there was a living democracy, we found a press that knew how to be skeptical, critical and even severe toward power in any shape or form. Compared with that of France, Britain or Italy, the press here, in general, appears to us to be more conciliatory, less aggressive toward those in power. . . .

The press here sometimes commits monumental blunders, but this must be attributed particularly to the carelessness or the incompetence of a few individuals. It is however, when everything is taken into account, the press with a clearly positive approach, at least as far as the daily newspapers are concerned.

As to the argument about national interest, it is very familiar to those in charge of newspapers. Every time they disturb people, it is the argument these people use to complain about the treatment they have been receiving. . . .

It is necessary to attribute to fatigue the excessive proposals by the generally moderate man which Mr. Dupuy basically is. We are forced to register our dissent, but this incident changes nothing in the admiration lavished in us by the work Mr. Dupuy has accomplished in the last three years.

Canada and the Common Market

Trois-Rivieres Le Nouvelliste

"Canada cannot count on maintaining forever the commercial advantages it now enjoys in its relations with Great Britain, if the United Kingdom decides to join the Common Market."

That is the sentiment in government circles in Ottawa, and they make no mystery of it since the British prime minister, Harold Wilson, after a meeting with the Queen and a rallying behind his policy by the cabinet, announced in the Commons that Britain intended to adhere to the Rome treaty and seek admission to the Common Market. It is unusual in Ottawa that it appears the Canadian products most likely to be affected are aluminum, pulp and paper and an important variety of agricultural products.

Her Son Is A Bum

Hamilton Spectator

Perhaps the answer to some of the problems besetting pampered youth today is in the news story from Spalding, England, which tells of widow Gladys Robinson going to court to get a writ to enable her to throw her 24-year-old son, Alec, out of the house.

Gladys told the court she was plain fed up with her son. She said he did not work, earned no money, stayed in bed as late as 3 p.m., and generally got up "only to look at television once in a while."

Even though Alec was put out by his mother's action, he got out. Maybe now he'll learn to be a man, especially when he realizes that he'll have to earn some money in order to buy a television set.

Economic Nationalism

Granby La Voix de l'Est

The president of the Royal Bank has strongly criticized the principle of economic nationalism under which we are supposed to protect Canada back from foreign investors.

Mr. Earle McLaughlin considers this idea as a "paltry sentiment which, if it could lead the country to frustration and irrational behavior."

Mr. McLaughlin defines in this way what is meant by "buy back Canada." The objective, he says, is not to exclude foreign investment, but simply to reduce them in cases involving the direct ownership of Canadian resources. Thus, while admitting that the Canadian economy needs foreign investments, some people would prefer that such investments be at a fixed rate of interest. In effect, these people would prefer that foreign capital be invested in bonds rather than in shares.

In such a case, says the bank president, it is not a question of buying Canada back, but of borrowing Canada back.

Mr. McLaughlin outlined a more practical solution to the problem raised by foreign investments. He suggests that the "necessary steps be taken to make sure that in adopting appropriate policies and by exerting pressure on foreign governments, it be made clear that while investments of this nature will always be welcomed there is a situation should never be allowed to them undertake to conduct in foreign company that subjected to the laws and regulations of the country where the company has its head office."

This appears to us to be an excellent solution. Furthermore it is the one the federal government has been seeking for some time. Its questionnaire to subsidiaries of foreign companies and its subsequent directives tend to make maintaining control from the countenselves as truly Canadian enterprises.

Graduates Not Interested

Employers Desperate--Students Have Anti-business Attitude

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says that although 25,000 students will graduate from Canadian universities and colleges this year, employers are desperate for more graduates.

The newspaper says business is having the toughest time because it has to fight an anti-business attitude by large numbers of students.

General arts students are not interested in business and the only samples inexpensive, is in this group, the paper says. Of Ontario's 7,500 graduates more than 4,000 are general arts students.

Murdo Mackenzie, personnel manager of Shell Canada Ltd., said there is an acute shortage of engineers and scientists.

Mr. Mackenzie said the problem with the three-year general arts student is his lack of career direction.

"Some of them go into teaching, which is not the best thing for our education system. They lack direction."

A recent survey by the Alumni Association of the School of Business at the University of Toronto found few graduates considering business careers.

Of those replying to a questionnaire, 43 per cent planned to enter one of the professions, 36 per cent to be teachers, four per cent planned to join the civil service, two per cent were going into journalism, production, accounting and marketing and one per cent into finance and sales.

Fewer than one per cent were going to personnel and 12 per cent to other fields.

A survey by the department of manpower shows that salaries for graduates vary from $612 for a pharmacist with a bachelor's degree down to nurses and journalists with an average monthly income of just over $400.

The survey says general arts students, if they have the motivation, face good opportunities.

"Expanding industry requires an increasing number of personnel in research and sales, as well as other types of positions."

Capital Investment Returns Dropped to Lowest Level

TORONTO (CP)—Capital investment returns from Canadian business fell in 1964 to the lowest level in at least eight years, says the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

The after-tax return that year was equal to six per cent of business capital stock, retained earnings and borrowed capital, compared with eight per cent in 1963.

This was the lowest return since the bank began in 1957 compiling its capital-at-work series, based on the most recent taxation statistics by the national revenue department.

The series also showed that profit on capital employed had not responded to the economic boom which began in 1961.

The average return on capital of 7.3 per cent in the years 1961 to 1964 was less than the 8.4 per cent average for the years 1957 to 1960, a decension period.

Compared with 1957, the profitability decline focused on manufacturing and construction. Mines and oilwells also suffered a downward trend in returns. Capital returns rose, however, in forestry, agriculture and in transportation and communication.

Czech President Welcomed Will Discuss Trade, Culture

OTTAWA (CP) — President Antonin Novotny of Czechoslovakia, whose industrialized Communist state is trying some capitalistic incentives to help production, began a five-day state visit to Canada Sunday.

He will talk trade, cultural affairs and technology in Ottawa and Quebec City and visit Expo 67, where the popular Czech pavilion is proving to be a $10,000,000 triumph.

Mr. Nwotny appeared to meet Sunday's official welcoming ceremony on Parliament Hill without much relish. Governor-General Michener and Prime Minister Pearson were less formal in their remarks and was a wry smile from their guest by praising Czech emigrants to Canada, including pro hockey star Stan Mikita.

But the Czech president and his wife both warmed to Canadian hospitality Sunday evening, when they were Mr. Michener's guests at a dinner where 40 guests were served Arctic char.

Today, Mrs. Novotny will visit an Ottawa shopping centre and housing development while her husband holds a press conference, and meets briefly with Trade Minister Winters and Export Minister Hellyer.

Mr. Nwotny appeared to meet Trade Minister Winters and External Affairs Minister Martin.

Both are guests of Mr. Martin at a luncheon before they leave by train for Expo.

At Sunday's ceremony, one of the honor guard of the red-coated guard of honor collapsed after standing rigidly for 45 minutes. He was unconscious through the playing of the Czech national anthem, then was revived by an RCMP sub-inspector.

Farmers Suggest Subsidy

WINNIPEG (CP)— Any new world wheat agreement which sets less than a 50-cent-a-bushel increase in price will require the Canadian government to improvise a subsidy program for western farmers, Ken Singleton said Sunday.

Mr. Singleton, Manitoba Farmers' Union president, said in an interview studies had shown Prairie wheat producers need "at least" a 50-cent increase and no longer can continue producing for the same returns received during the last 20 years.

He was commenting on a report from Geneva that tariff negotiators had pared an original 40-to 50-cent-a-bushel increase figure to 22 or 23 cents and that talks were moving to the final stages.

"If the western producer is not going to get a larger increase than has been indicated to this point . . . He's going to have to turn to other sources of income," Mr. Singleton said.

Iris Culture Discussed At Horticultural Meet

Iris culture is a satisfying and challenging pursuit, Murray Smith, president of the Toronto Regional group of the Canadian Iris Society, told members of Belleville Horticultural Society. He spoke at the Society's May meeting in the Sunday School auditorium of Tabernacle United Church. He was accompanied by Mrs. Smith and three members of the Toronto group.

Mr. Smith said iris are very accommodating as to soil, liking a heavy or light soil and growing well in sunny or shady spots. However, two or three hours of shade each day might be beneficial. The plants are particular about drainage and exposure to cold, stormy weather. Water lying on them for more than two days, especially in winter, causes serious trouble. Even in midsummer, soggy soil is a menace.

Beds in clay soil should be built high and newly planted iris should be protected with straw and hay in winter. The plants' are divided when dormant in July or August. Outside pieces are used and planted pointing in the same direction. Thinning out is beneficial at planting time and fertilizer strong in nitrogen and potash should be applied in the spring. The rhizome is placed on the surface of a clay soil and only an inch below the surface in sandy soil.

Mr. Smith recommended new varieties for their larger size, better colors and resilience in sun and wind. He showed slides of new varieties grown by iris lovers in Toronto.

R. C. Henderson thanked the speaker and greetings from the East York Horticultural Society was brought by a guest.

President R. Patterson announced the June meeting will feature a discussion of gardens at Expo.

Cheese Buns and Bread

By MARY MOORE

A friend whom I met 18 years ago through our mutual interest in cooking lived in Victoria near where I am visiting Marianne and Herbie. Margaret and George Dudley were coming for dinner and I wanted to make a lovely hot bread worthy of her. Whimsically I asked fastened on cheese buns. I ended, up with enough dough to make 18 medium buns and one loaf of cheese bread.

At her first taste Margaret gave her bun a vigorous nod of approval — without butter — so I knew they were good enough for my column friends.

CHEESE BUNS AND BREAD
(18 medium buns and 1 loaf)

1 pkge. granular yeast
¼ cup lukewarm water
1 tsp. sugar
1¼ cups scalded milk
1-3 cup sugar (second amount)
¼ cup shortening
2 tsps. salt
2 cups cheese whiz
1 egg
4½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 cup unsifted whole wheat flour

MONDAY

Broiled Liver with Mushroom Gravy on Noodles; Harvard Beets; Celery Hearts and Carrot Sticks; Lattice Raspberry Pie (using Fresh Frozen Berries); Coffee.

In large heater bowl soak the yeast with the lukewarm water and 1 tsp. sugar 10 min. Scald milk in saucepan, remove from heat and add the 1-3 cup sugar, shortening and salt and let cool to lukewarm. Add to risen yeast liquid, then add cheese whiz and egg and stir to mix well, then add 1 cup of the all-purpose flour and the whole wheat flour. Beat with beaters for 5 min. Remove beaters and add 2½ more cups of all-purpose flour (reserving last 1 cup for flouring board) and mix as well as you can. Turn out on board floured with ¼ cup flour, knead again 100 times and cut in half. Shape one half into long roll and cut into 18 even pieces. Have ready 18 regd. muffin pans in each of which you have ½ tsp. melted butter. Shape the 18 small pieces of dough into balls and place in melted butter in muffin pans, then turn each over to coat with melted butter and stand in warm place to rise until doubled and above rims of pans. Shape remaining half of dough into loaf shape and place in buttered medium loaf pan (8½x4½x2½") and let rise along with buns until doubled and well above rim of pan. Bake all at 350 deg. F.or — buns about 20 min., loaf about 30 to 35 min. Serve buns direct from oven to be at peak of perfection. Cool bread on rack. Clip and guard this recipe for it is a beauty.

Successful Living

Happily Married Reader Gives Reassurance For One Disappointed in Married Life

DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Please relate this letter to "Disappointed in Married Life". It sounds just like my life 18 years ago. I had a beautiful white wedding and was disappointed on my wedding night but couldn't understand my husband's reactions to me.

You are right, Doris; love grows sweeter and stronger over the years. One thing I did find out by my husband refusing to make love to me: He was afraid of too many children with no money to raise them decently.

This scares a lot of men as I held a job for 11 years to help him get his castle on the hill. I prayed for the wisdom of Solomon to understand him. We have a beautiful child today, also a beautiful home to bring him up in.

He really loves you, Disappointed, and I know he is like my husband, a deep dark stranger who refuses to commit himself to conversation over sex. Because he has been a Don Juno with other women he doesn't really care about, he puts you on a pedestal. Don't shatter it the way I did. Your love will work out.

I wouldn't trade my husband for all the tea in China. I hope my letter will give you hope; have patience, for he will change. — Married Fifteen Years.

Dear Fifteen Years: Everything comes to those who wait; especially if they do something besides wait, like take a step or two to understand who gives, when a partner seems unenthusiastic. This works both ways.

Dear Doris: My parents do not like my friends because they say we have been friends too long (just over a year). I am 15 and they are 17. Myself and four other girls are friends with six boys. We are all just friends, sort of like brothers. I guess, because we tell each other everything.

My mother says it is not a good set-up and that they are bad, but she doesn't know them. I try and tell her that they are all nice to us all the time and we don't do anything wrong, but you know how people wonder.

Also, they drink sometimes and so this is another bad point, I guess. I do not drink and even when they drink I tell them they are stupid as I really understand. I just don't know what to do. — Sandi

Dear Sandi: Not very sisterly of you to avoid introducing them to Mother! And if they drink, I'm definitely on her side.

Try branching out. Right now it appears you four are going steady with six. You know what I think about going steady.

To Wanta Him Very Much': He is too old for you. A man 20 is living on a different planet from a girl 15; no matter how mature she thinks she is. How does she know?

Better get into a more comfortable orbit with some of your own school pals.

Anonymous letters are bad manners and may be ignored. When writing in, give Doris your right name and address. It will be kept confidential.

Personal Matter to Sing At One's Own Wedding

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I know you are originally from Sioux City, Iowa. Will you please prevent another Sioux City girl from doing something which is utterly ridiculous! I do not know the young lady personally but I am enclosing a clipping from the Dubuque Telegraph-Herald.

The girl I am worried about is Miss Iowa. As you can see from the clipping, Miss Iowa plans to be married to a young man who is studying for the ministry. Now, the next part is what worries me. She said, and I quote: "Singing is my major talent. My fiance and I are going to sing 'Because' before the ceremony. I will sing 'The Wedding Prayer' during the ceremony and 'The Lord's Prayer' after we are pronounced man and wife — before we kiss."

Maybe Miss Iowa didn't read those letters in your column from the goofs who sang at their own weddings. I hate to see this lovely girl do something dumb. Please tell her not to. — A SISTER IOWAN.

DEAR SISTER IOWAN: The girl did not write to me, and I would not be so presumptuous as to tell her anything.

What I said about people singing at their own weddings still goes, but this is a matter of personal opinion. If Miss Iowa wants to call hogs at her wedding — and if she can get a clergyman who will allow it . . . it's perfectly all right with me.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: About the letter from Irving's wife . . . the woman who complained because her husband drops by his mother's house every morning on his way to work, and telephones her every night before he goes to sleep. Please tell her she should be thankful it is only his mother.

My husband has had another woman on the side for four years. I always used to get up and fix him a nice breakfast. When he started to see this woman he told me I should stay in bed and sleep. I suspected something was going on and I was right. He calls her every night from the downstairs phone after he thinks I have fallen asleep. The poor sap must believe I am deaf, dumb and blind.

I am not asking for advice. The mother of five children doesn't have any choice, but it might help women who are married to mama's boy to know that a mama's boy is rarely a chester. They have a lot to be thankful for. — SECOND BEST.

DEAR BEST: You are right . . . a mama's boy is rarely a chester, and while no one gets the opportunity to choose his particular brand of trouble, your letter might be a comfort to Irving's wife and to others who share her problem. Thanks for writing.

* * *

DEA RANN LANDERS: Recently someone wrote and asked why an eight-year-old boy who has everything a youngster could ask for would go into the purse of a woman visitor and steal $5. Now I'd like to ask another question. Why would a 37-year-old woman who is a respected member of the community, and a church worker at that, write dirty words on the walls of public restrooms with her lipstick?

I was shocked when I caught her doing this and I put the question to her. She replied "I do it for fun."

Will you please explain to me what kind of fun is this, Ann Landers? I am baffled. — R.A.P.

DEAR R.A.P.: Few things produce a better clue to a person's mental health than what they consider "fun." This woman is out of her tree.

THE PRICE OF MILK

On May 16th the price of milk to dairy farmers supplying the fluid market will increase by 35 cents per 100 pounds. This increase applies only to that portion of the milk supply that goes into the carton or bottle trade. Since 100 pounds of milk yields 38 quarts, this raw product price increase is about the equivalent of one cent per quart at the farm.

Dairy farmers are no different, of course, from other people in our society today. As businessmen they are faced with rising costs of production, and as citizens, with rising costs of living.

In view of this, the 35-cent or 6 percent increase in their returns for 100 pounds of their raw product is a modest one. It is the minimum required at this time to enable fluid producers to stay in business. It will certainly not cover the cost increases experienced by all fluid milk producers. Some examples of these cost increases in the past year are presented below.

As there is no government subsidy on fluid milk, the price consumers pay per quart has to cover not only farm costs of production and transportation to dairies, but the industry costs of labour, pasteurizing, packaging and distribution. Dairy processing firms, too, have been confronted with increasing costs.

Because of the many economies introduced by dairy farmers and processors one hour of work buys more milk now than it did in 1949. The average Ontario wage earner can buy 8.8 quarts today against 6.1 quarts in 1949 with one hour's wage. Thus milk still remains one of the homemaker's best food buys.

This advertisement has been sponsored by Ontario dairy farmers to acquaint you with the economic pressures that necessitate an increase in milk prices.

LABOUR COSTS HAVE GONE UP

The provincial average for farm labour cost has risen from $218 to $249 between January 1966 and January 1967. Up 12.4%. Labour costs on a dairy farm are far above average because of the amount of skill and time required.

FARM TAXES HAVE GONE UP

Municipal taxes including school costs are forcing land tax up at rates of 20 to 40% to farmers with some instances showing increases of over 50%.

Princess Alexandra Arrives at Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Princess Alexandra, stylishly dressed and thrilling children and adults by talking to members of the welcoming crowd, arrived by plane Sunday to start a 25-day royal tour of Canada.

A accompanied by her husband, financier Angus Ogilvy, the Queen's cousin was met at Toronto International Airport by federal Trade Minister Robert Winters and Lt.-Gov. Earl Rowe of Ontario.

Fulbright May Be in Trouble at Polls

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Senator J. W. Fulbright of Arkansas, challenger of presidents and foreign policy for 25 years, faces his toughest political challenge as a dove in a state regarded as hawkish on the Vietnam war.

Two of Fulbright's most prominent fellow Democrats in Arkansas—former governors Orval Faubus and Sid McMath—think the senator is in trouble with the voters because of his attacks on Johnson administration war policy and so will be vulnerable in next year's primary.

Faubus and McMath are seriously considering trying to unseat the chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee.

"Most people think Fulbright's strength will depend on what happens in Vietnam," said Faubus in an interview. "I think he's in greater difficulty than he's ever been before."

"He'd be defeated today because the majority of people in Arkansas don't support his position on Vietnam," said McMath, a marine reserve major-general who has spoken often on Vietnam since making a September trip to the war zone. McMath denies publicly he is considering taking on Fulbright but it is an open secret in political circles that he is.

Some prominent Arkansas businessmen, who have helped to bankroll the party as well as support Fulbright and Faubus, tend to discount reports Fulbright is in trouble.

But some of them acknowledge privately that if Faubus does challenge Fulbright — and they would prefer that he take on Republican Governor Winthrop Rockefeller — Fulbright will be in the political fight of his life. Fulbright has not announced whether he will run again.

Eight-hour Demonstration Backs Soldiers in Vietnam

NEW YORK (AP)—Halfway around the world from the battlefields of Vietnam, wave of marchers coursed down Fifth Avenue for eight hours Saturday in a flag - waving, singing declaration of support for American servicemen engaging the enemy.

The parade, coming as a rebuttal to anti-war demonstrations here and in California last month, drew countless thousands of marchers and spectators.

Unlike last April 15, when police estimated the anti-war demonstrators at 125,000 strong, police officials declined Saturday to issue even an unofficial estimate. Anti-war parade officials had put the marchers at double the public figure and a long debate followed.

Seven hours after Saturday's parade had begun at noon, the New York Daily News estimated the number of marchers at 75,000 and said as many more were waiting in marshalling areas to step off.

The New York Times estimated the marchers numbered 70,810 at 7:55 p.m. Both papers used mechanical counters.

Ray Gammler, a New York City fire department captain and marine combat veteran, organized the parade under the theme of "support our boys in Vietnam."

SPORT SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver

The Hildebrand looked as silly as an exclamation mark. London-based Ike, one of the best pilots to helm a world amateur hockey championship battlewagon, didn't look a day older than when wife Helen bussed him after winning the world bauble in Prague.

There was a gleam of nostalgic pride in the Hildebrand eyes when he looked over the gang last Friday night, the first time he had seen many of them in six or seven years.

There was another gleam there too, one of paternal pride, for Ike announced to all and sundry he had become the poppa of a lovely young Hildebrand princess now six months old.

That roving equipment ambassador of the Macs, the one and only "Turk" Barclay, was there too at the first reunion of the Macs at the celebrities dinner in Flesherton.

The "Turk" didn't look a day older either, the only difference being it doesn't take so long now to make a count-down on the number of hairs that decorate the Barclay noggin.

Big Joe Lepine, large and boisterous as ever, has throttled Father Time too. Big Joe bubbling over with the old spirit (emotional that is) was again the life of the party even if he did seem a little shy when asked to speak to the dinner crowd.

Big Joe's eyes laughed when I asked him if he were still playing hockey. "Sure b'dam" he said stooping a little so I could hear, "When they stop me, the NHL keeping me from playing hockey in Canada, sure I'll play in Quebec."

There was nostalgia all over the place. Events, humorous and otherwise bridged the chasm of memory. Even this reporter recalled when talking with Jay Sprague "The Burgomaster of Amelinsburg" and Lorne Cook close buddies on the Macs junket, the time when this worthy duo pilfered a carton of Canadian cigarettes from me to pay their way trainwise from Bratislava to Prague.

And a roar from the floor came when someone yelled, "How about that young lady barber of Prague?" When the "discovery" was made public I never saw so many guys who had to have their hair cut every second day. The older guys got "clipped" often — and liked it.

And Milt Dunnell of the Toronto Star recalled the "rarest sight I have ever seen." That of a man wearing a Scottish Glengarry (Hizzoner the Mayor) handing out silver dollars to admiring Czech hockey fans.

Carman Basilio almost matched the famous Sisrey as a story-teller. The former world middleweight champion regaled the party with several humorous boxing stories.

"There was the time when a fighter was getting the hell beaten out of him by his opponent," said Carmen. "His manager after six rounds chewed him out. "Why aincha stopping those punches?"

"The fighter looked up through half-close eyes. Yuh don't see many of 'em going past me do yuh?"

On another occasion it was agreed the word sufficient" to the referee would signal the fighter had had enough.

"The bout went on for seven rounds with one guy getting the hell beat out of him. Finally he came up with a haymaker and his opponent said "sufficient."

"Jeez," said the battered winner, "So that was the word, I've been trying to think of the the past five rounds."

And someone recalled the famous "Prague Election" when McFarland opposed Lee Grills for the mayoralty of the city. Chris Lockyer, campaign manager for Hizzoner while the late Erie Denyes was ditto for Mr. Grills.

The "election" ended in a one-vote victory for the Prince Edward "Spanlards." A recount was ordered after it was discovered one of the press gang had voted twice. It all ended in a stalemate.

It was a grand party. The dinner fare was out of this world and if the spouses of those Pieton hombres serve a daily meal like that offered by the lovely gals of the O.E.S., no wonder bathroom scales ever there have a short life expectancy.

After Twenty Years

Kelly Hangs 'Em Up', May Join Kings

TORONTO (CP)—He wasn't suppose to last 20 games in the National Hockey League: But Leonard (Red) Kelly, after 20 years, decided Sunday he was finished as a player.

There is a possibility, however, he will return to the league as a coach with Los Angeles Kings, one of six new members in next year's expanded NHL.

Kelly, 40 in July, announced Sunday he had requested his name be placed on Toronto Maple Leafs' voluntary-retired list and that he will negotiate the coaching job with Los Angeles.

The Kings are owned by former Toronto financier and sportsmen Jack Kent Cooke and managed by former Leaf Lally Regan.

Kelly, whose name has been linked to the position for some months despite repeated denials both by himself and Leaf management, said he had consulted with Stafford Smythe, Toronto team president, and Punch Imlach, team general manager-coach, prior to taking the decision.

Under NHL contractual commitments, even retired players must receive permission from their last team to negotiate with any other professional team.

One of only 20 players to score more than 250 goals in NHL history, Kelly has for 162 more in 845 games over 13 seasons as a defenceman with Detroit Red Wings and 119 more as a centre-left winger since joining the Leafs in 1959-60.

During that period he played on four Stanley Cup championship teams in each city and won the Lady Byng trophy as the most gentlemanly and sportsmanslike player in the league four times.

In 1953-54, when he won the Lady Byng while with Detroit, he also picked up the James D. Norris trophy as the best defenceman in the league.

RED KELLY

One of the most aggressive players in the league, he also was one of the most steady from the time he moved to Detroit from Toronto's St. Michael's College Juniors at 19.

Under normal progression, Kelly should have moved from junior hockey at Toronto's St. Michael's College to the Leafs, but the late Squib Walker, then a Toronto scout, manoeuvred the Leafs off him and went so far as to bet the Toronto club's doctor a hat that Kelly wouldn't last 20 games in NHL company.

"The doctor got his hat all right," Kelly recalled Sunday when he also spoke of his biggest hockey thrill — the first time he stepped on the ice in a Maple Leaf uniform.

"I was finally where I'd always wanted to be and the people stood up and clapped and cheered when Punch sent me over the board.

"I felt so tight I nearly burst."

Kelly said Sunday that he will be flying to Los Angeles Wednesday to talk with Cooke and Regan, but added that "I am not yet committed."

In retiring, Kelly leaves Gordie Howe of Detroit as the only player still active with 20 years' experience or more. Howe now has played 21 seasons with no visible sign of letting down while Kelly joins Bill Gadsby and Dit Clapper as the only NHL veterans to have survived 20 years.

Kelly successfully contested in 1962 the York West federal riding in Toronto for the Liberal party.

Re-elected in 1963, he eventually found commuting to games from Ottawa too tiring and declined to run again in the 1965 election.

Heimrath Wins At Mosport

MOSPORT, Ont. (CP)—Ludwig Heimrath of Toronto captured the 25-lap Oak Cup feature race Saturday by two laps.

Heimrath, driving a McLaren Chev, was timed in 39 minutes four seconds for the 63-mile race. Horst Kroll of Scarborough, Ont., was second, two laps behind. Kroll's Porsche-engined Lotus was followed by Stan Ward of Burlington, Ont., in a Shelby-Mustang.

John Cordle of North Bay trailed Heimrath closely for 14 laps but retired with mechanical trouble. Heimrath turned in the fastest lap, 1:28.5 for an average speed of 99.66 miles an hour.

Marlies Capture Memorial Cup

FORT WILLIAM, Ont. (CP)—Toronto Marlboros won the Canadian junior hockey championship here Sunday, but the traditional presentation of the Memorial Cup by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association had to be performed by a local hockey official.

The Marlboros drubbed Port Arthur Marrs 6-3 to win the best - of - seven series in five games.

In the post - game ceremony at centre ice, G. B. "Boots" McCormack, president of the Thunder Bay Amateur Hockey Association, presented the cup to the winners.

"If is the biggest thrill of my life . . . more so than winning the rookie award," said Toronto coach Gus Bodnar, winner of the Calder Memorial Trophy in the early 1940s while playing with Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League.

It was the fourth time Toronto has won the cup since 1953.

Marrs led 2-1 after one period and were deadlocked at 2-2 after 40 minutes.

They fell apart under a relentless attack by Toronto in the third frame and were outscored 4-1.

This was a disappointment to Port Arthur coach Ab Cava. Referring to the third-period scoring spree by Toronto, Cava said: "I was disappointed we ended on a sour note."

Cava, impressed with the goaltending of Toronto's Bob Whidden, praised his own players for bringing the team to the finals.

He gave special praise to captain Ray Addonno who scored all three Port Arthur goals Sunday and played steady hockey throughout the series.

For Marlboros, Terry Coffery was Bodnar's choice for special mention. The 21-year-old centre series scores with four goals and 10 assists.

Intell's Cec Hardwick Captures Gold Cup

Everything comes to him who waits!

Ask Cec Hardwick if the Intelligencer composing room staff.

Thirty years of patient plodding in the five-pins bowling alleys finally paid off.

Sunday Mr. Hardwick became the second winner of the Intelligencer Gold Cup Five-Pins Tournament.

And the consensus of some 24 tournament aspirants and others connected with Bill Bateman's Bowl-O-Drome was "it could not have happened to a nicer guy."

Mr. Hardwick toted home a lovely miniature of the Cup, two giant hampers of groceries and sixty dollars in the coin of the realm.

The Gold Cup and miniature were presented by Geo. H. Carver, the Intelligencer sports editor.

The winner won his honors the hard way. He was chased to the wire so-to-speak by Jack Slocker of Campbellford and Ron Porter of Napanee.

The three group finalists had to go to a double round robin to decide the winner. Hardwick won three games, Slocker two and Porter one.

Twenty-four city and district bowlers took part in the tournament. Group winners were Jack Canning with a high single of 322; Ron Sayler, four-time "Mr. Bowling" winner, 359 and Bill Lott 332. Canning rolled the tournament high single with a 379.

The winner won ten games out of thirteen, losing two in the preliminaries and the other in the final round.

The tournament was productive of fine scores. Out of 223 games played 32 were over 300; 37 between 275 and 300 and 70 over 250.

The tournament was well conducted under the supervision of the committee, Bill Bateman, Jack Canning and Cec Hardwick.

The Intelligencer Gold Cup Tournament was inaugurated a year ago with Bud Pelican being the first winner.

This year's winner modestly admitted that his achievement this year was the first major trophy to come his way in three decades.

He Waited-And Won!

Cec Hardwick denied winning the Intelligencer Gold Cup was an "inside job." Sports editor Geo. H. Carver who made the presentation, looks a bit skeptical albeit with tongue-in-cheek. Jack Canning, committee chairman agrees the best bowler of the tournament won the cup, the groceries and the "lettuce" that went with them.

Softball Umpires Attend Sunday Clinic

A touring three-man committee from the Ontario Amateur Softball Association conducted a day-long clinic for local umpires, managers and coaches at the Recreation Centre here yesterday.

Andy Davidson, Max Scheff and Ned Bannon covered all phases of softball officiating, discussed the playing rules and answered questions. A 60-question test, diagrams and other visual aids were employed in the clinic.

A total of 27 persons attended the clinic, including representatives of the Belleville Minor Softball Association and of the Centennial Umpires' Association which takes in numerous umpires from Belleville and Trenton. Local OASA officials, including OASA past-president Don Lee and current executive member Clifford Belch, a representative from the Peterborough Umpires' Association and some local coaches and managers also attended. The Belleville and District Umpire's Association did not have a member at the clinic.

Belch and Lee thanked Bannon, who gave a superb address on the management end of the game, Scheff and Davidson, for "a job well done."

Commercial Honors Players

The Commercial "B" Hockey League officially wound up its 1966-67 season with a presentation banquet and dance at the 23k's Locke Saturday night.

The Stewart Warner team captured the league championship and team members were presented with O'Keefe plaques by Mr. Harold Johnson.

Belvedere Hotel was honored as consolation winners.

A new trophy, donated by the Ethier family in memory of Gerald "Bucky" Ethier, was won by Wayne "Weiner" Waite. This trophy is for the most gentlemanly player.

Other individual awards went to Cerl Boomhower as the most valuable player and to scoring champion Ray Mambert.

Dutchmen Win Over Parsons 4-2

Kingston's Flying Dutchmen employed tough, hard accurate tactics to hand Belleville Parsons Cleaners a 4-2 seshack in one of the opening games of the Kingston and District League, played in Kingston, on Saturday.

Parsons' next match will be at Balawa on Wednesday, May 24, with the kickoff at 6:30 p.m.

The Dutchmen used the body effectively and beat Parsons to the ball continually.

Belleville tied it shortly after when Alan Brown chased a loose ball through the defence and dribbled it past Kingston goalie Hooveman.

The Dutchies regained the lead for good when a free kick down the middle was headed past Parson goalie Ray Hore by Robinson. It was 2-1 at the half.

Parsons lost Joe Iasenza with a leg injury early in the second half and Alan Brown's goal was disallowed after the referee consulted with the linesman. No reason was given for the decision.

Harmson's goal on a high drive and Love's on a penalty kick built the count to 4-1 before Brown notched his second goal in the final minutes on a hard, low shot.

Joe Romano at left half was tops on defence for Belleville with Alan Brown the most effective of the forwards.

Wins New Orleans Open

Knudson Nips Nicklaus By Stroke!

A K'niss For Knudson!

Canadian golfer George Knudson took time to get a kiss from Michele Morvant, queen of the Greater New Orleans Open, after she presented him with a $20,000 cheque. Knudson finished the tournament at 11 under par to edge out mighty Jack Nicklaus for the first place money. (AP Wirephoto)

NEW ORLEANS (CP)—What started out last November as a big gulf year for George Knudson when he won individual honors in the Canada Cup competition just seems to be getting bigger all the time.

Despite being plagued by misfortune and ailment, the shaggy, bespectacled Toronto professional went on to win $11,212.50 March 12 by tying Arnold Palmer for second place in the Citrus Open at Orlando, Fla. To that time it was his biggest single payday as a pro.

But Sunday he topped them all by clipping Jack Nicklaus by a stroke in the $100,000 Greater New Orleans Open to win $20,000.

This pushed his official Professional Golfers' Association earnings for the year to $30,971 and his unofficial earnings "to around the $50,000 mark."

The freckle - faced 29-year-old took the lead to stay when he sank a 2½ foot birdie putt on the 15th hole Sunday after he and Nicklaus, with whom he was tied at the start of the round, exchanged the lead several times.

Knudson was playing a three-some behind Nicklaus and had the advantage of knowing how his opposition was doing before starting each hole.

Third place went to defending champion Frank Beard who shot a 70 for a 279 total, two strokes off Knudson's pace. Billy Casper and Cobie Legrange fired 67s to tie for fourth with 280.

Nicklaus, who is still waiting for his first win of the year, had only one one-putt green all day on the 7,030-yard, par-72 Lakewood Country Club course.

The shot on the 15th that won it for Knudson was one "I didn't know I had in my bag."

"I drove a ball of light to the right and I sliced a two-iron to the fringe of the green.

"For me to slice a two-iron with control is very unusual. But I actually had to slice it and it came out just perfect.

"And that was probably the shot that won it for me."

Knudson's rounds of 71 - 66-70-73 included 18 birdies and two eagles. "If you add that many birdies I think you should win."

He credits much of his success to an Arnold Palmer glove he's taken to wearing in the hot hand to ease a sweat problem that has been allowing his clubs to slip in his grip.

"I guess I'll play with one for a while, now," he laughed after picking up his cheque.

The sweaty palms are only the last of a series of physical problems he's suffered this year, mostly to do with his back.

To ease the problem, a doctor told him earlier to wear a lift in the heel of his golf shoe. Then he won the Canada Cup.

Later he found the lift causing even more severe pain.

So out came the lift.

Then the sweat started causing him to shoot erratically.

Thursday he started using the glove. "I couldn't afford as a kid" in Winnipeg and Sunday he had his biggest golfing day.

Now all he has is look for any bigger pains and bigger pays.

Sets Record

Romulous Wins Messenger

Romulous Hanover is a three-year-old colt who won the $178,064 Messenger Stakes at Roosevelt Raceway, harness racing's richest race and the first leg in the pacing Triple Crown. Haughton is one of harness racing's best known drivers.

"He's the greatest I've ever driven," exclaimed Haughton after his problem colt had beaten the favored Best of All by 2¼ lengths for the $80,022 first prize Saturday night. "I've never had a horse with as much speed at this end."

The time of 1:59 1-5 for the mile broke Adios Butler's 2:00 1-5 Messenger mark set in 1958 and also set a track record at Roosevelt for a three-year-old. Ernie Hanover had set this in 1965 with a 1:59 2-5.

Romulous Hanover now has won three of four starts this year and 14 of 24 lifetime. He has a bankroll of $218,858 and is favored to win the Little Brown Jug and the Cane Pace and sweep pacing's Triple Crown. An entry with Nardin's Byrd, who finished third, he paid $5.80, $2.60 and $2.80 in the Messenger.

Mostly On Pitching

Chisox Win 10 Straight; Grab Lead

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Mickey Mantle, whose 10-day ordeal has ended with a loud crash, is breathing easy again.

"I'm glad it's over . . . it's a relief," Mantle said Sunday after blasting the 500th home run of his American League career to lift New York Yankees past Baltimore Orioles 6-5.

"I have never seen a club go this far on pitching alone," manager Stanky said after his Old-light-hitting Chicago White Sox ran their winning string to 10 games and swept into the league lead with 4-2 and 3-1 victories over California Angels.

Mantle unloaded No. 500 off Stu Miller in the seventh inning Sunday and became the sixth player in history to reach the half-century mark.

The 17-year New York veteran, with 344 shot into the rich-field seats at Yankee Stadium was admitted into the exclusive circle that also includes Babe Ruth, Willie Mays, Jimmy Foxx, Ted Williams and Mel Ott.

"My next goal is 11," Stanky was saying in Chicago after Gary Peters completed the White Sox' sweep by toming the eighth one-hitter in the majors this spring.

The double victory, coupled with Boston Red Sox' 8-3, 13-9 doubleheader sweep over Detroit, sent the White Sox into first place—1½ games ahead of the Tigers.

Elsewhere in the American League, Kansas City Athletics topped Minnesota Twins 4-3 and Cleveland Indians edged Washington Senators 2-1 in a rain-curtailed five - inning game. In games Saturday, Detroit romped 10-3 over Boston, Kansas City defeated Minnesota 5-2, Chicago blanked California 1-0, Cleveland downed Washington 3-1 and Baltimore held New York 5-3.

Reds' Youngster Blanks Phils

"Was Hit Harder In High School"

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Life gets easier all the time for young Gary Nolan, who was batting high school hitter in Oroville, Calif., a year ago.

Now, all he has to worry about are Willie Mays, Roberto Clemente and the rest of the National League.

"I was hit harder in high school than I have been so far this year," grinned Nolan after his five-hitter had blanked Philadelphia Phillies 1-0 and given Cincinnati Reds a sweep of Sunday's National League doubleheader.

The Reds won the opener 2-1 on Vada Pinson's eighth inning homer and the four-hit pitching of Jim Maloney and Ted Abernathy.

Nolan is the precocious 18-year-old right - hander who came to the Cincinnati camp as a non-roster player and won a regular job. He is 3-1.

"I love what I've seen of him," said Dave Bristol, the Reds' manager. "No kicking, no tugging, no pulling. He just goes to work and puts the ball over with something on it."

Nolan had plenty on it against the Phillies. He struck out eight and now has fanned 48 in 46 2-3 innings. The shutout was his first in the organized ball.

In other National League games Sunday, San Francisco Giants swept a doubleheader from Houston Astros 11-6 and 4-3, Chicago Cubs split with Los Angeles Dodgers, losing 2-1 in 10 innings before winning 4-3 in 11, New York Mets dropped St. Louis Cardinals 3-1 and Pittsburgh Pirates whipped Atlanta Braves 5-2.

In Saturday's games, Chicago doubled the score on Los Angeles, 6-3, Pittsburgh edged Atlanta, 5-4, Houston dropped a 4-3 decision to San Fr ncisco and Philadelphia downed Cincinnati 3-2. New York at St. Louis was postponed by rain.

The opening date of the Quinte Driving and Riding Club originally announced as May 20, has been postponed to May 27, club president Gerald Vance said today.

"The bad weather of the past two of three weeks has caused deferment of plans", he said, "It has also slowed up the training of the horses."

Charlie Haws lives in Toronto at 7292 Topping. He's in the real estate business. And obviously, he's good at it.

One day we passed his garage and this is what we saw. We were curious as to why a man who could afford a Rolls would have a Volkswagen. Instead of just guessing, we went right up and rang Charlie's door bell.

"Sir," we said, "would you mind telling us why you own a Volkswagen as well as a Rolls Royce?"

From here on we'll quote Charlie.

"I bought a Volkswagen when I started in business several years ago, and I have nothing but good things to say about it. I guess I bought it for economical reasons, but after awhile, I found it was really fun to drive...well anyway, I got lucky and started making more money than I ever dreamed I'd make, and I figured that everybody is entitled to one big luxury in his life. Mine was the Rolls Royce. But I never did get rid of the Volkswagen. And I'll tell you why. I still get a lot of fun out of driving it... you might say it keeps me young ...besides, these two cars make a great balance in my life. The Rolls reminds me how far I've come, and just as important, the Volkswagen reminds me of how I got there. I think that's healthy....

That's Charlie Haw's story.

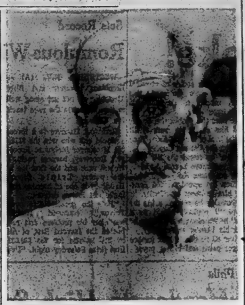
Millionth Visitor Sees Special Train



KENORA, Ont. (CP) — The 2,000,000th visitor to the Confederation Train passed through the six-car display of Canada's history here Sunday after Premier Roberts welcomed the train to Ontario.

Ken Weil, 26-year-old television repairman, was named the visitor with the magic number and, with his wife, Jeanine, son Donald, 5, and daughter Susie, 7, was presented with an express paid weekend trip to Expo 67.

Federal Public Works Minister McIlraith presented Mr. Weil with a framed reproduction of the original proclamation of Confederation signed in 1867 by Queen Victoria.

Train officials said they previously expected only 500,000 persons would have viewed the train by Saturday. Original estimates called for only 1,500,000 persons to see the train during its year-long cross-Canada tour.

The train will be here three days before moving to the Lakehead.

Thousand Riot at San Francisco Beach

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A beach riot by 1,000 youths, sparked when police tried to break up a fight, injured three officers and two bystanders Sunday.

Before it was over, windows were smashed, resort booths robbed and some bottles were tossed at police.

Two youths were arrested on suspicion of looting and 12 others on charges of inciting a riot, battery and resisting arrest.

One hundred police, armed with shotguns, nightsticks and tear gas, raced to Playland-at-the-Beach and restored order after two hours. The officers did not use the tear gas or the guns but were aided by police dogs in clearing the area.

At the same time, 1,000 hippies thronged the panhandle section of Golden Gate Park, causing police at first to report trouble also brewing there. But later police corrected it to: "Just a happening."

The beach trouble erupted after a fight broke out at a ticket booth. Youths broke windows in the booth and a girl ticket seller fled.

Two policemen, Francis Fahey, 43, and Harold HamiKoo, 28, were cut and a third, Dennis Baker, 28, had a hand injury. All three were taken to hospital.

A concessionaire who witnessed the beach outbreak said: "It was no racial thing at first" but before it was over "some older Negroes came up and began telling some white bystanders, police said: "Some of it."

Later in the predominantly Negro district at Fillmore and McAllister, where persons dispersed from the beach area, saunders, You are going to get those bottles being thrown contain gasoline." Nobody was hit.

Hospital Auxiliary Holds Successful Card Party

NAPANEE — Even the weather co-operated Friday in bringing success to the card party organized by the Hospital Auxiliary in the Memorial Hall.

Although it had been planned to minimize the Centennial theme, it crept in with the walls gay with posters obtained through Mrs. C. E. Thielman, travel agent. All the provinces were illustrated and there were numerous posters of highlights of Expo. A f ilm was shown through the kindness of Mr. L. R. LeBlanc of Kingston branch manager of passenger sales for the seaway division of the Canadian National Railways. Its theme was the theme of Expo, "Man and His World," giving flashes of life in many lands.

Mexico received a bit of attention, also, with its ever-dated paper flowers festooned on the stairway leading from the ground floor, and spilling from a basket on the landing.

But there was an abundance of Canadian spring flowers as well. The long table just below the platform held many attractive desserts. The focal point was a beautiful buffet arrangement of snapdragons and blue iris, flanked by wrought iron candelabra holding blue tapers. The arrangement and its neighbors were raffled off, with Mrs. Helen Gibbard the winner. At either end of the long table was a crystal bowl of grape hyacinths and daffodils.

Dessert was followed by the film, with Mrs. Louise Graves operating the projector. Then everyone at the 20 tables settled down to either bridge or whist. Mrs. Evelyn Mills won the high in bridge, and Mrs. Ola Bartlett the low. Mrs. Jean Walters took home the prize for small slam.

Miss Leah VanAlstyne carried off the high prize in whist, and Miss Ella McMillan the low. There were a number of fun prizes as well.

The event was organized by Mrs. Denis Rodrigues, chairman of the special events committee of the Hospital Auxiliary. Members of her committee were also Mrs. Lorne Graves, Mrs. N. F. Burke, Mrs. J. K. Pearce and Mrs. A. E. T. Thomsen. All assisted with the decorations, although the first three named were responsible for the Mexican flowers and Mrs. Burke for all the rest. Miss Gladys Hehan, the Auxiliary recording secretary, was the business manager and helped in many other ways. Mrs. Harold Taffs and Mrs. G. D. Quirt assisted in serving the tea and coffee, and Mrs. Elsie Donohue was kept busy making tea and coffee. Many others helped in various ways. Mrs. Malcolm Isbester, is president of the Auxiliary.

The Hospital Auxiliary is grateful to all those who assisted in any way to make the event an unqualified success.

Expo Africans Annoyed When Police Stop Car

MONTREAL (CP)—A spokesman for Expo 67 said Sunday night any African representatives feeling dissatisfied with conditions in or around the world's fair are assured of a ready access to Expo's commissioner - general, Pierre Dupuy.

He was commenting on the disclosure that a car carrying the commissioner-general of the Gabon pavilion was stopped by police Saturday. Police allege the car passed through a red light.

There were weekend reports that as a result of the incident officials of some African pavilions planned to ask Mr. Dupuy for assurance that African diplomats and their official representatives are treated with the respect due their rank.

While the incident and its consequences were causing a flurry of sometimes confused developments, the crowds continued to pour into the big show.

Paar Again Proves Diverting

NEW YORK AP — Jack Paar Sunday night turned a curious jumble of jokes, gags, blow-ups and guest stars—plus the crackling atmosphere of his own old late-evening show — into a highly diverting hour on NBC.

Only Paar, with his individual approach, could have made it work so smoothly since there was almost no shape or form to the show, outside of A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to Hollywood.

Paar opposed the show with a string of wisecracks — "Hollywood, a drive in Sodom and Gomorrah." "Everybody in Hollywood sees are false—telephone poles with wigs." "A fine place to visit and a fine place to work. I've called Forst Lawn a Disneyland for shut-ins."

Then he introduced Bob Newhart, barely a Hollywood fixture, for a repeat of his great sketch about the new girl guard reporting in the night King Kong climbed the Empire State building.

There was no need for the usual expensive dance numbers. Paar took film clips from 30-year-old movies instead. One of Busby Berkley's hideously elaborate production numbers of the 1930s was matched up with recreations of Down Town and Winchester Cathedral and it worked nicely.

Then there was a batch of scenes from old movies showing James Cagney belting people around and a piece of enraged film shot when the late W. C. Fields was surprised in midscene by a mild earthquake. Then a faked interview with Farr asking questions that matched up with "answers" by Ronald Reagan, clipped from some of the former actor's old movies.

Judy Garland came out for a wandering conversation that sounded as if she and Paar were picking up threads from a talk that had ended the previous night. And it was funny stuff.

Under clear skies and with temperatures ranging as high as the mid-50s, the count of Sunday visits had reached 313,461 by 12 midnight, bringing the total number of visits since Expo was formally opened April 27 to 4,385,871. Predicted attendance for Sunday was 342,850.

The day was highlighted by an open-air service in which clergymen from eight churches participating in Expo's Christian pavilion spoke and prayed on a theme of religious unity.

The weekend was full of such religious observations, a result of pavilion-inspired efforts to express the basic Christian beliefs in human brotherhood and unity.

An 18-pound female bear cub also figured in Expo weekend news.

After vanishing from its cage at an animal show Saturday night—authorities feel the disappearance resulted from an act of theft—the little bear, named Suzie, was found late Sunday.

The animal, four months old and virtually harmless, was found playing contentedly near the St. Lawrence River which flows by the Expo site. Suzie seemed to be unharmed.

The weather, brilliant all weekend, was expected to produce increasing cloudiness with showers late today, the temperature ranging as high as 55 degrees.

Two African spokesmen, contacted Sunday night about the incident involving the Gabon official, said they had nothing but admiration for the manner they have received at Expo and in Montreal.

One spokesman said Africans have had nothing to complain about at Expo "except the weather, which they have found rather chilly."

For Tired Feet

This is the type of transportation which some Bellevillians will find tired feet may be using today at Expo. The rickshaw-type vehicles, called "pedi-cabs," can be hired by persons wishing a leisurely trip about the sprawling Expo grounds.

1,993 Children Lost at Expo

MONTREAL (CP)—Expo officials said Sunday a total of 1,993 children were lost during the big fair six during the first two weeks of operations.

Centennial Choir Heard In Impressive Concert

By EUGENE LANG

The cavernous interior of the Bellevile Memorial Arena did not echo the usual sounds of the pounding of a puck against the boards or the swoosh of steel blades on the ice Friday evening. Instead we heard the full peals of a 1200 voice chorus of the Bellevile Public Schools centennial choir under the direction of Phyllis W. May.

The Junior Choir was placed on the arena floor with the senior choir positioned on the tiered seats, occupying the majority of the west side of the arena. Witnessing this impressive sea of polished youthful faces was an audience that could be estimated at 2,000 pleased parents and friends of the young choristers.

All of the selections sung by the two choirs were either written by Canadian composers or arranged by Canadian musicians. Four numbers of patriotic intent were sung by the junior choir and in each of these the young singers gave outstanding ly of their voices under the able cuings of Phyllis May. No doubt there were some wet eyes at times as those youngsters performed their selections with spirit, spice and spontaneity.

The senior choir performed one work only "A Salute to Canada" written for the occasion by Don Wright, prominent Canadian composer and arranger. This is a vocal tone poem that takes us on a musical journey to the ten Canadian provinces, with each highlighted by themes that would portray the atmosphere and mood of the province concerned.

The choir gave a most admirable and enjoyable rendition of this as they reflected the musical idioms of the different provinces with insight in tempo with aspiration. The overall balance of voices was well maintained in nearly every instance, and tempo changes were handled with considerate care. Heather Grant accompanied at the piano and must be complimented for her well wrought keyboard underlinings.

The Public School band under the leadership of Alfred Cooper consisted of about fifty budding instrumentalists that commendably played their five selections between the appearance of the two choirs. Thirty-two of the band also were members of the two choirs.

Four members of the choir presented small floral tributes to each of the teachers who trained or assisted in training the choirs in the various schools. Miss May was the recipient of a lovely bouquet from the choir as a token of their appreciation. Macdonald Smith made the presentation to Miss May.

And so, another Centennial attraction has been given locally by an amateur musical group. This like the others has been the culmination of arduous labor on the part of all the participants, but the end result has been most gratifying to all concerned.

It has shown the various talents that are possessed by our own musicians and has sent on its way a large audience that was fully pleased by the splendid showing of the entire cast. Congratulations to Miss May and her twelve hundred vocal cheerers for their fine showing on Friday evening.

Magdoralé Smith, Chairman of the Public School Board welcomed all those present before introducing His Worship, Mayor Jack Ellis who brought greetings from the City of Belleville in a voice tinged with pride and chiefan Mayor Ellis commented on the past excellent performances that have been given by local amateur musical organizations.

David L. Wolper Making Bid For Bigtime With War Movie

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—David L. Wolper is one of the new young tycoons who are filling the vacuum left by the elderly or deceased founders of the film industry.

After nine years as a producer of television documentaries, Wolper is making his bid for the bigtime.

He is gambling $4,500,000 on a Second World War epic, The Devil's Brigade, starring William Holden, Cliff Robertson and Vincent Edwards. Of course, the real gambler is United Artists, which is putting up the cash.

"I'm gambling with my reputation, too," asserts the 39-year-old producer.

"I could have continued making documentaries "and winning prizes with them. Or I could also get into the making of features and shoot for the big prize. I decided, to shoot for it."

Now he is not fashioning documentaries out of miles of film from the vaults. He is working with actors and a movie-making crew. He transported 119 people from Hollywood to Utah for the training of the first Special Service force, a U.S. - Canadian outfit that played a forerunner of the Green Berets. Location scenes will also be shot in Italy and England.

This has been made possible by the success department of which gave The Devil's Brigade its stamp of approval. About nine years as a producer of television documentaries, Wolper is making his bid for the bigtime.

Wolper is on the set while every scene is being filmed. At night he works with writers on his next script.

"I've got four to do for United Artists," he said. "The next one will be Remagen Bridge and I'll be going ahead with it at once as I can find a bridge somewhere in the United States that will double for the real one.

"Then I've got a picture to do for Columbia, Of Good and Evil, Ernest Gann's story of the San Francisco police department. And I'll be busy in television, too.

"I'm producing 12 Underwater World programs with Jacques Cousteau for ABC, and four National Geographics for CBS. Now I've signed John Glenn to make a series of films called The Great Exploration for NBC. I came up with the idea of sending him on the same journeys of great explorers, and Glenn loved the idea. First he'll cover Stanley's route to find Livingston, then he'll follow the voyage of Captain Cook."

Work of Mentally Retarded Shown

NAPANEE — The happiest people at "open house" Wednesday evening at Happy Day School were the 11 mentally retarded children who have been attending the school since its opening January 3. They were filled with excitement because their parents could see all the work they had done.

Mrs. Fermas Martin, teacher, points out that one of the most important part of her work is to give her charges a sense of achievement. One of her pupils —a gift of 14, is in the seventh heaven when allowed to help some of the younger children with their work. Mrs. Martin states that she constantly keeps in mind that it is not the physical but the mental age of her pupils which she must consider.

As in any other school on such an occasion work was on exhibit on the desk of each pupil, and the walls were covered with examples of art work and crafts. Tables contained articles they had made such as plaster of paris animals made in a mold and painted. There were samples of sewing, from the apron the 14-year-old was proudly wearing, to the two or three buttons a child with a mentality of two or three had sewn on to a bit of cloth.

Those who attended were particularly impressed by two complicated jig-saw puzzles spread out on card tables. These had been completed by the pupils in their leisure time.

Mr. Errol Moses spoke for a short time on the conference held in Ottawa recently. He urged the members of the local association to stick together. "You are in the minority," he said, "but you can accomplish much for these children if you work together."

Most of the "Flowers of Hope" were in the mail, was the announcement of Fr1a Julius, chairman of the campaign, beginning Mother's Day.

Red Tape Dwindles In 40 Years

VANCOUVER (CP) — Margaret McCallum has shared the problems and hopes of more than 1,000,000 people during the last 40 years.

Before 1960, she will retire after serving as secretary to seven officers-in-charge at the United States immigration offices here, outlasting all but one.

Hired here in 1926 after emigrating with her parents from North Dakota, Miss McCallum has seen the immigration offices shrink from the entire second floor of an office building to a two-room unit in one corner of the floor.

The shrinkage was not caused by a decrease in visitors or emigrants to the U.S., but by elimination of red tape.

Multiple Sclerosis Always Serious

Dear Dr. Molner: I would like information on multiple sclerosis and treatment. My son, now in his 30's was stricken a year ago and isn't doing well even though he has been in and out of the hospital several times. One problem is bladder infection and he cannot control his bladder. — Mrs. D. G.

Multiple sclerosis is a depressing disease because the cause is not known — although be assured that great efforts are being made to learn the cause and thus open the way to seek a cure.

It is a disorder of the nervous system featured by scarring (sclerosis) and other changes in the nerve trunks. This is why it results in muscular weakness. The nerve impulses are affected.

It is always serious, and statistically is thought to attack about one person in 770. About 80 per cent are females, and it usually does not appear until after age of 20.

The course of the disease is extremely variable, sometimes rapid, sometimes slow, and with unpredictable plateaus or remissions with relief from some of the symptoms, or a quiescent state during which they do not become worse.

Loss of muscular control, as explained above, is common, but does not follow a set pattern. It may affect eye muscles, or arms and legs, or bladder or bowel control.

Considerable treatment is necessary but is variable to suit the problems of each individual case. Steroids (such as ACTH) may be used to try to retard severe cases which are progressing. Some believe that a low fat diet is helpful. This is subject to some argument.

When bladder control is lost, scrupulous hygiene is required to prevent skin irritation, and measures to prevent or combat bladder infection are mandatory.

If the patient is bedfast, bed sores can become a serious complication, so the physician should be alerted at the first sign of this.

In some instances (depending, obviously, on the severity of a case, and of the muscular ability remaining) rehabilitation procedures may be necessary to build up muscle strength and co-ordination.

One aspect is essential in all cases. The patient should have some psychotherapy early in the disease. This does not mean that the patient is mentally ill, but he should carefully but effectively be led to understand the nature of his disorder, and should be aware of variable courses of bad bladder infection are mandatory.

Dear Dr. Molner: This patient has been advised to have surgery at the age 39 because his eyes do not focus correctly. What causes such a situation to develop at that age? — Mrs. C. H.

You haven't told me enough to warrant more than a guess, but sometimes a defect in the eye muscles can be corrected by changing their tension surgically.

Note to Mrs. R. T.: Consider yourself lucky. Yes, one contact may cause venereal disease, but evidently you didn't get it. (No, a Pap test will not show the disease.)

Uniform Closing Hours By-law May Be Adopted by Communities

HAMILTON (CP)—A 1964 by-law establishing uniform closing hours for Hamilton stores may be adopted by other Ontario communities.

Gerald W. Brown, a board member of the Hamilton District Uniform Store Hours Association, told about 30 inquiries have been sent to his group since the summer of 1965.

That was when the Supreme Court of Canada refused to reverse a lower ruling in favor of the law and the Ontario legislature made it enforceable.

Mr. Brown said inquiries have come from as far away as Vancouver and Saint John, N.B., but about 30 of them have been from Ontario.

Merchants in a number of other Ontario centres have been seeking bylaws to establish or enforce uniform closing hours. Woodstock's city council defeated one last week, with Mayor James F. Hutchinson casting the deciding vote. Kitchener's city council will vote on the issue tonight.

The Hamilton bylaw permits stores to be open until 9 p.m. Thursday and Friday. Closing time on other weekdays is 6 p.m. During the month of December until Christmas and the week preceding Easter, stores can be open until 9 p.m. all weekdays.

Mr. Brown said the uniform closing time has had a favorable effect on business in Hamilton and discount stores had their highest profits ever last year.

Stuart R. Goudie, president of Goudies, Department Store in Kitchener, said merchants there presented city council with a petition last week asking that the city update and enforce its 1958 store-closing bylaw.

Kitchener's present bylaw is unenforceable, Assistant Solicitor Joseph Kelly said.

Fred Garlick, manager of Walker's Department Store in Guelph, said he hopes to have a petition ready in two weeks for merchants there to request uniform closing hours.

City Clerk Gordon Hall said Guelph's present bylaw was found invalid in court four years ago and has not been enforced since.

Merchants in Woodstock have asked their council for uniform closing hours. There is no such bylaw at present, said Deputy City Clerk Kenneth Miller.

Public School Pupils Enjoy Trip to Expo

DESERONTO—Pupils of the Deseronto Public School visited Expo last Tuesday, and are still talking about it. The 35 children were divided into six groups, and each group met ahead of time with one of the six supervisors and decided on the program for the day. Once unloaded from the bus, the groups separated, to return to the bus terminal at 6 p.m. Within a quarter of an hour they were on their way homereaching Deseronto at 11 p.m., a tired lot. Sops were made at Cornwall both going and coming.

Principal R. K. Uens was impressed at the way the buses are handled. Each is given 15 minutes to unload and to load, and a ticket given the driver on arrival makes the same location his for a quarter of an hour at a stated time. Everything goes like clockwork, Mr. Uens said.

It was possible to see so little in one day, but they made good use of their time. The Russian pavilion seemed to impress everyone, especially the section devoted to flight, and to space flight in particular. There were models of each of the space ships the Russians have so far used. They were impressed also by some of the carrier planes, which will transport even a bulldozer. All phases of Russian life are shown.

The Czech pavilion seemed to leave a strong impression also. In the Canadian National Railway pavilion they saw a film lasting 12 minutes. Not all of the pavilions were open yet, the Aiens pavilion among them.

The weather was miserable, cold and showery, but even such weather could not spoil the day.

Girl Will Join Men In Climb

VANCOUVER (CP) — Alice Purdy, 21, will join five men this summer in a bid to climb Mount Logan, Canada's highest mountain.

Miss Purdy, a nursing student at the University of British Columbia, hopes to become the first woman ever to reach the top of the 19,850-foot mountain.

Martin Kafer, president of the B.C. Mountaineering Club, said the attempt will be made in late June or early July.

"She is one of the best young women climbers in B.C.," said Mr. Kafer.

"If weather conditions are good, the expedition stands an excellent chance of making a successful climb."

Pope's Pilgrimage to Fatima Encouraging to Conservatives

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul's pilgrimage to Fatima Saturday was a gesture of encouragement to Roman Catholic conservatives smarting from the thrust of church progressives in an era of rapid change.

All men could agree on his major appeal for peace. But most other aspects of his trip to Portugal held special appeal for Catholics who are traditional in church practice and conservative in politics.

Observers of the Vatican considered the trip a swing to the opposite pole after the criticism of capitalism in the Pope's encyclical, Development of Peoples.

The Pope went to a shrine linked in Catholic minds with fear of communism. The apparition of the Virgin Mary reported at Fatima in 1917 by three shepherd children is associated with prayer for Russia's conversion and preoccupation over communist peril.

Pope Paul emphasized this when he spoke about lands where religion is suppressed. That was in contrast with the Vatican's steadily - growing effort to get along with the communist governments of eastern Europe.

The Pope's presence at Fatima also implied the church's highest blessing on the cult surrounding a "miraculous" happening which many progressive Catholics do not accept.

The Fatima apparitions have not a mandatory article of faith, meaning that Catholics are free to accept or reject them. Several leading Catholic theologians question the authenticity of the apparitions at Fatima.

None of the Pope's speeches to Portugal's leaders praised Premier Antonio de Oliveira ecclesiastical approval of Salazar's dictatorship. Instead they were filled with references to the Portuguese people. But Salazar is bound to have gained from being seen with the Pope and speaking 10 minutes alone with him in private conversation.

Book Suggests Courts Limit Information Flow

NEW YORK (AP)—A former managing editor and a trial lawyer, after studying controversy about a free press and fair trial, have called for self-restraint on the part of U.S. courts and law enforcement machinery in giving out prejudicial information.

In a book, Crime and Publicity: The Impact of News up the Administration of Justice, the authors assert that the issues stimulated by the Lee Harvey Oswald case and the recent arrest and acquittal of Dr. Samuel Sheppard for murder cannot be solved by imposing curbs on the press to prevent publication of material prejudicial to a defendant.

They say that until the issue is resolved the press "should voluntarily adopt codes of ethics and conduct."

Authors of the book, published by the Twentieth Century Fund, are Alfred Friendly, longtime managing editor of the Washington Post now doing special assignments in Europe, and Ronald L. Goldfarb, Washington trial lawyer.

The Twentieth Century Fund is a philanthropic foundation for research and public education on current economic and social questions.

A report issued last year by the American Bar Association's Committee on Fair Trial and Free Press recommended blocking newspaper access to some criminal case news and enforcing the restraints with the threat of contempt of court.

Quoting the press "the agent of public scrutiny," Friendly and Goldfarb write:

"Laws and regulations that would make news coverage perilous would gravely reduce the potential of the press to monitor the step-by-step march of each defendant along the road to justice.

To safeguard fair trial, the authors suggest:

—The courts have always had the power to control the conduct of attorneys in court. They should apply that power.

—The bar associations also have ample authority to control the conduct of their members.

—District attorneys, who should be concerned with fair treatment of defendants, already have the power to enforce proper deportment by their subordinates.

—The major problem, calling for the most extensive and drastic remedial action, is obviously in the police stations. The task of commanding police from every patrolman and detectife, humanly eager to see to it that his organization's name attached to a piece of news indicating good work in arresting a suspect, is exceedingly difficult but not impossible. . . ."

The authors give this advice to the press:

"When all else is done with complete respect for the defendant's right to a fair trial and the press nevertheless publishes information that is deliberately partisan, prejudicial in content, timing and volume, and devoid of redeeming purpose, then the press should not expect to be exempt from contempt proceedings.

"If all the participants in the judicial process behave with maximum care for defendants' rights, the public pressure against press irresponsibility on that score will be immense. And, contrary to the usual impression, the public pressure can be effective.

"The argument of the press that it cannot be blamed for publishing what official sources freely disclose to it for publication is neither foolish nor hypocritical. But in a situation where other participants in the administration of justice have cleaned their houses, the challenge to the press's own sense of decency will come in much more impressive form than now.

"What should the press do to improve the interim situation? The long standing answer is that it should voluntarily adopt code of ethics and conduct."

British Observe New Rules

GIBRALTAR (Reuters) — A British airliner landed here today, the first to arrive in the face of new Spanish flying restrictions, but it stayed within the narrow zone left open by Madrid.

The Comet jet did not test Spanish reaction to a violation of the new rules, which Britain has rejected.

The forbidden zone cuts across the northern airfields of Gibraltar, the subject of the drawn - out sovereignty dispute between Britain and Spain.

A spokesman for British European Airways said the company's scheduled flight landed safely, with its 89 seats fully booked.

The new Spanish ban ruled out overflights of most of Algeciras Bay, adjoining the colony.

Four RAF Hawker Hunter jet fighters arrived here last week, amid reports they might escort airliners in, but they remained on the ground as the airliner came in.

Clay's Stand Has No Bearing On Right to Hold World Title

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

We all live, implicitly, by a double standard of "justice." We demand absolute justice for ourselves, but require only relative justice for others. And we don't know we are doing it.

A recent outstanding example was the action of boxing organizations in stripping Cassius Clay of his world heavyweight title because he refused to obey the Selective Service law.

One has absolutely nothing to do with the other. A man does not win the world's title because he is trustworthy, loyal, helpful, brave, clean and reverent but because he is the best boxer in his class. And he loses the title only when he ceases to be the best boxer.

Stripping him of his title because he is presumably "unpatriotic" is as absurd — and as unjust — as slating down to play poker with a man who owes a thousand dollars, and then refusing to pay what he has won, because he didn't stand up while the National Anthem was being sung.

I have not the slightest affection or admiration for Cassius Clay, in any of his casualties; but at least his decision to go to jail rather than enter the Army is more honorable and more consistent than the decision of the boxing organizations to take away his title.

Clay may be wrong in his decision, but he is willing to pay the price, and it will surely be a high one. If he has broken the civil law, he will, and should, be sent to jail; but he has broken no boxing law, and remains the champion no matter if he commits murder, rape, sedition and harratry. What is won by ability cannot be denied because of character.

We are forever confusing the different realms of human activity. We want the kind of "justice" rigidly applied to us when rigidity will help us, and leniently applied when leniency will help us. But when someone else commits an act we disapprove of, then what we really demand is revenge or retaliation rather than justice.

The trouble with this double standard is that once we knock down the distinctions for others, we are knocking them down for ourselves, too. If we can strip a boxer of his title for an act that is wholly irrelevant to his fighting ability, then we can strip a teacher of his job because he wears a beard (which has been tried) or deny a legislator his seat because he has embarrassed his colleagues (which has also been tried.)

Justice, if it is to have any meaning beyond the rhetorical, must be absolute and uniform for everybody, and not based on preference, or taste, or the passion of the majority. I don't give two straws for Clay, but unless we defend his right in the title, we are running away our own future rights to be treated fairly.

Geneva Accord Cuts Tariffs 33 Per Cent

GENEVA (CP) — Major trading nations have turned an historic corner in their centuries of trading with the successful conclusion of the Kennedy round, cutting tariffs an estimated 33 to 35 per cent on world trade now worth $40,000,000,000 a year.

The successful conclusion of the biggest and most exhaustive battle to lower tariff walls affects some $3,000,000,000 worth of Canadian trade. But the main benefit for Canada will be better terms on $1 of every $4 in sales to the United States, its biggest customer.

Massive bargains that may be translated in time into more jobs and higher earnings for millions of workers may also shift the world from heavy concentration on islands of trade into the broader sphere of freer trade among continents.

Weary from a four-year struggle to fulfil the dreams of the late president Kennedy, negotiators stepped backs and hugged each other as the announcement of success came a few minutes before midnight Monday night.

The accord came after four intensive day-and-night sessions during which the negotiations appeared doomed at one point.

The reductions finally hammered out fell short of the 50 per cent over-all cut that had been sought, but they far surpassed any achieved before in tariff negotiations.

However, there will be cuts of 50 per cent in many major products and whole categories of goods, details of which are to be announced next month.

The agreement affects more than 30 nations. Fifty-four nations took part in the Kennedy round.

Canadians had achieved not only great benefits from individual bargaining but higher prices under a new three-year wheat agreement, linked with a new international program to set aside 500,000,000 bushels of wheat to feed the world's hungry.

The cost of the program is to be borne by a number of countries, with Canada's share 11 per cent. Canadian Agriculture Minister Greene, in Geneva, and federal Trade Minister Winters, in Ottawa, issued statements drawing great comfort from the negotiations.

Greene said the Kennedy round had put Canada in the big league. It would gain markets but also give markets.

"For Canada it will mean that we are an even more integral part than ever before of a world community," he said.

Another official estimated that while the tariff cuts, affecting some 6,000 individual products, will touch on some $40,000,000,000 worth of free world trade a year, it will have specific impact on some $5,000,000,000 worth of Canadian trade, particularly on exports.

There would be bigger markets for Canada in the U.S. as well as in Europe and in Britain. While Canadians declined to disclose individual products negotiated, it is understood there will be gains for Canadian pulp and metals manufacturers, along with hundreds of other suppliers.

Fourth of Canada's Exports To U.S. Benefit by Agreement

OTTAWA (CP)—Better terms on $1 of every $4 in sales to the United States will be Canada's most important reward from the new bargain on world tariffs, Trade Minister Winters told the Commons Monday night.

He estimated U.S. tariffs will be reduced or eliminated on up to $1,500,000,000 annually of Canadian goods as a result of agreements sealed barely an hour earlier at the Kennedy round negotiations in Geneva.

Fully $6,000,000,000 of Canada's $10,000,000,000 in domestic exports last year went to the United States, he told the Commons.

Mr. Winters promised not only lower barriers, but an opportunity to make new sales of merchandise that has never found a market in the U.S.

He spoke only in general terms about where the big trade opportunities will lie. Apart from a new agreement on wheat prices already announced, he offered three hints:

"In agriculture, reductions which we have secured in foreign markets over a broad range of products will benefit farmers from coast to coast. Important tariff cuts have been made by other countries in respect of our exports of basic materials, metals and forest products.

"Major gains have been made through elimination and reduction of tariffs on fish and fish-eries products."

Mr. Winters made no reference to increased competition

Shanghai Mob Invades British Diplomat's Home

PEKING (Reuters)—A large crowd of Chinese demonstrators broke into a British diplomat's house in Shanghai today and wrecked everything in it, a British spokesman said here tonight.

Diplomat Peter Hewitt, his wife and three children were unhurt.

The incident occurred as anti-British demonstrations mounted in intensity in China over incidents in Hong Kong.

Britain has what is called an office of the counsellor in Shanghai, China's biggest city with 10,000,000 inhabitants. The office is attached to the British charge d'affaires mission in Peking.

It was believed to have been the first time Chinese broke into a foreign diplomat's house in the recent series of demonstrations against foreign diplomatic missions.

Targets of earlier demonstrations included the Russian, French and Yugoslav embassies here.

In day-long demonstrations in Peking today, the crowds burned straw dummies representing British Prime Minister Wilson outside the British diplomatic mission here.

After a straw effigy of Wilson was burned, two Red Guards hoisted another dummy wearing a top hat with a Union Jack on it, and ceremonially strangled it for several minutes in full view of the mission windows.

The demonstrators marched to the office of the British charge d'affaires here early today carrying placards demanding in English "hang Wilson" and "down with British imperialism."

Red Guards smothered walls of the British office and the neighboring home of Charge d'Affaires Donald Hopson with black Chinese character slogans.

One said: "We strongly protest against British imperialist fascist outrages, our British imperialist bastards."

De Gaulle Won't Veto Britain's Euromart Bid

PARIS (AP) — President de Gaulle said today he would not veto British entry into the European Common Market, but he then listed a long series of obstacles which he said would be difficult for Britain to overcome.

Speaking at a press conference, de Gaulle said "It now seems possible to receive Great Britain," but he then went on to propose so many difficulties that he seemed to refute this opinion.

He said the agricultural question would be especially thorny. He declared the result of British entry would be higher food prices and salaries in Britain as well as more expensive British manufactured items.

Viet Cong Fights Hard In Delta

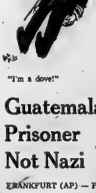
SAIGON (AP) — Hard fighting on both ends of South Vietnam was reported today, with 213 guerrillas killed in two battles with American infantry in the Mekong Delta and 52 Communists and 16 Americans killed in three clashes in the northern sector.

Communist rocket and mortar attacks continued around the clock in southern provinces, and the Communists lobbed 60 mortar rounds into the U.S. military advisory compound before dawn in downtown Hue.

The U.S. command reported 99 air missions over North Vietnam Monday, mostly against trucks, roads and river barges. U.S. officials also announced that 65 South Vietnamese civilians were killed in Viet Cong terrorist attacks last week—nearly double the number the week before — while 97 were wounded and 78 kidnapped.

De Gaulle Seeks Rule By Decree

PARIS (AP)—With a nationwide general strike banging over his head, President de Gaulle is expected to outline his case at his semi-annual press conference for his government's request for emergency legislative powers.



The president was certain to try to dull the opposition of the French left to his government's attempt to legislate by decree on economic and social matters until Nov. 1.

Since defence and foreign policy are the private preserves of the presidency, de Gaulle is asking the new National Assembly to yield its only important areas of control and in effect to suspend itself from office before it has had an opportunity to warm the assembly benches.

An electorate increasingly restless about the sluggish rise of wages and social benefits where an assembly that is nearly evenly divided between the Gaullists and their allies and opposition parties of the left and centre.

Communist, Socialist and Catholic labor unions have called a 24-hour general strike Wednesday to protest the government's request for emergency powers.

The general strike—the first on a frankly political basis in 29 years — coincides with the opening of debate in the assembly on the government's emergency powers bill.

Guatemala Prisoner Not Nazi

FRANKFURT (AP) — Frankfurt Prosecutor Joachim Richter said today that a fingerprint check has established that an elderly man arrested in Guatemala on suspicion of being Martin Bormann is not Hitler's missing deputy fuehrer.

His fingerprints were sent to Frankfurt and compared with those of Bormann, who disappeared at the end of the Second World War. Bormann, the most wanted Nazi war criminal, has been reported seen in a number of Latin American countries over the years but none of the reports ever has been substantiated.

Pearson Stays Mum On Gordon

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson said he expects to have nothing to say publicly today about statements on the Vietnam war by Privy Council President Walter Gordon.

"I don't expect to have anything to say today, after cabinet on that," he told reporters who questioned him about Mr. Gordon's remarks as he entered a cabinet meeting.

He added that if he does say anything in the future it will be to the Commons.

Mr. Gordon said in a weekend speech that the United States is enmeshed in a civil war in Vietnam which cannot be justified on moral or strategic grounds.

He said Canada should demand commitments from the United States not to use atomic, bacterial or chemical weapons in the war.

His views clashed sharply with the government's policy as expressed by External Affairs Minister Martin and Prime Minister Pearson. They have argued that Canada should refrain publicly from condemning one side or the other in the Vietnam war.

In the Commons yesterday the Opposition failed to win a move for a special debate on Gordon's speech.

Outside the House, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker argued that if Mr. Gordon's views conflicted with the government's policy he must resign because under the parliamentary system the cabinet collectively is responsible to the Commons for government policy.

Mr. Gordon rejected suggestions of resignation Monday and informants said there is no question of Mr. Pearson asking him to resign.

Mansfield Proposes UN Deal With Vietnam War

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield proposes placing the Vietnam war before the United Nations, an idea he says UN Secretary - General U Thant scotched last year.

Mansfield said Monday in a Senate speech that when he first proposed asking the UN Security Council to take up the war issue—in a Nov. 11, 1966, speech in Baltimore—he won backing from President Johnson.

He said Johnson phoned him after the speech and urged him to discuss the matter with Thant and Arthur J. Goldberg, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

Mansfield said Thant opposed the proposal, saying he would prefer to pursue peace talks privately.

"I think the secretary-general has had his chance," Mansfield told his colleagues Monday. "It is now time to place the matter formally before the Security Council."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield proposes placing the Vietnam war before the United Nations, an idea he says UN Secretary - General U Thant scotched last year.

Mansfield said Monday in a Senate speech that when he first proposed asking the UN Security Council to take up the war issue—in a Nov. 11, 1966, speech in Baltimore—he won backing from President Johnson.

He said Johnson phoned him after the speech and urged him to discuss the matter with Thant and Arthur J. Goldberg, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

Mansfield said Thant opposed the proposal, saying he would prefer to pursue peace talks privately.

"I think the secretary-general has had his chance," Mansfield told his colleagues Monday. "It is now time to place the matter formally before the Security Council."

Zoning Bylaw Broken Says Planning Officer

TRENTON — A local industry stands liable to a maximum fine of $500 for contravention of the town's zoning by-law, and to one of $50 for carrying out construction without a building permit.

Trenton council last night moved to consult legal advice before adopting town planning officer Alan Hoornweg's recommendation that Trenton Cold Storage be charged with the infractions.

Mr. Hoornweg reported to council that construction continued on an addition to the waterfront plant after company management had been informed that a building permit could be issued pending processing of the firm's application to the Committee of Adjustment for a re-zoning of the property to Industrial.

The existing plant's site lies on properly zoned property, whereas the adjacent property on which the addition is being constructed has been zoned "open space".

The planning officer's report said plant owner Mr. Eben James was advised May 2nd to cease further construction until approval was obtained from the Committee of Adjustment.

Mr. James' application was subsequently approved by the committee yesterday afternoon, but a customary waiting period precludes issue of a building permit.

Remarked councillor Edward Todd: "An ordinary person wouldn't risk defying the by-laws, but anyone in this position just goes ahead with construction and can afford to add the $300 fine to his building expense."

Council Briefs

Town council has accepted the only tender submitted to outfit the 18 volunteer members of Trenton's fire department with uniforms.

The bid of $1701.54 covers the cost of supplying 18 tunics, trousers, ties, and caps, and 54 shirts; and was submitted by Ross Stores of Trenton, formerly Couch-Newton Limited.

Councillor Edward Todd, chairman of the committee of persons and property committee said the tender pilot sales tax would almost overlook what is $1,800 budgeted for that purpose by his committee.

The uniforms will match those worn by permanent members of the brigade.

A report by the Trenton Library Board to town council indicated the board's unanimous approval of a proposed east-side sub-branch to be located on Marmora St.

The board report said it was hoped the doors of the new library would be open to the public by next May.

The town fathers set aside $40,000 for the project in this year's instalment of the capital works budget.

Council approved a Public Utilities Commission request to place signs on both town bridges to direct motorists to the fire of smuggling underwater mains or cables.

A design for a unique Trenton crossroad sign submitted by the town centennial committee was endorsed by council last evening provided there was no financial responsibility involved.

A light-hearted resolution calling for any expenses incurred in the endorsement to be deducted from Mayor James MacDonald's stipend was narrowly defeated.

The mayor assured councillors the centennial committee was this time merely seeking council's opinion.

Missing Woman Sought

TRENTON — Provincial police at Brighton are seeking the whereabouts of 19-year-old Mrs. Nancy Carole Brittain of R.R. 1, Brighton, who has been missing from her home since Monday.

Mrs. Brittain, who has been in ill health for the past few weeks, was last seen walking south on Highway 30, near the village.

She is described as being five feet seven inches tall; 120 pounds, brunette with blue eyes and with conspicous scars on her nose, throat and forehead.

She was said to be wearing a blue dress, a blue re tur quoise head scarf, a white and black "ili-weather coat with black pockets and collar and a brown shoes. She was carrying either a white or bone colored purse.

Salvation Army Campaign Near $11,000 Mark

The Salvation Army held their house-to-house blitz last night in Belleville, Trenton, Bayside and Middleton Park.

Colonel C. M. Best stated that they were trying to reach a figure of $10,000 in the Belleville area while Captain Robert Sloan said he felt the campaign would "go over the top". Captain Sloan' goal is $2,000.

In Trenton and area the Salvation Army is well on the way having already collected $2,364 while Belleville's collection has been $7,000.

"There is more to come in," says Colonel Best. "We have a lot of call backs."

The reports from industry on the letter campaign are just starting to come in and the canvassers will be campaigning to the end of the month.

McFarland Gets Contract for Road Project

TRENTON — A well-known Quinte area construction firm has landed the contract for major roadwork projects scheduled for Trenton's Front and Ford St. areas.

Council last evening authorized acceptance of a $123,034 tender submitted by the H. J. McFarland Co. Ltd. of Picton. The only other bid received by the town was one of $125,413 from Belleville's Ligatbol Construction Ltd.

The award of the contract was made subject to removal of three items relating to water connections to be installed by the Trenton Public Utilities Commission, reducing the total amount of the McFarland-town agreement to $120,444.

The accepted tender is scheduled to proceed in one of the town's capital works budget estimate for the project. Town engineer Earl Mallory told councillors last night the contract will probably involve a net increase of $30,000 more than had been anticipated.

Council recently authorized expenditures for reconstruction and widening of Front St. from Elgin to Division and similar roadwork on Ford St., near the location of the new liquor store the cost of the construction.

The town engineer's department of highways return in the neighborhood of 30 percent of the cost of construction.

Final stamp of approval for the capital project must come from the Ontario Municipal Board, and is expected in about a month's time.

The engineer indicated tentative completion date for both works has been set in the middle of August.

Express Confidence In Board

The executive committee of the United Community Services of Belleville and District expressed total confidence in the Citizens' Admission and Budget Committee at a meeting Friday.

The committee recognized that certain of the participating agencies might encounter some difficulty in complying with the new budget requirements but agreed that the services of the directors and staff of United Community Services would continue to be available to assist them in overcoming any real problems.

Sign Bylaw To Take Effect In 1973

TRENTON —A bylaw aimed at face-lifting town commercial properties and protecting pedestrian safety has been passed by Trenton council.

Councillors last night gave three readings to legislation which will see overhanging signs in front of town business premises replaced by "fascia display" signs by January 1st, 1973.

Signs will be required to extend no farther than 18 inches from wall surfaces of businesses. Contravention of the bylaw after the deadline date for installation calls for a maximum fine of $250 and/or a term of imprisonment for each day the offence exists.

Commercial property owners will also be expected to maintain the upkeep on signs, which will be regularly inspected by the town building inspector.

Council considered the matter in terms of safety to sidewalk pedestrians, as well as with the idea of unchottering the appearance of shopping areas.

Centennaires Climb Into Sky

Centennaires to Recall Memories of Golden Hawks

Saturday, May 20 is the day, and Trenton Canadian Forces Base is the place.

That is the day and place for the Centennial Year equivalent of air force day which will see the Golden Centennaires, the Canadian Armed Forces Acrobatic display team, do their stuff in the Quinte district.

The RCAF is putting on most of the show, but the day itself is planned as a joint venture by the Belleville and Trenton Centennial committees.

In addition to the Golden Centennaires, the armed forces centennial year replacement for the disbanded Golden Hawks, are two other stars in the cast, a supersonic CF-100B Voodoo intercepter and a CF-104 Super Starfighter.

Still another sure-fire hit of the aerobatic display team will be two aircraft which will outmatch the pilots — as well as most spectators — in age. They are 1918-vintage AVRO 504K bi-plane trainers, last used in RCAF service in 1928. The aircraft were brought from private sources and reconstructed at Trenton.

The Golden Centennaires — a name - plane aerobatic team — fly the Tutor jet trainers which are being used in an acrobatic role for the first time.

Team leader S/L C. B. Lang of Creston, B. C. a veteran of the RCAF Golden Hawks, said the Tutor is an excellent aircraft for aerobatics.

"It has good inverted flight capabilities and can loop in about one half the space required for an F-86 Sabre, the standby of the Golden Hawks," he said. "This permits tighter shows and better viewing for the spectators."

The Golden Centennaires are under the command of Wing Comamnder O. B. Philp of Sidney, B.C., former test pilot and veteran of 25 years in the RCAF.

Adding variety and making for a more interesting show, the Centennaires take off and land in a nine - plane formation. They also use, six, four and three grow-wings and have three solo performance.

The Belleville and Trenton centennial committees are planning numerous side attractions for Saturday's show at Trenton.

There will be a sky-diving demonstration, a static display of RCAF aircraft on the ground and a ground display of private aircraft. Saturday morning there will be a "fly-in" for Quinte district aircraft.

Adding to the entertainment will be three bands, one from the RCAF, and the others from Belleville and Trenton. Trenton's "sing-out" group will also be on hand.

The gates at the air base will open at 12:30 with the show to commence at 1:00. There will be ample parking on the base for the 20,000 persons expected to attend the three-hour show. Belleville attending the show are asked to use the easterly entrances to the grounds.

Subway Renovation Approved

TRENTON — The long-awaited renovation of the North Front St. - Highway 33 subway and removal of the CNR level crossing there is now on the town's books in the form of legislation.

Council Monday evening authorized the signing of an agreement with the department of highways to initiate the $485,000 project.

Trenton's share will be about $48,000, some $5,000 over the recent capital works budget estimate.

The remainder of the cost will come from the Board of Transport, the Canadian National Railway, and the department of Highways.

Plans call for the widening and straightening of the subway, which has long been a potentially treacherous meeting place for opposing traffic flows.

Advisers to Police Commission Now Assessing Local Force

Two advisers for the Ontario Police Commission, R. Kerr and J. S. McLaren of Toronto have been in Belleville for more than a week assessing the local police force.

Judge J. C. Anderson, chairman of the Belleville Police Commission, said this morning that the policy of the Ontario Police Commission is to have these men inspect various police forces in the province at regular intervals. "This is the first time they've come to Belleville since the new system was set up about two years ago," he said.

The investigation of the department was apparently instigated by four or five resignations on the force over the past nine months. Judge Anderson says that the resignations were all checked closely by the Belleville Police Commission and "Everything seemed to be in order."

The advisers will make their report to the Ontario Police Commission and Judge Anderson hopes to receive some word on the efficiency status of the force from this group. "We would like to have a copy of the report but the Ontario Commission is not obliged to forward it to us," he said.

Judge Anderson said he welcomed the report as it would give the local commissioners a basis for making any changes which might be deemed necessary.

They may suggest anything from the addition of new equipment to making changes in various branches of the force," he continued.

Judge Anderson also said the force was losing some qualified men to the Ontario Provincial Police after they are trained.

"We spend the taxpayers' money on training and then the OPP are able to hire away some of these policemen," he said. An agreement between municipalities limits this type of problem.

Judge Anderson said he and the other police commissioners would act on the advisers' report if and when it came from the Ontario Police Commission.

Other members of the Belleville Police Commission are Magistrate T. Y. Wills and Mayor Jack Ellis.

Umbrella and Rain Coats Dress of the Day

It Might Be Dreary at Home But Not at Expo Belleville Day

By HARRY MULHALL
STAFF REPORER

Montreal — Even the dreariest day can't dull the glitter of Expo, nor the rainiest spoil its scintillating glamor — as more than 7,000 Centennial-Year Bellevillians can prove here tonight.

At least that many Quinte-district dwellers were here Monday as the biggest show on earth—sponsored by Canada — entered its 18th day, and its 4,500,000th visitor registered at its turnstiles.

Almost 120 of them were from Belleville and district, says reports of a quick count of heads taken aboard the CNR's daily Expoliner.

Much of the magnetism for Quinte residents drew on the power of promotion by a local enterprise — Radio Station CJBQ — which sponsored about 30 persons for its Belleville Day at Canada's big birthday showpiece.

Either way, all Quinte residents shared in the show as they were driven into special welcoming ceremonies on arrival at the national celebration site.

Since its April 28 opening, Expo has had some weak weather working for it, but today was probably among the wettest of the week.

Despite that, the sheer excitement generated by its mere presence, drew nearly 140,000 through the day.

Their refusal to let the weather mar their response was marked by the number of umbrellas and raincoats folded over their arms as they churned toward the turnstiles before 9 a.m.

Despite the showers, they already had formed lineups outside the pavilions of their choice before the premises prepared to open at 10 a.m.

The Bellevillians joined the throngs as soon as the opening ceremonies were formally dispensed at Place D'Accueil, fronting the admission gates.

They were greeted on the spot by Commodore O.C.S. Robertson, scientific adviser and Expo executive member.

This came after the party had been joined at Dorval by Mayor Jack Ellis, who flew from Niagara Falls and the current convention of Ontario mayors and reeves.

Also among the party were Lee Grills, MP Hastings South and Charles Rollins, MPP, Hastings East.

Radio CJBQ's staff broadcast from scattered points across the big birthday scene during the day — ending at 6 p.m. when disc jockey Dave Charles called it quits at La Ronde youth centre, Expo focal point for the younger generation.

Local Students Win Awards At National Science Fair

They were Janice Blake of Belleville Collegiate, who was the Canadian Teachers' Federation special award of $100 for the best display for use in teaching, and Rick Reilly of Quinte Secondary School, who received one of ten Centennial Year Awards which will give him a week-long visit to Expo.

Miss Blake was a runner-up at the Belleville Science Fair organized by the Rotary Club, with her bacteria and antibiotics exhibit. Reilly and Grant Millar of Quinte also took runner-up awards for their nuclear reactor simulator exhibit. The latter went to the Quebec City event as an observer.

Joy Livingston of Quinte, another runner-up in Belleville, won an honorable mention at the Canada-wide event for her exhibit on the learning capacity of rats.

Jean Gravley, the Albert College student whose exhibit in the general physics section won first place at the local science fair, was unable to go to Quebec City because of examinations.

Bill MacKay, announcing the awards at yesterday's meeting of Rotary, said the national event will be held in Victoria, B.C.

The Corby public library may receive a grant from Rotary to purchase Canadian books. The club passed a motion suggesting the library be extended a grant of $300 for this purpose, subject to the approval of the Board of Directors.

Social Workers Directors of Ontario Body

Vincent G. Castellano, executive director of the Family Counselling Services of Belleville and Hastings County, and Robert L. Porter, executive director of United Community Services of Belleville and District, Incorporated, have been elected directors of the Ontario Association of Professional Social Workers.

Mr. Castellano, who will be serving his first term as a director, and Mr. Porter, who will be serving his third term, will hold office for one year.

Youth Fined By Court

"The present Liquor Control Act is not adequate to give probation to an underaged drinker," Magistrate T. Y. Wills said today in police court. "It doesn't work".

Instead James Edward Gregory, aged 16, was fined $10 and warned that if he was brought up again the fine would be increased. He was informed as well that he might be eligible for alcoholic treatment if he was caught again.

Farmers to Go on March

Up to 300 Hastings county farmers are expected to join the Ontario farmers' march on Ottawa scheduled for May 24 in support of higher farm prices.

Mr. Burton Hubble, Hastings county co-ordinator for all farm groups, announced today that a farm rally will be held Thursday night at the Ivanhoe Hall with the view of determining just how many farmers will join in the march on Ottawa.

"A canvass of the county is being taken and we hope that at least 300 farmers will join the march," he said.

Mr. Hubble said the march was a united effort on the part of all Ontario farmers and all county farmers were urged to attend Thursday night's meeting and to support the march on Ottawa.

Four Area Clergymen Take Part in 'Fly-by'

Eight private aircraft and four area clergymen took part in Saturday morning's Centennial "fly-by" sponsored by the Oak Hills Flying Club as a salute to Canada's aviation history.

The "fly-by" was a Centennial project on the part of flying club members to pay tribute to the men who have made aviation history in Canada.

During the flight over rural areas communities to the north of Belleville, prayers in thanksgiving for past blessings in Canada and prayers for its future well being were offered.

Rev. James F. McGarvey, pastor of St. Anne' The Miner Church at Stirling and himself a pilot member of the Oak Hills Flying Club, notes that few countries have a more glorious history in the development of aviation than has Canada.

In the early days of aviation, Canada set the pace for years of freight transport which did much to develop the northern parts of the country.

Canadian airmen took to the skies in two world wars winning renown for themselves and respect for their country. The communities flown over on Saturday were: Belleville, Tweed, Madoc, Marmora, Havelock, Norwood, Hastings, Campbellford, Stirling, Frankford, Bazawa and Wooler. The flight then returned to Oak Hills' Flying Club. Pilots of the aircraft were: Rev. James F. McGarvey, organizer of this Centennial Ecumenical fly - past; Don Williams, fly club, Bill Fisher, Alton Lawes, president of Oak Hills Flying Club; Ken Ray, Wilfred Turner and Reeve Don Rogers. Clergymen taking part were: Rev. James F. McGarvey, Rev. Bruce Small, Rev. A. Appleton and Rev. W. J. Cullen. Other passengers were John Williams and Ian Crighton.

MILK PRICES UP

OTTAWA (CP)— Milk prices went up two cents a quart in Ottawa Monday. Spokesmen for the dairies said the increase came as a result of the Ontario Milk Marketing Board's increase in the price of milk to the dairies to $6.10 per hundred weight from $5.70.

Price of Milk to Be Hiked Two Cents Quart Wednesday

As the result of a 35 cents per cwt. increase to producers which went into effect this week, the price of milk will go up two cents per quart in Belleville on Wednesday.

The increase will go into effect at the dairies, but as there are no home deliveries on Wednesday, the price at the door will not increase until Thursday. Then the delivered price for a quart of milk will be 32 cents instead of the present 30 cents.

Along with the price increase, Belleville dairies this week will commence home delivery of three quart jugs which formerly have been available only at the dairy or at the grocery stores and supermarkets.

The delivered price for three quart jugs will be 87 cents which works out at 29 cents per quart . . . one cent a quart less than the present price for milk delivered to the home.

At first the regular glass jugs will be used for home deliveries but within a week plastic jugs are expected to be on the delivery wagons.

Local dairies reported that cream prices will also take on a slight increase in price.

The Ontario Milk Marketing Board pointed out in newspaper advertisements yesterday that the 35 cents per cwt. increase to farmers works out at one cent per quart.

The board said the increase was necessary to help re- imburse farmers for increased costs for farm labor, livestock feed and taxes.

The other half of the two cent increase in the price of delivered milk will be retained by the dairies . . . again to recoup dairy operators for increased operational costs.

Senator McCutcheon

Senator Wallace McCutcheon's entry into the Conservative party leadership race injects an interesting new dimension into the contemporary political scene.

Like the other candidates, including the Conservative party's current leader, John Diefenbaker, Senator McCutcheon is playing his cards close to his chest. He is being cautious with regard to his opponents at least, refusing to discuss them beyond saying he is "opposed to all of them at the moment."

Senator McCutcheon is 61, but he does not feel he is too old to run. Mr. Diefenbaker was the same age when he won the leadership. It is easy to imagine the senator's entry acting as a spur to Mr. Diefenbaker to try once more, although his chances of retaining the leadership are not rated highly.

Meanwhile, Senator McCutcheon has revealed enough of his views to indicate he may strike a ready response among voters.

At a press conference in Ottawa last week he declared himself firmly opposed to socialism, federal intrusion on provincial jurisdiction and Government infringement of individual freedom — all of them facets of the contemporary political scene which are tending to erode old concepts of private enterprise and the integrity of the individual.

Publicity Helps

The success of Expo 67, still not quite three weeks' old, seems completely assured already.

And much of the most important worldwide publicity on the exhibition is reaching the public in these vital early stages. The May issue of the National Geographic, for instance, carries an article by the editor of this distinguished publication, Melville Bell Grosvenor, whose family has links with Canada.

Mr. Grosvenor, in an article on the nation's first century, recalls boyhood memories of the family's summer cabin at Baddeck, Nova Scotia, and notes there are some 275,000 Canadian members of the National Geographic Society.

Time Magazine has also published a feature on Expo and there has been no lack of other material. There is even some unconscious humor in some of the advertising — like this month's Ontario advertisement in the Geographic, for "friendly, Familiar, Foreign and Near." Yes, we have seen this phrase before in the province's publicity. But this time the accompanying photograph shows a Shakespearean warrior swinging a massive sword, while behind him are a forbidding group of supporters.

Stratford, of course, is the subject of the advertisement, but it scarcely reflects a region that is "friendly, familiar, foreign and near."

Recreation for Children

Amherstview is one of a number of pleasant lakeside communities west of Kingston. It overlooks a wide expanse of water and there are views of Amherst and Wolfe Islands.

Apartment blocks afford accommodation for city businessmen and their families. Similar communities are springing up on the fringes of cities across Canada. In all of them children dominate the scene, and a different view they are luckier than most for there is plenty of space as yet unfilled by new homes. True, some stretches are still rough, there is the inevitable broken glass and parts of the roadway have yet to be surfaced, but there is no lack of space for the children. The swings are busy evenings and at the weekend and well-kept lawns separate the apartment blocks.

Yet something is missing. The children are left largely to their own devices and the thought occurs, how much more could be accomplished by planned recreation and training in various sports? For all that, children are not lacking in energy, plenty of ingenuity and quickly learn to amuse themselves. Thus, while some have fun on the swings others may be playing on the lawn, swinging a baseball bat in the open areas or engaging in the small talk of young people everywhere.

But some have talents that could be developed under supervision. For instance here are two small girls, one about 6 years old, the other perhaps 8, playing "catch" with a tennis ball. It is obvious they both have good eyes because the ball drops into their hands easily from varying heights and angles. Later they switch to batting a table-tennis ball back and forth. A pity they have no table and net — or better still, since it is outdoors, a badminton net and rackets and "birds."

At Amherstview, as in similar growing communities across Canada there are children with all sorts of potential talent, both intellectual and recreational. But Canada is falling these youngsters with its general lack of sports facilities.

It's 'Instant Action' Man, At A Word A Smile, From PM

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Ever think of the power of the Prime Minister?

Immense.

Just barely this side of supreme.

The blase National Capital, which long has taken Prime Ministers for granted — after all, isn't just one of the neighbors in this fair Ontario town? — was reminded the other day of the prime - ministerial - muscle-that-can-move-mountains.

There was Emperor Haile Selassie, conquering Lion of Judah the first of some 60 VIPs to take a short "All-Found" Canadian holiday, coming in by limousine from Union Station to Parliament Hill through the clouds of dust and dirt, grit and grime stormed up by packbeasters, bulldozers, draglines, frontend-loaders and other power equipment currently rigging into Confederation Square.

And there was Sir Seewoosagur Ramgoolam, Prime Minister of Mauritius, making the same grimy excursion.

Finally, there was Prime Minister Pearson at his press conference, saying how proud he was of Expo and of the National Capital.

Proud of what in the National Capital, asked some down-to-earth scribe, proud of the desert of dust, the desolation of dirt on Confederation Square?

Well, no, not exactly, grinned the Pelgo Minister.

Matter of fact, that the Capital's show-window — it's where they display the National War Memorial — should look so like the Somme area, was "a little disappointing."

Wellll — you should have seen the burst of action.

You'd have thought he had sentenced the Bones of the National Capital Commission to their construction crews to the next dawn.

Confederation Square exploded with energy. It roared more power equipment. In marched extra shifts. They scrambled to it, frantically, by day and by night, and before anybody could say "a little disappointing" again, there it was, all primped and polished and ready for the next VIP to come, all expenses paid by the Canadian taxpayer, but in hand to The Hill more Foreign Aid.

What is it about Mike Pearson that gets that kind of action?

He's not the P. F. as a prettyboy, but as a Prime Minister.

The bureaucrats all like him. Above all, isn't he, as a long-time civil servant, one of their own — but it's more than that.

It's simply that everybody who has the wit to tell the difference between Parliament's Centre Block and Pete's Pizza Palace is acutely conscious of the Prime Minister's awesome power over them.

He can pluck them right off the farm or the backbench — and you listening, Jos Greene? — and plot them into the Cabinet and a driver's seat.

And he can boot 'em out just as easily.

Hear former Conservative Defence and Trade Minister George Hees call it a — "You can't possibly appreciate the favors of a Prime Minister in making you one of his Cabinet family until you're both out."

So waited on, hand and foot, are members of the ministry that most of them don't know their own home phone numbers — they don't have to, their flunkies know and will ring it for them. How'd you like to try that for kicks?

You fly in the Cabinet jets — and somebody else worries about the bags, the Cadillacs, the VIP hotel suite.

So you won't make it to the Cabinet and you have to fly Air Canada and check your own bags.

There's always the Senate, isn't there?

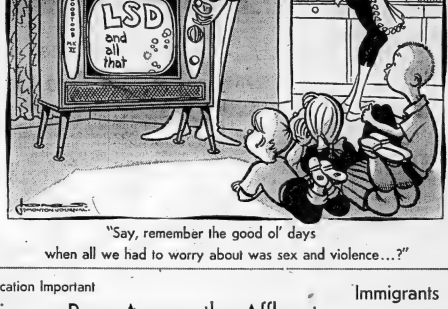
And don't you think that everybody who is anybody in the Ottawa Establishment forgets it for a second, not even in their sleep.

Instant Security. Comfort for life.

Plus to Europe on the taxpayer.

Grey Cup tickets made easy.

Better than winning the Irish Fix' with the promise of all sweeps, you win not only sobbyupholstered ease, but like hell — just look at those ripe, ripe apes to which the Honorable (and most fortunate) Members of the Senate live.



But you don't make the Cabinet and your ticket hasn't been punched in the Senate stakes.

Be of good cheer. You can still get yourself a very likely paid and padded place on the Government Staff.

It's up to Mr. Big, the PM.

You've seen Welcome What Makes Sammy Run when the Prime Minister so much as casually glances his way?

Baby, you haven't lived — at least not in Parliament Hill's Old Manor, where Prime Ministerwatching beats even girl-watching.

"Say, remember the good ol' days when all we had to worry about was sex and violence...?"

Education Important

Divorce Rare Among the Affluent

From Trans-Actlas, Washington University, St. Louis, Mo.

The well-publicized divorces of movie idols and international playboys have built up a myth that the price of riches and fame often includes unhappy marriage and frequent cri.

The sober facts of the census prove otherwise.

Divorce is most common on the lower rungs of the economic and status ladder; stable marriage comes to those blessed with a good income and a comfortable spot in the white middle class.

Recently two sociologists, Jessie Bernard of Pennsylvania State University and J. Richard Udry of the University of North Carolina, have rechecked data on unstable marriage and low status from the 1960 census.

Udry worked with a "disruption rate," which he calculated by adding together the number of people who were divorced, separated, or married more than once, and dividing this sum by the number of people in the sample who were ever married.

He found that:

The disruption rate goes down as the occupational status goes up;

As all educational and occupational levels, non-white marriages are less stable than white.

Bernard defined a stable marriage as one in which the husband has been married only once and his wife is living with him.

The racial difference diminishes at higher levels, but it does not disappear; non-whites who are college graduates, for instance, have a rate of stable marriage that almost catches up with that for whites who did not finish elementary school.

Both Udry and Bernard, using different techniques, demonstrate that marriage is less stable among lower class people than among middle class people; marriage is less stable among Negroes than among whites; and the Negro-white differential cannot be reduced simply to differences in economic position.

Richard A Schermerhorn of Western Reserve University offers some possible explanation for the racial difference in his comment published with Bernard's study. The age group on which Bernard concentrates, he points out, is composed of men born shortly before 1915 and 1915. Thus, a majority of the Negroes grew up in the casual, matriarchal Negro family characteristic of the rural South.

In the 1960 census these men were in the first generation of immigrants from the Southern farm to the Northern city. Since even second generation urban Negroes are not far removed from this traditional pattern, it remains to be seen what effects urban assimilation will have on marriages in the third generation.
